RELY ON CITIES TO PUT SMITH IN WHITE HOUSE

Democrats Don't See West in Picture.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—How the Democrats expect to elect Al Smith has been disclosed in connection with the campaign strategy being mapped out by Chairman Raskob of the Democratic national committee.

The Democratic tacticians calculate that if the New York governor is to win it must be as the result of sweeping the wet states of the eastern seaboard on the issue of modification of the prohibition law.

They are not counting on gains in the corn belt on the farm relief issue. They are going to do their utmost to foster an agrarian revolt against the G. O. P. that will enable Smith to bag some of the electoral votes in the disaffected agricultural region, but they are not reposing a great deal of faith in these prospects.

Leave Out Corn Belt.

So, it falls out that the Democrats are organizing victory on a basis that leaves the corn belt out of the equation. In the first place they count on carrying the south despite all the threats of bolting Smith that have emanated from southern drys since the New York governor telegraphed the Houston convention that he still favors modification of the prohibition law.

The Democratic disaffection in the south has simmered down to a few protestant preachers and anti-saloon league superintendents. No political leaders of consequence have aligned themselves with the bolt. The Democratic organizations in all the southern states are supporting the ticket. Hence the Democratic managers figure that neither the Prohibition nor any other third party can possibly attract enough votes from the Smith-Robinson ticket to throw any southern state to Hoover.

Thousands to Scratch Al.

Thousands may vote for Hoover directly and thousands more may remain away from the polls altogether, but according to the judgment of southern Democratic organization leaders these defections will not be sufficient to put in the Republican column any southern state that has not been there since the reconstruction period.

These states with their electoral votes are: Alabama, 12; Arkansas, 9; Florida, 6; Georgia, 14; Louisiana, 10; Mississippi, 10; North Carolina, 12; South Carolina, 9; Texas, 20; Virginia, 12. Total, 114.

The only one of these states which the Republicans entertain any hope of carrying is North Carolina, which went Democratic in 1924 by 90,000 plurality. These hopes are waning, however, with the waning of the spirit of revolt against the Smith nomination in that state. One after another the Democratic leaders have fallen in line for the ticket. Senator Simmons is the only one not accounted for up to date, and the word from the sanitarium in which he took refuge following the Houston convention is to the effect that he is not disposed to lead a bolt.

Tennessee Fighting Ground.

Originally there were eleven states in the solid south, but Tennessee, with twelve electoral votes, was carried by Harding in 1920. Though it got back into line four years later when it was carried by Davis, Tennessee undoubtedly is fighting ground in this election. Davis' plurality was only 31,000. This is a Democratic margin that might easily be wiped out by Democratic disaffection in a state that was carried only eight years ago by the Republicans.

The northeastern states with their electoral votes which the Democrats count on carrying are: New York, 45; Massachusetts, 18; New Jersey, 14; Maryland, 8; Connecticut, 7; Rhode Island, 5; Delaware, 3. Total, 100.

Since the days of Cleveland New York has not given its electoral vote to a Democratic candidate for President except when the Republicans were split in 1912. But Al Smith's phenomenal exploits in carrying the state for governor four out of five times fill the Democrats with confidence that what he could do as a governor he can repeat as a major candidate.

It is wet New York City that is being relied upon to put those 45 electoral votes in the Smith column, for the governor never has carried more than four counties outside of the metropolis. This circumstance illuminates

FIND BODENHEIM IN HIDING WITH 2D GIRL 'PUPIL'

Poet Returns Her to Frantic Father.

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Maxwell Bodenheim, poet and novelist, was found today in the art colony in Provincetown, Mass. He was awaiting another girl literary protégée, one who had tried to commit suicide in this city last month.

The poet admitted that he had fled to the colony to avoid "unpleasant publicity" in connection with the suicide of Miss Virginia Drew, young commercial artist who had turned to him for guidance in authorship. She died in the Hudson river early Monday morning after a visit to Bodenheim's apartment.

"I told her that her poetry was sentimental slush," said Bodenheim when reporters roused him from the cot, fringed by cigaret stubs where he had passed the night fully dressed. He said that Miss Drew had then threatened to take her life but had finally promised him she would not.

Enter Another Girl.

While Bodenheim talked with the reporters, Dr. Martin J. Loeb of the Bronx arrived in Provincetown to search for his 18 year old daughter, Gladys, the other girl who had chosen Bodenheim as a literary instructor.

Early in June Gladys had tried to die by gas in her garret room in a house next to 144 MacDougal street, where Bodenheim was then living. She was revived and taken home. The poet, whose photograph was found in the attic room, said that Miss Loeb had been despondent because her writings had not sold.

When the news of Miss Drew's suicide reached him Dr. Loeb feared a parallel. Gladys had again forsaken her home and resumed her Greenwich Village life.

Starts for Provincetown.

On Friday night the physician, frantic with worry, started for Provincetown. How he learned that Bodenheim was there was something unexplained tonight.

He learned today that Bodenheim had arrived Thursday and taken a lease of a cottage labeled "Peggy," until Labor day. Inquiry in the neighborhood of the shack, a leaning structure with the paint peeling in patches, informed him that a strange girl had been seen at the cottage Thursday night. The description tallied with his daughter's.

Dr. Loeb was contemplating breaking down the door of the cottage when Chief of Police Williams happened along.

The physician and the police officer entered together. After twenty minutes Dr. Loeb came out.

Emerges with Clew.

He said that Bodenheim had first produced a telegram from Boston saying:

"Will arrive on 5:20 p. m. train.
"GRETCHEN WINTHROP."

"I'll tell you everything," said the poet. "That's your daughter."

The poet told newspaper men that Miss Loeb had reached Provincetown on Thursday and had gone into Boston for treatment by a physician. He said that her health had been bad and that she was frail.

"I met her three months ago in a Greenwich Village restaurant," he said. "She was just a surface friend and I have not seen her for two months."

Father Sets Trap.

While the poet was conversing with his visitors, Dr. Loeb went to the railroad station and interviewed taxicab drivers. At 5:20 p. m., when the train pulled in, a slender girl, with black eyes and hair, stepped down, got into the solitary taxicab at the stand and gave the driver the address of the "Peggy" cottage.

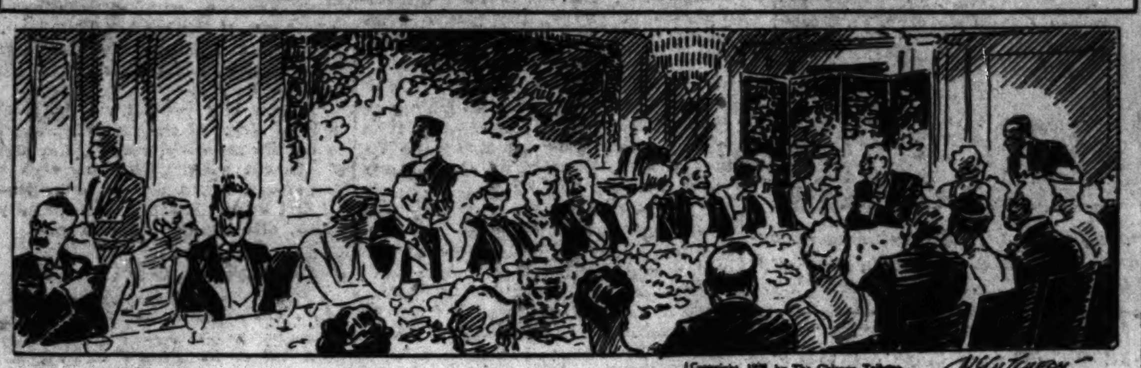
The taxi man started, but a few yards off, in accordance with prearrangement, he halted. Miss "Winthrop" was bending forward to see the cause of the delay when the door opened and her father stepped into the machine.

He directed the driver to proceed to the Gifford house, where he booked rooms for tonight with his daughter.

With all of his feminine worries disposed of, Bodenheim was able to relax at Sally Sheldon's night club at Provincetown this evening, celebrating with a coterie of his artist friends his triumph today over the suspicions of the police on the one hand and over the truculence of an irate parent on the other.

So far as concerns any criminal complicity in the tragic death of Virginia Drew, Bodenheim was formally cleared tonight by the announcements by Chief of Police Williams of Provincetown that his investigation was at an end, with no evidence against the author found.

THE MASTER OF THE WORLD



[Copyright, 1928, by The Chicago Tribune.] McCutcheon

SYNOPSIS.

Paul Rayburn, a scientist employed by the Grannett company, discovers a method by which he thinks he can talk with Mars. He loses his job, but continues his experiments, and, after financial difficulties, in which he is aided by Theodora Downs, the rather plain cousin of his former employer's daughter, Eleanor Grannett, he gets into communication with Mars, learning, among other things, how to change gold into platinum and how to make women beautiful.

Rayburn is waited upon by a group of eminent financiers, who have arrived to offer him $1,000,000 for his inventions, while admitting among themselves that they are worth five billions, but, reading their minds, he laughs at them and leaves them astounded. For his next experiment Rayburn selects Fay Thornton, known on the stage as the world's homeliest woman, and announces that he will make her beautiful.

The success achieved by Rayburn in this experiment created more of a sensation than any of his other discoveries, but despite his announcement that he will conduct no more beautifying experiments, one persistent dowager connives with Grannett, his former employer, to meet the young man socially. Grannett turns to Fay Thornton and she persuades Rayburn to attend the party. When he arrives he is surrounded by women whose ambition it is to be made beautiful, and, being able to read their minds and, seeing their greed and avarice, he makes a speech ridiculing them and then leaves them dumfounded.

Rayburn discovers that the Grannett company is using questionable methods to obtain use of his discoveries and decides to chastise Grannett, his former employer, some more. He gets from Mars the secret of how an aging man can trade his declining years for half as many years of vigorous youth and then makes arrangements with Uncle Jim, an elderly employé of the Grannett companies, and tries the experiment on him. While his experiments in rejuvenation are in progress some one tries to kill Rayburn, but he miraculously escapes.

The President of the United States sends for him and he learns that several nations are plotting to take his life. He assures the President and his cabinet that his discoveries are at the disposal of his country, but hopes that they will be used to prevent rather than carry on war.

While the matter is being discussed representatives of five world powers ask for and receive an appointment with the President, and Rayburn is taken to the home of the secretary of the treasury, where he is introduced to the family as Mr. Margate, a librarian. He meets the secretary's daughter, who invites him to a social affair to which a number of foreign ambassadors have been invited.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Thirty-six sat down to dinner. At one end of the long table, the host, the Secretary of the Treasury, faced his wife at the other end. The guests were seated according to an officially established order of precedence, the most important being at the sides of the host and hostess and the others ranging in a descending scale of importance toward the middle of the table.

Paul Rayburn, his real identity hidden temporarily in the rôle of "Mr. Margate," a book expert, was seated almost equally distant from each end. The Secretary, who had proposed that Rayburn remain incognito for the present, glanced down the table and smiled cynically as he noted how his daughter in arranging the seating had appraised "Mr. Margate" in the scale of relative importance. He noted, too, that the ladies on Rayburn's right and left were busily occupied with their neighbors, leaving that young man to his own reflections.

Rayburn was idly scanning the faces of those that came within his range of vision. At times his eyes narrowed as they concentrated upon certain of the guests and at such times this intensive scrutiny was followed by a faint twinkle of amusement.

After a time, the lady on his left turned to him with languid interest. She hadn't the remotest idea who he was—his place card meant nothing to her and her manner indicated no desire for enlightenment.

She made a perfunctory remark, while her eyes darted from one to another of the more important guests. When Rayburn answered her, he had a feeling that she didn't hear him.

It devolved upon him to keep the conversation going so he said that he was from the middle west and that he had never been in Washington before. "These guests"—he said, casually indicating the imposing company—"perhaps you can tell me who some of these interesting looking people are."

She brightened. At last her attention was arrested. Here was a chance to display her familiarity with the personages who loomed large in the capital's society. One by one she pointed out the ambassadors, with a word or two about each.

"Looking at them, all pleasant and smiling, you wouldn't suspect that they are now embarked upon a big diplomatic venture in which they are all united against this country."

Rayburn leaned forward expectantly as she lowered her voice.

"I just heard of it this afternoon—one of the secretaries of a certain embassy dropped in for tea and told me. The ambassadors are having an important conference with the President tomorrow. The whole diplomatic circle is buzzing, and like most Washington secrets, it is spreading like wildfire."

"You mean all these people know there's to be this secret conference?"

"Certainly. It is in the mind of every one at this table and yet not a word is spoken about it."

"Is it known what the conference is about?" he asked.

"Something about these new Rayburn discoveries. The other nations are all wildly excited about them."

"But why?"

She looked at him in astonishment. Here indeed was colossal ignorance!

"But why!" she echoed, impatiently. "Is it necessary to ask? Those discoveries give this nation overwhelming advantages, commercially and militarily. They render the other nations completely helpless and they know it. That's what the conference is about."

"Did your informant tell you all this?"

She smiled mysteriously. "He told me about the conference. Everybody knows all the rest. It's been the only topic in Washington for weeks. We feel we are sitting on a volcano that is likely to explode at any moment. It may even mean war! They've got to act at once, before this country has time to perfect those wonderful discoveries for military use."

Rayburn gasped. He was unused to the intricacies of diplomacy. He looked at the smiling ambassadors with intensified interest. One was lazily flourishing a cigaret as he lightly talked with the beautiful woman at his left. Another was chatting with great animation to an imposingly bejeweled lady by his side. One would never suspect, that, beneath this surface gayety, crouched the desperately grim purposes that gripped them.

When he turned again to his informant, she was deep in a whispered conversation with her left hand neighbor. They were leaning forward trying to see some one farther down the table.

Upon this person, who could not be seen by Rayburn without leaning forward, many eyes were turned from time to time. Evidently a personage of very great importance, he reflected.

The dinner had reached the dessert before the brilliant lady on his other side turned at last. With the merest glance at Rayburn, she, too, leaned forward and gazed with rapt fascination down the table. Her eyes were shining.

Yielding at last to curiosity, Rayburn bent forward to see who it was that so many of these important people were craning their necks to see. It was a woman, who turned in his direction just as he leaned forward. She caught his eye, uttered a cry of surprise that drew the attention of the whole company, and then half rose in her chair.

"Mr. Rayburn!" she exclaimed and with complete disregard for form or ceremony, Consuelo Van Guilder, the uncrowned queen of fashionable society, had leaped up and was making her impetuous way toward him.

In a moment she had seized his hand, her face beaming. Every eye at the table was focused upon them. For an instant there was a stunned silence, and then the table burst into a roar of excited exclamations. Guests were leaping to their feet and rushing toward Rayburn. A chair fell over noisily. There was the crash of a broken glass.

Rayburn! Rayburn! In the clamor of voices he had a confused impression of frantic people trying to seize his hands. The lady on his right, flaming with mortification, was desperately struggling to gain his attention.

DRAIN QUARRY IN SEARCH FOR WOMAN'S BODY

Du Page county authorities yesterday began draining an abandoned quarry south of Elmhurst on York road, where a diver reported early in the week that he had found a woman's body caught under an automobile. By noon today, it is expected, the waters will have been diverted from the quarry into Stone creek.

Mrs. Joseph Huszar of Maywood, advanced a theory that the body is that of Mrs. Margaret Schneck. Mrs. Schneck eloped last March with Mrs. Huszar's husband, "Indian Joe," former speed trapper of Broadview.

Mrs. Huszar received a telephone call recently," said her attorney, Walter Murphy of Maywood, "informing her that Mrs. Schneck and the sedan in which Joe left home were in the quarry. Perhaps Joe, too, has been drowned."

"Mrs. Huszar received a telephone reports that Indian Joe had made a connection with the Capone organization and had been peddling beer until a month ago. It was not impossible that he had been slain, in the attorney's opinion.

State's Attorney C. W. Reed of Du Page county said the money for draining the quarry was furnished by the county board. He added that there was no connection between this case and the killing of James Blazek, a taxicab driver, on a lonely road near Naperville on July 14.

"We have definite information about the killing of Blazek and, on Monday we expect to arrest the killer," the prosecutor said.

Jack Durand Quits Prison Under Parole

Young Jack Durand walked out of the Stateville prison yesterday afternoon. He wore the cheap suit the state furnishes its departing prisoners and in one of the pockets was the $10 bill on which, presumably, he is to start life over.

At the gate of the prison he was taken into a large automobile. In it were a man and a woman, according to prison officials. Capt. C. W. Troxwell, record clerk, said that the woman was Mrs. Scott Durand, wife of the millionaire resident of Lake Bluff and foster parent of Jack.

Callers Turned Away.

Early last evening Mrs. Durand denied this. She said that Jack was not at home yet and that she did not even know that he had started his journey back to Lake Bluff at 4 p. m. At little later, while the family limousine, similar to the car in which the young man left Stateville, stood in front of the house, it was made plain that callers were not wanted. One who knew Jack called to see him and a bulldog was loosed against him.

The sentence served by the adopted son of the Durands began on Nov. 17, 1926. He had been convicted of the robbery of the home of F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., and his punishment fixed at three to twenty years in the penitentiary. Several efforts were made to obtain a parole, but the state board refused to consider the matter until recently.

A Good Prisoner.

Durand, it was said, was a good prisoner and had obeyed the rules as laid down. Before he left he announced his intention of living an honest life.

"It's a happy day," he said. "I've learned my lesson and I won't need another one."

Capture Joliet Prisoner Who Escaped Noose

Charles Shader, who made his escape from the Will county jail in Joliet on June 13, 1927, in a break with three others, all four of whom were under sentence of death for the murder of Deputy Warden Peter N. Klein, was caught single handed yesterday afternoon by Sergt. Walter Storms, an ace of the detective bureau. Last night Shader was back in the Stateville penitentiary, where, according to authorities, he will be hanged within one week.

The arrest was made in a tire shop at 5912 South State street. Sergt. Storms had seen a slightly built, unkempt young man with a mustache driving a cinder truck on the south side the day before and partially recognized his as Shader. After verifying the identification through a police photograph, Sergt. Storms returned to the vicinity of 59th and State streets yesterday.

On Load of Cinders.

Shortly afterwards Shader appeared hauling another load of cinders. He stopped his truck in front of the shop at 5912 South State street and entered the place. Sergt. Storms, who is on his furlough and had disguised his identity with the use of dirty drayman's clothing, followed Shader in the store. He was carrying a gun, wrapped in a newspaper as if it were an automobile accessory.

"What can I do for you?" the proprietor of the shop asked Sergt. Storms.

"I wonder if you can repair this part," Sergt. Storms replied, at the same time unwrapping his gun and covering Shader with it.

Carried Two Guns.

"Move and you commit suicide," Sergt. Storms told his man. Shader surrendered and two guns were found in his possession—weapons that his past record indicate he would have been only too ready to use if he had not been cornered so expertly.

At the detective bureau before he was taken to Joliet, Shader said that he had been working in Chicago for nearly a month. Before that he had been wandering about the country—always fearful of being recognized. He had attempted to cross the Mexican border, he said, but at last "foolishly" decided to return to Chicago and "go straight." He could not explain to Deputy Commissioner O'Connor, however, what use a young man could find for two loaded guns on a straight path.

Only Two Not Caught.

With Shader's capture, only two of the original seven Klein killers remain unpunished. They are Bernardo Roa, a Mexican, and James B. Price. Shader told authorities that Roa had crossed the border and is now safe in Mexico, but police state that Roa has been identified in two recent south side hold ups and search is being renewed for him in Mexican quarters of Chicago. Price was never caught after the killing of Klein and the first escape.

Shader was the only man who escaped in the June, 1927, jail break. Gregorio Rizo was killed in the attempt. The two others, Walter Stalesky and Charles Duchowski, who was convicted of the murder for which the late Big Tim Murphy was acquitted, were captured and later hanged.

Killer of Policeman.

Shader himself first came to the attention of police in 1921 when he killed his father, a south side coal dealer. He was exonerated of this murder on the plea that he had killed in defense of his mother. Shader was also exonerated of the death of his sister a year later when it was found she had ended her life because her mother forbade her marriage to Frank Lee, a colored youth.

The murder for which Shader was sentenced to life imprisonment was that of South Park Policeman Harry J. Busse in 1922. His companion in this crime was Frank Lee.

COAL COMPANY HEAD ENDS LIFE WITH PENKNIFE

George E. Sutton, head of the Sutton Coal company, 307 North Michigan avenue, ended his life some time during the early part of last night by stabbing himself in the throat with a penknife. He was found dead by his wife, Mary, when she returned to their apartments in the Pine Grove Apartment hotel, 2828 Pine Grove avenue, shortly before 2 o'clock this morning. The police were notified and the body was removed to an undertaking establishment. Mr. Sutton was 54 years old.

George E. Sutton Jr., 1908 Chase avenue, a son, said that neither he nor his mother could give any reason for the suicide. He said his father had been in excellent spirits yesterday. Further than that no member of the family would discuss the matter.

JUDGE ON BENCH CHARGES FRAUD QUIZ IS ILLEGAL

Raps Tribune, Too; Threatens Action.

Judge Emanuel Eller of the Criminal court, son of Morris Eller, boss of the 20th ward, denounced from the bench yesterday the conduct of the investigation into the crimes of politics.

Judge Eller condemned Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, and chief prosecutor before the special grand jury. Mr. Loesch was described by Judge Eller as a victim of senile dementia, and the judge said he had caused three doctors to observe Mr. Loesch and had obtained "expert opinion."

Judge Eller also denounced THE TRIBUNE, which he said wanted to dominate the world, and which he declared had falsified and distorted news to reflect against him. Mr. Loesch and THE TRIBUNE were trying to rule the courts, the judge said.

Loesch Issues Statement.

After reading a transcript of the proceedings before Judge Eller, Mr. Loesch made the following brief statement:

"The exhibition which Judge Eller made of himself on the bench this morning should be the best evidence to the public of his unfitness to sit as a judge."

Court opened before Judge Eller with the presentation of a motion by Attorney Louis L. Gould, who sought to have Judge Eller reduce the bonds fixed by the grand jury for Rocco "Rocky" Fanelli, indicted for kidnaping and sluggings in the "Bloody 20th" ward on primary day. The bonds were set at $150,000 and Attorney Gould wanted them reduced at $50,000. There were ten indictments, five charging kidnapings and five assault to kill.

Other Bonds Reduced.

Previously Judge Eller has reduced bonds and permitted the release on lowered bail of three men indicted for the murder of Octavius C. Granady, colored leader and primary opponent of Judge Eller's father, Morris Eller. The three are Sammy Kaplan, a notorious thug and racketeer, whose bonds were set by the grand jury at $280,000 and reduced by Judge Eller to $73,000; Harry Hochstein, a principal in the Eller political organization, whose bonds were reduced from $105,000 to $43,500, and John Armondo, freed on bonds reduced from $75,000 to $40,000.

In the case of Hochstein two properties were scheduled and accepted by Judge Eller, one as worth $30,000 and the other as worth $107,000, a total of $137,000. Tax records show the owner, Louis Rosin, 725 West 13th street, paid taxes on a value of $3,600 in the one case and $21,000 in the other, a total of $24,600. The larger property is mortgaged to the extent of $37,500.

Charge Violation of Rules.

In no case was the bond submitted approved by the bond expert appointed by the special grand jury, as has been customary in the Criminal courts for years. In the cases of Hochstein and Armondo no notice was given the prosecutors that the motion to reduce bond was to be heard, according to Mr. Loesch's assistants. They pointed out this was in direct violation of rule 4 of the Criminal court, which holds that "no motion shall be heard or order made in any case without notice to the . . . state's attorney when made by the defendant."

After Attorney Gould had stated his motion Prosecutor David D. Stansbury, first special assistant attorney general, declared that no judge should consider the motion to reduce bonds because Fanelli is a fugitive from a bond forfeited on a gun toting charge pending in the Municipal court.

Suggests Having Other Judge.

Then the colloquy between Mr. Stansbury and Judge Eller ensued.

MR. STANSBURY—Now, what I am about to say to you, sir, I say with the utmost respect. I am of the opinion, may it please your honor, that this motion should be considered by some other judge, and the reasons for my views are so manifest that to recite them would cause me some embarrassment and I do not want either to embarrass myself or possibly embarrass you.

JUDGE ELLER—Well, you may, if you want to say it. You are an officer of this court.

MR. STANSBURY—Well, you see may your honor please, on this day of April 10, 1928, eighteen men were kidnaped——

JUDGE ELLER—Listen, Mr. Stansbury, if you are going to say anything here with reference to publicity for newspapers, I want to tell you something. Mr. Stansbury, relate your remarks to the subject matter. I am sitting here as a judge of the Criminal court, and I am only doing everything I can according to law, and I am not going to have you or any newspaper or anybody else try to ridicule me.

Joliet Desperado Is Caught

MR. STANSBURY—I am not attempting to do that and I do not want to do that.

JUDGE ELLER—And if you are making a speech just to have publicity—with reference to any primary or anything else, I will take action against you immediately.

MR. STANSBURY—I am not trying to have any publicity about it.

JUDGE ELLER—If you are arguing with reference to this bond, talk about this bond. You don't know how I am going to decide it. If I decide it illegally or not according to law, you have your remedy. Every one has his remedy, but to deliberately just do a lot of criticizing and say a lot of things publicly to get in the newspapers about me, I don't care about that.

MR. STANSBURY—I don't want to do that.

Refuses to Grant Motion.

JUDGE ELLER—I am proceeding here acting as chief justice and also judge of the Criminal court and I will rule according to law and nothing else, but I will entertain your suggestion about this man being a fugitive on a previous forfeited bond; no question about it; I will not consider this motion. You are not going to make a speech here.

MR. STANSBURY—I did not intend to.

JUDGE ELLER—Because you and I have been friends for a long time. I have known you for years.

MR. STANSBURY—Yes.

JUDGE ELLER—I do not want you to say anything where I may enter a rule against you committing you to the county jail.

MR. STANSBURY—I am not apprehensive—

"Afraid of No One."

JUDGE ELLER—I will do that immediately. There isn't anybody in Cook county I am afraid of——

MR. STANSBURY—I know that——

JUDGE ELLER—Or any newspaper, any lying newspaper——

MR. STANSBURY—I know that——

JUDGE ELLER—Or any lying newspaper——

MR. STANSBURY—I did not intend to say a single word, solitary thing——

MR. GOULD—May I correct you, Mr. Stansbury——

MR. STANSBURY—That would for a single instant be looked upon by you or anybody else as criticism of you. The thing that I was going to suggest to your honor, and I do suggest it now, is that because of all the facts and circumstances surrounding this whole business, don't you think that some other court ought to pass upon this thing?

Affidavits and Evidence.

JUDGE ELLER—I am not a mind reader but I want to tell you something, Mr. Stansbury. There isn't anything that has ever occurred that I am afraid of or my father is afraid of, because we don't know anything about it, and you know it, but I want to tell you something, Mr. Stansbury. We are familiar with the tactics of you and everybody on that special grand jury. We have affidavits if you want to know, of what procedure you have been proceeding on, and how you obtained your evidence, how you are giving money, trying to have my father and myself indicted. Do you know that?

MR. STANSBURY—I don't know whether you have got any such affidavits, but I do know that I am not trying to indict your father or trying to indict any other person.

JUDGE ELLER—We are not afraid because there isn't anything we are afraid of; but just because these newspapers and just because certain political foes are trying to put us out of politics, we are not afraid of them, because there isn't anything we are afraid of. We are in politics and we are going to remain in politics for a long time. You may get as many newspaper indictments as you want against the Eller family, but you won't get anywhere, but don't do anything in this court that you are going to feel sorry for.

Prefers to Talk with Loesch.

MR. STANSBURY—If your honor please, I could not imagine that I would do anything in this court that I would be sorry for.

JUDGE ELLER—I would rather have Mr. Loesch come in in your place and talk to me, rather than you, yourself. Is this man, Fanelli, a fugitive?

MR. GOULD—No, your honor. May I say one word?

JUDGE ELLER—I have information that the bond has been forfeited in the Municipal court. He has made the statement and I have verified it.

MR. GOULD—May I say just one word?

JUDGE ELLER—I will not consider it.

MR. GOULD—Very well.

JUDGE ELLER—At this time the motion is denied.

MR. STANSBURY—Now, before you make your ruling, I am awfully sorry you took the point of view that you did. I had no intention to wound your feelings. It is the last thing on earth I would want to do to you or anybody else.

Hints at Intimidation.

JUDGE ELLER—Mr. Stansbury, from what has occurred and what is in the newspapers and what is in the affidavits by persons that they have tried to intimidate and talk to, do you think that we don't know? Do you think we are sitting back sleeping?

MR. STANSBURY—Let me tell you, sir, that there has not been any intimidation on the part of any member of the attorney general's staff, upon any soul, whomsoever, that we have talked to, not one.

JUDGE ELLER—O, Mr. Stansbury, don't say that to me.

MR. STANSBURY—I am looking you right in your eye and as an officer of the court I am telling you that is a fact.

JUDGE ELLER—And I am looking you straight back in the eye, Mr. Stansbury. I thought you were the last person in the world that would take such action, personally to make inquiries or ask questions or try to force witnesses to say certain things they should not say.

MR. STANSBURY—Do you say I have?

JUDGE ELLER—I know as a fact that you have. That is why I am surprised.

MR. STANSBURY—Well, if you know anything that is said to be a fact, let me tell you now, sir, that the person who has made any such statement as that to you or who has made any affidavit to that effect will have to respond in such circumstances as perjury warrants, because that is an infamous lie from the mouth of any person whatever that says any such thing about intimidation of any person.

Now, I tell you that, sir, as an officer of the court and as an old acquaintance of yours, that there has been no intimidation of any person whatever by any member of the staff to my knowledge, and I have pretty accurate information of what is going on there relative to the intimidation of any witness.

JUDGE ELLER—Well, I want to tell you something. We have at least twelve affidavits. You know you have proceeded illegally—

Calls Subpœnas Illegal.

MR. STANSBURY—I don't know anything of the kind.

JUDGE ELLER—When you beguiled these particular witnesses, poor unfortunate colored people down there, by giving them subpœnas to come to the grand jury when in fact it is an illegal subpœna and they have responded to the Otis building, and while in the Otis building you have this Bruseaux, a man with a disreputable reputation, who has given them from five to thirty-five dollars to make affidavits and to testify to certain facts which are not true.

MR. STANSBURY—That is the first time that I ever heard that one.

JUDGE ELLER — Then you had better investigate your own investigation.

(Mr. Bruseaux is head of a national detective agency, and has been retained by organizations and prominent individuals to conduct inquiries among colored people.)

Promises Immediate Probe.

MR. STANSBURY—I will promptly proceed to do that, too. If any such thing as that has occurred it is lamentable. It is outrageous and I am the last man in the world that would endorse any such activity. On the contrary, I here and now denounce that business, if any such business as that goes on.

JUDGE ELLER—I am glad you feel that way.

MR. STANSBURY—You know I would feel that way.

JUDGE ELLER—Well, I am telling you to investigate, if it has not come to your attention.

"Public Will Hear Soon."

JUDGE ELLER—But I want to tell you and also THE TRIBUNE or any other newspaper, they can do all the writing they want to, but the public will hear from me very shortly. The people elected me and I will let them decide with reference to me. If I have done any illegal act, let them proceed in the regular way to oust me, but I will act according to law, as I have always, while I am sitting on the bench, and I am not going to let any senile dementia like Frank Loesch run this court room like he has run other court rooms, and also THE TRIBUNE, or, I mean running from his office to their office, and back and forth.

MR. STANSBURY—Now, may it please your honor, I take a lively exception to your statement that Mr. Loesch is possessed of senile dementia. On the contrary, he is a man of extraordinary ability——

JUDGE ELLER—I have had three doctors observe him, you know. I have taken expert opinion.

Fearlessness and Integrity.

MR. STANSBURY—A man of splendid fearlessness and absolute integrity.

JUDGE ELLER—Well, I don't know.

MR. STANSBURY — Would you mind telling me who those learned doctors are?

JUDGE ELLER—I will. I will call them up for you. I will have you consulted.

MR. STANSBURY—I would be delighted. I would like to know what their views are, and who they are——

JUDGE ELLER—All right, Mr. Stansbury.

MR. STANSBURY—And how responsible they are.

JUDGE ELLER—Of course, I would not say that about you. I think you have a good mind.

Sorry for "Offense."

MR. STANSBURY — Well, that is over with. I am sorry I have offended you, if I did. I did not mean to. I did not come over here with that intention and would not do it for anything in the world, and you know it, don't you? Don't you?

JUDGE ELLER—I know. Sure.

MR. STANSBURY—Sure.

JUDGE ELLER—Up to this time I have not done one thing to interfere with the special grand jury, and I don't intend to. I only did things which I thought were according to law. You know as a lawyer and officer of this court that bonds shall not be prohibitive.

MR. STANSBURY—Of course, I do.

"Use of Judgment."

JUDGE ELLER—Well, that is the only reason why I acted on them, and when a man comes in and submits $73,000 worth of bonds or $52,000 or $43,000, it is discretionary with me to use judgment to let a man get his liberty and be entitled to trial, but when you have newspapers that deliberately lie that I reduced bonds from $280,000 down to $73,000, what a crime that is. I would like to see if these editors were in jail how quick they would want to get out, how they would scurry for shelter.

MR. GOULD—They would come before you to have their bonds reduced.

[Reinvestigation of the court records show that the grand jury fixed bonds for Sam Kaplan of $280,000 and that Judge Eller reduced the bond to $73,000. In the same article of The Tribune, which told of this action, it was stated that an agreement between Chief Justice Brothers and Prosecutor Stansbury had been made, whereby the full amount fixed by the grand jury would not be required, and that under that agreement Kaplan's bond would have been $117,500. Similarly, Hochstein's bond was set by the grand jury at $105,000; it would have been fixed under the agreement at $55,000 by Judge Brothers, but Judge Eller reduced it to $43,500.]

JUDGE ELLER—But I want to tell you something, as friends, and for the public, and I am still standing on my two feet——

MR. STANSBURY—I don't know of any reason why you should not.

JUDGE ELLER—And THE TRIBUNE may go ahead with all their editorials. Of course, I am saving the editorials. I have got them in a little scrap book. You know when institutions get so powerful they have nothing else to do, as a rule, they crumble within. Isn't that so?

MR. STANSBURY—Sure.

Forecasts Tribune's Fall.

JUDGE ELLER—And that is what I think may happen to THE TRIBUNE. They will crumble from within. They are getting too powerful. They want to dominate the world. The world's largest newspaper. They desire to dominate the world. Of course, they want to dominate the city and the county, and everything else. THE TRIBUNE would like to dominate these other newspapers, but they are a little afraid of that.

MR. GREENBERG—May I interrupt, your honor. Do you compare it with the kaiser?

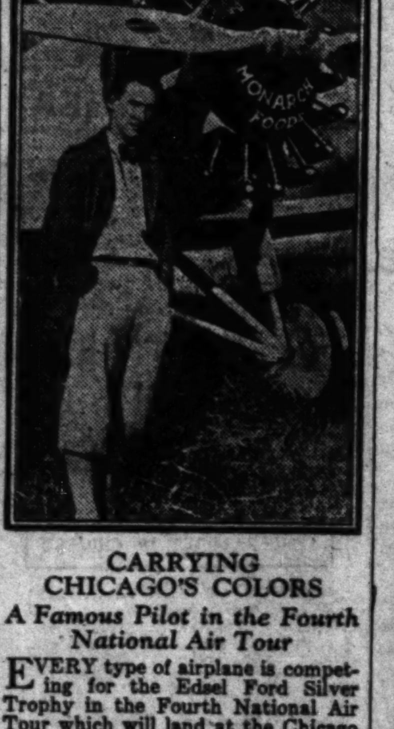
JUDGE ELLER—O, no.

MR. STANSBURY—Well, that is the end of that.

And court was thereupon adjourned.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom who, after being appointed by Chief Justice Brothers to direct the inquiry, selected Mr. Loesch and the other members of the staff as his assistants, yesterday issued the following statement:

"My attention has been called to charges made against the assistant attorneys general. These gentlemen have my full confidence, and I believe the confidence of the community, and they are performing a public service under great difficulty. If we could not preserve the integrity of the ballot we might as well abandon our forms of government."



CARRYING CHICAGO'S COLORS

A Famous Pilot in the Fourth National Air Tour

EVERY type of airplane is competing for the Edsel Ford Silver Trophy in the Fourth National Air Tour which will land at the Chicago Municipal Air Port next Friday, July 27, and the pilots are competing individually for the Monarch Coffee award of $1000.00 to the crew of the winning plane. The entries range from the huge tri-motored Ford Transport to a small 70-horse power sport model.

Chicago's entry is a beautiful white, gold and blue Buhl Airster, piloted by Alger Graham, for Reid, Murdoch & Co., and carrying as passengers the Director of the tour, Ray Cooper, and Mrs. Cooper, of Detroit. Graham saw service in the Great War and was a member of several of Capt. Wilkins' Arctic Expeditions.

The arrival and departure of the planes in the Tour will be sights worth going out to Cicero and Sixty-third street to see. You are invited.

"Elect New Council," Says League, "to Rescue City"

Demanding a clean up, the Municipal Voters' league yesterday opened fire on Mayor William Hale Thompson, his cabinet, and supporters of his administration in the city council.

The M. V. L. statement, issued over the signature of Nathan S. Davis, acting president, came on the heels of the resignation of City Controller Charles C. Fitzmorris because of the city's financial plight. It urges the voters to elect a new set of aldermen in February.

"Have you been noticing what the city council has been doing?" the statement asks. "And are you going to do anything about it?

"The council cheerfully assumed the burden of confirming the appointment of Morris Eller as city collector, Michael Hughes as commissioner of police, Samuel Ettelson as corporation counsel, and Michael J. Faherty as president of the board of local improvements. True, the mayor nominated them, but they did not take office until the council approved.

Cabinet Records Cited.

"Mr. Eller is reported as willing to sign an immunity waiver and then tell the grand jury all about the doings in the 20th ward on election day when Granady was killed.

"Ettelson, who objected long and strenuously to publishing his pay roll, has not shone as a defender of the city before the state commerce commission in the motor bus franchise matter, the use of the "L" tracks by the Milwaukee electric, and the 10 cent elevated fare.

"Hughes has been refusing to cooperate with Frank Loesch by stating that it was not the duty of the police force to help the special grand jury investigate murders, kidnapings, and other disorders at the April election.

"Faherty now is wondering if it can be true that he must pay the city his part of a judgment of over $2,000,000 against himself, Thompson, and others. Perhaps he was dazed when he got the council to pass the illegal $647,000 subway appropriation.

City Facing Deficit.

"The aldermen have so handled the city's finances that the controller predicted a $3,000,000 deficit by the end of the year. Furthermore, the midyear baby budget is charged with being heavily overloaded. All this in spite of the fact that the state revenue law, amended at the mayor's demand, gives the city $11,000,000 more tax income than it had last year.

"The council was so anxious to give the administration an opportunity to employ more experts that it approved bond issues totaling $77,959,000, all of which were overwhelmingly rejected—the good with the bad—by voters who had lost confidence in the mayor, his cabinet, and his henchmen who control the council.

"Council committees, fully aware of the desperate financial plight of the city, put through the council appropriations for hundreds of thousands of dollars for their own use, providing soft, well paid jobs, many of which are of doubtful necessity."

Recalls Pay Roll Scandals.

The report credits Ald. Guy Guernsey with the pay roll revelations, adding:

"One might have expected that the remarkable outcome of THE TRIBUNE suits to force restitution to the city of moneys lightly tossed away to 'experts' would have taught the aldermen a lesson. No such luck.

"The city hall is teeming with 60-day employés; and not a word from the council committee on civil service.

"The surface lines still are operating on a day-to-day franchise and the companies still are in the hands of receivers; the city water supply still is unfiltered; the street pavements [except where maintained by park boards or the street railways] sadly resemble a Swiss cheese; plans to provide Chicago with an adequate harbor are at a standstill; the river, among other things, is crooked—the work of straightening it has not begun; the railways are still up in the air regarding terminals, and the airplanes have no place to land that is adequate; crime is rampant; Arthur Albert is out of the council."

Saying citizens are considering changes to city manager government, the report adds:

"A new city council will be elected in February. If the aldermen are not to be the mere appointees and slaves of corrupt politicians, gangsters and racketeers, not a day is to be lost.

"Get busy. It's not so hard as you think, and really lots of fun."

$10,500,000 IN U. S. AUTO TAXES TO BE REFUNDED

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—About $10,500,000 will be refunded to 53,125 automobile dealers as a result of the elimination of the 3 per cent automobile excise tax which went into effect May 29, according to figures of the American Motorists' association.

Pennsylvania, with 4,035, has the largest number of automobile dealers of any state. Other leading states are New York, 4,000; Ohio, 2,394; Illinois, 3,329; California, 2,504; Wisconsin, 2,381, and Michigan, 2,227.

In addition to the 53,125 dealers in the country, there are about 90,000 service stations and repair shops.

MAYOR HURRIES HOME TO MEET CABINET CRISIS

City Hall in Turmoil Over Fitzmorris Resignation.

After a hurried trip home on the eve of the public announcement of City Controller Charles C. Fitzmorris' resignation, Mayor Thompson has been in the city discussing the cabinet upset with his political advisers, it was learned yesterday. He returned late in the day to his summer home in Wisconsin.

No decision was reached as to the controller's successor, according to the reports. The mayor, however, was said to be considering two courses of action, either to allow Deputy Controller Louis E. Gosselin to remain in charge of the office indefinitely or to name an outsider, probably a prominent banker, to the office. Some of his nearest friends, it was learned, advised the latter course.

City Hall in Confusion.

The mayor's visit, which was enveloped in secrecy, marked the only definite development at the city hall during a day of uncertainty, apprehension, and confusion, augmented by a large crop of rumors and gossip.

Mr. Fitzmorris' withdrawal from the cabinet apparently struck the city hall like a douse of cold water. Aside from expression of surprise, no other important Thompson office holder had anything to say for publication. The resignation, it was generally agreed, was a direct outgrowth of expenditures by the city council to which the controller would not accede, in particular the $647,000 Faherty subway appropriation, and the certainty of a $3,000,000 corporate deficit this year.

Another Resignation Rumored.

The best grounded of the rumors was that another one or more important cabinet member is on the verge of resigning or being dismissed the first of next week. Two months ago reports were that Police Commissioner Hughes would quit and these revived again yesterday. Other officials mentioned were Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, and Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements.

Two names were mentioned in the discussion on a new controller should Mr. Thompson name one immediately. They were those of George K. Schmidt, a member of the board of local improvements, and George M. Reynolds, head of the Continental and Commercial bank. Persons close to the mayor, however, discounted the chances of either being named, predicting that an appointee with stronger political connections would get the job.

Fitzmorris Still Boss—Gosselin.

Mr. Gosselin, now in active charge of the controller's office, although Mr. Fitzmorris' resignation has not been accepted, declared that he will make no move whatever "until everything is settled."

"Mr. Fitzmorris still is controller and I am still his deputy," he said. "He technically holds office until his successor takes the oath. All I can say is that whoever gets the job will step into a most difficult position because of the financial problems to be settled."

The deputy controller denied that he knew of any contemplated changes in the administrative staff of the office.

Aldermen Take Same Stand.

Regardless of the mayor's action, members of the city council pointed out, Mr. Fitzmorris will remain the official controller until a successor is appointed, confirmed, and his bond approved by the council. As the council now stands adjourned until Sept. 11, this procedure cannot be completed until that time unless the aldermen are called into a special session.

Meanwhile, barring such a session, the Faherty appropriation will be tied up as Mr. Fitzmorris, a week ago, announced that he considered it illegal without a referendum and that he would not honor vouchers against it. Hope of Corporation Counsel Ettelson to obtain $250,000 for revaluation of the elevated lines in the fare increase case also was looked on as extremely slim with Fitzmorris holding the city's purse strings. Mr. Ettelson's suggested plan that the money be siphoned out of the traction fund through a standing appropriation to the council transportation committee is believed altogether unlikely to meet Fitzmorris' approval.

Ettelson in Wisconsin.

Over the long distance telephone from Green Lake, Wis., whither he had gone for the week-end, Corporation Counsel Ettelson said his relations with Fitzmorris always have been most friendly. He said that three assistants are working on the subway appropriation fund opinion and have not reached a conclusion. He will review their work when it is completed and hand down the official finding.

Efforts to reach other cabinet members for comments revealed that most of them, like the corporation counsel, are busy playing golf, fishing or resting out of the city.

Mr. Wolfe returned on Friday from Sawyer, Mich., after spending one day at office duties, following a week's trip to Sawyer just before that. Deputy Commissioner of Public Works Edward Moore was at Lake Geneva, Wis. Fire Commissioner A. W. Goodrich is en route to Europe, while Building Commissioner Christian Paschen vacationed at Antioch, Ill. City Collector Morris Eller, W. J. Balmer, commissioner of public service, and other lesser officials likewise were reported by secretaries to be out of the city.

It's a Surprise to Faherty.

Mr. Faherty, one of the few found at his official duties, made this comment on the situation: "It's all a surprise to me. The first time I knew of Mr. Fitzmorris's resignation was when I read the morning newspapers. I did not know of any trouble between him and the mayor."

Asked if he proposed to resign, Mr. Faherty smiled and replied, "Well, you know Mike Faherty."

DEATH CLOSES CAREER OF ELLEN TERRY—PICTURES RECALL HER SUCCESSES

ELLEN TERRY'S LAST WISH BANS FUNERAL GLOOM

Relatives Pin Plea on Gate of House.

SMALL HYTHE, England, July 21.—(AP)—"No funeral gloom, my dears, when I am gone."

Ellen Terry, famous beloved actress, has had her wish, for beauty and peace and loving tenderness surrounded her as she lay this evening in her final sleep within the quaint cold farmhouse which she had known so long as home.

The noted actress received her last and greatest call this morning and died tranquilly, surrounded by her daughter, Edith Craig; her son, Edward Gordon Craig; her brother, Charles Terry, and her favorite niece, Miss Olive Terry.

Last Wish of Actress.

Within a few moments the huge presses of England were churning out their columns to tell the world that Ellen Terry had gone and all Britain felt the heavy hand of sadness. But at "the farm" which nestles at the edge of this ancient hamlet, there was little to indicate that there had been a great change. There was an air of subdued activity, but no blinds were drawn and no one in black appeared.

The reason for this was in a little white notice tacked upon the gate. It was the actress' last wish, which she penned on the flyleaf of one of her favorite volumes, the "Imitation of Christ," by Thomas A. Kempis. It read:

"No funeral gloom, my dears, when I am gone,
"Corpse-gazings, tears, black raiment, graveyard grimness;
"Think of me as withdrawn into the dimness,
"Yours still, you mine.
"Remember all the best of our past moments and forget the rest,
"And so to where I wait come gently on."

Below was written, "I should wish my children, relatives and friends to observe this when I die."

Death Ends Hopeless Struggle.

Those to whom she addressed this wish were carrying out her desires today.

The noted actress, who was 80 years old, died at 8:56 o'clock this morning, after an uncomfortable night during which she sank slowly to the end. She had been making a hopeless struggle against a combination of heart attack and cerebral hemorrhage and began sinking slowly last Tuesday.

Until Tuesday, her body will lie in state in her home. Then members of her family and the villagers will follow her along the winding country road to the little village church where the funeral will be held. The body will probably be cremated in London and then her ashes are expected to find a resting place near those of Garrick and other famous stage folk in St. Paul's church in Covent garden. This is known as the actors' church because it has been closely associated with the theatrical world for generations.

Praised by U. S. Stage Folks.

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Broadway expressed its sorrow today at the death of Dame Ellen Terry, famous actress.

"The one great light on the English speaking stage has gone out," said Ethel Barrymore at her Mamaroneck home. "I once had the honor of playing with her for nearly a year and I know how great she is."

Henrietta Grossman said: "The stage has suffered a great loss, for, although she was not playing, she carried the ideal of a great artist."

Edwin Milton Royle, author of various Broadway successes, declared: "There will never be a greater actress."

Obeys Bible and Opens Home to Strangers; Robbed

Greensburg, Ind., July 21.—[Special.]—Fearing he may disobey the Bible command regarding entertaining of strangers, Herman Markman, elderly blind retired minister, last night gave lodging to two strangers. They were not angels, however, as was evidenced by the disappearance of $125 from a bureau drawer in the room where they spent the night. Mr. Markman had saved the money in order to have an operation performed for removal of cataracts from his eyes.

IN WHICH BOSS OF ALL G. O. P. STUBS TOE ON WOMEN'S PRIVILEGES

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Alvin T. Hert believes politics and politeness mix. She believes in and demands women's full rights and also women's prerogatives. Mrs. Hert, vice chairman of the Republican national committee, was in her private office when an emissary from Chairman Hubert Work of the committee appeared.

"The chairman would like to see you," he said politely to Mrs. Hert.

The chairman's office is about fifty feet from the woman's division.

"Tell the chairman," smiled Mrs. Hert, "that I am in my office."

A moment later the messenger returned.

"The chairman is very busy," he reported. "Can't you come to his office?"

To this Mrs. Hert replied, still smiling, "Tell the chairman I am still in my office."

Mr. Work conferred with his vice chairman—in her office.

NOYES FUND AIDS 7,500, SURVEY OF WORK REVEALS

The LaVerne Noyes scholarship foundation has already aided 7,000 men and women who saw service and 500 of their descendants, it was learned yesterday.

The original fund of $2,000,000 was established at the University of Chicago, but upon the death of Mr. Noyes in 1919 his will revealed that he had made provision to expand the fund with the rest of his fortune to be used for the education of soldiers, sailors, war nurses and their descendants.

The list of institutions accepted for the education of the veterans and their children has in the past been confined to thirty of the leading colleges and universities, but an announcement from the foundation headquarters informs that that list is to be extended to include several other schools. General and specialized courses, including medicine, engineering, teaching and public health, are to be added.

ARMY EVOLVES ALTIMETER THAT FOG CAN'T FOOL

Washington, D. C., July 20.—(AP)—A new instrument designed to defeat fog has been developed by army air corps engineers.

It is a new style altimeter, at present highly experimental, which registers the exact distance between airplane and ground objects instead of giving, as the present altimeter does, the distance above sea level. Its value is expected to be demonstrated in night and foggy weather flying.

"The old altimeter works by atmospheric pressure," said Assistant Secretary Davis today. "Its zero is at sea level, but a pilot who flies 1,000 feet above that level may actually have only 50 feet clearance between himself and tree tops in high and rolling country. Lift one of these new instruments above a desk and it records exactly the height at which it is held suspended."

Another experiment is being conducted to reduce danger in bad weather landings. It is a series of wires that radiate from the center of the airport. Each wire sends at various intervals radio signals informing the pilot, about to make a landing, how to govern his descent and even tells him when to put his wheels on the ground.

W. Virginia State Troopers Save Dry Killer from Mob

Clendennin, W. Va., July 21.—[Special.]—Timely arrival of state troopers prevented a mob from seizing T. L. Cox, federal prohibition officer, arrested here Friday on a charge of killing Bernard Coterall, 23. Cox, with two other agents, raided a still at which Coterall and a companion were alleged to be working. The youths ran and when they failed to halt at the first command, one of the officers fired. The bullet hit Coterall killing him instantly. He was unarmed.

BOMBARD FORT ALL NIGHT; QUELL PORTUGAL REVOLT

Civilians Aid Rebel Troops —Leaders Seized.

LISBON, Portugal, July 21.—[U. P.]—A sudden revolutionary movement by soldiers was suppressed today after an all night bombardment of the San Jorge barracks, resulting in the death of three rebels and injuries to forty.

The government tonight said quiet reigned throughout the country. Several revolutionary leaders have been arrested, and police are searching for others who fled following the surrender of the San Jorge fortress.

The signal for the revolution was given by the firing of three artillery shots from the fortress by petty officers, acting under Capt. Conclaves, commander of the garrison, and two lieutenants. The seventh regiment of chasseurs was involved.

Loyal officers and men of the regiment were ejected from the barracks or prevented from entering. Civilians in sympathy with the movement reinforced the rebels. Armed with bombs and rifles, they deployed in the streets and threw bombs through the windows of the nearby police barracks.

Loyal infantry, cavalry, machine gun units, bombers and artillery besieged the barracks, taking advantage of cover in the streets and at strategic points on housetops and in windows.

Rendered helpless, the rebels sent a raiding force, which attacked the barracks of the republican guard at Loisos. They were repulsed.

The fortress surrendered at 8:34 a. m. today.

REED'S BROTHER ADMITS ACCUSED STOLE DYNAMITE

Youth Ordered Held for Auto Bomb Slaying.

BULLETIN.

Rockford, Ill., July 22.—(Special.)—Arthur Reed, 44, a brother, and Kenneth, his son, 20, a nephew of the accused, were taken into custody late tonight as material witnesses after they had told State's Attorney Knight they were with Paul Reed Monday night when he broke into a highway contractor's outfit near Oregon and took several sticks of dynamite, caps, and a fuse. They said their suspicions were allayed because Paul told them he was going to Lake Surprise, Wis., for an outing and wanted the dynamite to blast out a spring.

The brother is in the Oregon jail and the nephew is in the Rockford city jail.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Rockford, Ill., July 21.—[Special.]—Paul Reed, 22, the quiet youth who said he "never went around with girls" before he met Ivy Plager, was held to the Winnebago county grand jury by a coroner's jury here today in connection with the death of Vernon Plager, 28, a radio expert.

Plager, who died accusing Reed, was the victim of a murder plot in the opinion of the jury. He died of injuries received when a bomb, wired to the starter of his car, burst beneath him as he turned on the motor last Thursday morning at his home.

Reed, on the advice of his attorney, Robert Bracken of Polo, Ill., refused to testify at the inquest. He sat in an ante room and listened intently to the testimony of the young widow, whom he asked to leave her husband.

"Lived in Fear of Reed."

Reed grinned broadly as she told of how she and Vernon lived in fear of Reed, who followed them everywhere and "carried knives and guns." The indulgent husband, who looked on without protest while his wife carried on an affair with Reed, was buried this afternoon in a little country cemetery at Pearl City, Ill., 50 miles northwest of here.

His widow, under the guard of a police matron and an officer, attended the brief service at the Fred C. Olson undertaking parlors and followed the body to the grave.

There she wept openly for the first time since she was taken into custody. State's Attorney William D. Knight indicated he may release her tomorrow.

"Jealousy Leads to Death."

The minister, the Rev. L. M. Phillips of the State Street Evangelical church, spoke of the "uncertainty of life."

"Jealousy, through hatred to death," he said, "is only a step. Just think of this poor man, going only a step from his door to his auto and yet within a moment after he climbed into his seat he lay mangled and bleeding on the ground."

Tears then came to the eyes of the widow. She broke down and sobbed audibly. Frightened and whimpering, her 5 year old daughter ran to her. She lifted the child to a better view of her dead father.

"That's the last time you will see your daddy," she said. "He was a good daddy."

At the grave were her 5-year-old daughter, Lois, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Koche, the dead man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Plager, and a small group of relatives and friends from the farming community the widow left five years ago to come to Rockford.

Disproves Reed's Alibi.

Mrs. Plager's testimony at the inquest today tended to disprove Reed's alibi that he had driven to Grand Detour early the night before Plager's tragic death, and had stayed that night with an aunt in Mount Morris.

A curious crowd that jammed the small undertaking rooms and overflowed into the street listened eagerly as she told of how she went away with Reed on a trip to Davenport and Peoria last fall and how Vernon let her back into the home when they returned.

"Vernon was a good husband and never got cross, but I fell in love with Paul that once," she said.

She did not protest to the severe grilling of Coroner Fred C. Olson. With wide eyes and hands that moved in quick gestures she chattered glibly of her relations with her husband and Reed. Her voice broke once.

"Paul never threatened to injure Vernon, but once he said he would take his own life if he couldn't have me to himself," she said in answer to a question. "Since we came back from the trip he has followed me and Vernon when we went for rides and came to see me when Vernon was gone. He came when Vernon was home, too, but Vernon didn't say anything. I treated him like a friend but I didn't love him."

The day before the explosion Reed came to the Plager home to ask her when she could go away again, she testified. "I told him I couldn't go on account of Lois and because Vernon had gone in debt for the furniture and everything. He seemed kind of crazy and angry."

She told the jury she believed Reed placed the stick of dynamite that killed her husband.

In the ambulance that took him to the hospital Plager repeated again and again the name of Paul Reed, according to the testimony of Daniel Grisby, a policeman who rode with the dying man. "Paul Reed did it," he kept saying.

ONE CHICAGOAN KILLED, 4 HURT IN AUTO MISHAP

One Chicagoan was fatally hurt and four others were injured when their automobile overturned yesterday on a hill near Benton Harbor, Mich. J. Green, father of Dr. Hyman Green, died of his injuries. Dr. Green, Mrs. Hattie Gault, Morris Gault and his son, Howard, were hurt.

Two deaths caused by motor accidents in Cook county increased the 1928 toll to 550. Mrs. Ray Daniels, 55 years old, 210 North Kenneth avenue, died of injuries suffered in a collision at Lincoln and Winnemac avenues on Thursday.

An unidentified young woman was killed early this morning in a crash between a taxicab and another automobile at Harrison and Canal streets. Police were seeking the driver of the private car, who fled after the accident.

CHICAGO BRAND PADLOCKS GO ON BROADWAY BARS

Dine and Dance, but Do Not Drink, Is Order.

BULLETIN.

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Five squads of prohibition agents descended upon the Broadway night club district late tonight, arrested four employes of one club and seized a quantity of alleged liquor and started a check of bars padlocked Friday night.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—The temporary padlock—Chicago style—has made its debut on Broadway, and tonight there is more chagrin than gin in the city's whoopee parlors.

"What kind of a racket is this?" ask the victims. "They come with hammers and nails instead of pistols, and say: 'You can eat, dance and be merry, but don't go near the bar.'"

The newest wrinkle in prohibition enforcement has left the bar flies high and dry and Broadway is visioning a soda-pop era. The erstwhile soup ladlers of the six places which early today suffered crude but effective carpentry work are slightly pop-eyed and dazed.

Broadway Doubly Wounded.

Broadway is doubly wounded, for it never had heard of the summary padlock that Judge John R. Hazel, visiting critic from Buffalo, applied so effectively.

Gin alley, from the thirsty thirties to the sexy sixties, admires innovations, but it likes to make its own. This new procedure that came out of the west smacks too much of Illinois, Kansas and Nebraska to enjoy a long run on Broadway, say the Longacre wiseacres.

That part of New York that shuts up with the dawn understands summonses and padlock courts and knows of many exits along the devious way, but this new weapon hits night clubs on the belt buckle.

Food still may be served, dancing may go on unrestrained and the hip grinders may shake their stepins at tired business men as furiously as they wish, but there must be no liquor served. Actually the entire place is under padlock because the service of a drink anywhere is deemed contempt.

Tonight there is sadness in the Charm club and the Mimic club a block away has also ugly boards nailed across its gilded door. Luigi's restaurant on the edge of Greenwich Village has its little alcove nailed up and back in mid-town the Don Royal and the Knight club haven't anything to go with their cracked ice supply for the government carpenters have been there with their little hammers.

The Fifty-Second Street Corporations' club is just an eating place and at the Melody club only the melody lingers on.

Carpenters at Mimic, Too.

Peter's Blue Hour was dry-blue before the hammer and nail men got there. The Mimic club offered the most striking example of carpentry work. At that place the bar is connected with the main room by a doorless opening. Taking broad strips of wallboard, the federal agents nailed them crazily across the passageway and then took names, addresses, and ages of every employé, from head waiter to bus boy.

Broadway is learning about prohibition and hoping the lesson will be short.

MEARS AND COLLYER, GLOBE FLYERS, SAIL INTO MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., July 21.—(AP)—John Henry Mears and B. D. Collyer, globe circlers, completed a nonstop flight from Spokane, Wash., when they landed at Wold-Chamberlain field here tonight. They left Spokane shortly after 7:30 a. m., Pacific coast time, and they arrived here at 7:55 p. m., central standard time.

The flyers hope to reach New York tomorrow noon and thus better by more than four days the existing round the world record of 28 days, held by Linton Wells and Edward Evans of New York.

Mears and Collyer, by landing here, cleared up doubts as to their night stop today. It had been reported that they might make Omaha, Neb., their night stop, but they were persuaded by Kenneth Smith, member of a local aviation company, to come here for the night as his guest.

Their plane will be refueled and an early morning start for New York is planned.

UNFIT FOR SPY TO DRINK

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—According to Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of dry law enforcement, the so called "good liquor" in New York is so bad, it no longer is safe for even a prohibition agent to drink.

During his big drive against New York's night clubs and cabarets, one of Mr. Lowman's agents almost lost an eye as a result of imbibing a few drinks in one of the big city's favorite night clubs, the dry official said.

"You have no idea how bad the liquor is that the night clubs and cabarets serve in New York," Mr. Lowman continued. "We have just completed an analysis of all the liquor that was seized during raids on 21 of New York's leading night clubs.

"In all the huge quantities of stuff we seized we did not find a single sample of pure whisky. Every drop seized was synthetic. When the chemist's test was applied to the bottled liquor sold by the clubs as 'the real stuff' we found it was all home made or moonshine.

"Why, even the champagne that was sold for $25 a bottle was synthetic," Mr. Lowman added.

Lowman then remarked that some of the stuff was so bad the health of his agents working in that territory had been endangered.

"We almost lost one of our best men," Mr. Lowman said. "I thought he would lose an eye, but he is coming around all right now."

CLOTHING MERCHANT KILLS SELF.

Springfield, Ill., July 21.—[U. P.]—Sam Sabotink, 45, a clothing merchant here for more than 20 years, committed suicide today by shooting.

U. S. Dry Agents to Wear Uniforms and Shining Stars

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—For the third time within the last two weeks Washington prohibition officials have acted to curb the maiming and killing of American citizens by dry enforcement personnel. In each case action came after widespread protest had been directed against the "ruthless enforcement policies" that have marked the administration of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman and Commissioner James M. Doran.

The last moves came today when Dr. Doran announced that dry agents operating on the public highways shall be uniformed in a distinctive manner so they can be identified easily by motorists. In the past numerous instances have occurred where dry agents have shot and wounded fleeing automobilists who had mistaken the prohibition enforcers for highway robbers.

Doran Is Hopeful.

Dr. Doran expressed the view that this order combined with the instructions sent out two weeks ago warning dry agents against the promiscuous use of firearms and especially against the firing into fleeing automobiles will cut down the "shooting cases."

"It is believed," Dr. Doran said, "that motorists will have no difficulty in recognizing the uniform and that the danger of prohibition agents being mistaken for robbers will be eliminated. Several unfortunate shooting affrays have occurred where motorists have attempted to flee after being called upon to halt by dry agents. We hope to avoid such troubles in the future. Orders against promiscuous shooting has already cut down such incidents."

In the future all agents doing road work will wear a distinctive blue cap on which will be a large shield, with a similar shield on the coat.

The second step taken by the dry enforcement group to cut down dry killings came last Thursday when Assistant Secretary Lowman ordered all coast guard officers on the great lakes to use "extreme caution" when firing to stop suspected rum boats. This order was aimed directly at Buffalo, where the lives of several prominent Buffalo citizens yachting on Lake Erie had been endangered by coast guard fire.

None of the instructions thus far issued by Doran and Lowman have gone far enough in the opinion of congressional critics of the administration's enforcement policy. It is pointed out that while the commissioner and the assistant secretary charged with law enforcement have ordered their men to use extreme caution and not to use firearms "promiscuously, no orders have been sent out stopping the use of firearms altogether. Agents still can shoot innocent citizens and claim the protection of the federal courts on a plea of self-defense.

Say They Must Have Guns.

Some agitation developed in the last congress in favor of the enactment of legislation forbidding prohibition personnel to use firearms in their work and from present indications new efforts along that line will be begun this winter. Both Commissioner Doran and Secretary Lowman repeatedly have asserted, however, that agents must have guns to enforce the law. With hardly any exception they have always aided the defense of agents charged with shooting citizens during enforcement raids.

Under the reign of Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, the federal courts have been thrown wide open to all dry agents accused in shooting cases.

Finger Print Bootleggers.

Plans to fingerprint all captured violators of the prohibition law and to add their Bertillon measurements to the "rogue galleries" of the nation have been adopted by the prohibition bureau. The announced purpose of this step is to enable prosecutors to demand heavy sentences for prohibition law violators which the records show to be gunmen, gangsters or otherwise connected with the underworld. Commissioner Doran asserted the cataloguing of violators under an official standard identification system will aid in suppression of crime.

Harry Niles, assistant chief of police at Portland, Ore., a Bertillon expert, will install the system in the prohibition bureau and instruct officials there in its use.

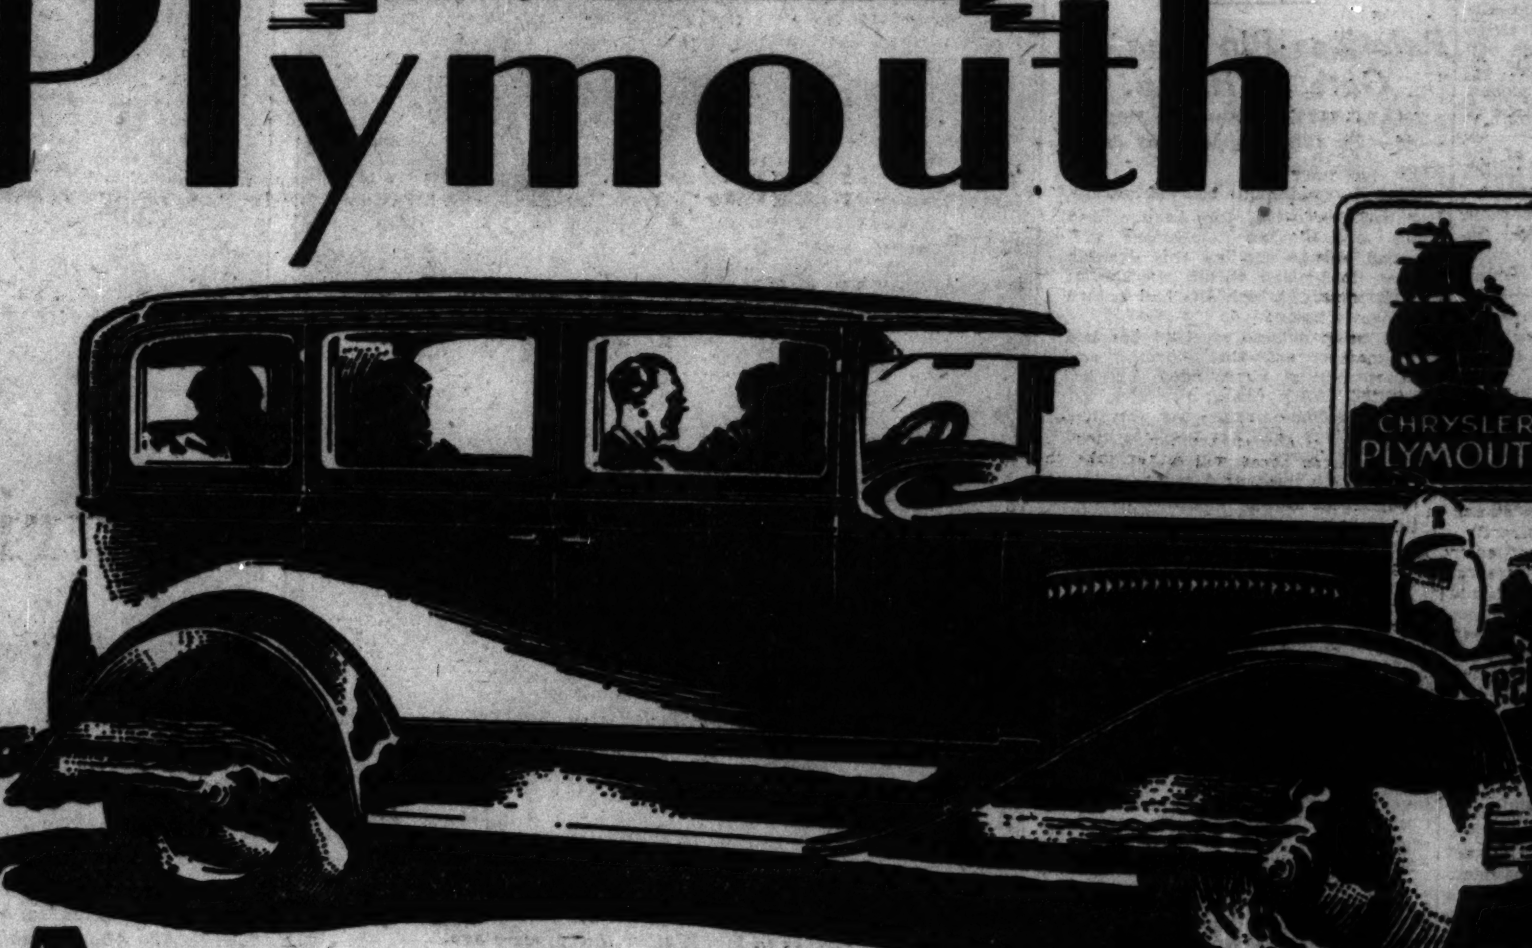
CHRYSLER

Plymouth



Plymouth 4-Door Sedan, $725

AMERICA ACCEPTS AND ACCLAIMS THE NEW PLYMOUTH

It Discovers at Last Real Size, Style, Performance and Safety in the Lowest-priced Field

The sales record of the new Plymouth, established in two weeks' time, is without parallel or precedent for a car in this field—not in a few retail centers but all over the whole country.

Hundreds upon hundreds of thousands—yes, millions—eager to see the new Plymouth, built by Chrysler to compete in the lowest-priced field, throng Chrysler salesrooms everywhere.

They compare it with the three or four other cars catering to the same great market. They see contrast so sharply in favor of Plymouth that curiosity bursts into enthusiasm, enthusiasm is transformed into sales.

These hosts of motorists find in the new Plymouth, with its "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine using any gasoline, characteristic Chrysler performance linked to smoothness like that of no other car selling under $1000.

They recognize a comfort of riding and an ease of handling $2000 or $3000 cars might well envy.

They are amazed by the safety of its internal expanding hydraulic four-wheel brakes, efficient in any weather.

They are carried away by an absolutely new smartness and style.

They are astounded by the roominess of its adult-size bodies, and by the richness of upholstery and appointment never before available at such prices.

In fine, the millions seeking a low first cost, now discover in the new Plymouth the one car in the lowest-priced field which is and does everything that they have long hoped a low-priced car could be and do.

You, too, owe it to yourself to see it, ride in it, drive it. All doubt as to the highest dollar-for-dollar value in the lowest-priced field ends right there.

JAPANESE GUNS MOW DOWN NORTH CHINESE TROOPS

Six Nipponese Killed in Clash in Shantung.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD THE U. S. S. PITTSBURGH FROM TSINGTAO TO SHANGHAI, July 21.—Heavy fighting between remnants of the northern Chinese troops in eastern Shantung province and Japanese troops guarding the Shantung railway developed yesterday to the west of Tsintao. The clash, according to latest reports, resulted in thirty casualties on the Japanese side, including six killed. Casualties on the Chinese side were reported to be several hundred.

According to the Japanese report of the incident, a section of northern troops numbering 1,800 rebelled against their commander, who forced them into the Japanese zone along the railway. The Japanese fired on them. The Chinese then launched an attack upon the Japanese. The fighting lasted several hours, and the Chinese were compelled to fall back.

Conditions in Shantung Tense.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent, who is returning to Shanghai aboard the Pittsburgh, following an inspection of the situation in Shantung province, found a condition of tenseness in Shantung, where 5,000 Japanese troops were still behind the barricades in the commercial area of Tsinan. The countryside surrounding Tsinan is overrun with Chinese bandits, who are operating in No Man's land between the Japanese and Nationalist military lines.

The Japanese are withdrawing 7,000 troops from Tsingtao, leaving 15,000 in Shantung province. However, they are seriously worried over the situation due to increasing Chinese animosities and radicalism, which have been aggravated by the Nationalist government's action in arbitrarily terminating the Sino-Japanese commercial treaty.

The Nationalist government is demanding the immediate withdrawal of all Japanese troops from Shantung as a preliminary condition to negotiation of a settlement of the Tsinan incident.

U. S. Ship Escapes Water Spout.

The Pittsburgh, flagship of the Asiatic squadron, with Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol and his staff of officers, as well as several hundred sailors and marines aboard, narrowly escaped a huge water spout, one of the largest ever seen in the China sea, this afternoon, while the ship was approaching Shanghai.

The Pittsburgh had just entered the mouth of the Yangtze river, about 1:30 this afternoon, when the water spout formed, about 5 miles ahead of the boat. The spout, which stirred up a terrific commotion on the water's surface, proceeded directly toward the Pittsburgh, but struck a large Japanese cargo boat directly forward, turning the cargo boat entirely around. Following this it demolished the sails and superstructure of a large Chinese junk.

The Pittsburgh, by slightly altering its course, missed the spout by a bare 300 yards, although it was subjected to a heavy wind, which jumped from 3 knots to nearly 50 knots within a period of three minutes.

The spout was 50 yards in diameter at the base on the water's surface, extended conewise upward, and increased to 150 yards in diameter at the top, touching the clouds. The ship's photographer was enabled to take pictures of the phenomenon.

Japanese Avoid Chinese Socially.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEKING, July 21.—Social contacts with Chinese officials of the Nanking government were ordered suspended by Japanese Minister Yoshizawa as the first action of protest against the arbitrary termination of the treaty between Japan and China. A diplomatic dinner and a public reception arranged for Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek today was not attended by Japanese officials.

In the event that Nanking persists in applying Chinese laws to Japanese, forceful measures are looked for. It is expected these will either take the form of a blockade or prevention of communication between Manchuria and China proper.

Foreign Minister C. T. Wang's resignation is forecast, with replacement by T. V. Soong, the finance minister, to avert a crisis over the Nanking treaty policy. Japan is preparing a reply to China's note, which will denounce the so-called illegal action on the treaty and will be similar to the protests framed by France, Italy, Portugal and Denmark. The diplomats expect American intervention, with a proposal that all the powers agree to revision of the treaties.

Japan Warns Manchuria.

TOKIO, July 21—(AP)—Chang Hsueh-liang, military governor of Manchuria, has been warned by Japan against joining Manchuria with the Nationalist government of China. Premier Tanaka ordered that the warning be sent, hoping to dissuade Manchuria from the Nationalist alliance because he felt Japan's position in Manchuria would be jeopardized if Nationalist rule predominated.

FOUND ASPHYXIATED IN HOME.

Julius Liedke, 52 years old, 7312 Franklin avenue, Forest Park, was found asphyxiated in the kitchen of his home by his wife yesterday afternoon.

Valuations on These Houses Puzzle in 51st Street

The house at the left, No. 1445 West 51st street, is valued at $200 by board of assessors, while the one at the right, No. 1447 West 51st street, of practically the same size and construction, is set down for $1,540. The neighborhood is puzzled to know why.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

BUILDING VALUES ON 51ST STREET PUZZLE OWNERS

Ask Why One Is $200, Another $1,540.

Residents of West Fifty-first street near Ashland avenue said yesterday that there are many pairs of twins in the neighborhood, but in some way the people are able to distinguish Tom from Dick and Jane from Janet. But building values are something different.

A canvass of a block found the people bewildered at the method of the board of assessors in fixing building valuations. The reassessment for next year's taxes, ordered by Chairman William H. Malone of the state tax commission, gave some of them hope of better luck next time, but now they are sorely tried.

Difference in Values.

"Look at this," said Anton Krinz, pointing to No. 1445 West Fifty-first street, a two story frame building, "valued at $200! Can you imagine it? And this building next to it, No. 1447, which is no better and no worse, is valued by the assessors at $1,540, nearly eight times as much."

The $200 building is owned, according to the tax lists, by J. C. Dillenburg, while the $1,540 place is owned by Joseph Schirstel.

Krinz lives on the corner, 1437 West 51st street. His house is a two story frame building, slightly longer than the buildings at No. 1439, and made into four flats whereas the other is but two flats, and Krinz' place was taxed on $2,950 while his neighbor, John Bobber, was taxed on $600. In addition Krinz had to pay taxes on $300 for a small garage on the rear of a vacant 20 ft. lot alongside his home in addition to having the vacant 20 foot valued at $1,207 while 25 foot lots were valued at $1,000.

He Calls It Robbery.

Around the corner at 5140 South Loomis street lives Peter Werner, who, when taxes were mentioned, said:

"They robbed me this year."

His two story brick house, built in 1901, was on the assessor's books at $3,400, and a house across the street which he owns, and which was built in 1910 is of the same accomodation and value, costs $27 less in taxes.

TALIESEN, SCENE OF WRIGHT LOVES AND BATTLES, TO BE SOLD

Madison, Wis., July 21.—(AP)—For sale: One romantic, rambling, famous picturesque home on a hill with 190 acres of farm and park, known as a "love nest," murder scene, fire scene, raid scene, and show place—Taliesen, home of Architect Frank Lloyd Wright.

At the direction of the sheriff it goes under the hammer July 30.

Bank officials are wondering if they will have to bid in the place to protect their interest. They say the indebtedness judgment is for nearly $40,000. They doubt if Wright will redeem it at that figure.

Three years ago Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright attempted to raid the place while Wright was living there with Olgo Milanov, Montenegrian dancer, who is now with the architect in California. In a month his divorce decree from the former Miriam Noel will be made final, and he will be free to marry the dancer.

SHUMAKER DRYS DELAY ON APPEAL OF CHIEF'S TERM

Indianapolis, Ind., July 21.—[Special.]—Whether E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, will appeal the sixty day sentence to the state farm and fine of $200, meted to him for contempt of court and reaffirmed by the Indiana Supreme court yesterday, will be announced Monday when the headquarters committee of the league meets here.

Shumaker, it is said, has resigned himself to serving the sentence, but friends are anxious that an attempt be made to appeal the case to the United States Supreme court.

OLD SETTLERS PICNIC AUG. 6 AT RIVERVIEW

Because Brand's park, where old settlers of Chicago and Cook county have held their annual picnics for nearly fifty years, has been turned into a city playground, the reunion this year is to take place at Riverview park, it was announced yesterday. The date is Aug. 6, and the celebration will be under the direction of the Chicago Turngemeinde.

As in former years old settlers will vie for medals awarded to those who have resided longest in Chicago or Cook county. Many whose ages range from 78 to 95 have already entered their names.

HOOVER LEADERS REPORT ILLINOIS TANGLE CLEARING

Devise Plan for Uniting Factions in Campaign.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Hoover's campaign problem in Illinois, admitted by his managers to be one of the knottiest they have faced anywhere in the country, has begun to straighten out. Prospects of its being handled "regularly" not only downstate but in Cook county are pronounced excellent.

The early plan of having a Hoover committee for Chicago separate from the local party organizaton has been dropped. It was considered undesirable and a possible cause of added factional friction instead of coöperation.

Instead the managers now look forward to the adoption of a program of operation by the Cook county Republican committee that will be accepted by all factions. The plan is based on the selection of subcommittees so constituted that the several groups will be given representation with the assurance of equal rights for all party nominees—national, state and county.

Hoover Leaders Hopeful.

This solution of the problem is considered little short of a political miracle in view of the hostility during the primary between the Thompson and the Deneen factions in their local battle. But the Hoover managers are said to be convinced that it is the only practicable method and that, even if some pressure is required, it can be forced through.

It means, first of all, that the Thompson organization must get behind Secretary Hoover and his running mate, Senator Charles Curtis. And the optimism that the plan eventually will be put into effect is based on private assurances already received that in spite of his preconvention hostility Mayor Thompson now is prepared to support the national nominees and swing all his own followers behind them.

Further, it is said to spell a new deal in the county committee which is controlled by a combination of the Thompson and Crowe-Galpin ward committeemen, aided to some extent by a tenous alliance with the Brundage forces. This consolidation has the opposition of only a militant minority of Deneenites.

County Ticket Stumbling Block.

The Deneen leaders have been with Hoover ever since Lowden's withdrawal at Kansas City and, with Mayor Thompson's voluntary agreement to fall into line, there would be little difficulty in establishing an understanding on the national battle lines. But the hitch foreseen for months has been in connection with the county ticket.

There's where what amounts to a shakeup of the county committee, a transfer of the bossing power, is required for the plan of operation now showing up on the horizon. But that shakeup is declared to be actually in sight.

A group of Thompson's closest personal and political advisers is said to have gone to him more than a week ago and insisted not only that they and he must be "regular," but that the Galpin-Crowe leadership, punished severely in the primary, must be ended. And, according to one of them, Mayor Thompson agreed.

Snow Reported New Boss.

Not only that but it is also said that both Galpin and Crowe have consented to stepping into the background. The new boss, according to several indications considered trustworthy, is to be Bernard W. Snow, chief bailiff of the Municipal court, who will take charge in his capacity as vice chairman of the county committee.

Snow, County Treasurer George F. Harding, President Eugene R. Pike of the Lincoln park board and Corporation Counsel Ettelson, are Thompson's closest advisers and are said to have formulated the program which he now has privately accepted. But it was the south side group, headed by Harding and Snow, that is said to have insisted on the impending effort for political regularity all down the line. It is reported they delivered an ultimatum that they intended to be "regular" and that if Thompson did not agree to that program they would leave him.

Said to Be Mayor's Proxy.

As a result of these developments it is reported the mayor in effect has made Snow his proxy in political matters. Harding is in Europe now, having left a week ago, and President Pike has no love for detailed politics and is not a member of the committee. Therefore, Snow is the man.

Up to this time the plan of harmony has not been submitted to Senator Deneen and his aids. But it is believed that they will not refuse to coöperate in support of the national and state tickets, with a reservation that, while there may be a union headquarters for the county ticket, their own candidates will have their personal headquarters, a procedure for which there is plenty of precedence.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Any hope the Democrats have of carrying Illinois for Al Smith depends upon future developments. At present, Smith, for a Democratic presidential nominee, is extraordinarily popular in this state; but THE TRIBUNE'S precampaign poll of the state, completed yesterday, indicates that a majority sentiment does not favor him.

If the election had been held yesterday, Smith would probably have lost downstate by a plurality of 171,500.

Analysis last Sunday of THE TRIBUNE poll in Chicago indicates that Al Smith would then have had a plurality in this city of 107,000. "Spot tests" of suburbs and percentages on change in party, make it reasonably certain that Hoover would now carry the country towns, in Cook county, by an edge of 30,000. This is less than a third of Coolidge's plurality four years ago; and this estimate puts the country stronghold of the Democrats—the town of Cicero—for Smith by a ratio of three to one.

Hoover's Theoretical Lead 94,000.

Combining the Chicago and country towns estimates, Smith is thereby given a lead of 77,000 in Cook county. Then merging Cook county with the remainder of the state, Hoover has a present advantage in Illinois of 94,000 theoretical votes.

There are three and a half months before No. 6, and only an anointed prophet can foretell what will happen in that period; but THE TRIBUNE straw vote indicates that public opinion—measured in theoretical votes—is now divided among the candidates on the following basis:

Candidate—	Downstate.	Cook Co.	Illinois.
Hoover, Rep.	755,655	556,345	1,312,000
Smith, Dem.	584,155	633,655	1,217,800
Thomas, Soc.	11,500	18,000	29,500
Totals	1,351,310	1,208,000	2,559,300

This indicated advantage of 94,000 for Hoover in Illinois at present is smaller than has been privately estimated by two well informed Chicago Democrats. They now "guess" that Hoover will carry the state in November by a much larger figure.

The 94,000 is only a fraction of what the Livingston county poll indicates Hoover will win by in the fall. Livingston county has given a plurality to the presidential winner for the last 32 years in about the same proportion that Illinois has designated the winner. Livingston county, as an index area, forecasts Hoover's state plurality at 254,000. The straw vote in Macon county, another key county, without a mistake in the last 32 years, forecasts Hoover's Illinois plurality at 350,000 upward to 500,000.

Percentage Used as Indicator.

Because straws have not been obtained in the proper proportion, percentages have been applied to each county, in lieu of counting the actual straws.

After making discounts and allowances for all of the major factors which should enter into a reliable poll, the reckoning shows Hoover with an advantage of 171,500 theoretical straws downstate and of 94,000 votes in the state as a whole.

This later margin is comparable with Coolidge's plurality four years ago of 876,000 in the entire state. Harding in 1920 rolled up a plurality of 886,000, but Hughes in 1916 got only a margin of 202,000.

NEW YORK POLL RESULT.

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—The result today in the New York News presidential poll taken in Union Hill, Williamson, East Williamson, Sodus and Sodus Point showed Hoover, 332; Smith, 77. The totals now stand Smith, 15,893; Hoover, 10,917.

Ohio Trend for Smith.

Cleveland, O., July 21.—[Special.]—The Plain Dealer's presidential poll, taken today in territory carried by Coolidge four years ago, today showed: Smith, 459; Hoover, 245. The total vote now stands: Smith, 4,831; Hoover, 3,967.

FALLS FROM PORCH TO DEATH.

Injuries suffered in a fall from a porch in the rear of 6214 South Halsted street on July 17 caused the death yesterday of Luther Reed, 24 years old, 669 West Sixty-third place.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Palo Alto, Cal., July 21.—[Special.]—In his old study room overlooking Stanford university, Herbert Hoover began the task today of finishing the speech in which he will accept the Republican nomination for the presidency.

As he glanced up from his papers through the broad deep windows he could look beyond the red roofs of the university, where he entered as a poor student in 1891, and see the brown hills beyond the sun baked Santa Clara valley in one direction and the dark ridges of the coast ridge the other way.

Amid California Flowers.

The green lawns of his own home stretched down the hill, bordered with semi-tropical shrubbery and the gay California flowers. Mrs. Hoover and her son Allan sat on one of the roof rooms which she designed years ago. It is a home built for the maximum of open air life, a sort of pueblo and Zuni Indian style of architecture, mounting the hill roof by roof, with the rooms built around them. Gay flowers and rugs and chairs are arranged in easy, livable fashion, and here the family may eat or read, doze or receive guests, shaded from the midday sun by awnings, close to the stars at night.

Mr. Hoover had only one visitor today, Gov. Charles C. Young of California. All other political conferences were put aside until next week when the California senators, Hiram Johnson and Sam Shortridge, the state chairman, Charles Neumiller, and other leaders from this and other Pacific coast states will call upon him. Senator Johnson, who fought and whipped Hoover in the presidential primary of 1920, is now said to be reconciled to his ancient political enemy and to be ready to take the stump for him in this campaign. Senator Shortridge has been a Hoover partisan from the first.

Party United in California.

Gov. Young said that the political result in California next fall was certain, that the only question was the size of the majority for Hoover.

"The Republican party in the state is united as never before," he said. "It has been one since Mr. Hoover stepped into the picture. We are not only proud of him as a Californian, but we think he understands our economic needs better than any man. The needs are based on water. We are growing fast and must find a way to feed our people.

"Food here rests in water for irrigation. This is a vast problem and two years ago I got great help from Mr. Hoover in this. Then he has been a big aid in the Boulder dam fight for California. We do not expect preferential treatment from him when he is president, but we know he understands.

"The Boulder dam bill is certain to pass the next congress, as it has preferential standing and there can be no filibuster through the whole congress. We want Arizona to have what she is entitled to have and there is a possibility of negotiations to settle the controversy before congress meets."

Predict Tremendous Vote.

The California political situation, in other words, seems entirely smoothed out for Mr. Hoover, although there will be conferences and plans made to see that nothing goes amiss. Three thousand members of the Republican state central committee and the 58 county committees are to be called together to start a campaign which will give Mr. Hoover the largest vote ever polled by a presidential candidate in this state. The campaign will be organized for action as soon as the notification ceremony is completed Aug. 11.

Mr. Hoover is planning to meet all the committee men and women from the Pacific coast and mountain states either at his notification or at the session in San Francisco which has been called by Chairman Hubert Work for Aug. 13. The candidate will go to San Francisco for a celebration before this time, however, the date probably being within a week or two.

James Keeley of 223 East Delaware place announces the engagement of his daughter, Ruth, to Luther Salem Hammond Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Salem Hammond of 237 East Delaware place. Miss Keeley's two older sisters, Dorothy and Margaret, were brides of other seasons, the former becoming Mrs. Graham Aldis in 1922, and the latter Mrs. Cabot Brown in 1926. Mrs. Brown resides in San Francisco and Mrs. Aldis in Chicago.

AL SMITH TELLS NEWS WRITERS TO TAKE DAY OFF

Albany, N. Y., July 21.—[Special.]—Gov. Smith is making good progress in the preparation of his speech of acceptance to be delivered at the formal ceremonies when he is notified of his nomination for the presidency.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Albany, N. Y., July 21.—[Special.]—Both as candidate and governor Al Smith is off politics for the next forty-eight hours.

"You know," he said, at the close of this day's press meeting; "I wouldn't find any fault if you fellows took a day off for yourselves until Monday."

It was so ordered.

But with this candidate you are never safe. If within the next few hours somebody impugns his private life or charges that as assemblyman twenty years ago he voted for Ceodle, then golf and swimming will be forgotten and he will come out with a statement that will make the telegraph wires crackle from Eastport to San Diego.

Church and Ride Today.

"Tomorrow," he said; "church and a little golf, maybe a little ride, for its a bit crowded for golf on Sundays."

All that sounds plausible and peaceful, but the apprehensive correspondents know their man and none of them dares to motor to the Catskills or to Lake George for the week-end.

Meanwhile the announcement of notification day in Albany is held up. That announcement was expected today, but when the governor came to it:

"Bed time stories are holding us up. As yet the times and hours we have been able to obtain from the raddio (for so he always pronounces the word) are unsatisfactory. We are trying to switch with some of the commercial companies. There will be no decision until Monday at the earliest."

Waits for Radio Hookup.

"I imagine," said one listener, "that the radio people will give you anything in reason that you want."

"So did I," Al Smith responded, "but they ain't a-doing it."

He is today in a philosophical mood, and added: "Well, if you're going to get the benefit of talking to millions of people, you've got to put up with the inconveniences of hooking it and arranging it, that's fundamental."

The phrase "that's fundamental" is one of his favorites, and serves for him all the purposes which "such is life" serves for other people.

But he did think that national politics are, and more and more will be the life of the "raddio," and he said:

"The radio would lose its popularity if the people didn't get anything but candy and baking power propaganda."

Gov. Smith was asked whether the broadcasting service for speeches has to be paid for.

"Certainly," he said, "it's too much for me, but it has to be paid for."

"QUEEN" MARY RESUMES FIGHT ON CULT LAWYER

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 21.—[Special.]—Declaring that her followers have contributed 90 per cent of the colony's assets, "Queen" Mary Purnell resumed her fight today with Attorney H. T. Dewhirst, colony lawyer for several years, by bitterly criticizing his recent "condensed financial statement."

The attack came on the eve of the injunction suit against Dewhirst, which is set for hearing Monday in the Circuit court in St. Joseph, and seeks to restrain Dewhirst from taking control of the colony finances and management.

Mary declares that Dewhirst waxed sarcastic towards her and her aid, Cora Mooney, when Cora recently made a formal demand upon Dewhirst for an accounting. Mary declares "the statement is so condensed it fails to tell anything."

DEMOCRATS OF TEXAS CALL A CAMPAIGN RALLY

Dallas, Tex., July 21.—(AP)—All Democrats "who have the success of the party at heart," have been invited by Jed C. Adams and Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier, Texas members of the Democratic national committee, and D. W. Wilcox, state chairman, to participate in a meeting at Austin Aug. 4, to consider plans for the party's campaign in the state. Organization to cover every county in Texas and to "assure for the Democratic ticket, national, state and county, the greatest majority it has ever received," will be the aim of the gathering.

HOOVER AT HOME HARD AT WORK ON HIS SPEECH

California Governor Only Caller of Day.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Palo Alto, Cal., July 21.—[Special.]—In his old study room overlooking Stanford university, Herbert Hoover began the task today of finishing the speech in which he will accept the Republican nomination for the presidency.

As he glanced up from his papers through the broad deep windows he could look beyond the red roofs of the university, where he entered as a poor student in 1891, and see the brown hills beyond the sun baked Santa Clara valley in one direction and the dark ridges of the coast ridge the other way.

Amid California Flowers.

The green lawns of his own home stretched down the hill, bordered with semi-tropical shrubbery and the gay California flowers. Mrs. Hoover and her son Allan sat on one of the roof rooms which she designed years ago. It is a home built for the maximum of open air life, a sort of pueblo and Zuni Indian style of architecture, mounting the hill roof by roof, with the rooms built around them. Gay flowers and rugs and chairs are arranged in easy, livable fashion, and here the family may eat or read, doze or receive guests, shaded from the midday sun by awnings, close to the stars at night.

Mr. Hoover had only one visitor today, Gov. Charles C. Young of California. All other political conferences were put aside until next week when the California senators, Hiram Johnson and Sam Shortridge, the state chairman, Charles Neumiller, and other leaders from this and other Pacific coast states will call upon him. Senator Johnson, who fought and whipped Hoover in the presidential primary of 1920, is now said to be reconciled to his ancient political enemy and to be ready to take the stump for him in this campaign. Senator Shortridge has been a Hoover partisan from the first.

Party United in California.

Gov. Young said that the political result in California next fall was certain, that the only question was the size of the majority for Hoover.

"The Republican party in the state is united as never before," he said. "It has been one since Mr. Hoover stepped into the picture. We are not only proud of him as a Californian, but we think he understands our economic needs better than any man. The needs are based on water. We are growing fast and must find a way to feed our people.

"Food here rests in water for irrigation. This is a vast problem and two years ago I got great help from Mr. Hoover in this. Then he has been a big aid in the Boulder dam fight for California. We do not expect preferential treatment from him when he is president, but we know he understands.

"The Boulder dam bill is certain to pass the next congress, as it has preferential standing and there can be no filibuster through the whole congress. We want Arizona to have what she is entitled to have and there is a possibility of negotiations to settle the controversy before congress meets."

Predict Tremendous Vote.

The California political situation, in other words, seems entirely smoothed out for Mr. Hoover, although there will be conferences and plans made to see that nothing goes amiss. Three thousand members of the Republican state central committee and the 58 county committees are to be called together to start a campaign which will give Mr. Hoover the largest vote ever polled by a presidential candidate in this state. The campaign will be organized for action as soon as the notification ceremony is completed Aug. 11.

Mr. Hoover is planning to meet all the committee men and women from the Pacific coast and mountain states either at his notification or at the session in San Francisco which has been called by Chairman Hubert Work for Aug. 13. The candidate will go to San Francisco for a celebration before this time, however, the date probably being within a week or two.

James Keeley of 223 East Delaware place announces the engagement of his daughter, Ruth, to Luther Salem Hammond Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Salem Hammond of 237 East Delaware place. Miss Keeley's two older sisters, Dorothy and Margaret, were brides of other seasons, the former becoming Mrs. Graham Aldis in 1922, and the latter Mrs. Cabot Brown in 1926. Mrs. Brown resides in San Francisco and Mrs. Aldis in Chicago.

AL SMITH TELLS NEWS WRITERS TO TAKE DAY OFF

Albany, N. Y., July 21.—[Special.]—Gov. Smith is making good progress in the preparation of his speech of acceptance to be delivered at the formal ceremonies when he is notified of his nomination for the presidency.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Albany, N. Y., July 21.—[Special.]—Both as candidate and governor Al Smith is off politics for the next forty-eight hours.

"You know," he said, at the close of this day's press meeting; "I wouldn't find any fault if you fellows took a day off for yourselves until Monday."

It was so ordered.

But with this candidate you are never safe. If within the next few hours somebody impugns his private life or charges that as assemblyman twenty years ago he voted for Coodle, then golf and swimming will be forgotten and he will come out with a statement that will make the telegraph wires crackle from Eastport to San Diego.

Church and Ride Today.

"Tomorrow," he said; "church and a little golf, maybe a little ride, for its a bit crowded for golf on Sundays."

All that sounds plausible and peaceful, but the apprehensive correspondents know their man and none of them dares to motor to the Catskills or to Lake George for the week-end.

Meanwhile the announcement of notification day in Albany is held up. That announcement was expected today, but when the governor came to it:

"Bed time stories are holding us up. As yet the times and hours we have been able to obtain from the raddio (for so he always pronounces the word) are unsatisfactory. We are trying to switch with some of the commercial companies. There will be no decision until Monday at the earliest."

Waits for Radio Hookup.

"I imagine," said one listener, "that the radio people will give you anything in reason that you want."

"So did I," Al Smith responded, "but they ain't a-doing it."

He is today in a philosophical mood, and added: "Well, if you're going to get the benefit of talking to millions of people, you've got to put up with the inconveniences of booking it and arranging it, that's fundamental."

The phrase "that's fundamental" is one of his favorites, and serves for him all the purposes which "such is life" serves for other people.

But he did think that national politics are, and more and more will be the life of the "raddio," and he said:

"The radio would lose its popularity if the people didn't get anything but candy and baking power propaganda."

Gov. Smith was asked whether the broadcasting service for speeches has to be paid for.

"Certainly," he said, "it's too much for me, but it has to be paid for."

"QUEEN" MARY RESUMES FIGHT ON CULT LAWYER

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 21.—[Special.]—Declaring that her followers have contributed 90 per cent of the colony's assets, "Queen" Mary Purnell resumed her fight today with Attorney H. T. Dewhirst, colony lawyer for several years, by bitterly criticizing his recent "condensed financial statement."

The attack came on the eve of the injunction suit against Dewhirst, which is set for hearing Monday in the Circuit court in St. Joseph, and seeks to restrain Dewhirst from taking control of the colony finances and management.

Mary declares that Dewhirst waxed sarcastic towards her and her aid, Cora Mooney, when Cora recently made a formal demand upon Dewhirst for an accounting. Mary declares "the statement is so condensed it fails to tell anything."

BEG YOUR PARDON!

A caption under his picture of Prof. H. E. Van Norman described him as delegate to the world's fair congress. World's Dairy congress was meant.

DEMOCRATS OF TEXAS CALL A CAMPAIGN RALLY

Dallas, Tex., July 21.—(AP)—All Democrats "who have the success of the party at heart," have been invited by Jed C. Adams and Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier, Texas members of the Democratic national committee, and D. W. Wilcox, state chairman, to participate in a meeting at Austin Aug. 4, to consider plans for the party's campaign in the state. Organization to cover every county in Texas and to "assure for the Democratic ticket, national, state and county, the greatest majority it has ever received," will be the aim of the gathering.

DEPUTY BAILIFF HELD FOR HELPING PRISONER ESCAPE

Faces Prison Sentence of Year to Life.

CRIMINAL COURT.

K. M. Ashberry and John Congliton, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Harry B. Miller.

BAILIFF HELD

Deputy Bailiff Joseph Spinello, who is held on charge of helping liberate county jail prisoner.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Joseph Spinello, deputy court bailiff, was arrested yesterday by his superior, Chief Bailiff Charles Mugler. Spinello is expected to be indicted tomorrow morning, according to an announcement from the state's attorney's office, for manipulating the court records and issuing a forged order to allow the escape from custody of James Johns, 30, a gun robber.

Johns was reported to be in police custody at South Bend, Ind., but detectives and Bailiff Mugler who went there to bring the escaped prisoner back to the county jail to await trial on five charges of gun robbery and two of assault to murder, found that the man held was not Johns.

Faces Year to Life Sentence.

Acting State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse announced that Spinello would be prosecuted under a new section of the statutes which makes any one aiding or abetting the escape of a prisoner liable to the same punishment which the escaped prisoner could receive. Under this law, Spinello, if convicted, is liable to one year to life in the penitentiary.

Judge Joseph B. David, whose court records were tampered with in order to get Johns free from his jail cell, started his own inquiry. He may invoke the contempt statutes to visit further punishment on those responsible for the escape, it was announced by Assistant State's Attorney John Holman, who was placed in charge of the judge's investigation.

Judge Emanuel Eller, who issued an order on Wednesday so that Spinello could talk to the prisoner, explained yesterday that he was only doing a favor for the bailiff.

Feigns Suicide Attempt.

Spinello when arrested yesterday at his home at 459 West Division street feigned collapse from taking poison.

When questioned last evening he told a number of conflicting stories and when these were exposed, he said he was too ill to talk about it any more, but would tell the whole truth Monday. It was indicated that the confession would involve others. Spinello said a prominent criminal lawyer had assured him that he could safely let Johns go.

Spinello was questioned about two years ago in connection with the escape of a prisoner from Judge Phillip L. Sullivan's court under exactly the same circumstances. He had been a deputy sheriff since July 10, 1926, when he received his appointment through the recommendation of Municipal Judge Herbert G. Immenhausen.

TRIBUNE PICTURE FLYER WINS RACE AROUND BRITAIN

LONDON, July 21.—For the second time in succession, Capt. W. Lawrence Hope—known in flying circles as "P. and A.'s pilot," because he is always employed by the Pacific and Atlantic Photos, THE TRIBUNE's picture syndicate, to rush urgent news pictures—today won the king's cup air race.

A fraction over two minutes later the second machine, piloted by C. F. Uwins, flashed over the line, followed ninety seconds later by Miss W. E. Spooner, only woman pilot in the contest. The winner's flying time for the 1,096 miles dash around Great Britain was about 10 hours, 24 minutes, 4 seconds, with an average speed of 105 miles an hour.

Miss Spooner certainly would have won, but she became lost in a fog bank for fifteen minutes. She led the race today by a good margin all the way from Southampton and was overtaken by Hope just before reaching Lympne.

Train Kills Chicago Girl Vacationist in Indiana

Miss Mollie Riceman, 20, of 1511 South Lawndale avenue, was struck and killed by a Michigan Central passenger train yesterday at the Forest Beach Girls' camp, near Michigan City, Ind. Miss Riceman was employed by Monroe Fox & Co., clothiers, of 220 South State street. She had been spending her vacation at the camp, which is operated by the Chicago Y. W. C. A.

U. S. HANDS BODY OF MEXICO 'LINDY' TO HIS COMRADES

Laredo, Tex., July 21.—(AP)—Mexico's lone eagle was returned today to the country from which he flew on a mission of good will that international misunderstandings might be overcome. The body of the late Capt. Emilio Carranza was borne in highest military honors to the center of the international bridge, where Gen. José Amezcua, chief of the aviation forces of Mexico, and a squad of picked men waited to receive their former comrade.

There was a pause of five minutes, in which 10,000 heads were bared as taps sounded.

Gen. Albert J. Bowley, commander of the Eighth corps area at San Antonio, did the last official act for the United States government when he placed the only floral offering permitted on the casket.

Fifty-two army airplanes, sweeping low in the skies and pouring down a constant stream of flowers, hovered over the international bridge as the officials of the two countries united in grief for the fallen flyer. The planes then flew across the border to drop flowers on the funeral train as it departed.

BANDITS GRAB RACINE PAY ROLL AND GET AWAY

Racine, Wis., July 21.—(AP)—Holding up Ned Harvey, president of a Racine manufacturing firm, on an outlying street this morning, four masked bandits escaped with a $6,500 pay roll. Tonight they were being sought throughout southern Wisconsin. While more than a dozen passersby looked on, the bandits, in a closed car, forced Harvey's automobile to the curb, flourished pistols, and made him hand over the pay roll. Then they slugged Lewis Larsen, a companion; locked Harvey, Larsen, and Harvey's small daughter in the automobile, and fled.

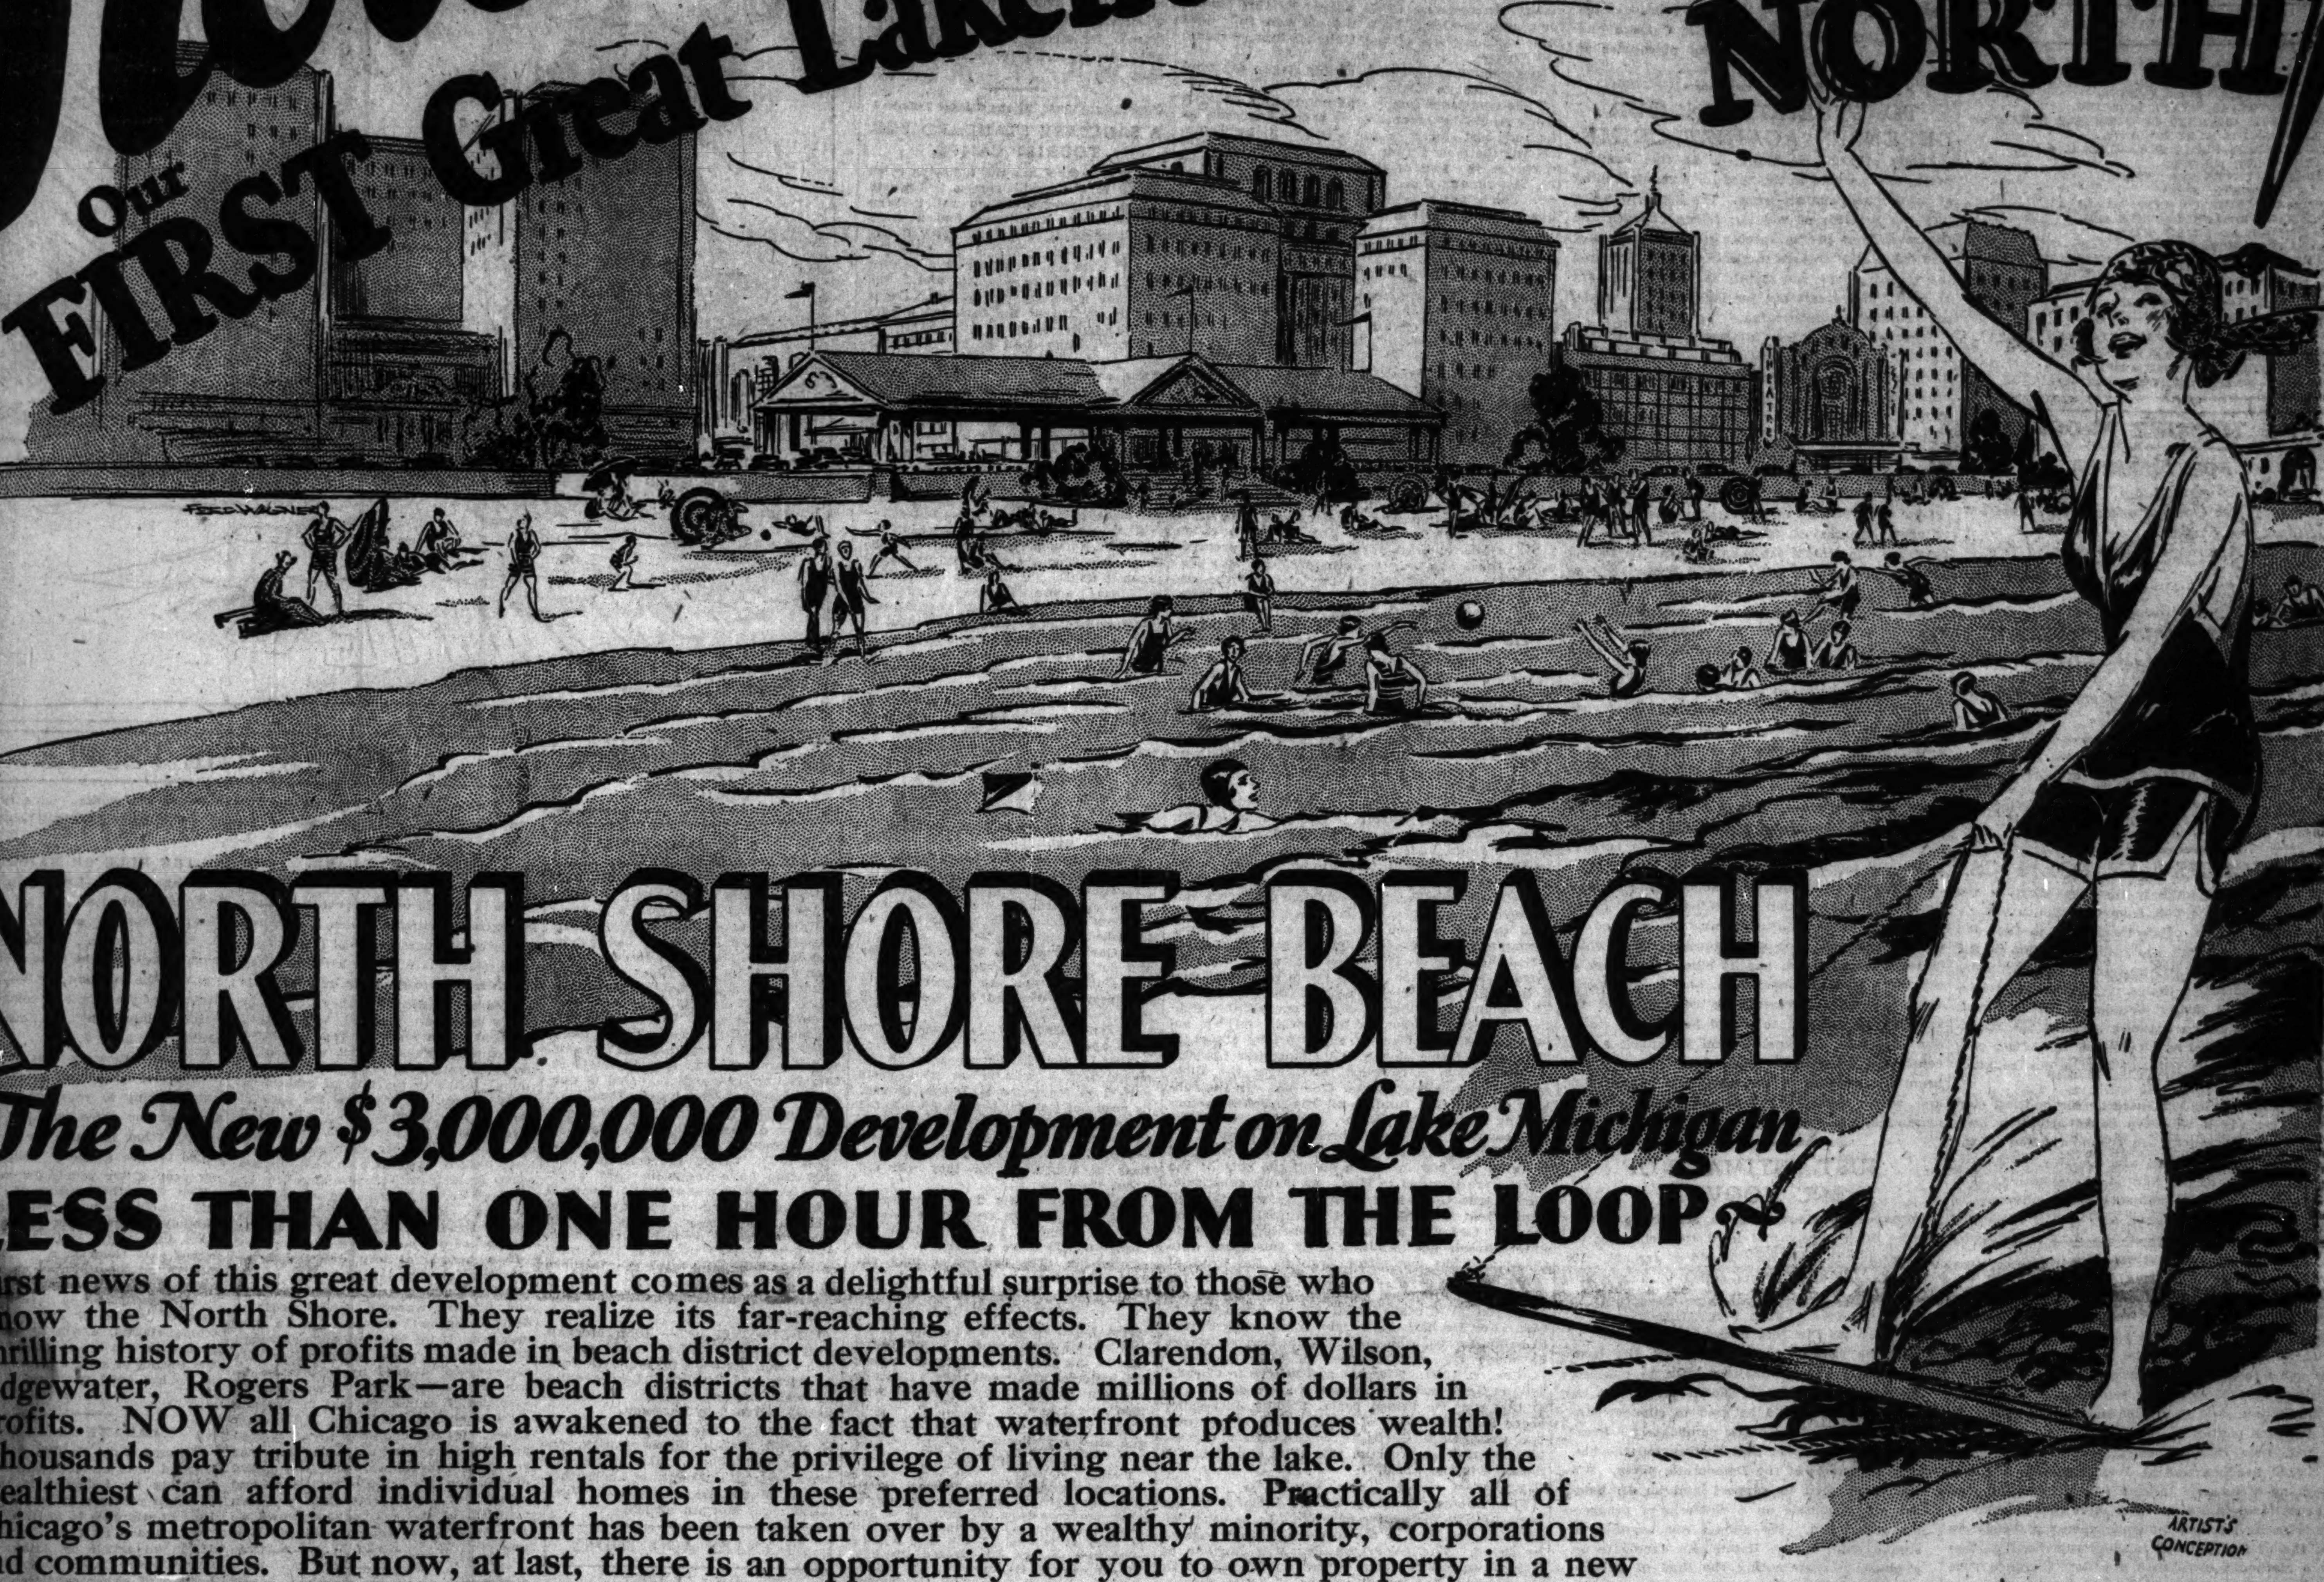
Now~ Our FIRST Great Lakefront Development~ NORTH!



NORTH SHORE BEACH

The New $3,000,000 Development on Lake Michigan

LESS THAN ONE HOUR FROM THE LOOP

First news of this great development comes as a delightful surprise to those who know the North Shore. They realize its far-reaching effects. They know the thrilling history of profits made in beach district developments. Clarendon, Wilson, Edgewater, Rogers Park—are beach districts that have made millions of dollars in profits. NOW all Chicago is awakened to the fact that waterfront produces wealth! Thousands pay tribute in high rentals for the privilege of living near the lake. Only the wealthiest can afford individual homes in these preferred locations. Practically all of Chicago's metropolitan waterfront has been taken over by a wealthy minority, corporations and communities. But now, at last, there is an opportunity for you to own property in a new waterfront development on the exclusive North Shore.

VAST IMPROVEMENTS UNDER WAY~HOMES UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Special

LOW PRE-OPENING PRICES

Property of this character, in our opinion, cannot be had anywhere else in Metropolitan Chicago for so little money as will secure a holding at our special low prices to first buyers.

Big 60-Foot Parcels

Small Cash Payment—Easy Terms

Other opportunities include waterfront, riparian rights lots for future profit, or for immediate use for beach stores, concessions, hotels, apartment buildings, etc. These will be offered at proportionately moderate cost and low monthly terms.

Greater and greater grow the crowds flocking to every available beach district. NORTH SHORE BEACH, accessible to Chicago's millions by comfortable, speedy transportation, will open SOON.

Our experience that made the phenomenal success of LAKE SHORE is at work here to create another great waterfront opportunity for our customers. At NORTH SHORE BEACH—between Sheridan Road and the Lake—you will see miles of broad, concrete-paved streets and sidewalks now going in. A great paved central plaza provides parking space for hundreds of cars adjacent to the beach. A huge pleasure pergola graces the broad, clean-sanded public beach—a public beach on the exclusive North Shore that is not closed to the people of Chicago by discriminatory ruling. Rising on a gentle slope from the waterfront, practically every location has a view of the lake. Many of them are picturesquely wooded. Two railway stations here already serve NORTH SHORE BEACH. A smooth beach drive connects with the broad streets leading through the property to Sheridan Road.

Residences of distinction typical of finest North Shore communities are already under construction. This is the start of a development that will make NORTH SHORE BEACH immediately available for residence, and will have a powerful influence on rising values. Crowds coming here to enjoy the new, clean sandy shore will also play an important part in increasing values. The opportunity of getting ahead of the crowds can be yours—PREPARE NOW by getting all particulars in advance of our formal opening date. Register NOW for free transportation and the opportunity of enjoying an outing at NORTH SHORE BEACH as our guests. CLERICALISM IN POLITICS.

It seems to us unlikely that the effort in the south to organize a bolt from Gov. Smith will result in any change of electoral votes in the solid south. It may affect the results in some of the border states. But the movement deserves more serious consideration than any probable party consequence would justify, because of its character, the personnel of its organization, and the fundamental issues it raises. These are issues not only of moment in our political but in our religious life.

The bolt is being organized by the political clericalism to which we have called attention hitherto. Its protagonists are Bishop Cannon of the Methodist church, South, and the Rev. A. J. Barton of Atlanta of the Baptist denomination. The outstanding protest against it was delivered by Bishop Candler of Atlanta, also of the Methodist church, South, and one of the most enlightened and distinguished of southerners.

Bishop Candler, refusing to participate in the organization of the bolt, called attention to a declaration by the Methodist general conference in 1894, that the church is "strictly a religious and in nowise a political body," and he also adverted to a pastoral letter of the three pioneer bishops in 1865 exhorting pastors to "know your high calling. Preach Christ and Him crucified; do not preach politics."

Yet, now the Methodist church maintains a political headquarters at Washington in a costly building of its own, located purposely adjacent to the national capitol in order more conveniently to impress its political influence upon the legislators of the nation. At the head of this headquarters is a Methodist clergyman, the Rev. Clarence True Wilson. It publishes publicity matter, like any other political lobby, of which the following items are samples:

"The New York wet organization twice prevented the nomination by the Democratic party of a logical dry candidate for the presidency.

"The method of 'building up' Gov. Smith's candidacy has been without parallel in United States political history. Republican papers have printed leaded, large type editorials insisting upon his nomination.

"The best service that a Democrat can render the Democratic party in the present situation is to register an effective protest at the ballot box."

Baptist, Congregational, and Presbyterian ministerial and church bodies formulate programs of legislation and political action. The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ is active in the field of politics and legislation. The Anti-Saloon league is staffed by ministers and largely supported by clerical and denominational aid. In many communities ministers are active, not merely as citizens, which is their right, but as representatives of religious organizations, purporting to deliver the political weight of their church constituency for political action.

At the dry bolt convention the head of the Georgia delegation declared that "the Methodists, Baptists, the Anti-Saloon league, and the good women of the south will lead the crusade against Smith and will triumph." This is little short of a Methodist-Baptist political party. Certainly it is an attempt to deliver political strength upon the basis of church or rather sectarian organization, and it not only emphasizes the undoubted fact that prohibition and Volsteadism have a sectarian basis but that sectarianism has entered the field of public legislation and proposes to impose its objects, if possible, upon government.

This is one of the striking developments of recent years and deserves thoughtful consideration by every American and especially by every minister and member of the denominations represented by this activity. There is no principle more cherished in the American constitutional system than that of the separation of church and state. Intervention by other religious organizations, especially by that of the Roman Catholic church, would be instantly and vigorously resented and rebuked. But the principle of separation of church and state has nothing to do with denominations or creeds and it is not confined to a merely formal and legal separation. Its spirit and significance relate to the intervention in political affairs of clericalism, of religious agencies acting as political agencies. The organized activities we have described are in defiance of it.

DENTS IN THE HIGH HAT.

Discussion of police reform in parliament indicates that the London force, hitherto regarded as being as near perfection as any body of men possibly could be, has lost public confidence and is now regarded as dishonest, disorderly, and even lawless. It is accused of grafting and of acts of violence against citizens, charges familiar enough in American cities but startling in London.

New York also reveals symptoms of disquiet. The police records there indicate that any pretensions Chicago may have had to more and better gun gangs and murders are wholly unfounded. Chicago has been outtalking itself. They do it better in New York.

Both London and New York have been rather prim in their contemplation of the Chicago phenomenon. Recent events are as pineapples in the vestry.

TO STRENGTHEN OUR DEFENSES AGAINST CRIME.

Public opinion, we think, is at this moment pretty well aroused to the need for a strengthening of our defenses against crime. The judicial inquiry into the practice of waiving felony charges and the revelations of the special grand jury inquiry into fraud and violence in elections have prepared the way, we hope, not merely for the punishment of guilty individuals but for legislation to amend our criminal administration.

Whether the latter is finally accomplished depends not only upon the persistence of our intelligent public opinion demanding practical reforms, but upon the formulation of suitable measures. This is the duty and privilege of such organizations as the Bar associations of the state and Chicago and such organizations as the Chicago crime commission and the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice. The last named has just received a report by one of its members, State's Attorney Knight of Winnebago county, on the power of the state's attorney, which offers some valuable suggestions, and which doubtless will be given consideration in any program of relief. Mr. Knight favors prosecution upon information instead of by indictment. He recommends "that state's attorneys keep an office record showing the progress of each case; that the record of each case shows the reason for dropping it; that less liberality be shown in recommending acceptance of pleas to lesser offenses; that the coroner act under the state's attorney in all cases where death is due to felonious homicide; that judges exercise their present power to examine jurymen; that every state's attorney should keep the public informed of the problems confronting the law enforcement officials and thus gain public support to faithful public service."

Whatever the decision as to substituting prosecutions upon information for indictment by grand juries, the latter institution must be retained for special occasions, such as the present. Meanwhile, the crime commission has its bills on the lines of the New York Baumes' laws, and in general, it would seem, a representative committee of the associations referred to would be able to review our conditions intelligently and formulate a well considered program for legislation. To this program the support of the press and public could and, we are confident, would rally, and legislative action could be compelled.

JUST ESTIMATE OF MR. HOOVER.

Perhaps Mr. Hoover has a scrapbook. If he has he must surely find in it the following editorial from the New York World of Jan. 21, 1920, to which our attention is called by the Seattle Daily Times:

HOOVER FOR PRESIDENT.

[From the New York World, Jan. 21, 1920.]

In the judgment of the World, the best equipped and best qualified man to succeed Woodrow Wilson as President is Herbert C. Hoover. We should be glad to support Mr. Hoover as the Democratic candidate for President on a platform that represented the historic principles of the Democratic party. We should be glad to support him as an independent candidate on a platform of progressive liberalism. We should not hesitate to support him as the Republican candidate on a platform representing the kind of government which Mr. Hoover has exemplified in his public career.

The partisan objections to Mr. Hoover are arguments in his favor. The American people are tired of professional politicians and disgusted with party politics. Of all the men whose names have been mentioned, the World believes Mr. Hoover alone measures up to the presidency in the fullest sense. He (Hoover) has worked with his hands, and he knows from personal experience the point of view of the man who has worked with his hands. He has been a director of labor in great enterprises and he knows from personal experience the responsibilities and difficulties of the director of labor. He knows the economic condition of the world better, perhaps, than any other American, and economic understanding is now a vital element in government. He knows diplomacy and the politics of Europe as few Americans have ever known them.

Those Americans who want a business man for President can find him in Mr. Hoover, who has brilliantly managed one of the most successful business undertakings known to history.

The World may point out to the Times that its willingness to support Mr. Hoover as a Republican candidate is conditioned upon his standing on a platform representing the government which Mr. Hoover has exemplified in his public career, and it will express the opinion that the Republican platform formulated at Kansas City is not such a platform. But we doubt the qualification will very seriously impress most minds, inasmuch as Mr. Hoover himself is willing to run upon the platform, and if, as we believe, the World's opinion of Mr. Hoover is judicious, Mr. Hoover's acquiescence should be reassuring.

Editorial of the Day

"BONE WET."

[London Morning Post.]

To the European mind the paradox of American politics is admirably summed up by the Democratic convention which is now trying to counteract the baking heat of Texas by indulging in frenetic noise. It appears certain that Gov. Smith of New York will be nominated as the presidential candidate. He is admittedly a "wet," yet such is the elasticity of American politics that he will canvass the votes of the nation on a platform which commends the enforcement of the prohibition law. Making people good by act of parliament is a melancholy occupation, and it sometimes leads to something almost suggestive of hypocrisy in politics. It is fair to say that most American politicians are wet in practice and dry in policy; and it is quite possible that similar contradictions will arise in any country which extends the law to petty interference with human nature.

A CHANGELESS CHRIST FOR A CHANGING WORLD

BY THE REV. HENRY KOWERT.

[Pastor of First St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Chicago, and first vice president Northern Illinois District Missouri synod, Lutheran church.]

The subject of this editorial is the slogan selected by a committee of the American Lutheran Publicity bureau of New York for the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri, Ohio, and other states. In response to an appeal by this bureau for a suitable slogan 2,500 slogans were submitted from various parts of the United States, Canada, and Europe.

In announcing its choice of this slogan the committee writes as follows:

"The committee's task was not to find a slogan which would be acceptable to every Lutheran as the very best slogan or one which in its own opinion was the most fitting. It was appointed merely to choose the best of those submitted. Whether the best among those scrutinized by them is the best which could be found and adequately expresses in a dignified way the characteristics of the Lutheran church and is specific enough to identify just the Lutheran church was not the question."

The slogan has met with general approval and enthusiasm. Rightly understood it expresses in a striking and very timely way the position of the Lutheran church toward the Bible and a world of many and surprising changes.

Change is stamped upon everything earthy. Nature takes on ever varying moods. Society is in a constant state of transformation. One of the ancient Greek philosophers already coined the well known phrase, "Panta rei," that is, everything changes. This applies to the individual, the family, the generation, the nation, in fact, to everything and everybody. "Change and decay in all around I see."

On account of many inventions and discoveries in recent years marvelous changes have taken place in this material world of ours. The progress of our times has been truly marvelous. Man has well nigh conquered the air, the land, and the sea. He has to a remarkable extent overcome time, space, and gravitation. The world today seems like a different place to live in than it was fifty years ago. We rejoice in this progress.

But no material progress has changed the nature of sin. Nothing has been invented or discovered by man outside of God's revelation to improve the soul of man. The abuse of many of our best inventions and discoveries has to some extent aggravated the problem of sin. The problem of sin, its mysterious nature and its disastrous result, is today the outstanding problem of the human race.

As far as man is concerned in the cure of sin it is a hopeless problem. All must wrestle with it, but no one can solve it by his own ingenuity or by his own endeavors. Some try to deny the problem sin. Others attempt to smother the voice of conscience, but no one can succeed in stifling this voice altogether. Nor can any man work out his own salvation by his own good deeds. In regard to this problem the world has seen many attempts in recent years, but no real progress.

God, however, in His grace and mercy has provided a solution for this problem and published it immediately after sin entered into the world. Throughout the Bible he clearly reveals this solution for every person in the world, and His solution for the problem of sin is briefly stated in the words of this slogan, "A Changeless Christ."

Christ Jesus is revealed throughout the Bible as the God appointed savior from sin. In the fullness of time God fulfilled all His prophesies concerning the coming Savior, and sent forth His only begotten son, Jesus Christ, to be born of the Virgin Mary. Christ was "put under the law" to fulfill the law in man's stead; the sins of the world were imputed to Him. As man's substitute, Christ, true God and true man, suffered the full punishment for the sins of the world upon the cross. "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself not imputing their trespasses unto them; and has committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christ's stead be ye reconciled to God. For He hath made Him (i. e., Jesus Christ) to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him." II. Cor., v., 19-21. "Repent and believe in Christ." This is God's solution for the problem of sin, and in this way He brings peace, abiding, increasing peace into the heart of man. With the slogan, "A Changeless Christ," the Lutheran church pledges itself to proclaim this chief and foremost message to the world.

This foremost message of the Bible is at the same time its distinctive message. In no other so-called sacred book of the world is this message to be found. The celebrated Dr. Max Mueller of Oxford university fame writes as follows: "In the discharge of my duties for 40 years as professor of Sanskrit of the University of Oxford I have devoted much time to the study of the sacred books of the east, and I have found the one keynote, the one diapason, so to speak, of all the sacred books, the one refrain throughout, is salvation by our own works and deservings. Our own Holy Bible is from beginning to end a protest against this doctrine." The slogan, "A Changeless Christ," is therefore to emphasize the fact that we are saved by free grace without any merit of our own through faith in Christ and his vicarious atonement, but at the same time it is to uphold the claim of finality that the Bible sets up for the religion of Jesus. There can never be a substitute for or a superior to Christ in the solution of sin.

Finally the slogan, "A Changeless Christ for a Changing World," is to emphasize the importance of holy thinking and holy living out of love and gratitude to Christ. The believer in Christ is a new creature and is to use Christ as his model for life to serve and glorify Him. Hence the slogan might be changed to read, "A Changeless Christ to Change the World." Nothing can improve this world of ours more than right and holy living. What legislation cannot do, what new resolutions fail to do, the "Changeless Christ" does through His Holy Spirit by working repentance and faith in man and causing him to battle against sin and to lead a different and better life. We improve the world by improving the individual.

Thus the church is to change the world, individually and collectively, not by force, not by fear, not by outward changes and rules, but by love, by grace, by a change of heart through faith in a changeless Christ.

The church's real business is, therefore, to preach an open Bible, free grace and faith in Christ Jesus and to preach this the divinely inspired solution for sin.

Wherever this is done the words of Christ speak to us across the centuries with the freshness of the present, impart joy, peace, life, and salvation and change the world for the welfare of mankind through the "Changeless Christ," "the same yesterday, today, and forever."

How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith in His excellent word!
What more can He say than to you He has said,
To you who for refuge to Jesus have fled?

"Fear not, I am with thee, O, be not dismayed,
For I am thy God, and will still give thee aid;
I'll strengthen thee, help thee, and cause thee to stand,
Upheld by my righteous, omnipotent hand.

"E'en down to old age all my people shall prove
My sovereign, eternal, unchangeable love;
And when hoary hairs shall their temples adorn,
Like lambs they shall still in my bosom be borne.

"The soul that on Jesus still leans for repose,
I will not, I will not desert to His foes;
That soul, though all hell shall endeavor to shake,
I'll never, no never, no never forsake!"

A SANITARY STANDARD FOR TOURIST CAMPS.

MICHIGAN has the following rules for tourist camps. Tourists everywhere will do well to keep driving until they find a camp which comes up to these sanitary standards.

1. At least one attendant shall be provided. He is to have charge and to see that the rules are carried out. Police officers shall visit the camp as a part of the regular tour.
2. Each camp shall be provided with an incinerator for the burning of paper, litter, and refuse.
3. Paper, litter, and other refuse shall be burned daily.
4. A clean, wholesome water supply must be conveniently available. Open springs are advised against unless they are situated and constructed so as to prevent surface pollution.
5. Laboratory and field studies shall be made of the water.
6. Any unsafe water supply within the camp or its immediate vicinity shall be kept conspicuously placarded, warning against its use for drinking or cooking.
7. Some approved type of sanitary toilet must be provided in adequate numbers and kept clean. There must be separate provision for the sexes.
8. When water and sewers are available, these must be of the water flush type.
9. Where water, but not sewers, is available, the water flush toilets shall be connected with septic tanks.
10. Pit privies are allowed where:
    a. Neither water nor sewers are available.
    b. When located in a proper place.
    c. When kept scrupulously clean.
    d. When the pit is deep, dark and fly tight.
11. The toilets must be indicated by appropriate signs.
12. Receptacles for papers, litter, and refuse of adequate size in adequate numbers and properly located must be furnished.
13. Garbage must be wrapped in paper and put in garbage receptacles.
14. Garbage must be gathered daily and properly disposed of. Receptacles must be kept clean.
15. Tents should be placed ten feet or more apart.

When a tourist enters a camp he should look it over to see if it meets with these requirements. If flies abound, he need not look further. A fly infested camp is a dirty camp. He should look for evidence of mosquitoes. Generally the tourists in camp will show the effects of mosquitoes, or they will tell about them.

Of these essentials the water supply ranks first and flies are a close second.

If the camp is below standard the tourist should drive on without buying gas or oil. The bad water may not hurt his engine.

FIGHTING TICKS.

Mrs. L. H. writes: I am going to the country for the summer. I understand that in the place I am going the people are bothered with wood ticks. Can any one tell me of their experience with them?

Also what to do to get rid of them, and also mosquitoes?

REPLY.

I can.

I have had considerable personal experience. As I write I am aware that several ticks are banqueting on me. In a few hours I will find an opportunity to attend to them as follows: I will drop a little chloroform on the skin around the tick. Then I will cup my hand over the chloroform and hold it there until the burning sensation becomes unpleasant. I will then remove the tick.

The same plan will be followed with red bugs.

To guard against ticks bathe frequently and look for ticks on each occasion. Use the chloroform treatment on suspicion.

To avoid mosquitoes keep behind screens, especially at night. In the morning, go over the room with a mosquito swatter or a mosquito spray. Use one of the many repellents.

TRANSPORTATION FEE.

Chicago, July 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1921 I advanced the sum of $500 to an Englishman in this country to enable him to bring over his wife and 3 children. They came over here in September of that year. I have never had the debt paid, and this man works as an "inventor" on an uncertain income, keeping his movements secret. He lives in Indiana and has lived at the same address for 3 years. Requests for payment of the money receive no response. Have I any redress? A. C.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY.

JULY 22, 1863.

CAIRO.—The steamer City of Alton brings the following from Ald. Hoyt of Chicago, under date of Vicksburg, July 18: "Joe Johnston has evacuated Jackson, Miss. Our forces opened upon the town with heavy artillery yesterday, and he fled in utter confusion, being entirely unable to hold or control his men. Our army, under Sherman, took possession of the town, together with a large amount of arms, stores, ammunition, and locomotives. Our victory is complete. Ord is pursuing Johnston east of Jackson."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Following is the first paragraph of an editorial in the Richmond Inquirer on the New York mob: "Riot, murder, and conflagration have begun in New York. It is a world's wonder that the good work did not commence long ago. And this outbreak may be the opening scene of the inevitable revolution which is to tear to pieces that most rotten secrecy, and leave the northern half of the old American Union a desert of bloodsoaked ashes. We bid it godspeed."

CINCINNATI, O. — John Morgan, with about 1,000 of his rebel raiders into Ohio, has been turned back from escaping into Virginia. Last evening he was moving toward Gallipolis, closely pursued by our men.

CHICAGO.—The funeral of Maj. W. H. Medill, Eighth Illinois cavalry, who fell at Gettysburg, takes place this morning from the house of his brother, Joseph Medill, Esq., corner of Washington and Morgan streets.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 22, 1898.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the preliminary Puerto Rico expedition, consisting of about 6,000 artillery, cavalry, and infantry, convoyed by the battleship Massachusetts, the cruiser Cincinnati, and the gunboats Dixie, Gloucester, Annapolis, Leyden, and Wasp, is now on his way to make a descent upon Spain's most easterly West Indian colony.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—Gen. Garcia has declared himself as about to discontinue coöperation with the American troops. The strained relations between our Cuban allies and the United States soldiers have not been mended, but have grown worse.

MANILA. — Unless the Spaniards surrender in the meantime, Rear Admiral Dewey will bombard the fortifications of Manila by the end of this week, provided the troops are ready to take possession immediately. The First regiment is already in the field at Paranaque, two miles from Manila.

HONGKONG.—The members of the Philippine cabinet have taken the oath of office at Bacoor. Its personnel is: President of the council, Gen. Aguinaldo; secretary of war, Baldimiro Aguinaldo, nephew of Gen. Aguinaldo; secretary of the interior, Leander Ibaria; secretary of state, Mariano Trias.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY.

JULY 22, 1918.

PARIS.—The allies have administered a crushing defeat to the armies of the German crown prince in the salient which ran down to the Marne river between Reims and Soissons. A large section north and east of Chateau-Thierry, as well as that city itself, has been cleared of Germans. The enemy is in full retreat followed closely by the French, Americans, British, and Italians.

WASHINGTON. — Prisoners captured by the American troops on the Aisne-Marne front up to 1 o'clock a. m., July 20, totaled by actual count 17,000, Gen. Pershing reported in his communique. Despite counterattacks and rear guard actions, the Americans advanced steadily.

ORLEANS, Mass.—A German submarine attacked the tug Perth Amboy and its four barges three miles off this town on the southeastern elbow of Cape Cod today. The one sided battle lasted an hour and a half. The tug was burned to the water's edge by shell fire and the three barges sunk. The U-boat hurled many shells toward the mainland, and some are reported to have landed on shore, the first German shells to strike United States soil.

AMSTERDAM. — The death of Quentin Roosevelt in an airplane battle is confirmed by a message from the front, a Berlin message received here says. He was buried with military honors by the Germans.

THE COAST GUARD.

Chicago, July 10.—As an American citizen I feel an urge to protest against the extreme criticism which the United States coast guard receives from you.

The coast guard is our service. They try their best to do their duty as it is pointed out to them. If they fire on, or rather near, an innocent vessel, they are held up to scorn by your reporters and editorial writers. But when, as is the usual case, they capture a dangerous rummy, often in the face of great personal danger, no report of the deed is found in your columns.

Nowhere in the service of Uncle Sam can we find a more courageous, cool, level headed band of men than in the coast guard; yet, if you were to be accepted as the judge, they are a band of thugs, murderers, and profligates, merely because they attempt to uphold the law of our country.

If a vessel of any description or carrying any colors fails to stop at the signal of the guard cutter, the law has it that warning shells shall be dropped around the boat as a last measure. If the yacht of some rich man fails to heed these warnings, and in consequence is fired upon because he has very obviously put himself open to suspicion, I cannot see that he has any right to revile the efficiency of the coast guard. If the conditions were reversed and the boat that failed to stop was really a rum-runner, and the guard didn't stop it because somebody had complained about being fired on, then criticism of the coast guard would be just as loud, and unreasonable as it is now.

HOOVER'S CHANCES IN WISCONSIN.

Madison, Wis., July 12.—I recently read an article in your paper in which you state "that Gov. Zimmerman has assured President Coolidge that Hoover would carry Wisconsin." Hoover will not carry Wisconsin, and you can bet three to one on that. The writer has just returned from a two weeks' trip through the state and everywhere I went it was Smith, Smith, Smith. Outside of the large manufacturers, you never hear the name of Hoover mentioned.

F. SMITH.

A THEORY OF ASSESSMENT.

Chicago, July 13.—Taxes should be apportioned not solely on the valuation of property, but according to the income derived. A home bringing in no income should not be taxed as much as one divided into flats, and where people hold flats for high rents, their taxes should be increased accordingly.

It ought to be easy to place valuations on land and buildings in every locality in Chicago, but the great injustice is done by taxing those whose buildings bring in no income with those who ask and receive exorbitant rents.

Before reducing taxes compel them to show the income they have been receiving the last five years.

HOME OWNER.

THE RULE OF MAJORITIES.

Chicago, July 3.—I was quite interested in your editorial of July 4th in connection with the wet and dry election held in South Dakota. Noting your argument in favor of the liquor vote when you ask the question; "Why should 50 per cent of the people be compelled to do without liquor by the other 50 per cent?"

Without indicating that the writer is in favor of either one or the other, I'd like to bring to your attention the reverse of the same question by stating that, "What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." Why should 50 per cent of the people be compelled to suffer with the results of the saloon and the promiscuous drinking of liquor publicly by the other 50 per cent?

By this token your editorial is all wrong. If there is a majority either one way or the other, we should be good sports enough to accept the results of such majority, for in a running race of men or horses, or any other mode of transportation, a win by an inch is as good as a win by a mile and we accept the results of such a contest gracefully, if we are good sportsmen.

TAMMANY AS AN ISSUE.

Chicago, July 12.—We wonder if the tropical heat of McCutcheon's island is affecting his judgment in his bringing so much pressure to bear on Tammany Hall in reference to Smith's campaign.

On page 8 in THE TRIBUNE of July 11, in an article by Arthur Evans, he quotes Prof. Coker as follows: "Supporters of either candidate who try to make a major issue out of the Tammany associations of Smith or the Harding-Daugherty associations of Hoover are, in my opinion, uninformed, ill-advised, or hypocritical."

Now, this would seem to be the only fair way for a normal mind to analyze the situation; but then maybe McCutcheon does not read THE TRIBUNE.

A NEW DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Chicago, July 12.—After reading your editorial this morning, "Al Smith Makes a New Democratic Party," I am now waiting (not too hopefully) to see THE TRIBUNE follow up its own logic and declare itself openly for the governor of New York.

McCUTCHEON'S MAP.

Chicago, July 12.—I studied the cartoon on the front page of your paper of July 11 with [illegible] such as I have not had since my school days. I make bold to offer a suggestion which may have been overlooked accidentally by the cartoonist, and that is the location of Teapot Dome. In my humble opinion no map which may be used for political purposes would be complete without it.

KELLOGG DENIES ANTI-WAR PACT ENTANGLES U. S.

Declares It Merely Is an Arbitration Treaty.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Denial that the conclusion of the projected anti-war treaty pledging the nations to renounce war as an instrument of national policy would entangle the United States in European affairs was made today by Secretary of State Kellogg.

His repudiation of published reports from Paris that ratification of the treaty would force this nation to take a more active part in European politics was made simultaneously with the annoucement by the state department that all the interested nations now have announced their willingness to sign the Kellogg treaty immediately.

The reply of Czecho-Slovakia was the last to arrive in Washington. In its note of acceptance that government pays a high compliment to the United States for its "generous efforts towards consolidating and maintaining world peace."

Sign Pact in September.

It is assumed the treaty will be signed in Paris in September. Mr. Kellogg's discussion of the effects of the anti-war treaty on this government's future relations with Europe came after his attention had been called to a Paris report published in the morning paper. This dispatch stated that completion of the anti-war treaty would make the United States take a more active part in European affairs and assume a responsibility for conditions in Europe.

One paragraph of the dispatch said that "it is no exaggeration to say that sponsorship of the anti-war treaty places on the United States a much greater responsibility than we should have borne as member of the league of nations."

Kellogg Makes Comparison.

In discussing this, Mr. Kellogg said completion of the anti-war treaty will not draw the United States into European affairs any more than has been done by various arbitration treaties which the United States has negotiated with other powers.

The Czecho-Slovakian government, like France and England, accepted the treaty as not interfering with a nation's right to self-defense. Eduard Benes, the minister of foreign affairs, also took the same view.

"From the beginning," says Mr. Benes, "we have followed the negotiations between the French and Americans on the subject of the pact for the renunciation of war with the greatest sympathy and attention.

"I have several times emphasized the importance of this act and the political necessity of associating thereto also the other powers and especially those who have assumed obligations by their negotiations at Locarno in 1925.

"The government of the United States agreeing fully in this with the powers, has been good enough to recognize the justice of this point of view and addressed to us its invitation. The Czecho-Slovak government attributes thereto a considerable political importance and warmly thanks the Washington government."

FALL RANCH SOLD FOR $800,000; TEXAN BUYS IT

Denver, Colo., July 21.—(AP)—The Denver Post will say tomorrow that the great Albert B. Fall ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., was acquired under contract of purchase today by Clay Mann, prominent Texas cattleman, who announced the deal in Denver.

The deal, involving three-quarters of a million acres, will net the former secretary of the interior $800,000, the newspaper will quote Mann, acting for the Empire Sheep and Land company, as saying. The company expects to take possession in November. The ranch covers parts of three New Mexico counties—Lincoln, Socorro and Otero.

"While negotiations have been on for some time," the Post story quotes Mann, "Mr. Fall did not sign any papers until Saturday. According to the terms of our agreement, we acquire the whole ranch, with its palatial 'headquarters' establishment, its registered Hereford cattle and its blooded Arabian and thoroughbred horses."

Kills Wife and Then Self as Climax to Week's Quarrel

Joe Gouausks, 50, a laborer, shot and killed his wife, Lena, 45, and then killed himself last night at their home, 3620 Lowe avenue. FAMOUS POTTER PALMER HOME IS SOLD

Potter Palmer residence on Lake Shore drive, long a center of Chicago society, which has been sold to Vincent Bendix, inventor and manufacturer of automobile accessories. The property is reported to have brought more than $3,000,000.

GREATEST HOTEL PLANNED ON SITE OF PALMER HOME

New Owner to Build $25,000,000 Hostelry.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago is to have, according to present plans, the tallest, largest, and most luxurious hotel in the world as a result of the purchase by Vincent Bendix, head of the Bendix corporation, of the famous old Potter Palmer brown stone castle on Lake Shore drive, for which he paid approximately $3,000,000. The new hostelry, to be erected on this site, will be fifty stories high and will involve an expenditure of $25,000,000.

The erection of this huge hotel will mark another important change in Lake Shore drive—the entry of stores and shops north of Oak street, the present deadline for business. Mr. Bendix intends having stores along the entire Lake Shore drive frontage as well as along Schiller and Banks streets.

Turns Down $5,000,000 Offer.

A significant bit of evidence that Mr. Bendix made a good investment when he purchased the old Palmer mansion for $3,000,000 is the fact that yesterday he refused a cash offer of $5,000,000 by a syndicate.

He has no intention, however, of selling. In fact, he has leased the residence back to Potter Palmer Jr. for two years. Mr. Bendix expects to get his big hotel under way on May 1, 1930, and states that by the time it is completed the restrictions barring shops on Lake Shore drive will have expired. Mr. Palmer, by the way, will pay Mr. Bendix more than $100,000 annual rental for his short term, it is understood.

The proposed structure will combine regulation hotel service with apartment hotel suites. It is possible that some big New York hotel interests, such as the Ritz, may take over the management, though Mr. Bendix says this has not yet been determined. Neither has an architect been selected for the new hotel.

A Personal Venture.

The entire deal is a personal venture of Mr. Bendix. The Palmer interests consistently had refused to sell the old mansion to syndicates and had turned down an imposing list of attractive offers. Mr. Bendix casually told Potter Palmer Jr. he'd like to buy the property for his own personal investment and offered $3,000,000. With the understanding that it would not be cut up into parcels and resold to various interests, the deal was closed the next day by Mr. Bendix handing Mr. Palmer a check for $1,000,000.

Mr. Bendix is a member of the syndicate which bought most of the block bounded by Ritchie court, Banks, Stone, and Goethe streets. This is across Banks street directly south of the Palmer residence. On this block, when the Stone street vacation question is settled, a towering apartment building is to be erected.

COOLIDGE LITERARY AWARD IS GIVEN TO TEXAS U. STUDENT

Washington, D. C., July 21.—(AP)—Winners of the Calvin Coolidge literary competition conducted annually among the under-graduate members of the Phi Gamma Delta college fraternity were announced here yesterday.

First prize of $200 was awarded to John Edwin Canaday, University of Texas, for his poem, "The Unrepentant Thief," which was published in the Longhorn, the university literary publication.

James Hulsart of Rutgers college won the second award of $100. M. L. Sandell of Iowa State college and D. Richard Weeks of Union college received third prizes of $50 each.

The competition is conducted by the fraternity, whose national headquarters are in Washington, as a tribute to President Coolidge, a member of the Amherst college chapter, who, during his undergraduate career, won the first prize in an essay contest sponsord by the Sons of the American Revolution.

L. E. M'GANN, LONG A LEADER IN CITY AFFAIRS, IS DEAD

Dies of Heart Disease at Age of 76.

Lawrence E. McGann, former congressman and city official and a leader in Democratic politics in Chicago for many years, died early this morning of heart disease at his home, 515 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park. He was 76 years old.

Mr. McGann was born in Galway, Ireland, and was brought to the United States when a child. At the age of 11 he went to work in a shoe factory at Milford, Mass. Five years later he came to Chicago and engaged in the boot and shoe trade. In 1879 he became a clerk in the city service and commenced his political career.

He was made superintendent of streets in 1885 under Mayor Carter H. Harrison. Six years later he entered congress, where he served as representative for two terms, from 1891 to 1895.

At the next election he received a certificate and was seated in congress for his third term. A recount of ballots, however, gave his Republican opponent, Hugh R. Belknap, a slight plurality and Mr. McGann relinquished his seat.

Returning to Chicago he was made president of the Chicago General Railway company, a position which he held for two years. In 1897 he was made commissioner of public works in the Harrison administration. Three years later he became city controller.

Leaving public life in 1907, Mr. McGann was made vice president of the George W. Jackson Construction company. In 1911, however, he returned to public office, again becoming commissioner of public works in the cabinet of Mayor Edward F. Dunne.

Mr. McGann is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edith Foster McGann, and four children—Lawrence E. McGann Jr., Chicago attorney; William E. McGann, Mrs. Mary E. Gormley, and Miss Helen M. McGann.

MODEST FRIEND GIVES $200 TO ICE AND CAMP FUNDS

Algonquin Gifts Go Over $1,000; Children Help.

A nice fat check—for $150—was received yesterday. It put the Camp Algonquin fund over the thousand dollar mark. Modestly requesting that her gift be acknowledged only as from "a friend," a north side woman designated that the money be used to send "some poor big and little folks to Camp Algonquin during the stifling weather." She remembered also the iceless homes of the tenement districts with a $50 gift.

THE TRIBUNE's free ice fund claims no more loyal supporters than the children who daily are giving benefits for the little ones of the tenements. A play was given on Wednesday in Sarah Jane Murfey's back yard when Wilhelmina, Evelyn, Margaret, Stubby, Sarah Jane, and Lucienne, the cast, earned a dollar with one and two cent admissions. June Levine and Hazel Rosenberg sold flowers at Jensen's resort, South Haven, Mich., and several children in Crystal Lake, Ill., put on a kids' carnival, the proceeds of which were turned over to the ice fund.

Thanks from a Mother.

Do the mothers and children at camp appreciate the interest of their more fortunate friends? Read this, from a Camp Algonquin mother: "We are enjoying this good country air and sunshine. This is quite a treat and I assure you we appreciate it to the highest. We are getting plenty to eat, and plenty of good milk to drink. It all seems like a dream to me. I am getting a good rest and the baby, Elaine, is getting the proper feeding, as she had been neglected when I was away from her working."

The following gifts have arrived for both funds:

Camp Algonquin Fund.

$1—Peggy, Wilhelmina, Evelyn, Margaret, Stubby, Sarah Jane, and Lucienne.
Total, $143.50.
Previously acknowledged, $805.85.
Grand total, $949.35.

All checks should be made payable to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

There's a Big Difference In Funerals—

There is as much differenec in funerals as there is in clothing, automobiles, jewelry, and in everything else that is sold. What you get depends on your own choice.

You can choose to pay an exorbitant price for just ordinary service, ordinary automobile equipment and ordinary quality. Or, you can choose an ordinary price for these same things.

Or, you can do the best thing, and choose a "Hursen" funeral, with its most highly specialized service, its exceptionally elegant automobile equipment, with the greatest elegance and quality ever before known at funerals, and pay from one-half to one-third what is exacted elsewhere.

These "Hursen" features found nowhere else, have made "Hursen's" the largest undertaking establishment in America. No one has ever successfully competed with Hursen elegance and prices.

"Hursen" limousines and limousine-hearses are the finest funeral automobiles in America. Each was designed by Hursen himself, and each cost a fortune to build. Yet, the charge for the use of these limousines is no greater than the usual auto hire for ordinary and less desirable vehicles. Call Hursen, of course!

FIND NOVELIST AND WOMAN WIFE SAID SHE KILLED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lambertville, N. J., July 21.—[Special.]—Far from being the murdered victim of his wife's outraged jealousy, Lindley Hussey, novelist, was found alive tonight with his beautiful, wealthy "Venus," Mrs. Grace Saveur of Ambler, Pa., blissfully scornful of his reported tragic fate.

The pair was a long jump from the Hussey home at Parkerford, Pa. When Corporal Wallace of the New Jersey police broke in their backwoods bungalow near here they were attired in pajamas.

Hussey had nothing to say about the hysterical confession by his wife, a physician, that she had killed him and the "other woman" early Friday in a secluded spot near their home.

But Mrs. Hussey isn't finished, even though she still is in Norristown jail charged with carrying a deadly weapon. She has sent a private detective to Lambertville armed with warrants charging the author and Mrs. Saveur with immoral conduct.

SMITH REVIVING DEMOCRACY IN BADGER STATE

Foes Admit He'd Carry It Today.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 21.—[Special.]—Al Smith is held by Republican and Democratic leaders alike to be far in the lead of Herbert Hoover at present in Wisconsin. With great unanimity, they declare that if the election were held tomorrow Smith would sweep the state.

But who will be the favorite in November is regarded as quite another question. It hangs on a three cornered fight over the Republican governorship nomination which is now raging between factions of the regulars and the La Follette radicals.

A terrific campaign is being launched for the primaries Sept. 4. Politicians hold the outcome may determine largely the political destiny of Wisconsin in November as between Smith and Hoover.

"Young Bob" on Hustings.

The La Follette camp so far has not openly designated whether it will be for Hoover or Smith. Senator La Follette is up for renomination on the Republican ticket. So far he is without opposition.

Senator John J. Blaine is billed to hop into the campaign this coming week, although he himself is not a candidate. One leading question is whether Blaine will come out for Smith now or later on. Last spring, opening the fight for national delegates, Senator Blaine strewed posies lavishly over Al Smith and Senator James A. Reed.

Young Bob has been keeping silent on Hoover. La Follette leaders say "Bobby knows his Wisconsin." "Young Bob" is rapping Coolidge. His literature attacks the Kansas City Republican platform as "a frank endorsement of the reactionary Coolidge policies."

Regulars Plan Fight.

Republican regulars today conferred on whether to let "Young Bob" get away with it without a fight. At their Green Bay conference last month they left the senatorship place on their ticket open.

Nobody was keen on running. Now some are arguing it would be a political crime not to put up a scrap. Among those suggested today were William J. Campbell of Oshkosh, Walter S. Goodland, Racine, editor; Mayor William Armstrong of Racine, George S. Meredith of Milwaukee, and A. B. Fontaine of Green Bay.

The question with the regulars is whether it would weaken their governorship fight. Ever since last winter, Smith sentiment has been expressed by many old time La Follette men and they are still talking that way.

Smith sentiment in old La Follette regions in the northern counties is high, according to John M. Callahan, Democratic national committeeman, who returned from the lakes today.

He reports farmers are organizing on their own volition.

It is pointed out, however, that these enthusiasts may be largely old line Democrats. The Democratic party for many years was swallowed up in La Follettism. In fact, the Democrats have only three members of the legislature. Two years ago they had only one member. This year with Smith as candidate, they are coming out again as Democrats.

The party is able to put up strong local tickets in most of the counties, which counts for a lot in an election. Mr. Callahan declares in all these respects the Democratic party is making a far stronger showing than at any time in the last twenty years.

Governorship Fight Hot.

The Republican governorship is looming as a terrific battle. There are three candidates. Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman is up for reëlection. He is an old line follower of the late "Fighting Bob" La Follette. Two years ago he cut loose from the present Blaine-La Follette control and defeated Herman Ekern, the Blaine-Young Bob candidate, with the aid of Progressives and regulars. Walter Kohler of Kohler is the candidate of the regulars who picked him at the Green Bay convention last month. He was the man who cracked the La Follette-Blaine slate on delegate at large at Kansas City, and he was a Hoover supporter from the first. Joseph D. Beck of Viroqua is the La Follette-Blaine candidate.

If Beck wins the governorship nomination and LaFollette gets on the ticket for senator without a fight, it is argued, the effect would weaken Hoover. The regulars point out that if Kohler wins, the Hoover-Curtis national ticket will be supplemented by a state ticket of a similar business type. Thus fortified, they declare, Hoover would carry the state against Gov. Al Smith no matter which way the Blaine-La Follette leaders swing.

AUTOPSY SHOWS BANKER WAS NOT KILLED IN PLANE

CALAIS, France, July 21.—(AP)—Capt. Alfred Lowenstein was still alive when he plunged 4,000 feet from his airplane over the English channel, it was concluded by the medical men, who turned in their autopsy report today.

At the request of relatives, a further examination will be made of internal organs to determine whether poison or disease caused the Belgian financier's abnormal condition at the time of the tragedy. This is based upon the supposition that he tore off his collar and tie, which were found in the plane. Evidence has already been given that just before leaving his seat for the rear of the machine he acted as if he were suffering.

The present autopsy finding disposes of suppositions that he might have met death in the plane. The implication that some other occupant of the ship was responsible for his passing was thus cancelled.

Report Chinese Policeman Attacks 2 American Girls

HANKOW, China, July 21.—[U. P.]—Two American girls, 8 and 10 years old, were attacked at Yu Ling by a Chinese policeman, according to reports reaching here. The girls were said to be daughters of a Seventh Day Adventist missionary. L. P. Lockart, consul general at Hankow, has asked Yu Ling authorities for details preparatory to protesting officially.

INDICT EIGHTH MAN FOR SALE OF FEDERAL JOBS

Jackson, Miss., July 21—(AP)—A warrant for the arrest of George McClellan, Republican leader of Newton, Miss., was issued today, bringing to eight the number of persons indicted by the federal grand jury at Biloxi which investigated patronage irregularities in Mississippi.

McClellan is charged with having conspired to violate the statute prohibiting sale of public office. The indictment charged that he connived with Perry W. Howard, national Republican committeeman from Mississippi, and six others, also under indictment, to bring about the appointment of A. P. Russell of Magee, to a United States district marshalship. Payment of $1,500 and traveling expenses to Washington were alleged to have figured in Russell's appointment.

The grand jury at Biloxi, which was discharged yesterday, returned similar indictments against Howard, M. Redmon, A. M. Redmon, Ed L. Patton, J. C. Tannehill, deputy marshal at Biloxi, and W. E. Miller, postmaster at Wiggins, Miss., all on charges of violating the public office sale law.

RUSSIA OFFERS 'TRUE PEACE' TO LURE PACIFISTS

Reds Exhort Against War and Arm at Same Time.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 21.—It is revealed at the sixth congress of the communist International at Moscow that the soviet government intends to continue to use the Internationale to support its foreign policy.

The chief point of the foreign policy is to unite not only foreign communist groups, but also socialists, liberals, and pacifists of all descriptions, to support Russia's clamor against war and to rally around the red flag. The red flag, instead of meaning a world revolution and class warfare, for the present moment is the "symbol of the only true peace."

Since the Moscow war scare eighteen months ago, the bolsheviks have succeeded in enlisting the aid of scores of prominent pinks of all nationalities, who are voicing the Moscow slogan, "hands off Russia."

Foreign Delegates Instructed.

Delegates from all countries, now in Moscow, have been instructed upon their return home to organize "hands off Russia" societies and agitate against imperialistic and capitalistic wars against the soviet union.

What is especially interesting in this campaign is the attempt of the Reds to detract attention from their military preparations and direct it toward the armaments of other countries.

Concerning the Chinese upheaval, the congress passed resolutions expressing itself as proud of its agents in China, telling them the world proletariat is supporting their efforts to complete the revolution.

Because Commissar Joseph Stalin steadfastly refuses to unlock the coffers of the soviet state bank and present the delegates with huge checks for underground revolutionary activities, such as was the custom at earlier congresses, the enthusiasm of the delegates is waning.

Complaints of lack of funds in the communist parties of many countries provide one of the chief ante-room topics.

No Results, No Money.

Some of the revolutionists even report that although they received money from Moscow to attend the congress, they are expected to pay their fares home. This is causing much bitterness.

Commissar Stalin also informed the congress that unless they produce actual revolutionary situations in their countries, subsidies would not be forthcoming. His action in placing the world revolution on a self supporting basis is believed to be the cause of inactivity among most communist parties abroad.

"Years ahead in performance" explains Hupmobile popularity
THE pleasing picture presented to the eye by any of the vividly beautiful Century Hupmobiles, is less than half the story of the value Hupmobile has built into these modern cars. Everywhere buyers who were first won by a distinctive note in body styles, now acclaim the equally brilliant performance qualities of the new Hupmobiles. Marvelously quick get-away, high-compression power that makes light of the steepest grades, ease of steering, riding and brake control—all symbolize the Century's greatest advance in motoring. Until you personally drive a Century Six or Eight, you can have no conception of what Hupmobile has achieved in smoothness, speed and flexible power. We will gladly provide a car for your independent test.

PROMINENT U. S. LAWYERS NAMED IN PARIS SCANDAL

Divorce Quiz Is Opened in French Tribunal.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 21.—Investigation of the American divorce scandal came up before President Wattinne of the first civil tribunal today with the hearing of the French lawyers accused of irregularities in speeding up American cases and decrees through bribes and neglecting to verify clients' domiciles.

There is no intention of invalidating any divorce already granted. However, cases in which American lawyers are believed to have failed to verify the domiciles of clients whose cases they handed over for pleading by French colleagues may crop out from the investigation.

Prominent Americans Involved.

The Americans concerned may include Dudley Field Malone, Charles G. Loeb, formerly of New Orleans; former Assistant District Attorney for New York Joseph Divivier, and the late Judge Walter van Rensselaer, for a long time president of the American club here, who died last year.

Among the divorce cases in question are those of Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten, former husband of Millicent Rogers of New York; August Heckscher; Mrs. Bayles; Mrs. Herrick, American paintress; Mr. Bloomingdale, reported to be a relative of the New York department store owner, and dozens of others.

Defense Accuses Prosecutor.

PARIS, July 21.—(AP)—The whole "American divorce mill" scandal developed from an anonymous letter, said representatives of seven accused French lawyers at the court hearing here today.

Avocat Baudelot, eminent in legal circles and chief of counsel for the accused, turned on the public prosecutor and cried:

"You went to sleep at your post. You allowed lawyers to take the wrong road, and now you prosecute them because you did not halt them."

The audience approved with shouts.

Children of New Cabinet Member

Mrs. LeGrand Cannon of Indianapolis and Owen A. West, daughter and son of Roy O. West of Chicago, who has been appointed secretary of the interior to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Hubert Work, Hoover campaign manager. [Russell Photo.]

"WEST IS HAPPY SELECTION FOR MY JOB"—WORK

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Work today described the selection of Roy O. West as his successor "a most happy one." Other reactions in the capitol to the Chicagoan's appointment also were very favorable.

Dr. Work, who asked to retire from the Coolidge cabinet in order to devote his full attention to his post as chairman of the Republican national committee, sent a telegram of congratulations to Mr. West.

"I have known Mr. West for 15 years," Dr. Work said today. "He is an able lawyer and a high class man, and he has interested himself to much purpose in public affairs. As secretary of the interior he will prove a valuable addition to the President's official family. His selection was in every way a most fortunate one."

In his telegram of congratulations Mr. Work said: "I congratulate the department and the government on your appointment as secretary of the interior. Because of its widespread activities and many related bureaus, its opportunities for constructive administration are unlimited, and you will find its twelve thousand employés, although scattered over the United States, Alaska, and Hawaii, loyal and its bureau chiefs able and coöperative. I congratulate you also upon your new associations and offer my coöperation in any way you may think serviceable."

SECOND GAS BLAST VICTIM DIES.

Steve Jacobach, 45, of 5139 South Whipple street, died yesterday in St. Anthony's hospital from injuries sustained in the explosion of an acetylene gas tank in the Air Reduction company plant at 3148 South Homan avenue, July 17. He is the second to die as a result of the accident.

DEMOCRATS LOOK TO WET STATES TO ELECT SMITH

the character of the Smith following. It is chiefly urban. The political ascendancy of Smith marks the rise of the cities to a position threatening the overthrow of rural domination of the country politically. The states containing large cities casting in the aggregate a majority of the popular vote are the states which Smith has the best chance of capturing.

That is the reason that the more optimistic Democrats think there is a chance of Smith carrying Pennsylvania, which is normally Republican by 700,000, and has not gone Democratic since the civil war. The theory is that the wet Republicans of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and other large cities will put Smith over in the same way that the urban wets put Vare over for senator on his beer and light wine platform. If Pennsylvania goes Democratic this year, Smith undoubtedly will be elected.

The Anti-Saloon league will strive to avert this calamity, and its sheet anchor in the hour of stress will be good Boss Vare, wringing wet and presiding genius of an organization as wicked as the Tammany which fills the league's leaders with abhorrence. Boss Vare must be relied upon to keep the wet Republicans of Pennsylvania in line for Hoover, and you don't hear the league denouncing Vare any more.

The Democrats calculate that Smith can carry Massachusetts by virtue of the support of the same elements as brought about the election to the senate two years ago of David I. Walsh.

New Jersey the Democrats are confident of capturing because of its wetness. Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Delaware are classed by the Democratic management as responding to the same influences as the other states in the eastern wet belt. Maryland is a wet state with a large Catholic population, and for these reasons would be more likely to go Democratic than Republican this year.

Still Needs 52 Votes.

If Smith carries these eastern states and holds the south he would have not less than 214 electoral votes. But 266 constitute a majority of the electoral college. He then must get the remaining 52 in the western and border states. These are the western states with their electoral votes on which the Smith managers are counting:

Wisconsin, 13; Missouri, 18; Montana, 4; Nevada, 3; Arizona, 3; New Mexico, 3. Total, 44.

Wisconsin, Missouri, Montana and Nevada are wet states. Arizona and New Mexico go Republican as often as Democratic but this year it is said that opposition to the Boulder Dam project which Hoover favors is said to assure Smith both of these states.

With these 44 votes Smith still would be 8 short of a majority. These 8 he might get from Tennessee or from Kentucky with 13. Kentucky went Democratic in 1920 and Republican in 1924.

According to this calculation the Democratic management visualizes a Smith victory by hardly more than an eyelash unless he succeeds in transmuting Republican disaffection in the corn belt into electoral votes. If he were to carry Nebraska, Minnesota and the two Dakotas with a total of 30 electoral votes he could lose both Kentucky and Tennessee and still win.

G. O. P. TURNS TO TASK OF WINNING SENATE CONTROL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Republican leaders, preparing to campaign for the election of the Hoover-Curtis ticket, turned their attention today to the task of winning a working majority in both houses of congress in the fall election. They are confident that a Republican majority will be retained in the house, but they realize, too, that a battle impends for control of the senate.

Senator Jesse Metcalf [R. I.], chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, appealed tonight for the election of a Republican congress. Representative Will Wood [Ind.], chairman of the congressional committee, is at work organizing his forces.

"It is essential that all persons favorable to the election of a Republican President should also actively interest themselves in the election of a Republican congress," Mr. Metcalf said. He pointed out that the terms of 32 senators expire this fall.

"Ten of these senators are Republicans and 22 are Democrats," Mr. Metcalf continued. "In addition a senator will be elected in Illinois to fill the unexpired term of Frank L. Smith."

The Republicans believe they have a good chance to displace the Democratic Senators Neely [W. Va.], Dill [Wash.], and Locher [O.], and anticipate the election of Otis Glenn, candidate for the Smith vacancy in Illinois.

Do you know what makes food spoil?

See why and learn how to prevent it, at the Food Preservation Show at The FAIR

Monday to Friday, 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., Saturday to 1 p. m.

HOW about the food you keep at home? How much of it spoils? More important than that, how much of it is really unsafe to eat without your knowing about it?

We've arranged a startling, interesting exhibition of various common forms of food deterioration. We've powerful microscopes that show live bacteria actually moving! We've a remarkable microscopic motion picture . . . more absorbing than a feature film . . . which magnifies active germs 57,000 times! We've a display of the refrigeration methods used from caveman days up to the present. And we'll show you how Frigidaire keeps food fresh and wholesome by providing refrigeration temperature below 50° . . . the only positive way to know your foods are safe to eat.

Make every effort to visit this show . . . the first in Chicago. See the hidden organic activity which exists on improperly kept foods for 36 hours before detection is possible.

Only a few days remain. Come in as soon as you can and bring your friends.

MEXICO WILL TRY OBREGON SLAYER IN CIVIL COURTS

Assassin Spurns Writ to Halt Firing Squad.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, July 21.—A statement, issued from police headquarters tonight and signed by Gen. Antonio Rios Zertuche, chief of police, justifies the reports of two days ago that Jose de Leon Torsal, assassin of President-Elect Alvaro Obregon, would be turned over to the civil authorities for trial and not shot after summary court martial, as has been usual in similar cases.

"Brig. Gen. Antonio Rios Zertuche states that the investigation of the terrible assassination of President-Elect Obregon is nearing its termination," the statement says. "It will be completed early next week, after which the assassin and other prisoners will be turned over to the district attorney of the federal district, to be consigned by him to competent civil authorities.

"At the termination of the investigation the inspector general of police will give a statement of the investigation and findings to the press, reserving only such information as might, if given, interfere with the investigations still pending."

Assassin Spurns Writ.

The restraining order issued by a local court to prevent the summary execution of the assassin fell through today because Toral himself refused to sign the request for the writ. He asserted the statements in the request were untrue. He said he was in no danger of undue pressure or force on the part of the police and, moreover, the person soliciting the amparo was unknown to him.

It was said that behind the refusal of the assassin to sign the amparo was the assurance given by the police to Toral that he will be turned over to the civil authorities for trial.

Grill Foe of Morones.

Antonio Soto y Gama, agrarian leader, and Aurelio Manrique, former governor of the state of San Luis Potosi, today were summoned before the attorney general to substantiate or produce proofs of their assertion that the labor party was mixed up in the assassination of Gen. Alvaro Obregon.

The action followed a statement by Senor Soto that Luis Morones, minister of industry, commerce and labor, had fled from the city and taken refuge in a village in the mountains, where he is guarded by troops and members of the labor union.

Demands Ouster from Cabinet.

Senor Soto said no one in the Obregon party believed the statement that the Catholics were involved in the murder of Gen. Obregon, and that President Calles would have to oust Morones from the cabinet or "there would be war."

The statement of Senor Soto has created intense excitement in political circles, where it was taken as a threat that the agrarians are prepared to make trouble. However, Calles leaders pointed out that while the army is solidly with the government the loud talking of Señor Soto is not dangerous.

Obregon Buried at Twilight.

Nogales, Ariz., July 21.—(AP)—Just as the sun dipped into the blue of the gulf of California and twilight settled over the Mayo river valley in southern Sonora today, the body of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, slain president-elect of Mexico, was lowered into its grave at Huatabampo, his birthplace.

Thousands stood by bareheaded and prayers were offered silently and orally for the repose of the man who was to have become the first citizen of his country for a second time. The silence which followed, as the gloom of the early night gathered, was broken only by the sobs of the widow and the general's seven children.

A thousand Mexican troops stood by, a guard of honor, state officials, peons and Indians were present to pay their last tribute to their assassinated leader, welded together in sorrow.

CHARGES STIR ROME

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 21.—High indignation was expressed today by Vatican authorities against the charges of President Plutarco Calles of Mexico that the Catholic clergy inspired the murder of President Elect Alvaro Obregon last Tuesday. The Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, tonight demands that Gen. Obregon's murderer be given a public trial.

"Naturally the trial must take place openly, with all juridical guarantees common in civilized countries," the paper says. "The holy see awaits with perfect calm the results of such a trial, being sure that the Catholic clergymen of Mexico are being slandered and that they are neither physically nor morally responsible for Gen. Obregon's murder.

"To the persecution of which they have been the victims now is added the insult of falsely accusing them of the crime in the same manner as during the first centuries of church history, when Nero charged the Christians, whom he hated thoroughly, with the responsibility of setting fire to Rome."

Calls Evidence Flimsy.

Commenting further on the Calles statement, the paper says President Calles has not a single shred of evidence for his charges, pointing out that the authorities have changed the name of the assassin several times and ridiculing as flimsy inventions the theory that because a rosary and a photograph of a priest were found on the murderer clericalism inspired the crime.

"The assassin was certainly carefully searched immediately after being caught," it continues. "Why was nothing said then about the things found on him? This primary silence justifies doubts about the rosary and photograph ever having been found on him, and even if he had them it would not prove much. The same thing can be said about the murderer's alleged declaration that he acted out of religious fanaticism and in order to make Christ king of Mexico."

CANTWELL'S ASSAILANT FOUND.

Flynn Oates, 24, of 853 North Clark street, was fined $25 and costs yesterday on charges of assault and battery brought by Robert E. Cantwell. It was testified that Oates, a waiter, struck Cantwell.

OFFICERS WILL URGE FUNDS TO MOTORIZE ARMY

Fort Leonard Wood Tests Meet with Favor.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—As a result of experiments already conducted, officials in charge of the present series of tests of motorized military equipment at Fort Leonard Wood, are prepared to recommend the appropriation of sufficient funds by the approachig congress to assure the creation of a permanent motorized unit with effective weapons.

Figures contained in the preliminary estimates for war department spendings during the 1930 fiscal year still are confidential, but it is reported the budget director will be asked to approve the expenditure in 1930 of double the amount for motorization to be expended in 1929.

May Modernize Unit By 1934.

Few of the officers now attempting to determine the value of tanks, tractors, trucks and other machines in future warfare with the aid of obsolete equipment, are ready to urge the expenditure of any large sum for the purchase of equipment during any one year. Many, however, believe enough should be expended each year to insure the complete modernization of a unit with a strength of 3,000 men by 1934.

If the decision is reached to follow the experiments at Fort Leonard Wood with additional appropriations for the creation of a highly model motorized force, it would be made up of all the combatant arms. It would be self-sustaining and would operate independently. At least 75 light tanks, several armored cars, a large quantity of strong, fast trucks and mortorized anti-aircraft, signal, and supply trains would be required.

Of the new equipment, officials are most proud of the performance of the light tanks. The army has four of these tanks and two cargo carriers. It also has four modern fast trucks—borrowed from an anti-aircraft battery—for carrying the tanks from battle field to battle field.

The latest equipment to reach Fort Leonard Wood is a consignment of armored cars. There are six of these, four heavy and two light. All are experimental.

Americans to Build De Luxe Casino on Danube Island

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 21.—(AP)—A group of Americans today outbid French, Italian, and other foreign interests for the privilege of establishing here one of the costliest and most elaborate gambling casinos in Europe. The Americans have obtained the concession for such a resort, to be erected on Margaret island, in the Danube.

ARMY TO OPERATE 8 RADIO BEACONS TO GUIDE FLYERS

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—A nation-wide drive will be started shortly by army pilots in an effort to induce municipalities to mark the roofs of buildings so that flyers can identify the various cities.

F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for air, stated that it would be part of the campaign carried on at all times by the army to lessen the handicaps of pilots who fly in bad weather.

As another move in this direction, Mr. Davison announced that six radio beacons will be installed in army air corps fields within the next few months, these in addition to the one in Panama and one in Hawaii. These beacons will be at San Francisco, San Antonio, Uniontown, Dayton, Mitchel Field, L. I., and Washington, D. C.

These six beacons will provide several combinations of airways that will be undisturbed by clouds or fog.

WHAT PRICE CREDIT?

TODAY, tempting credit is offered at every hand! Furniture buying especially is made to sound very easy with enticing claims that promise "No Extras," "No Charge for Credit," "No Interest," "No Carrying Charge," "No Money Down." Before you accept these offers, however, be sure that you compare the prices on the furniture you are buying. Be sure that you are not paying—and paying heavily—for a disguised accommodation charge. Be sure that you are being offered "No Money Down" terms where they are advertised.

Mrs. Ravenswood: "It's just the kind of Desk I've always wanted—a Colonial Spinet. But I never expected to get one for only $9.98—that's Hartman's Every-Day Low Price."

Ask yourself: "Am I buying furniture or am I buying credit?" Bear this in mind: What is apparently the cheapest credit arrangement, is not always the most economical. BUY FROM A STORE that prices its goods for cash selling and yet is big and strong and responsible enough to accommodate you with liberal terms, at only a small fractional added cost as carrying charge (one-half of one per cent a month on the unpaid balance). You then enjoy cash prices and pay only a small fee for the extra accommodation.

HARTMAN'S ESPECIALLY URGE YOU TO COMPARE THEIR MERCHANDISE AND PRICES WITH THOSE OF OTHER STORES. The values shown in this advertisement are typical ones at Hartman's. They are not merely presented as "leaders" or "bait" to get people into our stores. These are Every-Day Low Prices, in effect as long as quantities last. These low prices are the result of the combined purchasing facilities of 20 Hartman Stores, whose resources total more than $21,000,000.

3 HEROES IN BLUE REFIGHT WAR IN LAST MAN CLUB

Dine on Chicken; Blind Veteran Calls Roll.

St. Paul, Minn., July 21.—[U.P.]—The trust pledged by 34 members of B company Minnesota volunteer infantry 43 years ago was kept by three civil war veterans here today when the survivors of the last man's club met for the annual banquet.

No three boys were ever more happily excited than John S. Goff, 86, St. Paul; Charles Lockwood, 87, Chamberlain, S. D., and Peter Hall, 91, Atwater, Minn., when they met in Goff's home at noon over a chicken dinner.

Change Meeting Place.

Previous gatherings have been held in Stillwater, Minn., where the club was organized, but it was decided to meet this year at Mr. Goff's home here and the dinner was prepared by Mrs. "Sam'l" Bloomer, widow of "Cap'n" Bloomer, colorbearer of company B, and one of the charter members of the club.

It did not matter that Goff could not see Lockwood nor Lockwood hear Goff's every word. They were together again. They had kept their pledge.

The bottle of Burgundy with which the last man is to drink a toast to his fallen comrades was not taken out of its bank vault today. There was not even that reminder that the years were ageing for three "last men."

Blind Man Calls Roll.

The routine affairs of the club took little time today. Goff, the secretary, called the roll—from memory, of course, since he is blind—three wavering voices answered "here, sir!" The minutes were read and adopted as they had been 42 times in the past.

Then the three became just soldiers; talk turned to war. Trenches were dug behind the table knives, forces of salt and pepper shakers were marshaled in rows of battalions and charges were made over sugar bowls.

A chicken wing became a river, a celery stalk became a war torn road, battles waged on all sides. The blue forces swept the gray troops back to the gravy platter only to be repulsed, routed, and driven back again to coffee cups.

Bull Run, Savage Station, and Gettysburg were fought all over again and the only casualties were two stewed chickens.

Five Drown When Storm Capsizes Their Motor Boat

St. Marys, O., July 21.—(AP)—Three women and two men were drowned in St. Mary's lake, seven miles from here, today when a wind and rain storm broke and capsized the motorboat in which they had sought relief from the heat. The dead are: Celesta Klein, 32; Marie Klein, 27; Mrs. Henry Homen, William Corl, 30, and Henry Homan. All were from Middeltown, O.

Jail 7 Anarchists in Plot to Murder King of Spain

PARIS, July 21.—(AP)—Seven anarchists, six Spaniards and one Frenchman, were arrested at Narbonne today, charged with plotting an attack upon the life of King Alfonso of Spain. They are alleged to have been preparing an armed expedition into Spain.

SUES MILLIONAIRE

MISS ANNE LIVINGSTON.

WOMAN, SUING F. S. HARDINGE, WANTS $250,000

He's 61, Ex-Fiancee 29; Both Silent.

Franklin S. Hardinge, 61, millionaire president of an oil burner company bearing his name, yesterday was sued for $250,000 on a charge of breach of promise to marry Miss Anne E. Livingston, 29, former private secretary of W. K. Cottrell, oil operator of Tulsa, Okla. Mr. Hardinge resides at 1432 Fargo avenue.

The praecipe in the suit was filed in the Circuit court by Attorney Benjamin H. Ehrlich. He declined to discuss the case, but the story of the broken romance was broadcast in a duel of statements last January after the wedding was canceled.

Balked at $100,000.

Mr. Hardinge, through Attorney John A. Bussian, said he had tested the love of his prospective bride and found her wanting. She had refused to sign a prenuptial contract whereby she was to have agreed to accept $100,000 in lieu of dower rights in his estate.

Miss Livingston, through Attorney Emil C. Wetten, who then represented her, announced she had been jilted.

Mr. Hardinge, a widower, has two children who will be his sole heirs at law if he does not marry again. They are Mrs. James A. Thorsen and Franklin S. Hardinge Jr., 18 year old student at Dartmouth.

Miss Livingston Divorcee.

Miss Livingston, a comely Oklahoman, is a divorcee. She was married to an army officer during the world war, but lived with him only a short time.

Mr. Hardinge first met her on a train en route from Tulsa to Denver on June 24 of last year.

The wedding was set for Jan. 28 in the Buena Memorial Presbyterian church and guests had been invited to a wedding supper at the Blackstone. Then came the rift over the contract.

BRAVERY SAVES POLICEMAN FROM COURT PENALTY

Praised as Eastland Hero and Alimony Is Cut.

The heroism of Policeman Walter P. Brooks in the Eastland disaster of 1915 saved him from a possible jail sentence on a contempt citation before Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch yesterday. The court dismissed the citation, reduced an alimony order, and paid tribute to the valor of the policeman.

Brooks was cited on a petition of his former wife, Mrs. Margaret A. Brooks of Park Ridge, who obtained a divorce in 1918. She said he was $780 in arrears on payments for the maintenance of herself and their son, Edward.

Policeman Answers Charge.

The policeman replied that his health was suffering from exposure in performing his duty after the excursion boat capsized in the Chicago river, drowning 812. His pleading, prepared by Attorney Samuel Rabinoff, stated that Brooks was in the water twenty hours, dragging thirty-seven persons to the banks of the river, most of them women and children.

A severe cold and then pneumonia followed the policeman's performance. He thought he had recovered, only to learn that tuberculosis had developed. He had to give up his post as a traffic policeman. The city put him on the mounted squad, letting him work part time for $80 a month, his pleading sets up.

Judge Reduces Alimony.

"This court won't help you collect back alimony from a man who has given his health in public service," said Judge Lynch to Mrs. Brooks. "Hereafter, he will have to pay you only $10 a month for yourself and your 18 year old son, instead of $30.

"We build statues in memory of heroes after they are dead. I will show him my respect while he is still alive, by giving him every consideration from this court."

MRS. COOLIDGE KNITS AND FISHES ON COOL WATERS OF THE BRULE

Superior, Wis., July 21.—(AP)—Two fishermen instead of the usual one, started out from Cedar island lodge over the Brule river today in quest of trout. Mrs. Calvin Coolidge decided suddenly it was time for her to do her share in providing a fish dinner for the Coolidge household and joined her husband.

Mrs. Coolidge was not sure that angling alone would keep her interested, so she took her embroidery along. Alternating casting her own line with watching her husband fish and with attending to her needlework, Mrs. Coolidge spent a large portion of the day on the placid waters of the Brule.

As to the actual results of the expedition, White House attaches were reticent.

Mr. Coolidge in addition to fishing, is devoting much thought to a suitable successor to Secretary Hoover. Mr. Hoover's resignation will be accepted by Mr. Coolidge as soon as the Republican presidential nominee shall have attended to certain commerce department matters on the Pacific coast.

BOY, 14, CAUGHT FLEEING SCHOOL, GIVEN 20 LASHES

Twenty lashes from a twelve foot strap was the punishment given yesterday to a 14 year old inmate of the St. Charles School for Boys who attempted to escape on Friday. School authorities are searching for his older companion who got away.

The two youths, whose names are withheld as a matter of policy by Maj. William J. Butler, school commandant, fled while on their way to the dentist's office, went to St. Charles, three miles away, and stole an automobile. At Geneva, however, their pursuers pressed them too closely and they jumped from the car. The younger boy was caught immediately, while his companion escaped.

Corporal punishment has been recently instituted at the school as the best means of dealing with the incorrigible boy, according to Maj. Butler. Despite numerous complaints that the strappings are brutal, Maj. Butler defended them as befitting and successful.

University of Wisconsin Club Holds First Picnic

The University of Wisconsin club of Chicago held its first annual picnic yesterday at Ravinia park. Games were played and plans made for a golf tournament next month. A discussion of the industrial summer school, now in its second year at Madison, occupied a part of the program. Several members of the club have contributed toward scholarships for the school and the club itself has underwritten one scholarship.

Kane County Supervisor's Widow Is Given His Post

Mrs. Helen Hollister, of Batavia, was appointed a Kane county supervisor by the county board yesterday to fill out the unexpired term of her late husband, Robert C. Hollister. She is the first woman to hold this office in the county.

GRAYSON HEADS GROUP PLANNING CHURCH MEETING

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson of the United States navy will be chairman of the committee on arrangements for the forty-ninth triennial convention of the Episcopal church, it was announced from church headquarters in Chicago yesterday. Admiral Grayson will have charge of the details of entertaining 25,000 Episcopalians from all parts of the world who will meet on Oct. 10 in Washington, D. C.

FATAL FALL ACCIDENT, INQUEST FINDS.

Charles Moses, 56, of 7610 Phillips avenue, formerly a bank messenger, who was killed yesterday by a fall from the second story of his home, came to his death by accident, a coroner's jury found yesterday afternoon.

Ice Skater Held as Bandit Under Bonds of $380,000

Edward Jacobsen, 18, former amateur ice skater and son of a city fireman, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $380,000 yesterday after Judge Phillip J. Finnegan had heard testimony from 19 persons who accused him of robbing them. The youth on May 31 escaped from the Hudson avenue police station when he slugged Lockup Keeper Anthony Francis, who had let him out of a cell to change clothes. Minneapolis police testified that young Jacobson and a companion, who was killed, on July 16 attempted to hold up a restaurant in that city.

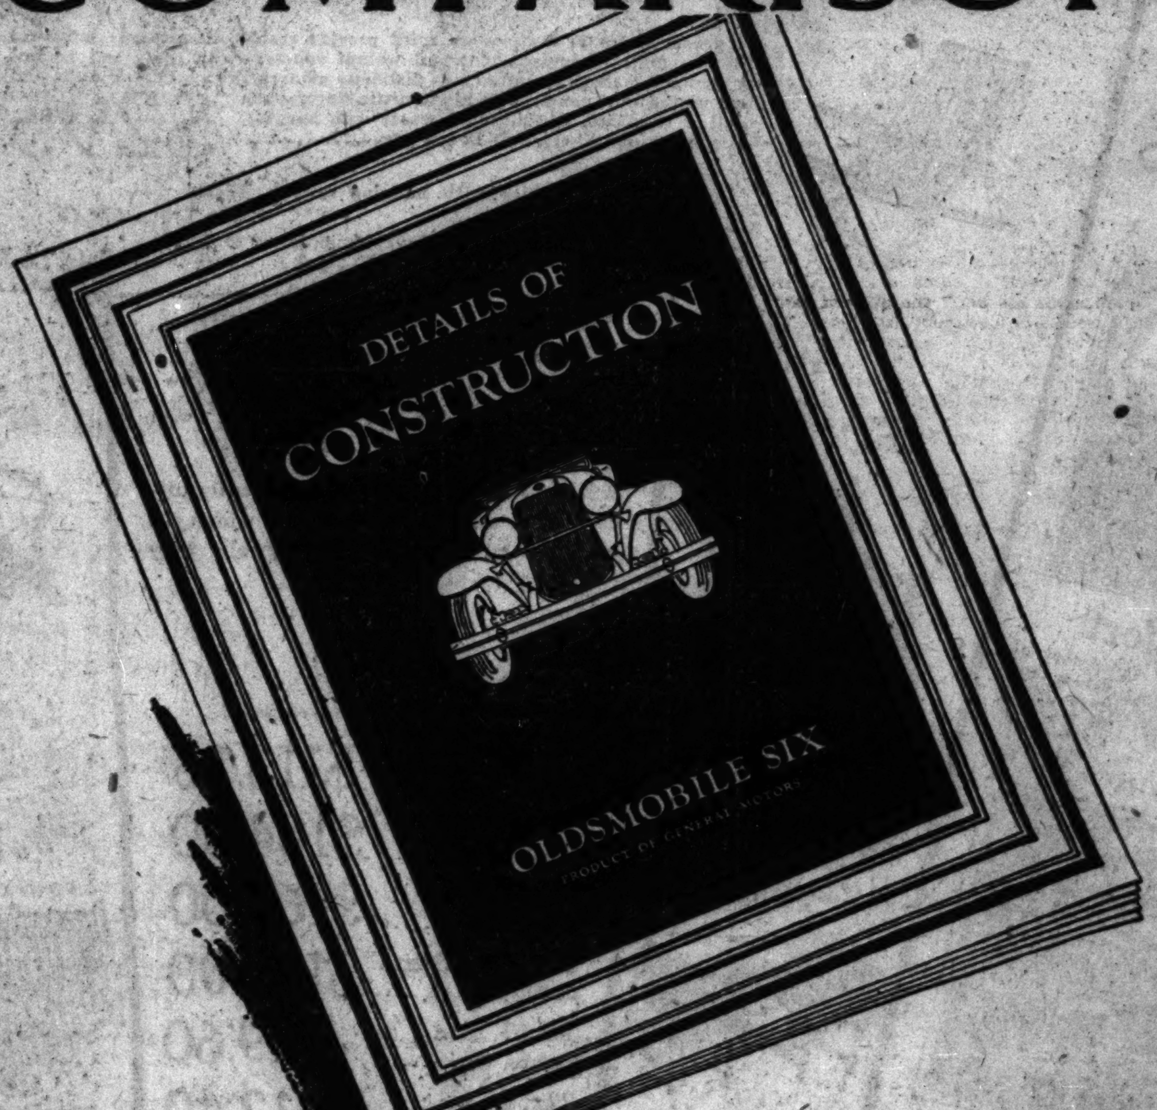
CHOOSE BY COMPARISON



If you want to know why the new Oldsmobile Six has aroused such enthusiasm among buyers of taste and discrimination—we have an interesting book for you to read. It will be handed to you free or mailed on request.

It was prepared because Oldsmobile knows that buyers want more than generalities and impressions on which to base their choice of a motor car. It is simply written, profusely illustrated and filled with impressive facts. We seriously doubt whether a more exhaustive answer to the "why" of a motor car's value has ever been prepared for public distribution. It tells the whole story of Oldsmobile's fine-car performance, fine-car steadiness and fine-car comfort. It shows why Oldsmobile is so superbly smooth, so fleet in traffic, so long-lived and enduring. It explains why Oldsmobile bodies by Fisher are so free from rumbles and rattles, why they invite restful relaxation, and why they retain their original smartness so long.

This book will enable you to compare Oldsmobile point by point with all other cars—and learn why it is everywhere spoken of as the fine car of low price. Get your copy today.

An Insurance Man assures himself of motoring satisfaction

The salesman had just finished showing him the Oldsmobile models displayed on the showroom floor—pointing out the staunch wood-and-steel construction of the bodies by Fisher, the comfortable pitch of the deep-cushioned, form-fitting seats, and the exquisite taste evidenced in the selection of hardware and appointments.

"It's a beauty, all right," he said, turning to the salesman, "and that's very important in my business. You see, I sell insurance, and I use my car to call on clients. Naturally, I prefer to drive up in a smart, substantial looking automobile.

"But performance is even more important to me than appearance. I drive constantly; visit every section of the city, and frequently have to park in the downtown district. So the car I buy must be easy to handle, to avoid fatigue—must be nimble in traffic, to save valuable time—and it must be able to swing into tight parking spaces quickly and deftly."

"You say this New Oldsmobile has all those qualities, and you also spoke of some additional features which are usually found only on cars of much higher rpice."

"That's right," replied the salesman. "Its silenced chassis and silenced interior give you true fine-car quietness of operation, and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers provide riding comfort unsurpassed by even the largest cars."

"It sounds almost too good to be true," answered the Insurance Man, "but let's try it out, and see."

As the Insurance Man stepped out of the car, after the demonstration, he said enthusiastically, "Believe me, it's all that you say, and more. Have one ready for me tomorrow. And say—I know a couple of other fellows who need a car as fine as this New Oldsmobile. I'll send them in to see you." Come take that drive today.

AMELIA CALLS ON WOMEN TO BACK AVIATION

Says Ocean Flights Are Good Will Makers.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Not all the perils of ocean flying lie in the hop itself, Amelia Earhart revealed last night to 300 clubwomen who honored her with a dinner at the Congress hotel. There was, she confessed, a more disturbing prospect—the proposal that her picture adorn case after case of canned rabbit, on which the Friendship flyers dined thrice daily at Trepassey Bay before their flight.

In a more serious vein, Miss Earhart indorsed aviation and trans-Atlantic flights as promoters of international good will, declaring that whatever brings countries closer together geographically is bound to bring them closer in other ways.

Needs Backing of Women.

"It is up to women," she said, "to get behind the aviation program and to aid it in every possible way. Not to have had a ride in an airplane today is like not having heard the radio. There is a great deal that women can do for aviation besides learning to fly and I hope they will do it."

Louis Gordon, mechanic of the Friendship flight, predicted that regular passenger service over the Atlantic will be a reality within five or ten years, the planes being equipped with anywhere from three to ten engines.

Gold keys to the city were presented to Amelia, Gordon and Wilmer Stultz, the pilot, by Ald. Leonard J. Grossman, and brief addresses of commendation and congratulation were made by George Palmer Putnam of New York; Miss Lea Taylor, Maj. Reed Landis, and Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, who presided as toastmistress.

Replica of Plane Made.

A spun sugar replica of the Friendship centered the speakers' table, at which were seated Mrs. Jacob Baur, official hostess for Miss Earhart, and representatives of the organizations sponsoring the dinner: the Chicago Woman's Aid, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Zonta club, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, Chicago Woman's club, Catholic Women's league, Council of Jewish Women, Chicago Federation of Settlements, League of Women Voters' forum and the Women's Trade Union league.

Yesterday morning the flyers' party enjoyed an airplane ride over the city for about forty minutes in a large twenty-three passenger plane that took off from the Municipal airport at 63d street and Cicero avenue. The lake front site of Chicago's proposed airport, that may one day become Amelia Earhart field, was the object of their especial attention and interest.

Knew Stultz Was Piloting.

Capt. Homer Berry was at the controls when the plane took off, and he later turned over the machine to Stultz. Immediately Miss Earhart, although the pilot was not visible to her, exclaimed that Stultz was handling the craft, because she could distinguish his manner of flying.

Today's program includes church services at the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue, where the Rev. John Henry Hopkins, who married Miss Earhart's parents, is the rector. This afternoon Mrs. John T. McCutcheon will give a luncheon for them, and at 4 o'clock there will be a reception at Hull house.

The party will depart for Toledo at 11 o'clock tonight by rail, though it had previously been planned that they should use a National Air Transport plane for the trip if the weather were favorable.

Team No. 2 Is Winner of Six Day Dance Marathon

The six day marathon dance at the Coliseum ended at 2 o'clock this morning with team No. 2, composed of Harry Freeman, Estelle Sobarnia, Mary Rock, and her brother, Joseph Rock, the winner. Team No. 1, captained by Manuel Stewartz, was second, and team No. 31, led by Anton Carson and his wife, Mary, was third. The total distance danced was 594 miles and the time was approximately 140 hours.

Robbed of His Auto at Busy Mich. Blvd. Corner

Andrew Bratter, 3825 Pine Grove avenue, was stopped by the signal lights in Ohio street at Michigan avenue last night. As he watched the traffic stream by on the boulevard two armed men got into his automobile. They compelled him to drive to Wells and Ontario streets. There they took $17 and his watch from him and rode away in his car.

NEWFOUNDLAND PREMIER TO QUIT.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 21.—(AP)—Announcement was made today through St. John's newspapers that Premier Walter Monroe would decline to lead his party in the general election in November and would resign the premiership.

WORLD CHEMISTS OPEN INSTITUTE HERE TOMORROW

Hundreds of scientists are expected to attend the second annual Institute of the American Chemical society which opens at the Evanston campus of Northwestern university tomorrow.

Twenty-eight conferences will be held before Aug. 15, at which men and women scientists from universities and industries throughout the world will sum up the achievements in major fields of chemistry.

The institute's schedule has been divided into four main parts—agriculture, organic chemistry, petroleum research, and sanitation.

The opening week will be devoted to agriculture. Chemists hold that farm relief will finally come through science and not from political action.

Tomorrow morning the chemists will have a general conference dealing with a survey of the uses of agricultural products other than for food and clothing. Among those on the first day's program are O. R. Sweeney of the Iowa State college—where some valuable work has been done with the corn stalk—and G. M. Rommell and H. G. Knight of the federal agricultural department. Agricultural by-products will be discussed by Umberto Pomilio of Naples.

Sir James C. Irvine of St. Andrews university, Scotland, and Prof. Gulbrand Lunde of the University of Oslo, Norway, are other foreign chemical authorities on the first week's program.

MAID IS FOUND DEAD.

Emma Glabow, 26 years old, a maid in the home of Louis Ginsberg, 5813 Calumet avenue, was found dead in her bedroom yesterday, apparently from poison. A note stated that she had "lost faith in myself and everything." Miss Glabow came to Chicago from Germany only a few months ago.

ALIENIST FINDS ONLY ONE OF 3 SLAYERS NORMAL

Only one of the four youths who are to be sentenced tomorrow for the slaying of Miss Pearl Eggleston, 17 year old usher in a Berwyn movie, is shown to be normal in the report of Dr. Alex Herschfield, state alienist, made public late yesterday by Judge Frank Comerford. Stanley Durmaj, who fired the fatal shot, responded normally to the experiments of the alienist, while his three companions showed varying degrees of deficiency, according to the report.

Stanley Thomas and John Tulacz are psychopathic personalities and are irresponsible and shiftless, although they do not come within the scope of insanity as defined by law, the report said. Albert Mas, the fourth defendant, has a pronounced dementia praecox makeup, according to Dr. Herschfield.

"Mas has such an air of bravado that he wouldn't think of the consequences of his act," the alienist said. He refused to comment on whether he believed Mas to be insane within the scope of the law.

Judge Comerford also declined to discuss a possibility that in view of the report he might call for a jury to decide on the sanity of Mas, Thomas, and Tulacz.

Taxi Driver Missing, So Fare Pilots Cab Himself

Impatient because the driver of a taxicab he wished to engage failed to appear, Frank Clancy, 30, who says he is a druggist at Cloverdale, Mich., took charge of the cab himself yesterday and drove it from in front of the Evanston branch garage to Sheridan road and Brompton place before he was arrested.

ESTHONIA FREE OF BOLSHEVISM; TOO NEAR RUSSIA

Many Reds Shot in Last Putsch in 1923.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN [Reval], Esthonia, July 21.—There is no bolshevism in Esthonia, or if there is its votaries are very careful to keep under cover. Esthonia is nearest of European states to Russia and knows most about what is going on in that mysterious country. Her workmen and peasants are, therefore, immune from the infection.

This was not always the case. At the beginning of the bolshevist régime some Esthonian workmen fell for it and the soviet government staged a putsch in Reval in 1923 which was intended to overthrow the government and set up a soviet republic. The net result was that every known bolshevist was killed and that to be a bolshevik in Esthonia since then has meant being engaged in a very dangerous trade.

Esthonia Divides Land.

Esthonia also has built a bulwark against communism by her agrarian reforms. In common with all the other new states in the Baltic she found on entering on nationhood that her land was nearly all owned by Baltic barons, German by descent but Russian subjects. Her first act was to expropriate them and divide the land among her peasant population. The former owners were allowed one-tenth of the pre-war value of the land except in cases of men who had fought against the new state in its struggle for freedom. The estates of these men were confiscated outright. Land owned by foreigners was paid for at the market rate.

The result of this has been the creation of 30,000 new farms, the occupants of which either own their land or will own it when their easy payments over a long term of years are completed.

These new farms have added immensely to the wealth of the country. The former owners were poor farmers and were content with a large income derived from a small return from many acres. The new owners are wringing the last ounce of value out of the soil, with the result that Esthonia is again one of the principal factors in the world's flax market and is even beginning to export grain.

Timber Exports Pick Up.

Timber, which has been Esthonia's greatest article of export in the past, is now coming back after the domestic demand for the erection of 30,000 new farms and farm buildings has been satisfied.

Industrially Esthonia is suffering from the loss of the Russian market. Apart from timber her great industries were vodka, cotton, and woolen fabrics and metals. The vodka industry is almost ruined owing to the loss of the Russian market and the metal industry is also gone.

ESTHONIANS, ONCE WARLIKE, HELD LIKE SERFS FOR 700 YEARS

The Esthonians, of Finnish origin, were first a warlike and predatory people, overthrowing the rule of the Danish kings, and with it Christianity, but soon after they were subdued and their life up to the twentieth century was characterized chiefly by servitude and dependence.

In 1219, Waldemar II. brought the northern portion of Esthonia under the Danish crown. However, after a great uprising, Waldemar IV. sold the province in 1343 to the Order of the Knights of the Sword, who controlled southern Esthonia. Then for almost six hundred years Esthonia was near serfdom under the German landowner barons.

In the sixteenth century the Esthonians voluntarily went to the Swedish crown. After two centuries under Swedish rule Esthonia was ceded to Peter the Great of Russia at the end of his wars with Charles XII. Serfdom was abolished by Czar Alexander I. in 1817, but the condition of the peasantry was little bettered. A revolt was put down in 1859.

After the Russian revolution, Esthonia declared her independence and established a republican government on Feb. 24, 1918. German troops entering the country as a result of the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty drove out the new government and gave their protection to the Baltic German landowners. German occupation lasted until the end of 1918. Great Britain, Italy and France accorded Esthonia provisional de facto recognition in May, 1918, and the new country's independence was admitted in the Russo-German treaty signed in August. Peace with Russia was signed on Feb. 2, 1920.

BOARD BANISHES CARNIVALS FROM SCHOOL PROPERTY

Following complaint from parents of school children and from families living near school properties, the police were instructed yesterday by the board of education to evict all carnivals from school yard properties.

Most of the complaints were received about a carnival occupying the Kenwood school yard at 50th street and Lake Park avenue. Its concessions were operated by Hyde Park post No. 34 of the American Legion.

Until ousted by the police, carnival concessionaires had been doing a flourishing business in the Newberry schoolyard, Orchard and Willow streets, and also at the Wells schoolyard, Ashland avenue near Augusta street.

Children Drawn to Games.

School children stood for hours about the paddle wheels and other games of chance listening to barkers spiel about the prizes, the complaints said. To fit the purses of the youngsters, the cost of taking a chance of winning a doll, teddy bear or kiddy car, or even an automobile, ranged from 5 to 25 cents.

It was explained at the board of education that most of the carnivals were operated by American Legion posts, and that the school yard properties were granted gratis.

The Hyde Park post of the Legion had advertised its carnival to run from July 11 to 25. Twelve booths had been erected in the Kenwood school yard and seven paddle wheels were operated nightly.

Farwell Files Complaint.

Arthur Burrage Farwell, secretary of the Hyde Park Protective association, filed the following complaint with Mayor Thompson, Police Commissioner Hughes, and H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education:

"Has the time not come in the history of this city when gambling at carnivals, patronized by children and young people, should be stopped by public authorities of this city and country? I believe since March, 1922, not less than 1,000,000 young people and children have been taught to gamble in these carnivals. We should like to know who gave authority for gambling wheels, and for the raffle of an automobile on public school grounds."

WIDOW, 77, SUES ROOMER; SAYS HE POSED AS SPOUSE

Mrs. Christina Louise Olsen, a widow, 77 years old, filed suit in the Superior court yesterday against William Lilly, about 50 years old, charging him with falsely representing her as his wife.

The bill, drawn by Attorney Norman K. Anderson, says the plaintiff, through many years of work as a domestic, saved $9,000, investing $6,000 of it in bonds. She also owned her home at 3728 Wentworth avenue.

Lilly roomed in her house for several years, paying for his rent by keeping up the property. In the bill, Mrs. Olsen states, she considered him as a a trusted employé.

Last October, it is alleged, Lilly persuaded her to turn over her cash and bonds to him. He told her she was getting old and needed him to manage her estate, it is averred. Lilly took her assets, it is charged, and deposited them as the property of William Lilly and wife.

Mrs. Olsen alleges that Lilly not only posed as her husband but also began using her money as his own. She asked him to return the property and he refused, according to the bill.

Lilly has no assets of his own, she says, and she asks the court to enjoin the defendant from disposing of any of hers. She also seeks an accounting from him as well as a decree for a recovery.

While deprived of her savings, Attorney Anderson said, Mrs. Olsen has gone to live with a daughter on a farm in Ohio.

World's Championship
RODEO
CHICAGO
Beginning Next Saturday Afternoon

SOLDIER FIELD
9 Big Days and Nights
July 28 to Aug. 5
2:30 and 8:30 P.M.

"E-e-e-Yah! Buck 'Em Bronk"

AGAIN the most skillful and courageous cowboys and cowgirls from the range country gather here for the Annual World's Championship Rodeo. Risking life and limb daily in pitting their strength and cunning in riding man-killing, outlaw bronks, in steer wrestling, in relay racing, trick riding, calf roping and other western sports, they will fight it out for the coveted titles and $33,000 in prize money under the direction of Tex Austin.

The Rodeo is not a show. The contestants pay their own expenses and entry fees. They get just what they can win. There are no losers' ends. Every event is a sensational, thrilling, red-blooded battle, where skill and courage decide the winner.

SANDINO REBELS OUTRAGE BODIES OF DEAD MARINES

Seize Corpses to Force Kin to Work for 'Cause.'

BY LOUIS ROSENTHAL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 21.—Gen. Augusto Sandino, leader of the Nicaraguan rebels, admits willful and deliberate desecration of the grave of Corporal William L. Williamson of St. Louis, who was killed in action with Capt. Robert S. Hunter's column on May 13.

In addition to the desecration, the bandit chieftain boasts of the removal of the body to an unknown location, where it will be held in an attempt to force the dead marine's relatives to work for Sandino's "cause".

This action resembles his previous policies at Bramadero last February, when his men split the skulls of three dead marines with machetes, and at Las Cruces in January, when they slashed the throat of Lieut. Bruce after he already had been killed by two bullets.

Gen. Sandino's Report.

Gen. Sandino's report of the May 13 contact is contained in a letter he wrote to Froylan Turcios, Central American poet, which was published in the newspaper Ariel of Tegucigalpa, Honduras. His letter read as follows:

"After making a long journey through the Atlantic coast, one of our cavalries, commanded by Gen. Manual Maria Jiron Ruano, laid an ambush against a patrol of buccaneers traveling from Jinotega to the port of Bocay. The contact took place on May 13, in the place called El Zapote, 55 miles east of Jinotega. Our cavalry was on the same road from Jinotega to Bocay, in a place called La Chuscada, where the blonde beasts of the north were trying to pass.

"I was informed about this movement of the enemy and without loss of time I instructed Gen. Jiron's cavalry to go to Bocaycito with the object of blocking the pirates' advance. On our arrival at the place called Los Cedros, however, Gen. Jiron was informed by a countryman of the proximity of the bandits.

Furious Battle Starts.

"When he started to set his force in guerrilla formation the first shots from the advance guard were heard and, almost unexpectedly, a furious battle was started. Our bombs, our rifles, and our artillery were cleverly used by our companions, but the enemy's attack was formidable, and in spite of all our patrol's efforts our column retreated, the enemy taking possession of the disputed hill.

"Next day at 4 p. m. we had the hill in question surrounded and, with the fierce audacity of the defenders of the national rights of Nicaragua, we went impetuously for the Yankee's trenches and they were unable to stop our soldiers. The hill was captured by our forces and the pirates fled, shamefully, leaving the ground full of corpses, among them the first and second in command of the punishable column.

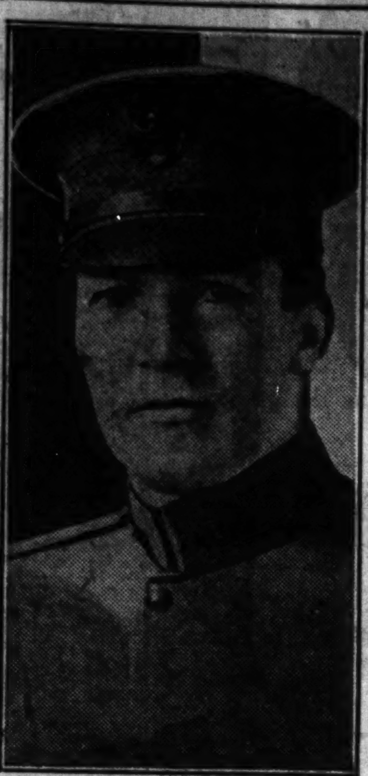
"We took from them cartridges, horses, and provisions. The dead Yankee commanders already mentioned, perished at the beginning of the battle on May 13 and they were buried; but our boys, anxious to know these punished by justice, disinterred them, finding in the grave a well corked bottle containing a slip of paper which said: 'Corporal William L. Williamson, U. S. M. C. Killed in action. Bocay trail along Bocaycito river, 4 p. m., May 13, 1928. Nearest relative, mother, address not known. Cousin's address, Clyde O. Daniel, U. S. M. C., M. B., Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone.'

"The corpses in question were removed to another grave and their bones will be delivered to their relatives only when the latter prove that they have worked for the retirement of the invaders from our country's territory."

Plane Ready for Rockford Flyer's Hop to Stockholm

Rockford, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—Completing preparations sooner than anticipated, Bert Hassell, pilot of the airplane "Greater Rockford," announced this afternoon that he would be prepared to hop off for Stockholm, Sweden, any time after 10 a. m. Sunday the moment that weather conditions permit.

HONORED AT CAMP



Lieut. Harry A. Holliday, war hero killed in France, after whom new citizens' military training camp at Fort Sherdan has been named.

ILLINOIS GUARD INFANTRY CAMP STARTS JULY 28

Summerall to See Sham Battle.

Field training of the Illinois National Guard units, except artillery, will be held this year at Camp Grant, near Rockford, Ill., from July 28 to Aug. 11, Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commanding the 33d division, announced last night.

The artillery units already have attended camp ths year at Sparta, Wis.

Wednesday, Aug. 8, has been designated as "Governor's day." In addition to Gov. Small, the guests will include Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the U. S. army, and Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding the sixth corps area.

A program embodying a variety of military events has been planned for that day. It will begin with a review of the entire command at 10:30 a. m., which will end at noon.

At 2:30 p. m. an attack by an infantry battalion, preceded by tanks and under cover of a smoke screen, will take place. During this attack both the air service and anti-aircraft service will take an active part. Following the attack will be an air demonstration staged by the 33d division air service, augmented by several planes provided by the war department.

"The Governor's day" program will be concluded with an address by Gen. Summerall.

2 KILLED, 15 HURT WHEN TROLLEY DIVES INTO STORE

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 21.—(AP)—Two persons, a woman and a small girl, were killed and 15 persons were injured, several of them seriously, when a trolley car ran wildly down a hill, struck an automobile and ploughed into a crowded store in Braddock, a suburb, late today.

Nine of the injured were taken to a Braddock hospital. First reports said that two of them, Harry Levine, proprietor of the store, and Paul Evans, driver of the automobile were possibly fatally hurt. The street car motorman also was among the injured.

The trolley car careened down one of the main streets of Braddock while crowds of shoppers looked on. It hit Evans' automobile and carried in into the store filled with shoppers, several of whom were hurled to the rear of the shop.

Springfield, Ill., Autoists Rejoice as Gas War Rages

Springfield, Ill., July 21.—[U.P.]—Motorists took advantage of a gasoline war here today to fill their tanks. All leading stations were selling gasoline for 14 cents a gallon, because several "outlaw" stations cut the price to that figure.

GIVES NAMES OF WAR HEROES TO TRAINING CAMP

Site and Streets to Recall Sheridan Graduates.

From the wreck of the old officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, which in 1917 turned out 4,000 graduates in a period of six months in order that the national army might have leaders, is rising a new camp, to be occupied by the Citizens' Military Training camp students.

The camp, for young men from Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, will open July 27.

It will be called Camp Holliday, in honor of a 1917 graduate who lost his life in France, it was announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding the Sixth Corps area.

When the final decision was made to name the camp for First Lieut. Harry A. Holliday, who died of wounds in October, 1918, after heroic action at Chateau Thierry, Gen. Malone sent a letter to Holliday's parents, Capt. and Mrs. George A. Holliday, Traverse City, Mich.

Company streets of the new camp will be named in honor of various others, all of whom were distinguished for bravery.

One of the streets will bear the name of Lieut. Franklin B. Bellows of Evanston, killed while a member of the 50th air squadron, acting as an observer over the German lines. A distinguished service cross in his name went to his next of kin.

Another street will be named for Lieut. Bernard Van Hof of Grand Rapids, Mich., killed while leading his platoon in action on July 29, 1918. His deed won the croix de guerre and the distinguished service cross.

Other names which will distinguish the camp streets and the reason therefore are:

Lieuts. Edwin B. Thorsen of Ashland, Wis., winner of the distinguished service cross; George A. McKinlock of Chicago, killed in action near Berzy-le-Sec on July 21, 1918; Edward Orr of Chicago, killed on the third day of the St. Mihiel offensive; Frank T. Montgomery of Wausau, Wis., killed Oct. 3, 1918, in the Argonne; Harry M. Keiser of Dubuque, Ia., killed while leading his platoon in action at Clerges; Charles E. Hurlbutt of Oshkosh, Wis., killed on July 18, 1918, near Chateau Thierry; Harry Dillon of Mondovi, Wis., killed Oct. 4, 1918, during the Argonne drive; Isaac V. Goltra, killed at Chateau Thierry; Lester C. Barton of Maywood, Ill., killed on July 18, 1918, while acting as a liaison officer; and Paul M. Clenenden of Cairo, Ill., killed in the Argonne.

22 Planes on Air Tour Land at Great Falls, Mont.

Great Falls, Mont., July 21.—(AP)—The twenty-two planes in the national air tour arrived here today from Missoula, Mont., and will remain overnight. They will go to Minot, N. D., tomorrow.

VIENNA SONGFEST STAGES SPECIAL HONOR TO YANKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 21.—Vienna is jammed to the gates with singers, here for the festival of the German singing societies from all parts of the world.

Officially the singers here exceed 150,000, with more than half as many wives, children, relatives and tourists, and unofficial guests.

Vienna listened to 40,000 trained voices last night. The singers included delegations from Brooklyn, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, California, the Rhineland, Saxony, Suabia, Thuringia, Bohemia, Silesia, and Africa, as well as others.

160,000 Persons Listen.

Sixty thousand persons listened in the immense hall, while outside another 100,000 listened to the loud speakers. While this concert was going on twenty-five others were announced and probably twice that number of impromptu song fests were taking place in other parts of the city.

Ten thousand persons attended the concert of Karlsplatzeat, given in the courtyard of Hoerburg palace. The conductor, Viktor Kehldorfer, led a choir of 40,000 voices in Schubert's last composition. The singers then rendered "Der Lindenbaum" from Schubert's "Lilac Time," followed by the Germans' "Fatherland."

Special Reception for Yanks.

Today really was America's day. The San Francisco Choral society sang at a special concert, while the Arion Choral society of Brooklyn gave a concert this evening. A special afternoon reception was given to all visiting Americans under the auspices of the Austro-American Institute of Education and the American-Austrian society. Among the speakers was A. Wesselhoff of Peoria, Ill., president of the Northwestern Choral union.

The Chicago singers are distributed throughout the city. They are not assembled at one place, but joined in with the other American groups.

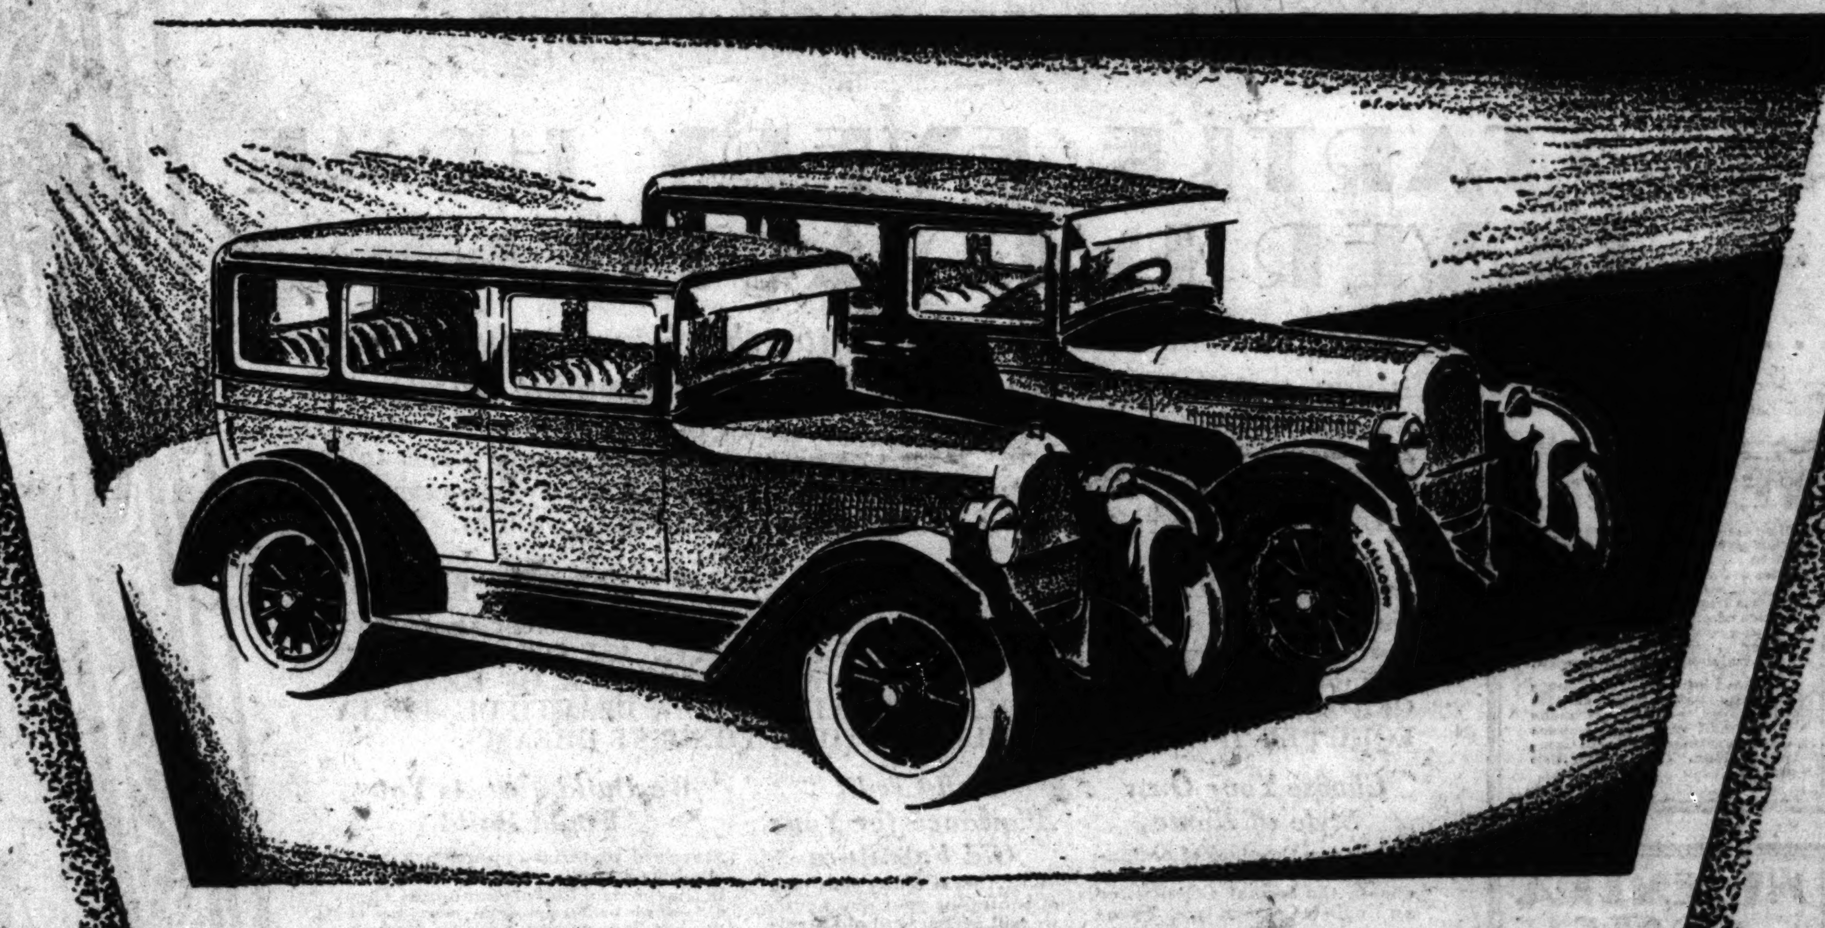
LOWEST PRICED SEDANS
on the market

2,000,000 WILLYS-OVERLAND CARS AND GOING STRONG!



with quality, beauty and style dominating

In definite dollar-for-dollar value there are no 4-door enclosed cars on the market comparable to the Whippet Four and Whippet Six Sedans.

This is true not only because these smart Sedans are the lowest priced in the world, but because they represent the most advanced ideas in automotive engineering, both mechanically and artistically.

The perfected Whippet Four offers such desirable features as full force-feed lubrication, silent timing chain, extra leg room and powerful 4-wheel brakes. The new Whippet Six, in addition to these, provides a 7-bearing crankshaft, Invar-strut pistons and many other advantages.

Such notable values as these Sedans are possible only because of the skill and experience gained in the production of more than 2,000,000 motor cars.

HARTMAN'S Announce a New Home Building Plan ...

WE BUILD AND FURNISH YOUR HOME COMPLETE

You Pay for It Monthly As Rent..

TO STARTLE EVERY HOME LOVER INTO ACTION

... An Amazing Plan That Enables You to Move Into the Completely Furnished Home of Your Choice ... Without Worry ... Without Financial Burden

FEATURES

Hartman's "Home Complete" Plan gives you your house complete ... furniture ... draperies ... floor coverings ... electric refrigeration ... radio outlets in principal rooms ... choice of oil burner or furnace heating equipment ... electric ironer ... water heater ... all modern labor-saving equipment.

Instead of making separate monthly payments on all this equipment, you simply make ONE small monthly payment under Hartman's "Home Complete" Plan. Think what this means.

NO EXTRA COSTS

No extra finance charges.
No extra architects' bills.
No extra furniture costs.
No extra costs of any kind.

You know in advance exactly what you are to pay.

Your monthly payment covers everything.

NO WORRY

This plan wipes out all worry and confusion.

No architect to select.
No contractors to bicker with.
No chance for substitution of materials.
No financial worry.
No mortgage firms to deal with.
No waiting; your home is delivered to you ON TIME.
No Extras to pay for after home is finished.

Hartman's "Home Complete" Plan Transfers you from Dream Street to that perfect home for which you have always longed—cozy, stylish, completely furnished with furniture of your own choice—ready to move into.

PAY FOR IT JUST AS YOU PAY RENT

You pay for everything easily in Monthly Payments. Just select the style of home you can comfortably afford to pay for—at $65, $75, $85, $100, $125 a month or more—AND, INSTEAD OF OWNING A USELESS PILE OF RENT RECEIPTS, YOUR MONEY WILL BE BUYING YOU A BEAUTIFUL, FULLY EQUIPPED HOME THAT FULFILLS YOUR FONDEST DREAMS.

Choose Your Own Style of Home

Select from the plans of nationally famous architects. You may choose the formal Colonial, or an English Cottage type. There are charming examples of ornate Normandy and Brittany dwellings. Too, there are delightful styles of Spanish or artistic French architecture to choose from. Just suit your fancy.

If you already own a lot, Hartman's take care of all the rest. Or, we will help you select a lot and our Real Estate experts will see that you get a choice location and value.

Full Credit Allowance for Your Old Furniture

To further simplify your task of equipping your new home, we will accept your old furniture in part payment for new. Your old furniture will be appraised in accordance with actual used-furniture values, as established by the Blue Book of Appraisals, and the full amount of appraisal credited against your new purchases. This extra accommodation assures you against any undue sacrifice in moving into your new, completely outfitted home.

We Build Just As You Would Build

Standard materials, products nationally known and accepted, will be used in the construction of your home. They will cost you less because of the magnitude of this new Hartman plan; wholesale purchase of materials, enormous buying power, all help to deliver you the finest home for the lowest price.

All the tremendous facilities of Hartman's will be at your command. A 63-year record of successful home-making stands squarely behind this institution—the largest of its kind in the world. Resources in excess of $21,000,000 and an unparalleled buying power guarantee lowest prices and dependable quality for your lifetime satisfaction.

CUBS WHIP GIANTS, 2-1, 5-4; IN 2D PLACE

HEENEY'S STYLE TO MAKE GENE HIT OR GET HIT

Pegler Sees Promise of Bloody Fight.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Fairhaven, N. J., July 21.—To recapitulate after six months of dogged hullabaloo, Thomas Heeney, a thickset young tinker from New Zealand with moss on his bosom and a chin like a corner stone of a Masonic temple, will take the ring at the Yankee stadium at the Kishineff side of the Harlem river, New York City, next Thursday evening to challenge Gene Tunney and the entire régime of big words and fine manners for the heavyweight championship of the world.

They will fight no more than fifteen rounds and they may fight fewer because Mr. Tunney, for all his pretense and his efforts to make the pretense good with himself, is a young man with a quibbling kind of pride. He affects disdain and contempt for the coarse and vulgar element of the prize fight industry, but he would much admire to rout and refute this element, so he probably will throw off the physical reticence which has bound him like a straight jacket throughout his career and endeavor to leave Mr. Heeney for dead.

Gene a "Wrist Hitter."

Always the proper boxer, Mr. Tunney seems to have been under a constant apprehension that if he should let one fly from his heels in the primitive style of a citizen taking a clout at a surly conductor he might miss and look silly, which would mortify him more than a hole in his pants at a garden party in Greenwich, Conn. He has been what the baseball people would call a wrist hitter as distinguished from a Babe Ruth, or the Babe Ruth. The wrist hitters strike out, but they do so with poise and good form. When Mr. Ruth strikes out, his feet fly out from beneath him and he comes down on the heel of his bloomers amid ribald jests and harsh laughter from the lower classes.

Mr. Tunney's fetish is seemliness or decorum and for all his contempt for the lower classes, he has a honc to convince and confuse them by knocking out one of their own. They have made Mr. Heeney one of their own and inasmuch as Mr. Heeney's chin wears an inviiation as plain as a banner reading "park left hooks and right crosses here."

Mr. Tunney for once will wind up and let fly, murmuring the polite equivalent of "to hell with the consequences."

Little Profit for Heeney.

Mr. Heeney was nominated for the championship by the same method that is used in nominating candidates for the presidency of the United States. That is, before the preliminary campaign was half finished the boss of the pugilistic party, Mr. Tex Rickard, had selected the nominee. Controlling the nomination, Mr. Rickard, on behalf of the soulless corporation of Madison Square Garden, was able to drive a hard bargain with Thomas, beating his price down to the lowest figure that has been accepted by the party of the second part in a heavyweight championship fight since the night that Will Brennan fought Jack Dempsey for $25,000 in the old garden and so far forgot himself as to tear Dempsey's left ear off in passing.

Heeney has been guaranteed $100,000 in the event of his losing, but with four managers to be maintained in the style to which they are accustomed and with the customary wages and graft and unavoidable income taxes to be paid, Thomas is not likely to make more than $40,000 net.

It is understood, also, that in the event of Mr. Heeney's winning the prize fight and the championship he will receive nothing whatever but will waive the $100,000 to Mr. Tunney.

Foresees Spirited Fight.

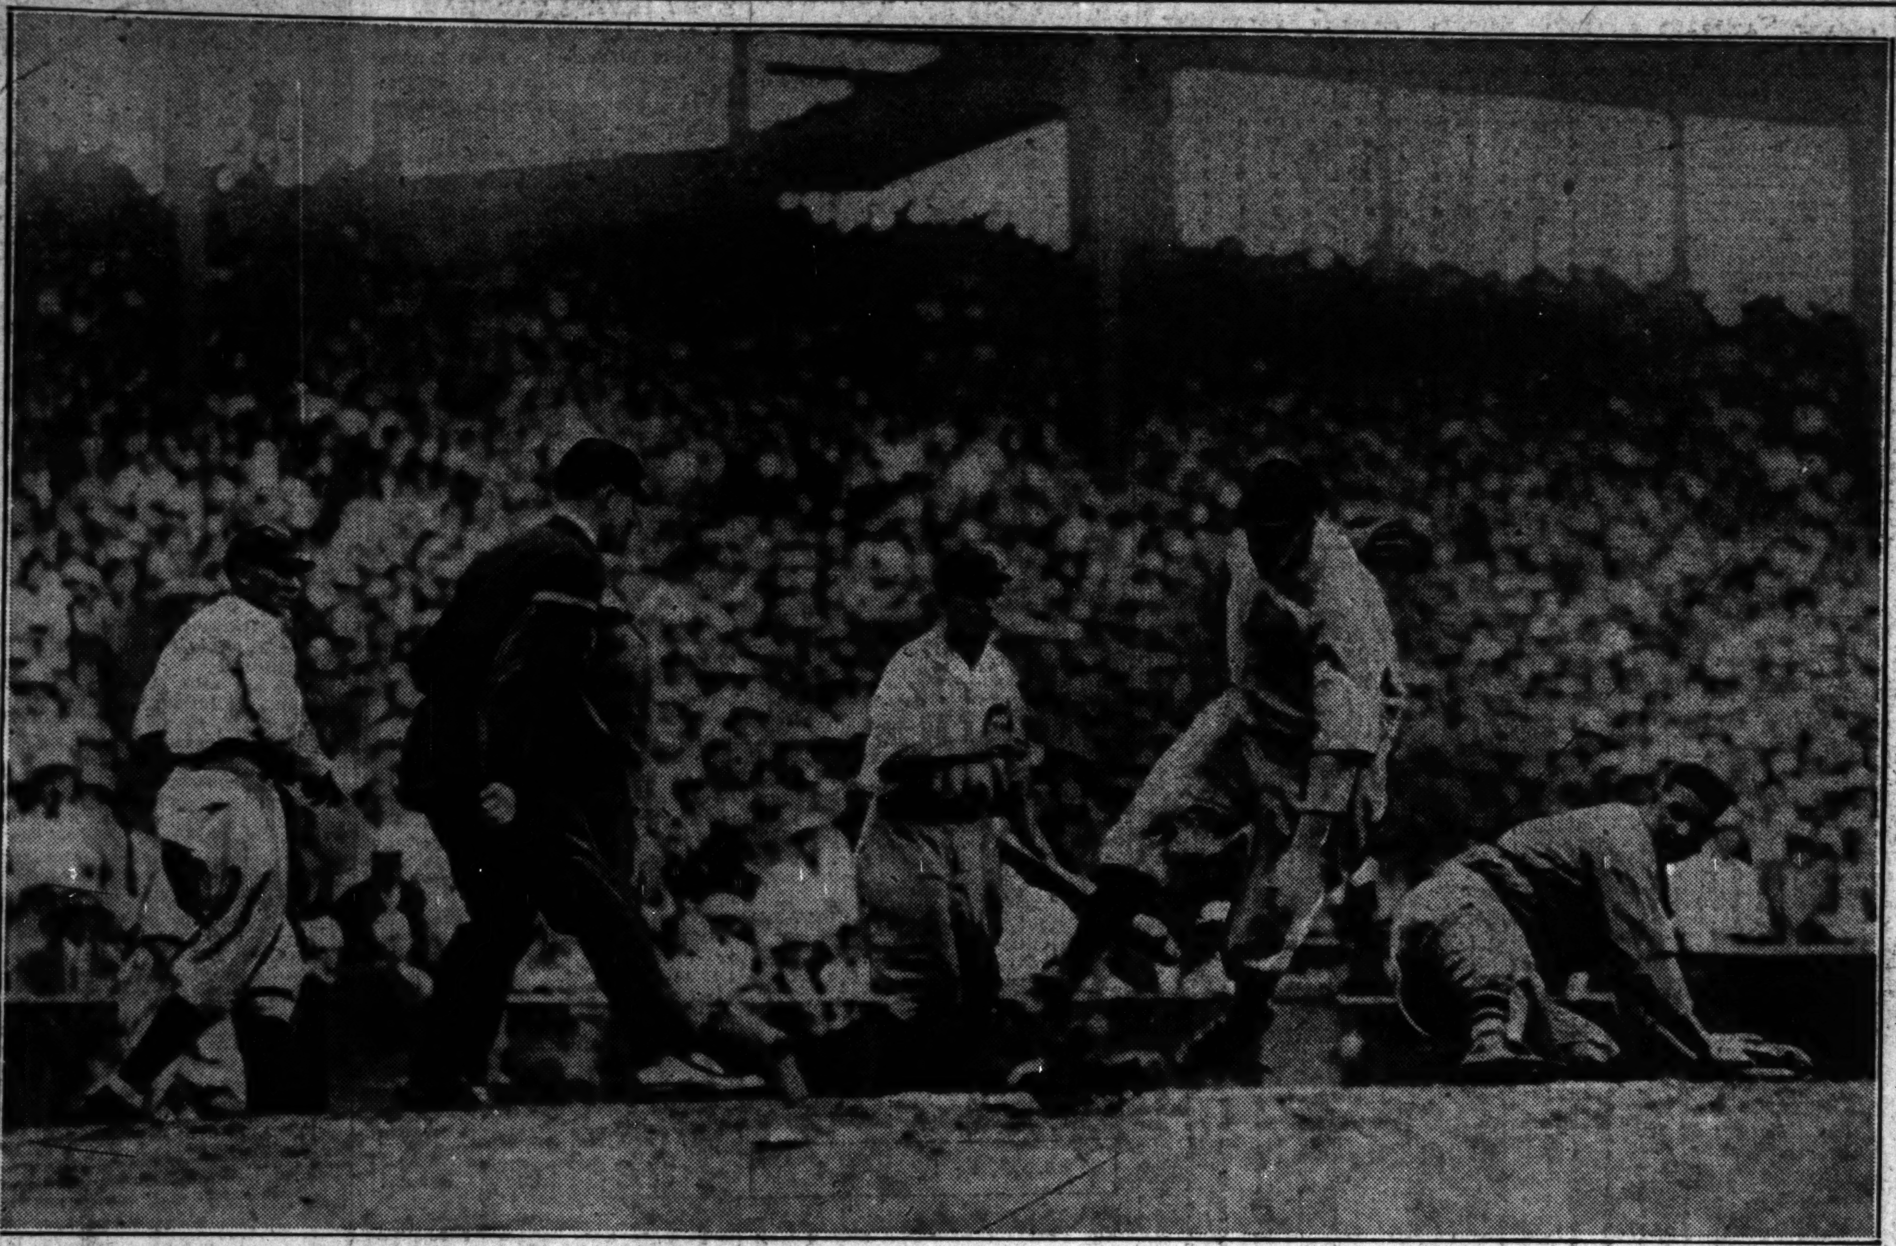
Heeney's record is so drab and Tunney's style so restrained that Mr. Rickard has been put to the expensive necessity of engaging a high priced press agent for each training camp and, even so, the ballyhoo has lacked the divine spark. Conscious that Mr. Tunney was outsmacked by Paulino, the Spaniard, in one trial and held even in another; that he was dumped on his haunches by both Paulino and Buddy [Out-the-window] Gorman; and that he couldn't put down Jack [Rin-Tin-Tin] Sharkey, who quit to Dempsey in the worst fight Dempsey ever made, the experts and essayists who have camped with both fighters have been producing an effect which no more resembles the soulful sound of the true ballyhoo than the squeal of a mechanical fiddle resembles a solo by Kreisler himself.

Still I feel warned that the fight will be quite spirited because Heeney follows the style that will beat Tunney when he is beaten, and Tunney, in his training bouts, especially with Harold Mays, has been tagged in spots where Heeney will endeavor to tag him. With a blundering, lunging, swinging man of jailhouse architecture coming his way, Mr. Tunney will have to hit or be hit.

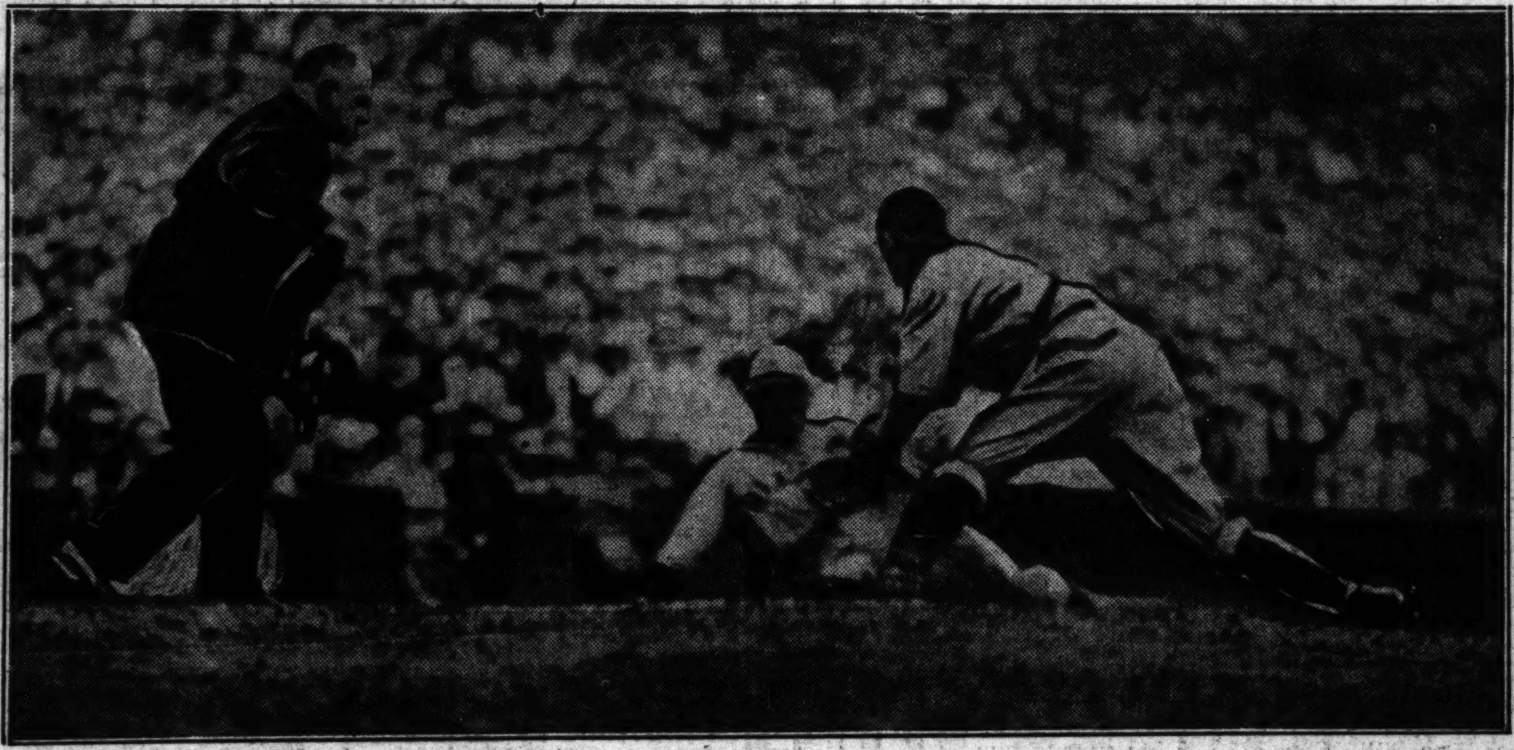
For years the vulgar elements of the prize fight profession who love Mr. Tunney even less, if possible, than he cherishes them, have said of Mr. Tunney's prize fights, "I would just as soon watch a ginny dig a hole."

This is once when your correspondent cannot subscribe to this picturesque disparagement of a Tunney upcoming production. I anticipate bloodshed and a bang, which is the professional term for drama in the fight industry.

FLASHES FROM THE CUBS' VICTORIES



Blake fails to touch the plate, costing the Cubs a run. In the fifth inning of the second game with the Giants at Wrigley field yesterday, after Stephenson had scored, Beck was on third base and Blake on first. English doubled down the right field foul line. Beck counted but the Sheriff jumped over Catcher Hogan at the plate and failed to touch the rubber. When he turned to walk away Hogan tagged him for the third out of the inning. Left to right: Beck, Umpire Reardon, Maguire, Blake, and Hogan.



Lindstrom, the Giants' third baseman, is out at the plate when Gonzales outguesses him. In the thirteenth inning of the first game, with runners on first and third and two out, New York tried the double steal. Gonzales faked a throw to second, then lined the ball to Beck at third base, catching Lindstrom off the base. Beck returned the throw and Freddie was out at the plate.

Last Week's Answers

Quotation—Tell It to the Marines.

Answer—According to the Oxford dictionary, this expression is more than 200 years old and originally had a fuller form: "Tell that nonsense to the horse-marines," in which instance "horse-marines" signified an imaginary corps of mounted marines, as a type of men out of their element. According to Webster, the expression is more than 600 years old and always has meant "disbelief," because the marines were traditionally scorned by the sailors. Other authorities agree that the idiom is at least 200 years old and refers variously to the supposed ignorance and credulity of the marines, as landsmen on shipboard. A notable example of the idiom may be found in Sir Walter Scott's "Redgauntlet." In chapter 13 Nanty Ewart says: "Tell that to the marines—the sailors won't believe it."—William A. Fay, 6543 Newgard avenue, Chicago.

Quotation—It Beats the Dutch.

Answer—The following account is given of this phrase in the book, "The Land of Pluck," by Mary Mapes Dodge: "Its [Holland's] people are the queerest and drollest of all nations; and yet so plucky, so wise, and resolute and strong, that 'beating the Dutch' has become a familiar byword for expressing the limits of mortal performance."—Miss Mary C. Curtiss, El Paso, Ill.

NOTE—This saying seems to be one that cannot be traced to anybody. Its origin is lost in the past, but the above answer gives a good definition of its present day meaning.

Quotation—God Reigns and the Government at Washington Still Lives.

Answer—Spoken by Gen. James A. Garfield, then a representative in congress from Ohio, at the close of a brief address to a large mob in Wall street, New York City, on April 15, 1865, the morning after the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. The crowd was about to attack the offices of a newspaper that had violently opposed Lincoln. Suddenly Garfield appeared on a balcony of the Exchange building and said: "Fellow citizens! Clouds and darkness are round about Him. His pavilion is dark waters and thick clouds of the skies. Justice and judgment are the establishment of His throne. Mercy and truth shall go before His face. Fellow citizens! God reigns, and the government at Washington still lives." The crowd quieted and the danger of violence was averted.—Wanda Rex, 4742 North Central Park avenue, Chicago.

NOTE—Garfield, elected President in 1880, was shot by Charles Guiteau on July 2, 1881, and died on Sept. 19.

U. S. Olympic Athletes Hold First Workout

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

AMSTERDAM, July 21.—While the American Olympic swimmers went to Haarlem today trying to find a pool free from dead fish or dogs, and the fencers were at Brussels trying to buy needed equipment, Coach Lawson Robertson sent his track and field charges through their first real workout since leaving New York.

His worries over the cinder track in the main stadium, which still is in the process of construction, gave way today to concern over the practice pathway, which is so bad he was afraid to have his men do more than limber up on it.

"I may be naturally pessimistic, but things really are bad," Robertson said tonight. "The men didn't look good today and there is no place to get them in shape. I am afraid to have them run on this treacherous track."

There was whispered criticism around town tonight regarding the literary activities of certain American athletes and of Coach Robertson himself, who is supposed to be writing for an American syndicate. It also was said that Charley Paddock, who is writing a daily article for an American syndicate, might share Bill Tilden's experience.

Gen. MacArthur, president of the American Olympic committee, refused to discuss the matter when queried, other than to say he thought Paddock's case was settled once and for all on the eve of sailing from New York.

Young Mr. Walsh Serves Babe 39th Homer; Yanks Win, 2-0

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—Little Moose Walsh had his first encounter with the great Bambino this afternoon. It was the old, old story. The Babe broke up a wonderful game with a homer. But you've got to hand it to the kid. He turned in a remarkable performance.

The score was Yanks, 2; Sox, 0. The World's champions didn't make a hit off young Ed until the sixth inning and it was forthwith cancelled by a double play.

Ruth was first up in the seventh. Previously he had twice been Hunnefield's victim. He caught one of the kid's swift ones for his 39th homer of the year. Gehrig followed with the third Yankee hit, a single, but was forced by Meusel. Little Moose was upset. He grooved one for Joe Dugan. Joe singled and Meusel pulled up at third.

Castles were tumbling fast. Dugan started for second and young Ed made a boyish balk. Meusel was waved home from third. That was all the day's scoring.

It was the misfortune of our Mr. Walsh to be pitted against George Pipgras, the young gent who is leading both leagues in games won with a juicy total of 17.

The Sox made a total of four hits. The first two of these were singles by Metzler in the second and seventh. The third was a single by Crouse in the eighth and the fourth was a triple by Mostil with two down in the ninth. Incidentally Mostil was the only Chicagoan to reach third and he did it twice.

It would have been nice if the Sox had done much more hitting, of course. And there was reason to believe they could, even with Pipgras in there. In seven games previous to today's the Comiskey's had not failed to get at least 11 and had gone as high as 15. This is perhaps poor consolation for the many, many Walsh's who had come here from all directions to see Eddie conquer these terrible New York persons.

The New York crowd paid a fine tribute to the son of the big Moose at every opportunity. Every time he started an inning he got a tremendous ovation and even his appearances at bat brought hearty rounds of applause. When he gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and left the field through the Yankee dugout the folks opened it up again.

That 39th homer of the Babe's put him 28 days and 9 homers ahead of his record. It was within a few feet of the spot where he dropped his game wrecking homer off Lyons in the opener of the current series and in the same vicinity of the pair he got off Thomas to win the second game of the series.

SWISS CAPTURES WORLD'S PISTOL SHOOTING TITLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, July 21.—The world congress of the International Shooting union at The Hague, attended by representatives of fifteen countries, including the United States, resolved to hold international shooting matches in 1929 in Stockholm and in 1932 in Los Angeles.

The world championship for pistol shooting was won today by Dr. Schnyder of Switzerland.

MAGUIRE AND STEPHENSON WIN FIRST GAME IN FIFTEENTH INNING

Hartnett Breaks Up Second Contest in Tenth.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The enmity that has sent the Cubs and Giants down through the seasons as uncommon foes seems to gather fire as time moves along.

That age-old bitterness, started by men long since departed from baseball's scenes of action, flared up furiously yesterday at Wrigley field. It flared through twenty-five sensational, gripping rounds of fighting and when the final hit had boomed forth in the gathering dusk to mark finis for the day, the haughty, ambitious Giants were groping about in fourth place under the sting of a double defeat. The first was by 2 to 1; the second by 5 to 4.

And with the twin triumph for McCarthy's charges came the second notch in the gruelling pennant grind, only four games behind the pacemaking Cardinals.

Stevie's Hit Wins Opener.

In a struggle that had all the hat tossing thrills and drama of something vastly more important than a mere season's engagement, the first game went fifteen rounds before Riggs Stephenson, the "Old Hoss" of Alabama, could cap the climax by breaking through the Giant defense with a single while a mate was waiting on third.

And as if to prove their stock of sensations was not exhausted, the two old foes battled and seesawed through the second game until the ninth. Then the Giants, getting a break in the luck, shoved home a run that for the moment seemed sufficient to bring about a reciprocal arrangement on the day's toil.

But the Cubs weren't through. They took a setback in their half when a runner was picked off first with none out. They shook off the jolt and charged back into a tie when Molly Maguire delivered to send the tying run tumbling over the plate. And in the next round came irrepressible "Gabby" Hartnett. He tripled and that was all.

35,000 See Struggle.

Here are just a few things that induced some 35,000 spectators to sit deep into twilight unmindful of the evening meal.

1. Fred Fitzsimmons hurled the full fifteen rounds of the first battle and held the Cubs at bay until Stephenson crashed through with the decisive single.
2. Clyde Beck hit a homer in the sixth to give the Cubs their only tally prior to the fifteenth.
3. Art Nehf, foxy veteran who was pitching to prove his old employer McGraw erred in turning him loose, stemmed the Giant attack for thirteen innings, when he quit because he realized he was slowing down. The only run he allowed during that long siege, in which startling fielding at times was a big help, resulted from a bobble by English.
4. In the fifteenth the Cubs virtually broke the hearts of the Giants. Three of McGraw's men scattered over as many bases with none out and it seemed only a matter of how much of a margin they'd win by. But one man was forced at the plate and a double play followed after Percy Jones had been summoned to the relief of Guy Bush.
5. The Giants jumped in front by 4 to 3 in the ninth of the second game by scoring once because Jones, who had supplanted Blake at the start of the eighth, was late in making a throw to second on an attempted force play.
6. The Cubs tied it up in their ninth after two were out, because "Lefty" Faulkner, who had just come in to assist Joe Genewich, couldn't stop Maguire from doubling after English had drawn a pass.
7. And the Cubs won it in the tenth because Stephenson had singled before Hartnett tore forth with his triple. More of this chapter immediately below.

HOW THEY WON THE FIRST

The tenth found Bush back in action against the team he once regarded as easy meat. He showed some of that wizardry by fanning two of the four who faced him. One of the others walked. The fourth bounced to Maguire. Then the Cub half started dismally. Hack Wilson, in the throes of a terrible slump, fanned. Stephenson aimed a single into right and Grimm lined wickedly to left but Reese speared it. Then Hartnett rapped a long fly to left center. Reese and Mann dashed back into the corner where the bleacher leans against the brick wall. Mann leaped but the drive was a bit too high and it bounced back off the barrier. Stephenson dashed around to the plate with the deciding run and Hartnett kept going until he had reached third so that he might be credited with a triple.

Stevie's Bat Does It.

When Stephenson came up in the fifteenth round to produce what was needed to bring the first struggle to a close he had behind him some glaring examples of failures in the pinches, but not by himself. In six previous appearances he hadn't hit safely, but there never were any of his mates waiting on the sacks. This time he found Maguire on third.

The second sacker, whose fielding helped to make the struggle one in a hundred, had opened the inning with a single to left center. It was the first time since the sixth inning that one of McCarthy's leadoff men reached base safely.

After Maguire's single Cuyler laid down a perfect sacrifice. Wilson, up for the seventh time without a blow, nailed a screeching drive toward right center and Welsh got it only by backing against the screen barrier. Maguire moved to third after the catch. Then Stephenson stepped in. He took hold the one of Fitzsimmons' offerings and rammed it so wickedly through short that Jackson didn't move before the ball was past him. Maguire ran home and the show was over.

Giants Score on Error.

The lone run that the Giants could pick up in their fifteenth inings of attack against a trio of Cub hurlers went over in the third. Hogan opened with a soft boiled grounder to short and English booted it. Fitzsimmons flied out but Cohen arched a single into right field and Hogan lumbered to third. Welsh rapped a clean hit to right and Hogan scored. Nehf avoided further trouble in this round when Reese popped to Maguire and Lindstrom grounded to short for a force-out.

Fitzsimmons' hurling for a time was so dazzling that he passed the halfway mark before yielding as much as a hit. In five sessions the north siders had only one chance to make progress and this came in the shape of a pass to English with none out in the fourth but after Maguire had sacrificed neither Cuyler nor Wilson could come through. Then Beck with one swing not only broke Fitzsimmons' spell but put the Cubs back on an even footing. The silent man slammed the ball into the right field bleachers for a homer and from this point until Stephenson came through it was a battle for one run.

In the seventh a double by Grimm with one out gave the Cubs a chance but he was cut down at third. In the eighth, a double by English, walk and steal by Cuyler with two out put things up to Wilson. The luckless Hack fanned. English doubled again in the tenth, this time with one out. Maguire and Cuyler failed to shove the ball out of the infield. There were men on third and first as the result of hits by Grimm and Gonzales with two gone in the eleventh. Beck popped out at this opportunity. This was the last real opening the Cubs possessed until Maguire reached third in the decisive fifteenth.

Nehf in Continual Trouble.

In the fifth Nehf began the series of sensational escapes from his former mates. A single and pass marked the opening of this round. The next two batters popped out and Reese died swinging. Two passes in the sixth with one gone put him back into a jam, but Mann popped to Maguire and Terry rendered aid and comfort by foolishly running so far off second base that he was doubled on Maguire's throw to English.

The Giants' seventh was almost unique. The first three batters got to first, but none passed second. It started with a hit by Hogan, who died stealing. Fitzsimmons then walked and Cohen survived on a fumble by Maguire, but on the next batter Maguire started a lightning double play that cleaned up the situation.

The Giants thought they were going somewhere in the eighth when Reese opened with a hit, but Nehf was good enough to stop 'em. He stopped them in another pinch in the twelfth because O'Farrell overran third and he stopped them again in the thirteenth because Gonzales outsmarted the hostiles on an attempted double steal. But the two hits that made possible the attempt convinced Boss McCarthy that Nehf's ancient arm had lost its snap, so the veteran was excused.

Giants Fall in Fifteenth.

Bush set down the Giants with ease in the fourteenth and then came the stirring fifteenth in which three runners on bases with none out furnished the McGraw men nothing more than disappointment. A single by Cohen opened the inning. Welsh bunted and Beck, in his haste, booted the ball. Reese also bunted and the ball got past Bush for a single, loading the corners. Lindstrom bounced to Maguire, who whipped the ball to Gonzales, forcing Cohen at the plate.

Fearing the long range skill of Terry against right handed pitching, McCarthy summoned Jones for service but the Giants' master mind countered by letting Cummings, a right handed swatter, take Terry's bludgeon. So far as the Cubs were concerned McGraw made the ideal move. Cummings smacked a hard bounder close to third and it hopped squarely into the hands of Beck who was playing close to the bag. Beck shot the ball to Gonzales, forcing Welsh at the plate, and then Gonzales turned and threw to Grimm to nail the runner going to first. While the Giants were still staggering under the shock Maguire and Stephenson came along to complete the misery.

DETAILS OF SECOND GAME

The first few rounds of the second game provided proof that Blake was not exactly what he should be, but he managed to get away unscathed until the fourth, when the Giants scored once and lost another run because of Cuyler's rifle-like throw. Lindstrom blew open the inning with a two bagger over Stephenson's head. Terry slashed a single past Grimm and Lindstrom headed for the plate, but as his spikes reached out for the rubber Hartnett, after grabbing Cuyler's perfect peg, wheeled and planted the ball on the sliding athlete.

Jackson followed with a fly that Wilson caught backed up against the fence in dead center and Terry moved to second after the catch. Ott doubled to right, scoring Terry, and Hogan terminated the round with a grounder to Beck.

Against Genewich the Cubs were so meek that they came through with only one hit in four rounds. They made another in the fifth but a pair of passes and an error preceded it so two runs resulted. Stephenson drew the ticket to open the round and moved to third on two infield outs. Beck was passed more or less intentionally.

Jackson Makes Error.

Blake shoved a grounder at Jackson but the sterling shortstop let it seep through his paws, Stephenson scoring and Beck racing to third. English drove a double down the right field line and Beck tallied but Blake, although beating Ott's return throw, was out when he failed to touch the plate.

The Cubs' slim lead vanished in the sixth on two Giant runs that slipped home because of Blake's loss of control after two were out. The big speed baller walked both Terry and Jackson and Ott scored them with a two bagger to left center. Hogan was purposely walked so that Genewich could be promoted for the third out, which he was on a fly to right.

McCarthy's battlers restored themselves to a 3 to 3 footing by picking up a run in the seventh. With one out Beck drew a free passage. Heathcote stepped up to bat for Blake and popped out to Hogan in front of the plate. In the meantime Beck had stolen second. English then nicked the left center field wall with his fourth two bagger of the afternoon, Beck crossing the plate. The round closed when Reese dashed over to the stand in left and grasped Maguire's foul fly.

Giants Take Lead in Ninth.

The Giant run that at the time looked big enough to whip the Cubs without delay started when Jones, who had taken up the hurling in the previous round, gave a ticket to Hogan, who was promptly yanked so O'Doul could run for him. Genewich bunted and Jones took a desperate chance trying to force the runner going to second, but O'Doul beat the throw. Cohen shoved the two runners along with a sacrifice. Mann batted for Welsh and sent a long fly to right, O'Doul scoring and Genewich going to third after the catch. Reese bounced to English to end the inning.

Only a hit by Maguire was needed for the Cubs to bounce back into a tie in their half of the ninth. Beck led off with a pass, after which there came strategy. Webb was ushered up to bat for Jones, so McGraw pulled Genewich in favor of Faulkner, a southpaw. This prompted McCarthy to let Gonzales bat for Webb. Before Gonzales could ground out, Beck took too big a lead off first base and was nipped on a throw by O'Farrell.

English walked, but it seemed only a forlorn hope. Then Maguire pounded a rakish liner to right center, the ball sailed just a bit too high for Mann to pull down, and crashed against the fence for a double, English sprinting to the plate and making it safely only by leaping over the back of O'Farrell, who was crouched down while getting his hands on the throw in. Next was the tenth, as already related.

ATHLETICS WHIP BROWNS TWICE; SWEEP SERIES

Win Opener, 8-2, and Take Second, 7-3.

Philadelphia, Penn., July 21.—[Special.]—The quick stepping Athletics mopped up the Browns in both games of today's double header by scores of 8 to 2 and 7 to 3.

Today's twin killing gave the Athletics a clean sweep of the five game series and a ten game lead in the race for second place.

Johnny Ogden and Walter Beck were batted hard in the first game, Jimmy Foxx and Al Simmons hitting home runs at opportune times. Foxx's circuit drive cleared the roof of the left field stand and came down on a house in the opposite side of Lambert street. This is the first time in the history of Shibe park that a ball has cleared the roof of the left field stands.

Lefty Grove did not exert himself, coasting along with a commanding lead throughout the game.

Jack Quinn won his thirteenth contest of the year when he subdued the Browns in the closing game. The ten base hits collected by St. Louis were scattered by the 42 year old veteran, who was given sterling support by the Mackmen.

Left Stewart and Tony Streckell divided the pitching duties for the Browns, yielding twelve base hits. Joe Hauser and Jim Dykes hit home runs in the second game. Score:

PIRATES TROUNCE ROBINS IN TWIN BILL: 7 TO 3, 10-2

Errors Cost Brooklyn Both Games.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 21.—[Special.]—Pittsburgh cleaned up both ends of a double header with the Robins today, winning the first, 7-3, and the second, 10-2.

Lee Meadows, making his first appearance of the year, was effective, allowing three hits in the last five innings.

The Robins played poorly afield, being charged with four errors in each contest. Scott, Bartell, and Adams led the attack for the Pirates. Scores:

Hartnett's Throwing Arm Ranks Him King of Catchers

Irving Vaughan, baseball writer, has been watching major leaguers for many years. He has lauded the stars and criticized the dubs. He knows who has excelled in fielding, who has led in hitting and who have been invincible on the pitching mounds. Mr. Vaughan will utilize this experience in picking the ten greatest baseball players of the major leagues now playing. His first article tells of his choice for catcher and why. The other nine players will be named on successive Sundays in The Tribune.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Determining the greatest catcher operating in the majors today is merely a matter of finding the greatest throwing arm. Charles Leo [Gabby] Hartnett has that arm.

It's an arm that not only gives him a rating of the deadliest in the game but about the deadliest of all time. There probably have been better all-around catchers, but in modern baseball there certainly has been nothing to equal Hartnett's throwing. Prior to that, say the old timers, there was Buck Ewing.

In more recent times there have flashed across the screen wonderful throwers like Schalk, Kling, Bresnahan, Killefer, O'Farrell, and a few others, but none could boast the power with which Hartnett, if he actually cuts loose, can almost bowl over a fielder attempting to catch a throw at a distance of 100 feet. With this amazing power Gabby couples accuracy. The two make him a respected opponent.

Arm Once Broken.

And the skill of the dynamic Cub becomes a bit puzzling when it is realized that his now invaluable wing once was fractured. Strangely enough, the break occurred while he was tussling with another youth for possession of a baseball.

Catching is not exclusively a matter of successful throwing, but a strong and accurate arm is about the biggest single item in the handling of the position. The mere presence of such an arm as Hartnett's has a depressing effect on the opposition and at the same time is a comfort for the pitcher working under its protection.

Even in this day, when one run is not regarded as much, the opposition, by habit, will run on a catcher of even fair throwing ability. The fact that they run is a constant hazard to a pitcher. He must perform the double task of watching the man or men on bases while attempting to dispose of the batter.

BEST BEHIND PLATE

GABBY HARTNETT.

Is Capable Hitter.

A hurler paired up with Hartnett almost can ignore men on the bases. He knows by experience that runners are inclined to hug the bags when Hartnett is watching them. And if a steal is attempted the pitcher knows the average is against the runner beating Hartnett's throw, even though the throw may be started late. It is a matter of record that all the teams recognize the futility of running against Hartnett's arm. No other catcher in either major is held in this same esteem.

There are other tasks about catching, such as hitting, handling throws to the plate, scooting for foul flies, and being of assistance to a pitcher in a pinch. As a hitter Hartnett always is a menace because he drives a long ball. He has mastered the art of handling throws when runners are coming into the plate. And he has the "fire" that every manager craves in an athlete. His enthusiasm alone makes him one of the most colorful in the profession.

If you pass up "Gabby" as the greatest, you have about one other choice—Jim Wilson of the Cardinals.

[Next week—The ranking southpaw.]

Amateurs Box Tuesday for Olympic Fund

The final drive to make up the deficit of Chicago's quota of $50,000 for the Olympic fund will be made on Tuesday night when an amateur boxing show consisting of fifteen fights will be held at Wrigley field. Prices of admission will be $1 and $2.

JIMMY CHASE.

Chicago is behind in raising its quota for the fund to defray expenses of American athletes who are now in Amsterdam for the world's games. If followers of amateur sports hope to see successful athletic contests in Chicago during the world's fair of 1933, they should support the boxing show on Tuesday night.

Prominent local amateur boxers will appear. Among some of the bouts already arranged are Johnny Murphy and Eddie Burke, Walter Newton and Frank Hughes, Prince Saunders and Benny Goldblatz, Dan Palermo and Sammy Kukawak, Jimmy Chase and Eddie Morgan and Larry Levette and George Schaeffer.

AMERICA BEATS ITALY TO ENTER DAVIS CUP FINAL

Chance for Tilden

PARIS, July 21.—(AP)—Samuel H. Collom, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, has reserved the right to nominate Bill Tilden for the Davis cup challenge round despite the ineligibility ruling and has so advised New York officials, according to reliable sources.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, July 21.—America clinched the right to fight the challenge match with France next week for the Davis cup, easily defeating the Italian doubles team today, 6—3, 6—1, 6—4, for its third straight victory in the inter-zone finals. George Lott and Johnny Hennessey outclassed Sig. Gaslini and Baron H. L. De Morpurgo in all angles in today's doubles, but brilliant bits of spectacular playing kept the spectators interested.

The French Tennis federation anxiously is awaiting a reply to its cable appealing to the United States authorities to permit Tilden to play again against the champions next week in order to bolster the gate receipts, but American officials expressed pessimism over the possibility of a revision of Big Bill's disqualification, especially in view of the brilliant showing of the younger members of the team against Italy.

Lott and Hennessey played wonderfully together, the former holding a slight edge, partly because of his swifter service, but Gaslini was the weak sister of the Fascist combination and apparently discouraged the mighty baron, who made several glaring errors and tired perceptibly toward the end.

The Americans surprised and electrified students of the game by playing the new French style perfected by Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet, returning everything offered them and lobbing back the terrific smashes which the Italians always gave until finally De Morpurgo or Gaslini faulted into the net.

Fish Hog Is Sport's Bane, Becker Says

BY BOB BECKER.

"Down with the fish hog and up with good sportsmanship," is the cry these days when hundreds of Izaak Walton league chapters and scores of other outdoorsmen's organizations are working to increase our fish, game and forest resources. There isn't any doubt but what sportsmanship is on a higher plane today than it was ten or twenty years ago, but we still have some distance to go before the "fish hog" is left by the way and the millions who use the outdoor vacation places apply more appreciation and less abuse to our playgrounds.

Just about once a year it's a good thing for every fisherman to sit back in his boat and read over again the fisherman's code.

Here is part of it, telling what the true fisherman believes and does:

First, he holds that a good fisherman not only can catch fish but is one who rigidly conserves angling as a sport.

Second, he realizes that fish must have homes in which to live. Therefore, he sees to it that good forests and waters are kept available for abundant fish life.

Third, he loathes the human fish hog who ruthlessly wastes and destroys, and he vigilantly brings to bay these robbers of our fish.

Fourth, he obeys the fish laws not out of fear but because he understands that they are absolutely necessary for the preservation of the fishing sport—for himself, his associates and posterity.

LANGFORD AND CROWDUS WIN IN MIDCITY GOLF

45 Foot Putt Helps to Decide Match.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Walter Crowdus of Olympia Fields and William Langford of Glen Oak won the annual best ball team championship at Mid City yesterday. They defeated Arthur B. Sweet and Rial Rolfe, Ridgemoor's team of sharpshooters one up in an 18 hole final that was a mixture of 10-20-30 melodrama and Leon Errol.

Sweet and Rolfe were outdriving the winners thirty to sixty yards off every tee, but Crowdus' putting and Langford's chip shots from just short of the green decided the match. It was Crowdus' 45 foot putt for a two over a green with a dozen rolls in it on the twelfth hole that put his team two up when they seemed slipping that helped to decide the match.

But it was a shot on the eighteenth by Langford that would have cheered the heart of any son of Eli (Langford was a member of the Yale golf team in 1909 and 1910) that pulled the match out of the fire.

Stops 18 Inches from Cup.

Sweet and Rolfe were both on the far edge of the green in two and Crowdus in a trap at the left. A trap with a steep back rising to a ridge at the edge of the green loomed in front of Langford and the pin was at the foot of a steep slope on the other side, barely fifteen feet from the far edge of the trap. To catch the right roll and get near the pin his ball had to drop on a spot not more than two feet in diameter. His niblic, an ancient club he calls a "round bottom scoop," lifted the ball to exactly that spot and it stopped not eighteen inches from the cup.

The comedy came both from the golf and the byplay. Some of the dizzy putts that spun around like the roller coaster in the amusement park at one side of the golf course helped. Crowdus hit one from eight feet that looped the loop before it dropped to win the second and another on the third. Two holes later Langford hit a chip sixty feet from the pin that rolled completely around the edge of the cup before it fell in. And later Crowdus dropped another that bounced in and out and in again.

Winners Get Quick Start.

Another scene from Punch was the fourteenth fairway when Rolfe hit a 275 yard drive and, after the other three had played, couldn't find his ball. Rolfe inspected at least six or eight balls before he found his own, and though Rial and his partner were two down, the gallery was six or eight up—in balls.

The winners got away to a quick start, going three up in four holes. Rolfe missed a two foot putt for a win on the first and Crowdus won the second. Langford poked his ball to three feet of the pin and sank the putt to win the short third. And then sank a sixty foot chip for a birdie to win the fourth.

They halved the next two but the seventh went to Sweet and Rolfe in par. The eighth was halved in par threes. Both Sweet and Rolfe were on the green on the 470 yard ninth with two perfect wood shots each and Sweet won the hole with a birdie four.

Sinks Midiron Shot Putt.

Starting home with Crowdus and Langford one up, they halved two holes and Crowdus sank his "midiron shot putt" to win the twelfth. They halved three, Langford knocking up another of his chips to 18 inches for a half on the fourteenth. Rolfe took the 415 yard sixteenth, sinking a fifteen foot putt for a three.

The seventeenth was halved and then came the final hole and Langford's great recovery when the hole seemed lost and the match squared. Cards:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT.

SEMI-FINALS—Walter Crowdus, Olympia Fields, and William Langford, Glen Oak, defeated Gus Fetz, Columbus park, and George Pierce, Mid City, 1 up; Arthur B. Sweet, Ridgemoor, and Rial Rolfe, Ridgemoor, defeated E. A. Pederson, Mid City, and J. C. Gertenrich, Mid City, 6 and 4.

Final—Crowdus and Langford defeated Sweet and Rolfe, 1 up.

SECOND FLIGHT.

Joshua D'Esposito, Illinois juniors, and F. R. Sextro, Mid City, defeated Walter Klein, Evergreen, and Ralph Ong, Evergreen, 2 and 1; E. A. Bowker, Jackson Park, and E. E. Noell, Jackson Park, defeated W. Jurezak, Columbus Park, and C. Grosse, Mid City, 6 and 4.

Final—Bowker and Noell defeated D'Esposito and Sextro, 2 up.

Thompson's 58 Sets Mark in County Golf

Tommy Thompson became a three time winner of the Cook county open golf championship yesterday by shooting his home course at Garfield park in amazingly low figures. He played the eighteen hole semi-final round in 29—29—58, six under par and a competitive course record, and was almost as hot in the thirty-six hole final later in the day. Thompson also won the title in 1919 and 1920.

Although Garfield is a notoriously short course and flat as the proverbial pancake, Thompson's low scoring nevertheless stacks up well against the 32—32—64 par for the nine hole course. He was only four over even threes for the morning round, having seven birdies and no five holes, but had to go to the final green with young Bob Crowe to win. Crowe shot 28—31—59.

In the final, Thompson, who was medalist in the qualifying round Thursday with 32—31—63, defeated Albert Anderreggen, 16 year old Jackson park player, 3 and 2. Anderreggen defeated Anthony Maulella, 2 and 1, in the semi-finals. Against Anderreggen, Thompson shot rounds of 32—34—34 and had 24 for the seven holes of the fourth nine. He was five up at the first nine, but slumped until only one up at the twenty-seventh. Anderreggen shot rounds of 37—31—33.

RAIN FAILS TO HALT GOLFERS

C. W. SHERMAN won the Fellowship III. cup at Glen View yesterday, defeating L. C. Fuller, 2 and 1, in an eighteen hole final. At the same time the qualifying round for the "Old Hickory" tourney was held. The qualifiers and the pairings for the first round of match play this week follow: Dr. F. P. Horan, 83—9—74, vs. Kenneth H. Burns, 77—2—75; E. P. Cobb, 81—6—75, vs. E. M. Barnhart, 77—5—72; J. H. Mulliken, 86—14—72, vs. Dr. V. C. David, 91—13—78, and C. F. Yegge, 81—4—77, vs. D. A. EVANS, WITH 221, WINS GLEN FLORA 54 HOLE PRIZE

Shooting consistent rounds of 75—73—73 for a total of 221 for 54 holes, Chick Evans of Edgewater won the major trophy in the second annual Wau-Ke-Wau-Gan tournament, the final 36 holes of which were played yesterday at Glen Flora.

John Dawson of Glen Oak about two hours earlier, had finished with 76—75—71—222, his 71 being the best individual round in the tournament, and made over a course which had been rendered slow by heavy showers both days.

When it came to awarding the prize for the most birdies, it was found Dawson had nine and Evans six, but as prizes were limited one to a player, aside from foursome prizes, Judge Claire Edwards and John E. Burnham of the home club were tied at 3 each. Whether they will draw or play off was still a matter of doubt when the lights were turned out.

Ray Preganzer of Chain O' Lakes took the low net award at 54 holes with 274—60—214, F. G. Smith of the home club being third with 305—90—215.

The prize winners follow:

LOW GROSS, FRIDAY [18 holes]—C. S. Williams, Bob o' Link, 75.

LOW NET, FRIDAY [18 holes]—R. W. Connor, Wisconsin Dells, 77—5—72.

LOW GROSS [foursome Friday]—C. S. Williams, Bob o' Link; J. Burnham, Glen Flora; W. D. Poehlman, South Shore, and J. N. Heath, South Shore, 328.

LOW NET [foursome Friday]—F. P. Whitney, C. R. Whitney, F. G. Smith, C. Ingalls, all of Glen Flora, 306.

LOW GROSS [Saturday morning]—B. M. Sommers, Calumet, 78.

LOW NET [Saturday morning]—Lem Hook, Round Lake, 86—14—72.

LOW GROSS [Saturday afternoon]—A. L. Miller, Glen Flora, 76.

LOW NET [Saturday afternoon]—W. V. Crowley, Bob o' Link, 76—10—66.

54 HOLES, LOW GROSS—Chick Evans, Edgewater, 75—73—73—221.

54 HOLES, LOW NET—R. Preganzer, Chain o' Lakes, 274—60—214.

36 HOLES, LOW GROSS [Saturday]—John Dawson, Glen Oak, 75—71—146.

36 HOLES, LOW NET [Saturday]—C. S. Cawthorne, Glen Flora, 195—52—143.

LOW GROSS FOURSOME, 54 holes—A. A. Alford, A. L. Miller and C. C. Edwards, Glen Flora, and Chick Evans, Edgewater, 975.

LOW NET FOURSOME, 54 holes—G. Hook, Libertyville; E. Hook, Round Lake; C. Buffington, Glen Flora, J. B. Fields, Glen Flora, 1,013.

LOW GROSS FOURSOME [36 holes, Saturday]—R. W. Connor, Wisconsin Dells; M. Moreley, Fox Lake; J. Cox, Glen Flora; J. Dawson, Glen Oak, 676.

LOW NET FOURSOME [36 holes, Saturday]—B. E. Safford, William Rees, T. M. Bradford, C. S. Cawthorne, all Glen Flora, 604.

MOST BIRDIES, 54 holes—Judge C. C. Edwards and J. Burnham, both Glen Flora, tied at 3 each.

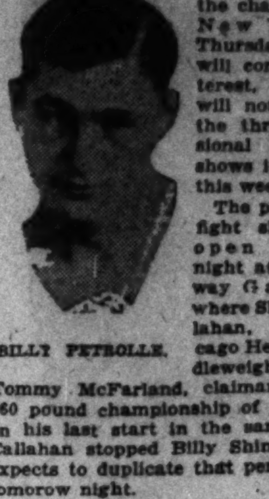
CALLAHAN FIGHTS McFARLAND HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.



BILLY PETROLLE.

Although the heavyweight championship fight between Gene Tunney, the title holder, and Tom Heeney, the challenger, in New York on Thursday night will command interest, local fans will not overlook the three professional boxing shows in the city this week.

The program of fight shows will open tomorrow night at the Midway Gardens, where Shuffle Callahan, the Chicago Heights middleweight, meets Tommy McFarland, claimant of the 160 pound championship of Michigan. In his last start in the same arena, Callahan stopped Billy Shine and he expects to duplicate that performance tomorrow night.

Louie La Velle, the hard hitting welterweight from Anderson, Ind., and Tony Sanders of Chicago will be the principals in the eight round semi-windup.

Roy Williams, the California colored middleweight, and Johnny Mason of Kansas City will be the principals in the windup of Promoter Clarence McFarland's show at the American Giants baseball park on Wednesday night.

On Thursday night Promoter Mullen will stage one of the best shows of the outdoor season at the Mills stadium. Jack Berg, the English lightweight, will meet Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N. D., in the main event. They will box ten rounds to a decision and weigh 135 pounds.

Plaines, Squares Play Mills Today in Double Header

City League Games

Plaines at Mills stadium.
Squares at Mills stadium.
Hammond at Duffy park.
Firemen at Aurora [2].

The Mills, leaders in the city semi-pro baseball league, face their hardest assignment of the season today when they oppose the Belle Plaines and Logan Squares in a double header at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue. The Plaines will furnish the opposition in the initial portion of the twin bill, while the Squares will perform in the nightcap.

Duffy Florals and the Hammond La Vendors will play the rubber game of their series at 61st street and Normal avenue.

The T. J. Bowlers will meet the Hoellens at Logan Square park in a double header starting at 1:30.

Twenty-five games are scheduled for decision in the Midwest league with a double header between the Quinlan Hawks and the Chicago Giants as the headline attraction. The Midwest league schedule:

T. J. Bowlers vs. Hoellens at Logan Square park, two games: 1:30.
Waukegan vs. Elmore's All Chicagos at St. Rita field.
T. H. Crowes vs. Proviso at Bellwood.

Dahlberg Boosters vs. Ald. Nusser Boosters at St. Louis and Division.

a Successful Six now winning Even Greater Success

Women Delight in its marvelous handling ease

Offering smartness and distinction never before attained in any low-priced six, the Pontiac Six is a car which invariably wins feminine admiration. And that admiration turns to sheer delight when they leave the back seat and drive the car themselves.

They know the Pontiac Six is a dependable car. And they quickly discover an ease of handling that makes every mile a pleasure. The powerful four-wheel brakes answer the lightest touch. The big motor is smooth, quiet and responsive. The clutch and transmission are exceptionally easy acting. And the seats are pitched at that comfortable angle characteristic of bodies by Fisher.

Every day you see more and more women at the wheels of Pontiac Sixes—because Pontiac provides, at a price within reach of almost every purse, everything that women demand in a motor car of their own.

GAFFSMAN WINS $15,000 STAKE AT CRETE OVAL

Toro Is Second Despite Poor Ride.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The crowd began to shout, "Here comes Toro," at Lincoln Fields yesterday as eight mud running handicap stars rounded the lower bend and started a gruelling stretch struggle in the $15,000 Marquette handicap.

But they yelled too soon. Toro was coming with one of his old time rushes, but Gaffsman, famous Canadian mud splasher, was also hitting it up at a terrific pace and hugging the rail and he was leading the field.

Despite Toro's efforts, Gaffsman was still leading as they splashed past the finish line. He was leading Toro by a length. Stout hearted Chicago was third.

But it wasn't Toro's fault that he was defeated. He should have won this race just as easily as he won the American Derby, the Latonio Derby and the Lincoln handicap. That run down the stretch should have brought him victory.

Toro Was the Best Horse.

Toro was the best horse by many pounds. He was ready and anxious to run as he indicated when he broke from the barrier with the leaders. It was the doltish ride he got from old Eddie Ambrose, supposed to be the smartest boy here, that made Toro finish behind Gaffsman.

The stake was decided over a track deep in mud and with rain threatening, but it was witnessed by a crowd of about 12,000. This crowd had made Toro the even money favorite in the betting.

Gaffsman was ridden by Jockey L. Pichon and after Canaan had cut out the early pace the Canadian 5 year old, a son of Jim Gaffney, started moving up on the turn into the stretch. He finally made Canaan quit, made him quit so badly that he dropped far back and wound up next to last.

As Canaan quit Pichon brought Gaffsman down on the inside next to the rail, took the lead, and was out in front from there until the finish.

It had been a rough journey for Toro. Soon after he had got away to his fine start Ambrose took him up. Going down the back stretch, he pulled him back so strongly that he was running next to last, with the rear guard.

As they neared the lower bend Toro rallied. And, as he rallied, Old Ambrose, now with his face and eyes splattered with mud, drove the three year old right into a pocket behind Canaan, Gaffsman, and Broadside.

Toro would have gone through on his own courage, but Ambrose was too timid for that kind of a move. He pulled Toro up again, and as he routed him via the overland trail Toro lost from six to ten lengths.

Ambrose Was No Help.

Despite all these handicaps, Toro came again far out in the center of the track, losing many more lengths as he turned into the home stretch. And by his own gameness, with no help from Ambrose, the son of The Porter worked his way into second place, and they still had a sixteenth of a mile to go.

A little lift from Ambrose and this late start might have turned defeat into victory. But Ambrose and Toro were now covered with mud. It is doubtful if the jockey could see.

Gaffsman raced in the silks of the Seagram stable of Montreal. He ran the mile and a sixteenth in the heavy going in 1:50 3-5, and in the mutuels he paid $10.70 to win. He was at $3.84 to place and $2.70 to show. Toro's place price was $3.22 and he paid $2.48 for show; while Chicago, on the slim end, paid $3.24.

All the early leaders except Gaffsman and Chicago had dropped far back. After running a good race, Senator Camden's Rothermel drifted back and back and back, until she wound up last, beaten by something like twenty lengths.

The extremely difficult track conditions caused the overnight field of eighteen horses to be reduced to eight starters.

DANGEROUS WINS AT N. Y.

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Challenging in the stretch and running down the middle with increasing power in every jump, Dangerous, from the Rosedale stable, captured the Yonkers handicap at Empire City this afternoon. It was a great finish for the horse that was outrun for three-quarters of the race and which had not won since shortly after the opening of the Belmont meeting.

A length behind was Dolan, winner of the Suburban, and this black colt also came with a rush after the last turn to get the place after being well backed in the early going. A. C. Schwartz's Sortie, which had its last out in the Kentucky Derby, was third and behind these three came the favorite, Ironsides, by Man o' War, Sepoy, Light Carbine and Juggler.

The victory of Dangerous was hardly a surprise as this Negofol gelding likes the mud and was at home in the heavy going today, but few looked for Ironsides to be out of the money.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

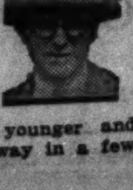
The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Marguerite Fay, 2315 S. 62d avenue, Cicero, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Who would you like to see win the Tunney-Heeney heavyweight championship bout?

The Answers.

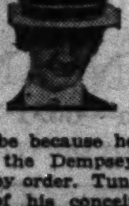
Rowland R. Hitchins, 55 East Wacker drive, Pullman conductor — I'd like to have Heeney win because he is a bloody, bloomin', or whatever their cockney expression is, Britisher. It is the first time in years that a Britain has had a chance in that game. You see, we don't have to worry about heavyweight champions. They grow here. But if Heeney wins it will stir up a lot of international excitement.



Charles Fay, Hotel Alexandria, designer—I'd like to see Tunney win. He is an American, to begin with. He is the highest type of sportsman that we have had in American athletics. I'd like to see him hold the title for a long time, but some man younger and stronger will take it away in a few years.

W. C. Norris Jr., 549 Fullerton avenue, advertising salesman — Tunney, of course. Many are down on Tunney because he has a little education and can appreciate Shakespeare. I can't see that this makes him less a fighter. I believe he will win because he is a fast and clever boxer, which form of prize fighting is taking the place of the old knockout method that Dempsey found was obsolete.

W. W. Kemp, 1725 Wilson avenue, salesman—Gene Tunney. He leads a clean, wholesome life, and is always in shape physically to defend his title. As a scientific boxer he probably hasn't an equal today. Heeney will discover this Thursday night.



William L. Zika, 5325 West 24th place, Cicero, salesman —I'd like to see Heeney win. Right or wrong, I feel that Tunney is too much of a candy kid to be a typically representative American fighter. And if Heeney wins, and I believe he will, it will be because he is a fighter more on the Dempsey order than on the Tunney order. Tunney could lose some of his conceit and it wouldn't do him any harm.

Volstead Wins 2:13 Trot in Circuit Races

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 21.—(AP)—Two favorites were set back in the final program of the Kalamazoo Grand Circuit harness racing meet. The first upset came in the 2:13 trot, when Volstead defeated a field of twelve in straight heats. The favorite, Freddie Capp, driven by Lon McDonald, was badly beaten.

In the 2:13 pace Capt. Grattan, by Grattan Royal, was a victor over Leo Grattan Jr. and five others. Queen Patch took second money by winning the third heat.

Doane, driven by Becker, won the $3,000 stake for 2:06 trotters after Kahla Dillon took the first heat. The track was generally fast, despite recent heavy rains. Summaries:

POLO SERIES IS PLANNED AS PART OF RODEO SHOW

Six of the best polo teams in the Chicago district will meet in a series of games at the annual rodeo starting at Soldiers' field next Saturday, it was announced by Frank Bering, chairman of the polo committee of the Chicago Rodeo association, yesterday. This is the first time that polo has been introduced into the world's championship cowboy contests and it is expected to prove as dangerously thrilling as the other events.

"The spectators at the rodeo will have the opportunity to see some of Chicago's best polo players in action," said Mr. Bering. "We believe these games will also go a long way in popularizing the game."

ONWENTSIA HUNT HORSE SHOW WON BY GRAY PARSON

Gray Miss Places Second and Pippennis Third.

Capt. W. Dirk Vaningen's Gray Parson, which took several prizes at the Fort Sheridan show a week ago, yesterday won the Onwentsia Hunt championship in the final big event of the Lake Forest horse show.

Miss Bessie Chapin's Gray Miss was second, William McCormick Blair's Pippennis third and Our Boy, belonging to Mrs. Seymour Wheeler, was fourth. The event was open only to members of the Onwentsia Hunt.

Despite a heavy downpour at noon, most of the boxes and unreserved seats were filled and a total of nearly $5,000 for the two days was raised for the benefit of the Lake Forest Hospital association.

John Andrews King provided the day's thrill when his mount Custard put on a one horse rodeo in the ring and made a dozen unsuccessful attempts to throw his rider. Summaries:

LIGHT WEIGHT HUNTERS—Fads, Twin Elms Farm, first; Happy Boy, Mrs. Joseph D. Patton, second; Great Scott, John Hartnett, third; Rola Reed, Chester D. Baird, fourth.

JUNIOR HUNTERS' JUMPING CLASS—My Delight, Theodora Winters, first; Joffre, Gwendolyn Bowen, second; Buck, B. L. Behr, third.

HANDY HUNTERS—Grey Miss, Betty Chapin, first; Gray Parson, Capt. W. Dirk Vaningen, second; Rola Reed, Chester D. Baird, third; Star, Pabst Farms, fourth.

TEAMS OF THREE HUNTERS—William McCormick Blair, first; Wayte A Whyle Farms, second; Col. Noble Brandon Judah, third.

CHILDREN'S SADDLE HORSES—Joffre, Gwendolyn Bowen, first; Cream Puff, B. L. Behr, second; Grey Miss, Coolidge Chapin, third; Griddle Cake, Bowen Blair, fourth.

CORINTHIAN CLASS [open to horses that have hunted eight times, with a recognized pack during the season of 1926 or 1927]—Long Green, Wayte A While Farms, first; Happy Boy, Mrs. Joseph D. Patton, second; Gray Parson, Capt. W. Dirk Vaningen, third; Fads, Twin Elms Farm, fourth.

PAIRS OF HUNTERS OR JUMPERS—Mrs. Joseph D. Patton, first; Joseph T. Bowen Jr., second; Capt. W. Dirk Vaningen, third; William McCormick Blair, fourth.

SHOW FAMILY AFFAIR

BY MILDRED JAKLON.

The addition of the business men to the audience at the Lake Forest horse show yesterday afternoon, which also included many of the women and their youngsters who had attended the opening Friday, made a completely family event of the session.

Among the most interesting of the attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull, who returned this week from a sojourn abroad. Mrs. Insull looked Parisianally smart in a black silkish coat embroidered in a puffy white silk floral pattern and a close fitting hat of round black and white lacquered quills.

Many Other Notables.

Mrs. Laurence H. Armour, who had in tow her small son in yellow breeches and white frilly shirt, wore a two piece sports outfit of pink and a pink felt chapeau. Others present included Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne (Mary Waller), Mrs. Edward F. Swift, John Borden, Mrs. T. Clifford Rodman and her sister, Mrs. Russell Kelley; Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, who was accompanied by her son; Mrs. Alfred H. Granger, Mrs. William E. Clow, Miss Martha Sarver, Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. W. Scott Linn, who wore a lavendar knitted suit with a deeper purple hat; Miss Marion Clow, Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., with her guest, Miss Alice Coonley, daughter of the Prentiss L. Coonleys of New York and Great Barrington, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. E. Harris Brewer, the William H. Mitchells, Miss Bluford and Miss Frances Richardson, Ralph Hines, Miss Jane Scriven and her fiancé, John Finlay; Lieut. and Mrs. Mitchell Giddens, Mrs. Henry Bowley, Mrs. Lawrence Williams, Mrs. Corson Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter and their children, Mrs. Roy Keehn, whose little son and daughter wore coats of the same French blue flannel as their mother's; Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. Boyd Hill, Mrs. Joseph M. Beuttas, Mrs. John Coleman, Miss Mary and Miss Helen Rend, the James Minottos and their offspring, and Robert McCormick Adams.

The riders and ring officials included some of the younger people who have been prominent in ring activities this year: Gwenny Bowen, Coolidge Chapin and his sister, Miss Betty Chapin, who performs efficiently on her Grey Miss; Bowen and Edward Blair, the William McCormick Blairs' sons; Jean Schweppe, J. Andrews King Jr., Nancy Poole, Eleanor Wheeler, and Theodore Winters. Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson were officiating in the ring, with Austin H. Niblack.

Nickname Lena Has Its Drawbacks, Sox Boss Finds

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—A lot of gals named Lena have been writing and wiring us to inquire if Manager Lena Blackburne of the White Sox got the monicker as a result of a pretty romance or if it was given him by parents who were expecting a daughter. This is a worthy question, so we hasten to announce Lena is not Lena Blackburne's real name even if everybody does call him Lena except Mrs. Blackburne, who still addresses him as Russell.

Lena has been called Lena since 1908 when he was playing ball with Worcester in the New England league. Jess Burkett, then manager of Blackburne's team, addressed the present Sox manager variously as Lean, Slivvers and Slats. On the team was Cora Donvan, and an enemy fan heard the Lean and mistook it for Lena.

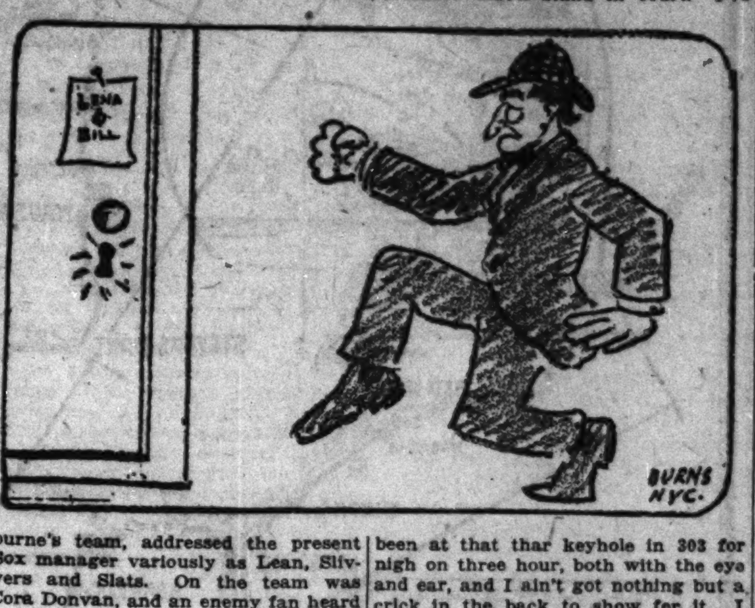
This was a good start on propaganda bearing on the erroneous and unfriendly claim that the Worcester club was something like the Bloomer girls baseball nine, well known at any time. Anyhow, the Lena stuck, though the origin has been forgotten for at least a decade.

It is the custom of Connecticut Lou Barbour, the White Sox traveling secretary, to make reservation for the ball club days in advance of the club's arrival. Hotel room clerks fill out the register with the rooming list. All the ball player has to do is go to the desk, look at the register, ask for the indicated key and go to the room. This custom was followed in a Texas city where the Sox played. Some three hours later the manager was seen in the lobby talking with an individual wearing gum shoes with his other raiment which, we are forced to admit, did not include a derby hat, but this was in Texas.

"Remember, I wanted to work this case out by myself," said the house detective, "but I ain't got conclusive evidence that'll stand in court. I've been at that thar keyhole in 303 for nigh on three hour, both with the eye and ear, and I ain't got nothing but a crick in the back to show fer it. I think I'd better break down the damned door and show them high fliers from Chicago this ain't no den o' sin."

The manager seemed nonplussed and he said to the house detective, "What on earth are you talking about, my good fellow?"

"Ain't you seen the register?" the house detective shouted. Then he led the manager over to the desk and there they read the entry—Lena Blackburn and Bill Cissell, Room 303.



GERMAN MAKES NEW RECORD IN MARATHON RUN

DUSSELDORF, Germany, July 21.—(AP)—Paul Gerhard of Siegen has established a new German record for marathon running by covering a distance of 42.214 kilometers (slightly more than the marathon distance of 26 miles 385 yards) in 2 hours 33 minutes 41 2-10 seconds. The Olympic record for the marathon was set at 2:32:35 4-5 by Hannes Kolehmainen, the great Finn, in the 1920 games at Antwerp.

Two Yachts Near Spain in Race Across Atlantic

SANTANDER, Spain, July 21.—(AP)—The sailing yachts Atlantic and Elena, two of the five craft that left New York harbor July 8, in the second division of a 3,055 mile race across the Atlantic ocean to Santander, today seemed to have equal prospects of victory.

In the same division with the Elena and the Atlantic, winner of the 1925 trans-Atlantic race, are the Azara, Zodiac, and Guinevere.

ARDELLE WINS 12 MILE RACE FOR 'R' CLASS YACHTS

Orn Leads Eagle Class by Two Hours.

Clark Wright's Ardelle, with a two minute lead, won the first race in the second series for "R" class boats at the Chicago Yacht club yesterday. An uncertain, variable wind, which at times fell off until the boats were rolling in a near calm, made the time the slowest of the year over the twelve nautical mile course.

Ardelle negotiated the distance, twice around a six mile triangle, in 3:58:34, two minutes and fifteen seconds ahead of Faurot and Spencer's Fantome, which finished in 4:00:49. Samuel Dauchy's Nancy was third and Dr. Hollis Potter's Calypso fourth.

Starting fifteen minutes later, the members of the Eagle class encountered more difficulties with the weather. Dr. Davis' Orn finished with the last of the "R" boats in 4:22:23, but Bob Haynie's Falcon, the second Eagle to finish, was two hours behind Orn, after being caught in the calm. Falcon finished in 6:02:17 and Dr. Metz' Altair in 6:16:57.

Davis Kales' Minnow, sailing in the "pup" class, tied the Chicago Yacht club's first "pup" class series by taking a twenty-three second lead over Bert Williams' Riri. Minnow's victory puts it in a tie with Riri in the point standings for the six races held this season. In order to determine the series winner, the two boats will sail a match race later in the season.

POLO FOURS PLAY IN ROUND ROBIN TOURNEY TODAY

Three polo teams will clash in a round robin series at Leona Farms today for the L. M. Stein trophy. The teams are the Leona Farms Blues, the Freebooters, and the Wanderers.

The Blues have been strengthened by the addition of Bob Bullock, one of the highest handicap men in Chicago, while the Freebooters have added John Smith and Frank Bering to their lineup. The Wanderers will retain their old lineup, but have acquired some new thoroughbred mounts.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

'ROUND THE LAKE TOURS ENTICING MANY MOTORISTS

Numerous Such Jaunts at Driver's Disposal.

Around the lake tours are more popular than ever this year with the army of autoists who load their families into their cars and spend their vacations on cross country jaunts, and automobile clubs and tourist agencies report that they are receiving many more requests than usual for such routings.

Circle tours, presumably because they bring you back to your starting point over new roads and through different country and scenes, have long been recognized as the ideal trip for the man who likes to spend his spare time at the wheel of his car on the open road, and in the great lakes and the fine roads that skirt them the motorist of the middle west has numerous such trips at his disposal.

Through Historic Country.

Starting from any point near the shores of the lakes, he can select a tour according to the time he has at his disposal, follow roads that at times take him along the very water's edge and at others through wonderful scenic country, rich in history, and eventually come home from the opposite direction.

For the motorist living near Lake Michigan there are three 'round the lake tours which are proving popular, according to the tourist agencies.

The first is a 1,200 mile jaunt around Lake Michigan itself—an easy five day drive with plenty of time for swimming, fishing, and boating on the trip. Starting from Chicago, the trip takes you around the southern end of Lake Michigan, up the Michigan side to the Straits of Mackinac, and back home through Michigan and Wisconsin down the western shore of the lake.

Nearly All Concrete.

The road is concrete from Chicago to just a few miles south of Mackinaw City and good gravel from there to a point 25 miles east of Manistique, where you pick up concrete into Chicago.

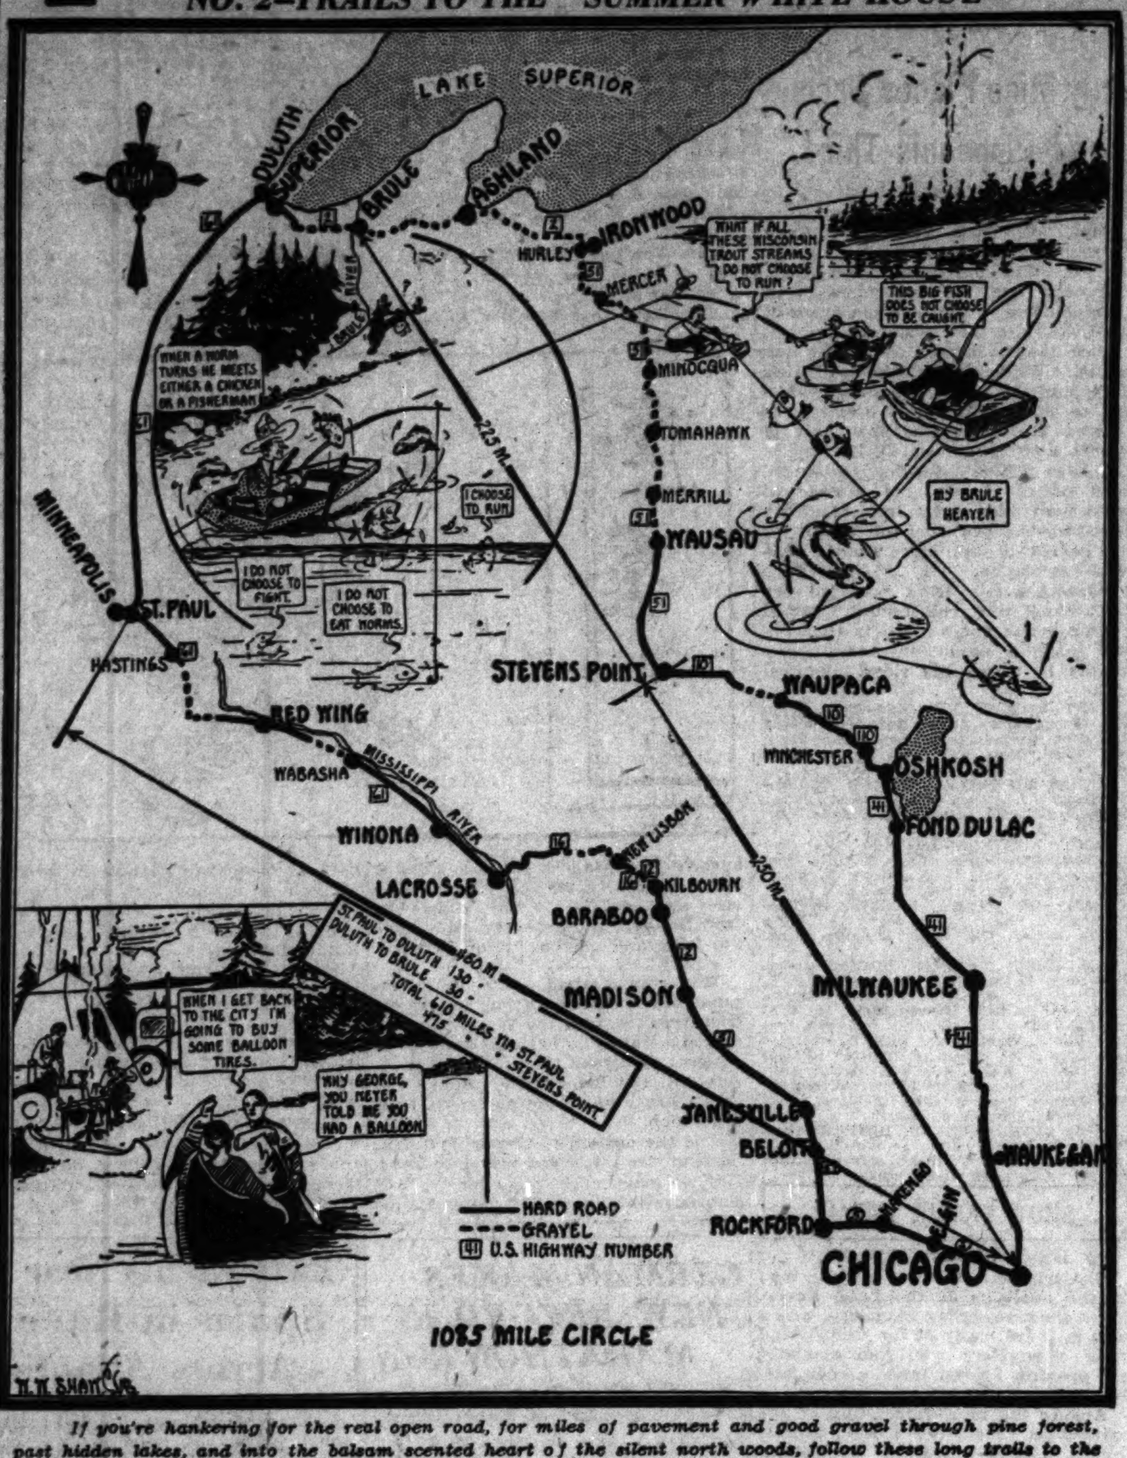
The second lake tour finding favor with drivers is only a little longer, but usually takes more time than No. 1, in view of the fact that Detroit is one of the ports of call. Detroit is just across the river from Windsor, Canada, and Canadian prohibition laws are different than those in the United States.

From Detroit the route takes you to Bay City, Mich., and thence up the east shore of Lake Huron to the Straits of Mackinac. From there the return to Chicago is the same as No. 1.

Tour No. 3 is the longest of the circle trips, being more than 1,600 miles. This also takes you to Detroit, thence around the south short of Lake Erie, through Buffalo and Niagara Falls into Canada and around the western tip of Lake Ontario into Toronto. From Toronto you turn north, circle Georgian Bay to Sault Sainte Marie and come home down the western shore of Lake Michigan.

Tribune Tours

NO. 2—TRAILS TO THE SUMMER WHITE HOUSE



If you're hankering for the real open road, for miles of pavement and good gravel through pine forest, past hidden lakes, and into the balsam scented heart of the silent north woods, follow these long trails to the tip of Wisconsin. The trip starts via Sheridan road to Lake Forest, where you pick up the Green Bay road, which is No. 41 in Wisconsin. The Waukegan road for several miles north of Niles is closed. There is almost a continuous stretch of concrete from Chicago to Wausau. Wisconsin always attracts a good sized bunch of trout fishermen.

FEDERAL EFFORT IN ROAD BUILDING IS TO CONTINUE

Funds for 1930, 1931 Provided in Bill.

Approval by President Coolidge of the bill authorizing federal aid appropriation of $75,000,000 for highway building in each of the fiscal years 1930 and 1931 assures continuation of this program which has resulted in the building of close to 75,000 miles of important interstate highways and provided the needed impetus to road construction by the states.

Plans for this work are revealed by the American Automobile association, which fostered the federal aid program and since 1921 has represented the car owners of the nation in repelling every attempt to halt this important assistance by the federal government in road building.

In addition to the appropriation for main highways, the measure signed by the president also carries $7,500,000 for each of the two fiscal years for building of forest roads and trails.

Since 1921 a total of nearly a billion and a half dollars has been spent on the nearly 75,000 miles of the original federal aid program of some 185,000 miles of important interstate routes and that it is well over one-third completed.

Of this amount the government contributed $614,649,253 and there are 11,510 miles of highway under construction in this network of important roads to which the government will contribute $126,486,015.

The appropriations for 1930 and 1931 are in line with the existing policy of making such authorizations two years in advance in order to provide continuity of work on the federal aid system and allow federal and state agencies ample time to outline the construction program.

WHITE HOUSE NOW ENTIRELY MOTORIZED; STABLES DESERTED

Disposal of the horse and carriage that has been the traditional perquisite of the housekeeper of the White House marks the passing of the last vestige of a once extensive White House stable.

The presidential residence is now completely motorized.

According to tradition Andrew Jackson rode up to the White House on horseback to begin his stormy tenancy and horse drawn carriages were, of course, the usual mode of presidential progress up to the beginning of the present century.

The first President of the United States to ride in a motor vehicle was William McKinley and he indulged in a brief spin, merely for the experience of riding in one of the new "horseless carriages." The first President actually to drive a motor car was, naturally enough, Theodore Roosevelt.

Tricycles Still Listed as Vehicles in Capital

Tricycles, though they are as rare as the dodo in the United States, still are recognized as vehicles to be taken into account in the regulation of traffic in Washington, D. C. Washington traffic regulations mention them specifically along with bicycles and motor vehicles.

In article 5 of the traffic code it is stated that "bicycles, tricycles, and motor vehicles shall be equipped with a suitable signaling device," to give adequate warning of their approach.

MOTOR BUS TAKES ON PROPORTIONS OF YOUNG GIANT

Figures Show Unsuspected Growth in 10 Yrs.

Motor bus lines in the United States now cover more than twice as many miles of route as steam and electric lines combined, and in addition to supplementing the service of rail lines in metropolitan areas have developed trade and improved the standards of living in sections not served by railroads.

In fact, it was hardly ten years ago that transportation experts sagely nodded their heads when the future of the motor bus was discussed and firmly asserted that the bus would never be a competitor of, much less supplant, the rail lines.

However, in this brief period of time—although not supplanting the railroads—it has provided a supplemental service that is nation-wide and demanded by every industry; and on short hauls has proven a quick, economical, and effective substitute. Only within the last year the interstate commerce commission has reported to congress that regulation of interstate bus operation is imperative.

Vast Mileage Covered.

The fact that there are now 635,609 miles of route covered by bus lines, as against 297,094 miles of steam and electric lines—a fact not very generally known—shows the extent to which the motor bus is playing its part in the transportation problems of the nation.

The tremendous sum paid in taxes by the motor bus companies and the vast army of passengers carried are testimonials to the fact that the motor bus has assumed a definite place in the transportation world, and though it has not revolutionized the industry, it at least has given rise to new problems to be solved by traffic and regulatory experts, and to which congress is already turning its attention.

It would be no idle dream to predict that within the next ten years the nation will see airplanes furnishing swift service from larger centers and fleets of busses working in conjunction with them at landing fields for the quickest distribution of passengers yet known.

GOVERNOR BLAMES "AVERAGE" DRIVER FOR CAR ACCIDENTS

According to Gov. Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, "it isn't the criminal operator, the drunken driver, who is responsible for the greatest number of highway deaths. The trouble seems to be," he claims, "that the great body of motorists are careless and regardless of the rights of others. The man who is responsible for by far the greatest number of deaths and injuries on the highway is the average driver who is irresponsible, absent-minded, lacking in imagination."

Couple Takes Automobile Trip Lasting Two Years

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Allsop, Auckland, New Zealand, have been traveling nearly a year on the longest and the most unusual automobile trip ever undertaken. At the present time they are aboard ship en route with their car, from Tasmania to Durban, South Africa. They expect to complete their motor tour in midsummer, 1929, after having wandered all over the world and making one complete circle of the globe.

Mr. Allsop is one of the leading architects of New Zealand, one of his most noteworthy buildings being the new Auckland hospital. With Mrs. Allsop he started from Auckland July 22, 1927.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

SUPERHIGHWAYS OPEN GOTHAM TO OUTSIDE AREAS

Staggering Outlay of Cash Is Repaid.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—A disclosure in practical application of grade separations for highways is presented in the thoroughfare extending north from Manhattan through White Plains known as the Bronx river parkway. Not only is the utility of such construction fully demonstrated, but the beautifying of the surrounding landscape by the structures is undeniable.

By overpassing the parkway with a dozen or more streets, the motorway is made practically unintersected by cross traffic and uninterrupted for high speed for something like twenty miles, including the grand concourse, but excepting the connection over Fordham road. This is accomplished with the thoroughfare always at grade.

"With such an outlet, the Chicago downtown district could be emptied each day without congestion and with safety in from forty to fifty minutes," said James Owen of the Westchester county park commission. "At least all your north and south traffic could be handled in that length of time."

One Way Drives.

The combined highways lie in a straight north and south line, at the center of upper New York, 150 feet wide on the concourse with a center 40 foot double drive and two side one way drives of 30 feet, while a portion of the parkway proper is of the duel type of one way avenues, and a portion double width in a single unit.

Although large sums—millions of dollars—were involved in the development of this great motorway, Mr. Owen points out that it has not, in fact, been a dollar of expense to the community. Property values in the region tapped by the highway have increased in value easily 500 per cent in six years, he asserts and the tax increase enhanced assessed valuation is carrying the load represented by the cost of development.

While the Concourse-driveway boulevard has tremendous capacity it is paralleled by the Riverside drive to the west, which also bears immense traffic, while a number of other lesser arteries lying to the east and west are each capable of handling as much traffic as upper Sheridan road now does.

Cost Appears Prohibitive.

"At a glance, the outlay required for these improvements appears to be prohibitive," Mr. Owen observes, "but the fact remains that all the dollars involved amount to nothing more than a revolving fund. The transaction consists of improving a community by making an investment and after the investment has been made the improved community is worth its original value plus the enhancement and usually more.

"In the Westchester district, as well as on Long Island and across in New Jersey the development of motor ways has opened to the people of New York vast areas of beautiful and healthy rural territory which motor cars make accessible for business people.

"Were these great public undertakings not gone into, the expansion of New York would be throttled; it would be an unattractive place to be compelled to live in.

"Chicago is in an exactly similar situation. Lack of fast motor transportation between the center of the city and the outer suburban area will paralyze its growth.

Profitable if Made Now.

"The longer the matter of motorway improvement is delayed the more the difficulties will arise. If Chicago today were equipped as New York is in the way of motor outlets and inlets, it would be only about even with the demands of its traffic.

"With all the immense projects New York has in construction or completed this community is ten years behind the normal requirements.

"Improvements equal to those provided for here are inevitable in the Chicago area and if constructed now will be vastly more profitable to all concerned than if put off until another day.

"Today's traffic has much to do with today's prosperity and if these inevitable projects are not executed at once, who can count the economic and other losses that are imposed by lack of facilities at this time. More tunnels and more bridges are being created to help make Manhattan and surrounding territory accessible. But the motor form of transportation is constantly struggling for room and the end is not in sight.

No Local Condition.

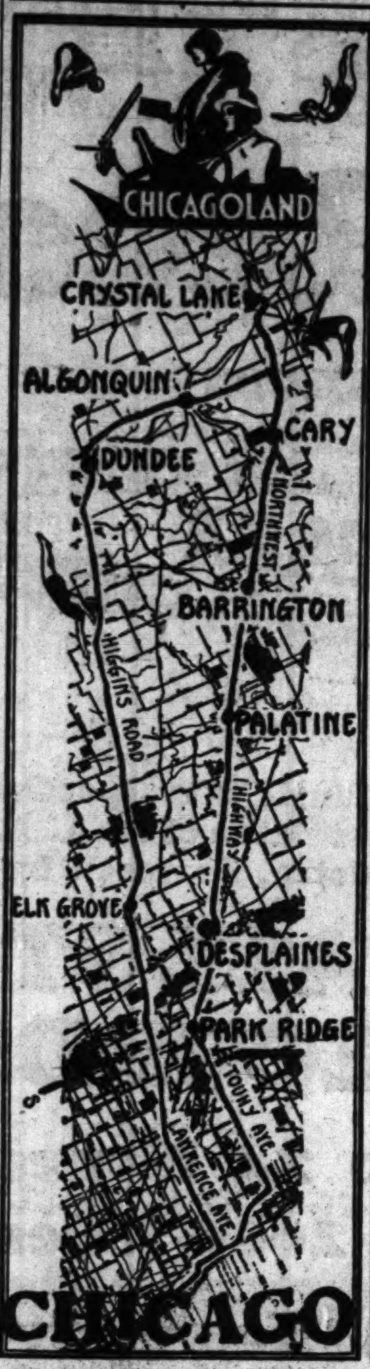
"The situation in New York is not a local condition. It is common to the whole of the United States. Small centers have their troubles with narrow roads; larger centers have their troubles with wider ones, and the great centers are confronted with problems that appear baffling, but which will be solved.

"In the New York area the single width of road is of no use. It carries no traffic, as we consider traffic, and therefore has no further place in the scheme of arterial planning. Highways of from three to eight lanes of traffic now radiate from Manhattan, and the extension of them is now the principal concern for the moment. For the immediate future the principal concern is more of them."

EUROPE LOSING TRADE IN LUXURY AUTOMOBILES

Statistics reveal that the past tendencies of Americans to turn to the products of Europe when in the market for an exclusive motor car have been definitely reversed during the last few years, but to a more marked degree in the last 15 months, according to manufacturers of the leading quality cars in America.

Chicagoland Tour—VII



Today's suggestive Chicagoland circle is just 100 miles—just a nice easy drive for Sunday afternoon and a chance to swim at Crystal lake's new municipal beach. The gravel beach is excellent for children. If the moths digested your last year's swimming suit you can rent one right at the beach. Jackson boulevard from the Chicago river to Halsted street is closed.

AMERICAN CITIES FACE PROBLEM OF CAR PARKING

Predicting sweeping improvements in the handling of motor transportation both in this country and elsewhere, Fred S. Mann of the Chamber of Motor Industries of South Australia, Alberto Pirelli of Milan, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. William Scholz, general manager of the Associated Automobile Manufacturers of Germany, have been in conference with the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Consultation of motor heads from different countries is expected to lead to beneficial and mutual exchange of ideas.

Outside of the United States the biggest need appears to be that of building highways.

In this country drastic improvement is needed in the provision of proper street facilities in cities.

In many countries in Europe, for example, wide streets and large public squares have been more customary than in this country. In such instances the problem of traffic congestion and parking has never been as acute as it now is in some the new world cities. America has much to learn from other lands in this regard, in the opinion of motor leaders.

On the other hand the visitors hold the United States is finding that its federal aid highways and its state highway commissions are doing a job in a most effective way which will be emulated abroad. Even in those foreign lands where the mileage of roads is nominally large, much remains to be done with respect to surfacing them them to meet modern traffic needs. It is felt that the rapid increasing of adequate mileage is the most constructive step to be taken for the extension of motor markets.

WOMAN DESIGNS EASY DEVICE TO CONVERT AUTOS

Motorists who have not enrolled in the two car class of automobile owners may be interested in the convertible body for vehicles invented by Mrs. Gertrude C. Carr of Brooklyn, N. Y.

This improvement in body construction permits the motorist to convert a car of the closed or limousine type into an open body or touring model, or vice versa, and do it with one hand.

"An object of my invention," explains Mrs. Carr, "is to produce a vehicle body which more effectively accomplishes this result as to convertibility than has heretofore been produced; and, in this connection, to produce a body which, when open, is the usual touring body and which, when closed, is the usual limousine body.

"Another object of the invention is to produce a body which may be readily and easily opened or closed from the inside of the car by one person and with need of only slight effort and strength."

Low Prices Obtained on Snow Fence Rails

Favorable prices on snow fence and guard rail are being obtained by the Minnesota highway department, due to the policy of buying early and in large quantities. Bids on a half million feet of snow fence for use next winter and on more than fifty miles of guard rail, to be erected during the summer, were opened May 1 by Commissioner C. M. Babcock.

AUTO INDUSTRY REPORTED STILL HOLDING ITS OWN

'Thin Spot' Not Expected Until August.

Detroit, Mich., July 21.—[Special.]—But little change in the automotive industry was noted during the last week, with reports from the leading factories indicating that the "thin spot" will occur in August, during the transition from the present to new models by a majority of the concerns.

New models are, however, appearing weekly, and these new offerings will do much to stimulate sales during the normally dull season months. Plants that closed for inventories early in July are again in production, and a few of them are approaching the capacity mark.

The activity in the industry for the summer months this year is far greater than producers and dealers had anticipated earlier in the season. Usually the summer easing off has made itself felt not later than the first of June, but this year was an exception.

Used Car Market Favorable.

The close of the first half of the year found the used car situation more favorable than it has been for many months. Most sections of the country are reporting an excellent movement of used car stock. Good weather, good roads, and the vacation season at its height, is largely responsible for the steady upward trend.

Employment in the various automobile plants and accessories shops in Detroit moved upward this week, placing the total now employed at 264,473. This represents an increase of 1,822, and is approximately 70,000 greater than for the corresponding period of last year.

The parts and accessories industry is remarkably good, and shows no present indication that operations in the third quarter will be substantially under those of either of the preceding quarters of this year. Schedules are being maintained at approximately the same levels as those of June, and sales show no sign of slackening as the demand for original equipment based on automobile manufacturers' new model requirements continues to grow. Replacement business is estimated at 20 per cent better than at this time last year—a figure which probably reflects the general situation of the industry as a whole.

Uniform Traffic Laws.

Plans for the establishment of a national uniform system of traffic regulation and control have been adopted by the national conference on streets and highway safety. Chairman William E. Metzger of Detroit said the ordinance will serve as a guide for more than 3,000 municipalities in handling the problem of street traffic.

Heretofore some states, such as California and Michigan, attempted to bring about adoption of uniform ordinances but it is clearly a national project. The new ordinance represents the best judgment of traffic experts from all parts of the country.

BRAKE SCHEDULE RECOMMENDED FOR STATE BASIS

Extensive studies have been carried on by a staff under the traffic engineer of the Wisconsin highway commission to determine standards for testing the efficiency of brakes. As the result the following report was made:

"It is recommended that the stopping distances at the various speeds be promulgated by the Wisconsin highway commission to be used in defining efficient brakes. The shorter distances shall be considered as those in which a car equipped with efficient two wheel brakes in excellent condition should be able to stop."

The following table shows speed per hour and stopping distances:

Ten miles—9 feet and not more than 12 feet.

Fifteen miles—21 feet and not more than 28 feet.

Twenty miles—37 feet and not more than 50 feet.

Twenty-five miles—58 feet and not more than 77 feet.

Thirty miles—83 feet and not more than 112 feet.

Thirty-five miles—113 feet and not more than 153 feet.

Forty miles—148 feet and not more than 200 feet.

Fifty miles—231 feet and not more than 300 feet.

The maximum distances are those in which a car should be able to stop, if efficient.

What Tourists Need for Ocean to Ocean Travel

The Southern California Automobile club announces that the National Old Trails highway is now in good shape for travel to the coast and suggests equipment for tourists as follows:

"Transcontinental motorists have learned from experience to travel as light as possible. One should carry a set of skid chains, a complete set of tools for the car, a good jack, a pair of pliers, extra tires mounted, patches, extra spark plugs, a two gallon water receptacle, a flashlight, a small hand axe for the cutting of firewood, a small shovel to be used in covering fire with earth before leaving it, and in the burying of cans and other refuse before breaking camp, lamp bulbs, and tow rope. This last will be used not essentially for oneself, but for assisting, perhaps, a fellow tourist on the road."

The club estimates touring expense as at about $5 per person a day.

Authorities to Enforce Arm Signal Regulation

Los Angeles police authorities have issued instructions to traffic men and patrolmen to require adequate and accurate signaling on the part of motorists.

Many automobile collisions are caused by a failure to signal with the arm when coming to a stop or preparing to turn. Arrests will be made of those who offend. "Signal or suffer," says Chief Davis.

NEWS AND VIEWS

ZAC DUNLAP, Chicago district manager for Durant interests, held another drive-away last week. This is the third large drive-away of automobiles that has occurred during the last thirty days, with a total of 369 automobiles.

P. L. Knoedler, president of Community Motors, has just purchased the corner of Madison street and La Vergne avenue. On this property will shortly be erected a two story automobile establishment which will be Community Motors' west side branch.

Thomas J. Hay, president of the Chicago Distributing company for Chandler automobiles, announces the arrival of a new six "65" model. The new car will sell around $895. A new big six will sell at a price of $1,525, and a new Royal eight "85" at $1,795. The new cars are now on display.

Full vision is required for safe driving now that there are more than 23,000,000 automobiles registered in this country. By use of plate glass, which gives perfect vision without distortion, and narrow front pillars, Oldsmobile has eliminated dangerous "blind" spots.

Mr. O. E. McCarthy, general manager of the Pierce-Arrow Chicago branch, reports greatly increased sales possibilities were brought about by the recent Pierce-Arrow price reduction. As a result it was necessary to add several new salesmen to the Chicago branch sales force.

In their new "75" and "65" models, Chrysler executives believe they have introduced an entirely new style which will be the vogue of the future. J. E. Fields, vice president in charge of sales, believes the changes made in design, although radical, have effected as a whole a much more beautiful car.

As a result of laboratory and road tests over a period of a year and covering 177,911 miles of the hardest driving, the Studebaker corporation of South Bend, Ind., has adopted Fafnir ball bearing spring shackles as standard equipment on all Studebaker President, Commander and Dictator models.

GOLDEN STATE'S MOTOR TAX OVER THIRTY MILLIONS

Gasoline Levy Nearly Triple License Fees.

The largest sum of any state in the Union, statistics gathered by the California State Automobile association show that many other states are paying proportionately more.

Six states collect nearly twice as much tax per gallon and a dozen other states charge the motorist four cents for every gallon of fuel purchased.

The gasoline as a method of raising funds for highway development has become quite general as there are now but three states in the Union, Massachusetts, Illinois and New York, which have not this form of levy.

Has Average Tax.

California is in the nuetral zone, as it imposes about the average tax, since there are fifteen of the states which levy a three cent tax such as prevails in that state.

According to the figures of the American Petroleum institute, more than a billion gallons of gasoline are used annually in California. This total is believed to be larger than any state in the Union, although the figures are not available for the state of New York which has no gas tax and is the only state in the Union registering more automobiles than California.

It is believed, however, that the average consumption of gas per car in California is much higher than in New York since climatic conditions permit motoring the year around, the fine system of highways invites touring, and there is a higher percentage of cars per population than in any other state.

Exceeds Thirty Millions.

The total tax on fuel for motor vehicles collected in California in 1927 amounted to $22,467,083. Of this sum, $13,158,714 went to the state highways and $9,266,607 of the tax was returned by the state to the counties in which it orginated for work on local roads.

License fees and other revenues from motorists netted the state an additional $8,796,348 last year. This sum was divided equally between the state and county roads after the costs of collection and administration were paid.

BIG HAILSTONES DAMAGE MOTORS IN TEXAS TOWN

One of the heaviest hailstorms in the history of the Texas Panhadle did thousands of dollars' worth of damage to automobiles in Amarillo.

Hailstones, some larger than hens' eggs, fell for 15 minutes, and estimates of repair shops and insurance companies place the number of damaged cars between two and three thousands. Glasses and windshields were shattered, and every car, open and closed, on the streets had the tops completely torn up and the upholstery tattered in many instances.

Top, body and glass companies report a 500 per cent increase in business, repairing the damage incurred.

Japan Goes Into Road Building on Big Scale

A comprehensive plan for road improvement and construction for the whole of Japan which contemplates the expenditure of about $5,689,000 over the next ten years has been formulated by the civil engineering bureau of the home department.

HOLLAND TUNNEL PROVES WONDER TO VISITING MOTORISTS

The Holland tunnel has been added to the motorist's list of "things to see" during the summer vacation this year. The Holland tunnel, one of the seven engineering wonders of the United States, will offer a connecting link between New York City and the rest of the country to approximately 7,000,000 motorists during the tourist season.

Number of Foreign Assembly Plants Grows

Foreign assembly plants of American automobile manufacturers now number twenty-nine. Five years ago there were only six such plants. During 1927 these plants produced a total of 198,500 passenger cars, trucks and chassis.

SEEK IMPROVED HOSPITALS FOR AUTO VICTIMS

Move Started to Better Type of Service.

The movement recently started for a higher standard of hospital treatment for the victims of automobile accidents has received the indorsement of the American College of Surgeons.

The indorsement of the college, which consists of 8,000 of the leading surgeons of the United States, Canada, and Latin America, took the form of a letter from Dr. Franklin H. Martin, of Chicago, director general of the college, to the president of the American Automobile association.

Dr. Martin pointed out that the interest of the world's largest motor federation in the question of safety afterwards would materially aid in mobilizing public sentiment around what the college of surgeons is doing to put into effect "a minimum standard of efficiency with which all hospitals and surgeons should comply."

He suggested that for the information of motorists the list of hospitals in the United States and Canada approved by the college of surgeons be utilized. This list includes over 90 per cent of the hospitals in the United States and Canada with a capacity of 100 beds or over.

Dr. Martin's letter to President Henry follows:

"My attention has been drawn to a recent article on 'Better Care of Auto Victims,' wherein the interest of your organization in the treatment of the injured is expressed. Inasmuch as you have cited the findings of our research group of the board on traumatic surgery, and as our college is actively engaged on this very subject of improvement in the care of the injured, it seems appropriate to make a brief statement concerning the college and its aims in this particular direction.

"The college began its organized effort to improve hospitals and surgical service over ten years ago. Their initial step was the formulation of a minimum standard of efficiency with which all hospitals and surgeons should comply.

"In brief, the practical results which are recognized over the entire hospital world are:

"1. The shortening of the average days' stay of patients in hospitals.

"2. The lowering of the hospital death rate.

"3. The elimination of unnecessary and incompetent surgery.

"Many of the changed conditions in our modern, high geared life center around motor cars. The frequency of accidents requiring emergency treatment is increasing, and many of these are in our rural districts. In many instances for want of immediate adequate hospital and surgical service, undue disabilities and deaths result.

"The better minds in surgery are being brought to bear upon this subject and the best approved modern methods of treatment are being introduced into the hospitals, and a knowledge of them disseminated throughout the surgical profession. Medical schools are being induced to place more emphasis, in the education of their students, upon the treatment of the injured."

PROHIBIT TOURISTS' SMOKING IN CARS IN SEQUOIA PARK

Visitors to Sequoia National park are again warned about the fire hazard, especially in the lower levels.

Visitors are requested to observe the park regulation which states that no smoking is allowed on roads or trails in the park. Now this regulation is interpreted "while in motion."

Those who must smoke should stop and enjoy it thoroughly and then be sure that all of the fire is out before proceeding. Smoking is, of course, permitted at the camps and stations.

AUTO NOT FOUND DECENTRALIZING FACTOR IN CITIES

Cleveland Expert Blames Land Values.

The modern skyscraper is the symbol of the economic progress of the United States. This declaration was made recently by William E. Malm of Cleveland before the National Association of Building Owners and Managers at St. Louis.

Mr. Malm declared the old theory that decentralization of business districts was caused by traffic congestion was a fallacy and asserted that "decentralization, with but few exceptions, results from high rental rates in the business districts, which in turn, are determined by land values.

Blame on Parking.

"Where subcenters have been established it will be noted that the traffic situation is as serious as in business districts despite the fact that the buildings are seldom more than six stories in height."

The parking evil was charged with responsibility for most of the traffic congestion in business district, said Mr. Malm.

"No problem exists where vehicular traffic is permitted to flow freely through the central business districts," Mr. Malm said. "The problem of congestion can be traced to parked vehicles and until some sane regulation of this element can be effected, street traffic will continue to be in a state of confusion.

Traffic Signals Help.

"The problem of highway congestion has been materially improved with the adoption of synchronous traffic signals, but free flowing traffic cannot be a reality until the curb parker is either better regulated or entirely eliminated."

ANNOUNCING

THE MOST DARING, MOST ADVANCED CAR FOR 1929 AND 37 STARTLING, NEW AND DIFFERENT FEATURES

By STANLEY MOON

FLASH the news, here's the new leader, here's the daring Moon-Aerotype for 1929. Aerotype is brand new, built from new designs with rare and new materials. It sponsors 37 new ideas that put it away out in front, two whole years ahead of the industry. ¶ Come, see this great car. Have its amazing Automatic Lubrication explained—a system as far ahead of other methods as the grease cup is an improvement on the antiquated oil-can. Go over the entire construction. Check Aerotype's 36 other exclusive features including the wonderful Aerotype motor; "White Flash" High Compression; Anti-knock Construction; Twin-barrel Carburetion; Paris-designed Bodies; "Ile de France" Salon Interiors; Bulged Belgian Fenders; Dreadnaught Double-drop Frame, etc., etc. ¶ If you are really in the market for the last word in custom appearance at a mass production price, then see these new Aerotype Sixes and Eights today.

Breaks All Stock Car Records

For 24 hours and all intermediate times and distances

No Other Stock Car Has Ever Travelled So FAR, So FAST

July 1st, on Atlantic City Speedway under sanction and supervision of A. A. A. An Auburn Model 115 Stock Speedster, Powered by Lycoming—for 1 to 24 Hours!

BREAKS ALL STOCK CAR RECORDS—

for 1 to 2000 Miles!

2033 miles in 24 hours, averaging

84.7354 m.p.h.

Beating Former Record by 9.112 m. p. h.

This car was equipped with a high compression head, fuel pump, and 3.4 axle ratio which is standard for all Speedsters. It had wire wheels and 6-ply tires, including two spare wheels and tires on sides, which are optional equipment. This means it was a fully equipped stock car as sold and delivered off the salesroom floor.

Why?

To sell speed? No!
It is unlawful to drive 100 miles an hour.

And you do not want to average 84 miles an hour.

But it proves ENDURANCE and VALUE, and that was the purpose of this test.

A car capable of this abnormal sustained speed and relentless tax upon its every part, establishes its value with finality.

Breaking these records is incidental.

But giving buyers a true measure of a car's endurance, and what they can expect in long life, continual service, and ability to stand up, is all important.

There is nothing manufacturers could do to so completely prove the merit, the soundness and the stamina of their cars than the merciless grind of this 24-hour proving-ground punishment.

FLAWS MEAN FAILURE

A car one iota less strong, or one iota less perfectly designed and built, could not withstand this gruelling strain.

If any one of several thousand parts in the car had not been absolutely correct and reliable, it could have prevented this amazing demonstration of efficiency and endurance.

Therein lies the significance of this performance for the car buyer.

Think how indefinitely and satisfactorily a car will travel at normal speeds, when it can survive unimpaired the crucial demands necessary in order to travel 2033 miles in 1440 minutes. That is harder on a car than years of average use.

It means that at 40, 50 and 60 miles an hour you are not over-taxing your Auburn. It means Auburn has tremendous reserve, and almost limitless capacity for continuous service.

It means you get more for your money. And that what you get is a certainty, not a gamble.

PERFECT PERFORMANCE

During this entire 24-hour test the Auburn car required no mechanical attention whatsoever. The carburetor was adjusted once. The only stops made during the 2,033 miles were for replenishing water, gas and oil—also for tire changes for safety. Mechanically, the car required no more attention than if it had just been driven around a city block, conclusively showing its strong construction and wonderful reliability.

UNDISPUTED LEADER

Now, there can be no question as to which car stands out above all others. Claims to the contrary, Auburn ranks supreme.

These records speak for themselves—and Auburn has always made its car speak for itself.

> "It is not necessary to change a car radically and rush new models on the market, if the car was built right originally."
> —E. L. CORD

Instead of "advertised claims" Auburn furnishes this certificate for its design, engineering, materials, workmanship, ABILITY and RELIABILITY.

Competitors can not ARGUE with these records. They are irrefutable.

AN INVITATION

You are invited to inspect and drive exact duplicates of the Auburn Model 115 stock car that holds these amazing records.

See for yourself what a pleasure and RELIEF it is to drive a fully equipped car that can travel faster than any other stock car has ever done in this class. See how differently and better this car does the things YOU want a car to do. If it does not sell itself you will not be asked to buy.

Add to this revelation of automobile progress, the fact that Auburn gives you this built-in value and endurance in a long, low, smart, roomy, Straight Eight closed car for less than many of the better, Sixes.

Plan Eighteen Story Apartments at Fullerton and Clark

EXPLAINING HOW A SKYSCRAPER GETS STONE COAT

112,000 Bits of Rock in Tribune Tower.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

One of the building processes that seems most to intrigue our fellow townsmen engaged in the pleasant if neck wearying pastime of watching certain of our skyscrapers grow is the business of giving the steel skeleton a coating of stone.

"How in the name of Sam Hill do they get all the stones to fit?" "How do they know where the stones go?" "How can they start several floors up from the foundation the work of putting the stones in place?" "I wonder how many stones will go into that building."

These are a few of the questions put by curb stone students to their neighbors. We'll confess that these mysteries along with the one of how much does an elephant weigh have always had some interest for us. So when we chanced to get into conversation with an agreeable representative of the Indiana Limestone company, whose firm has provided much building stone in Chicago, we took these matters up with him. And now perhaps we may be able to help satisfy some of this curiosity.

Study Shop Drawings.

As to making the stones fit—the architect's plans with the structural steel company's shop drawings and the shop drawings of every item that goes into the exterior are sent, let us say, to the Indiana quarries which are not far from West Baden. There a large corps of draftsmen go over the drawings and prepare a new set which show every part of the stone exterior. Diagrams are made indicating the depth of the stone and the manner in which it is supported or anchored to the steel work. Each stone is given a number, with a key letter for each side of the building. Then for every piece of stone, a separate diagram is made. This includes a minute description. The diagrams, or tickets, are turned over to the cutting mill and the work is executed by men, many of whom will never see the building into which the products of their skill will go. Each process is checked by expert draftsman for there must be no variation from the required dimensions of the stone. And it is said seldom is an error made.

The proper number is painted onto each stone, which is then shipped to the scene of the building operations. Numbered and keyed as they are, it is a simple matter for the contractor, with the aid of a working drawing, to have each one put in its proper place.

Supported by Angles.

As to starting at any height to put the stones in place: The steel skeleton construction makes this possible. Besides steel beams and girders which support the floors, there are beams which connect the exterior columns at each floor level called "spandrel beams." Steel angles are riveted to brackets projecting from the sprandel beams. These angles form supports for the stone which acts merely as a coat for the structure. The masonry does not carry its own dead weight or support the floors as we amateurs might expect.

This system makes it possible to start the placing of the stones at various heights of a building to expedite work. It may be recalled that the main walls of the Tribune Tower were begun at the sixth floor, while the masonry of the Medinah Athletic club, work on which is the immediate occasion for these comments, started at the Michigan boulevard level.

Sometimes the stone at the quarry is prepared for use in synchronization with progress on the other parts of a structure. At other times all the stonework may have been completed at the quarry before the foundation is in. For instance every piece of stone for the new Union depot was cut and stacked before the work of setting was commenced.

112,000 in Tribune Tower.

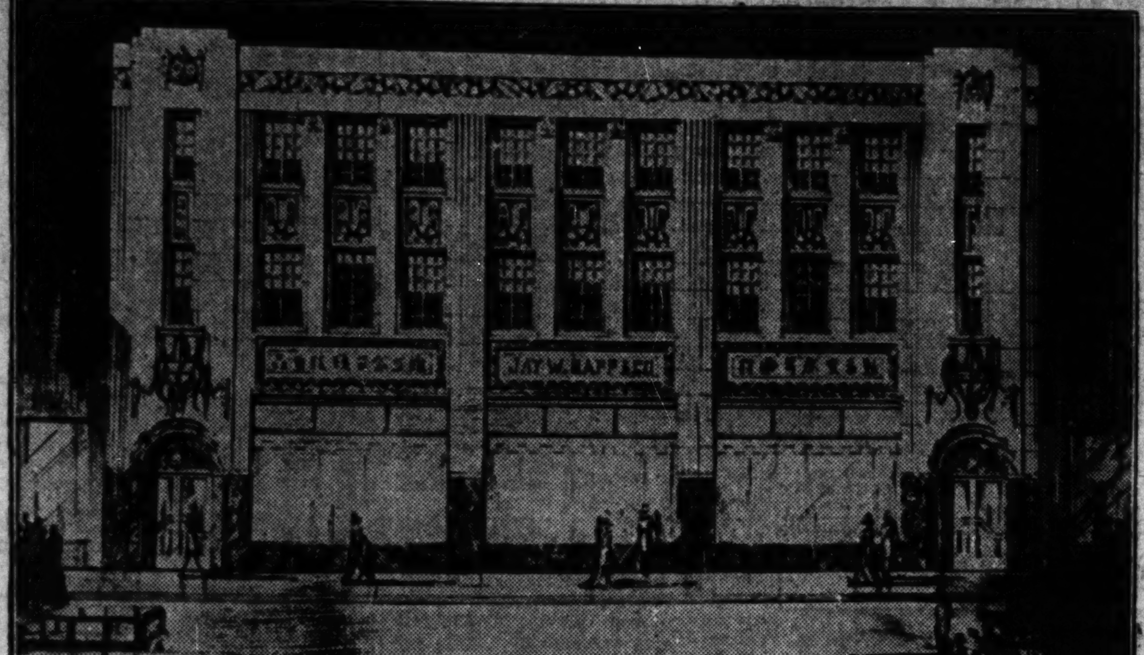
As to the number of individual stones in a structure, they often run into the thousands. There will be 40,000 pieces in the forty-two story Medinah Athletic club. In the Tribune Tower there are 112,000. This large number was occasioned by the immense amount of detail work called for in the Gothic design. The Methodist Temple is composed of 26,970 pieces, while the No. 333 Michigan Avenue building, another Indiana limestone structure, contains 16,500 pieces.

Of course detail work, such as is being installed in the Medinah Athletic club and that of the Tribune Tower, requires vastly more work and skill in preparation. On occasions noted sculptors are employed to collaborate with the designing architects. When needed models are first made in clay and then executed in plaster. Highly skilled carvers work from the models. And each piece of the detail work is numbered and lettered like the ordinary single piece of stone so that it, too, fits exactly into place.

CHICAGOANS BUY TWO ISLANDS IN LAKE SUPERIOR

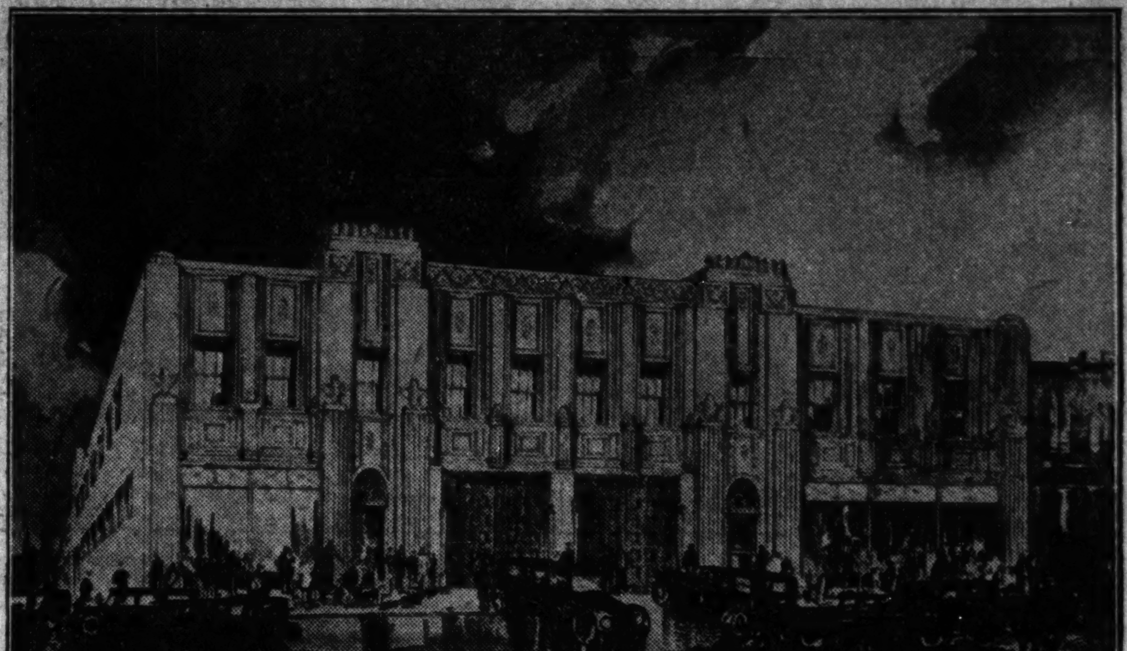
Dr. L. B. Joslyn, head of the Joslyn clinic, Maywood, has purchased Oak island, one of the Apostle island group in Lake Superior, containing 5,000 acres, which he will improve as a summer estate and game preserve. O. S. Glidden, another Chicagoan, bought Otter island, another of the Apostle group, containing 3,000 acres. Burt E. Simpson was broker.

MERCHANDISING CENTER FOR CELESTIALS



Ernest Mayo & Mayo are the architects who drew the plans for the above structure, a merchandising center to be erected at 151-155 West 22d street, in Chinatown, for Jay W. Rapp & Co., importers of merchandise and foodstuffs.

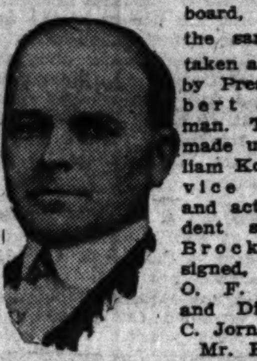
A GARAGE THAT LOOKS LIKE SOMETHING ELSE



Here's modern architecture in a Chicago garage. Fox & Fox designed this interesting and attractive structure, which is to be erected at 5733-39 Broadway by S. M. Earling. Charles Morgan made this picture. Details in another column.

Three More Resign from Realty Board

Three more officials have resigned from the Cook County Real Estate board, following the same action taken a week ago by President Albert J. Brockman. The trio is made up of William Kolacek Sr., vice president, and acting president since Mr. Brockman resigned, Secretary O. F. Lohsand, and Director J. C. Jorn.



ALBERT J. BROCKMAN.

Mr. Brockman's resignation was announced in a signed message to the members of the board. He commented on certain opposition to the plan to lease a floor in the new building at the northwest corner of La Salle and Washington. In part Mr. Brockman said:

"It now appears that one dissatisfied member has been able to influence of a few of his friends to oppose final consummation of the lease for new quarters. To accomplish our purpose, we need the enthusiastic and united support of all who desire the board to prosper and with such support the rapid growth of the board in financial strength is assured.

"It would be futile, however, to undertake this important project if even a small number of the members continue in their opposition. To delay its consummation because a few members are timid concerning the board's ability to carry it through and desire to rent all surplus space before the lease is executed, is not feasible. Even now, the time is very short to enable completion of the new quarters in time for the occupancy on Oct. 1.

"A situation has been created which results in serious embarrassment to your officers and threatens to stultify the board. Failing to accomplish the proposed action will necessitate remaining in our present quarters with increased difficulty in holding our membership together, and probably no growth hereafter.

"In the hope of accomplishing, with the active and loyal assistance of the office force, the directors and the members, a pronounced increase in membership and influence with the board. I have devoted a very large portion of my time to its affairs. It has been a pleasure to do so, as long as proper support has been obtained. However, in view of the changed situation, I have concluded, after careful deliberation, that I am not warranted to continue the sacrifice of time and energy which the office of president requires."

JOHN T. WHEELER TO FORM REALTY FIRM OF HIS OWN

John T. Wheeler, vice president of Baird and Warner, announces that he is retiring from that realty firm for the purpose of organizing his own company with offices in the State Bank building. He started with Baird and Warner as salesman under the late Wyllys W. Baird, whose offices were then at 112 North La Salle. Later he became junior partner, with Wyllys W. Baird and George Warner senior partners. After the death of Mr. Warner he was made a partner in the company. When Baird and Warner incorporated, he was elected to senior vice president, Wyllys W. Baird being president.

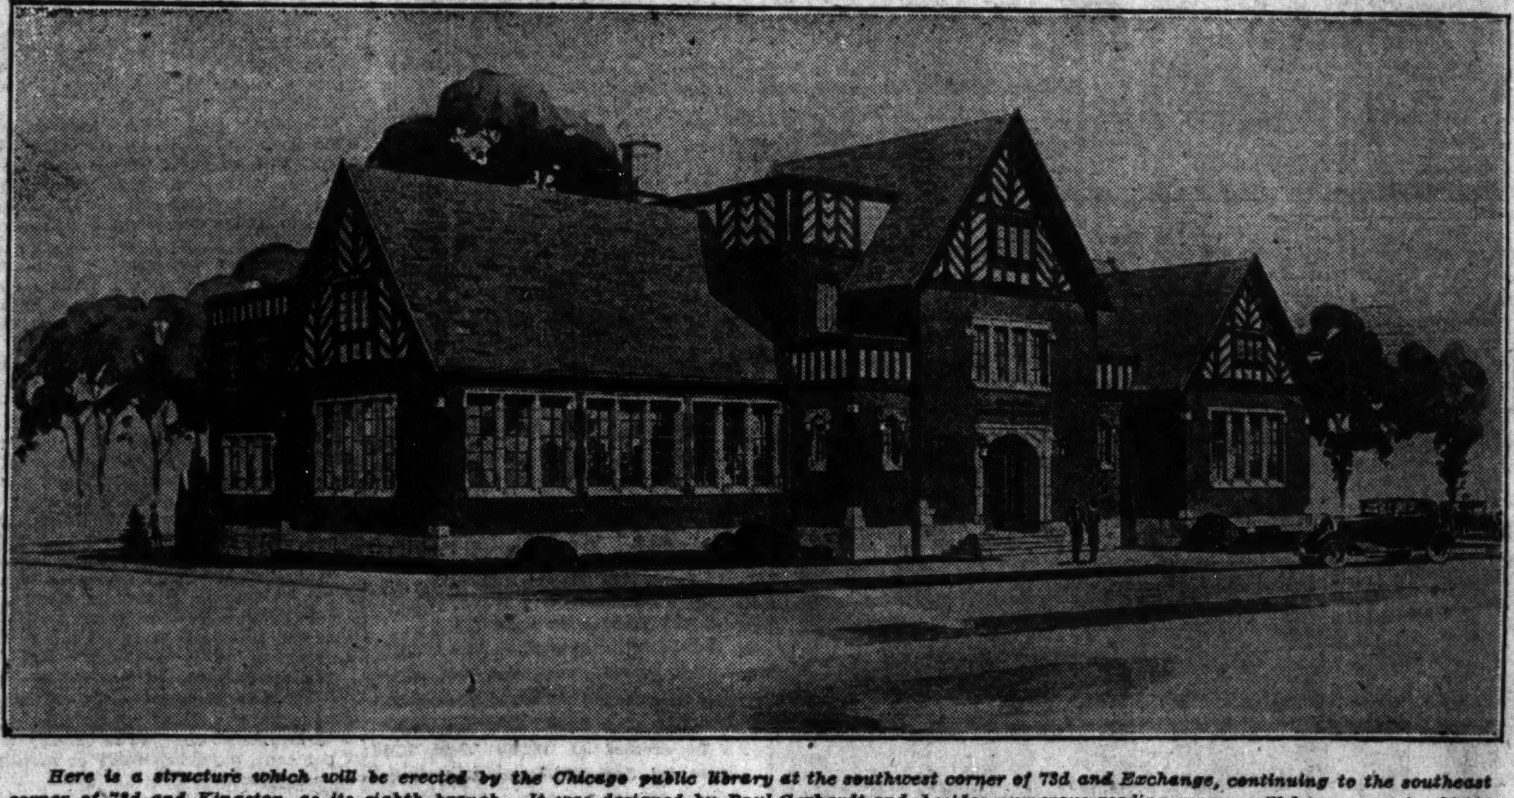
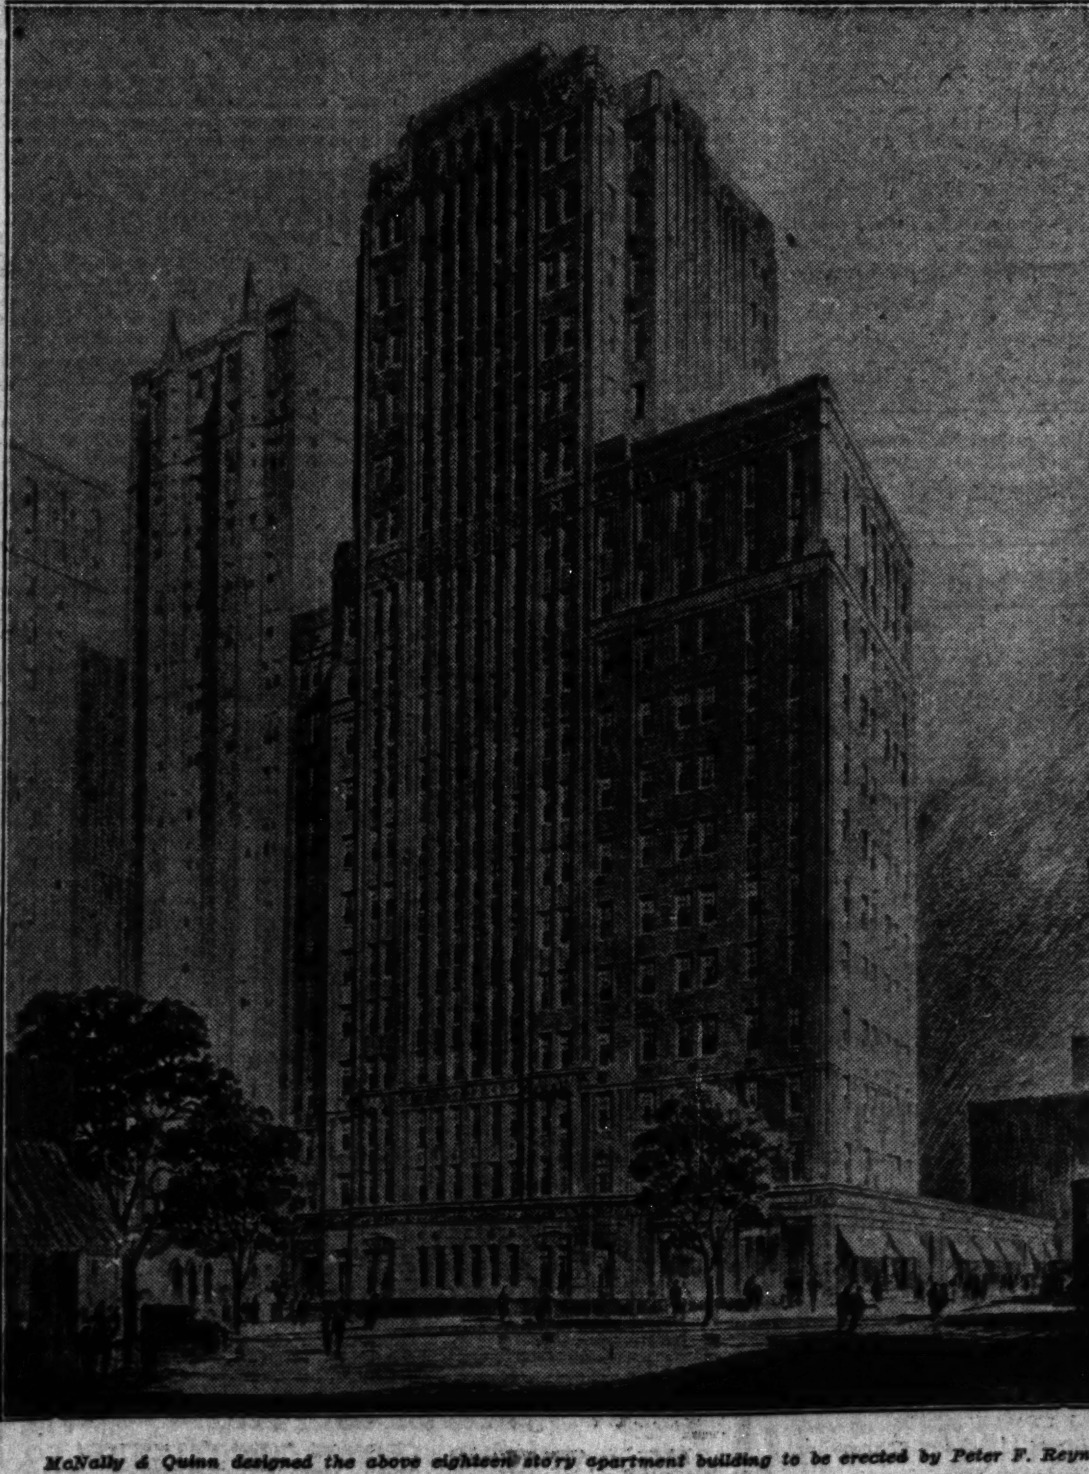
ITS CONTENTS WILL CHASE AWAY DULL MOMENTS



Here is a structure which will be erected by the Chicago public library at the southwest corner of 73d and Exchange, continuing to the southeast corner of 73d and Kingston, as its eighth branch. It was designed by Paul Gerhardt and, besides numerous reading rooms, will have space for 20,000 volumes immediately, with provision for double this amount later. Miles Sater made this rendering.

NEWEST FOR LINCOLN PARK DISTRICT



McNally & Quinn designed the above eighteen story apartment building to be erected by Peter F. Reynolds at the southeast corner of Fullerton parkway and North Clark street. Details are given in an adjoining column. B. C. Greengard made this picture.

Famous Bird Store to Sing Its Swan Song

Kaempfer's bird store at 24 East Randolph street, one of Chicago's oldest business houses, is to make way for a new tenant. The Palmer Apparel shops, retailers of women's wearing apparel, will open its 9th of a chain of loop stores, at No. 24, about Sept. 1st. The store was leased for an undisclosed term and rental from the Leander J. McCormick estate. Warren A. Cahn represented all parties.

The closing of Kaempfer's will mark the passing of the retail business of Kempfer's, Inc., which will devote all its energies to its wholesale business at Superior and Sangamon streets. In addition, however, a service bureau for bird owners to advise on the care and treatment of pets will be maintained at 30 East Randolph.

The business of the bird store will be absorbed by Chicago dealers handling Kaempfer's products. The store will not be sold as a going concern. The first Kaempfer bird store was started in 1857 by Frederick Kaempfer I., a taxidermist, on Wells street, between Randolph and Washington. Later he moved to a site now occupied by the La Salle theater. He remained there till the Chicago fire forced him to seek temporary quarters on Wabash avenue for a year.

In 1880 he secured another location on Clark, just north of Madison. Following Mr. Kaempfer's death in 1899 his son Frederick moved the business to 114 North State, where the Roosevelt theater now stands. Twenty-one years later it was moved to its present location on Randolph, where Mr. Kaempfer and his son Frederick Kaempfer III., have been in charge.

PLAN ANOTHER GOLF CLUB FOR DU PAGE COUNTY

Another golf club for Chicagoland. A 181 acre tract just south of Itasca has been bought by the Western Fields Country club and according to Patrick H. McCabe, directing manager, twenty-seven holes will be laid out by the U. S. Golf architects, with the expectation of having them ready for use by next spring.

The club is to have a membership of 450. Kent Alcorn is president. E. Raymond Olsen was broker in the purchase of the site. The property is bounded on the west by Itasca road, by Montrose avenue extended on the south and by Parkside avenue or Mills road on the east. A club house, with swimming pool, is planned.

Plan Branch Library for South Shore

Bookworms and others in the south shore district shortly are to have plenty of handsome works to enjoy, for contracts have just been let for the construction of an attractive branch building for the Chicago public library at the southwest corner of East 73d and Exchange, continuing to the southwest corner of 73d and Kingston.

Architect Paul Gerhardt drew the plans for this new literature center which is to be of modified English design. Tudor Gothic is the motif. It will be two stories high and will occupy a lot 120x94 feet. The building itself will be 108x70 feet.

The exterior will be of face brick, with cut stone trim. Cypress half timber work and steep slate roofs will bring forth the English effect.

Capacity of 20,000 Books.

By reason of street frontage on three sides there will be plenty of light and air. On the first floor will be found an adults' reading room, a children's reading room, a reference room for young people of high school age, a stack room having a capacity of 20,000 books, the librarian's office, a workroom for repairing books, and a delivery room. Later the book capacity may be doubled.

On the second story will be a child story room, capable of seating the 150 youngsters who are expected to attend the weekly story hour. In this room illustrated lectures, etc., will also be given. The second floor will contain a recreation room for the library staff as well as a kitchenette where this same staff may prepare luncheons and suppers while on duty. Public rest rooms and storage space will be found in the basement.

Carl Roden Helps.

Librarian Carl D. Roden assisted the architect in planning the structure. Harry G. Wilson, secretary of the library board, will have charge of constructing and equipping the building, which is to cost about $100,000. The general contract has been let to the S. N. Nielsen company.

This will be the eighth branch public library building. Thirty-six other branches are located in rented quarters or in rooms provided by various agencies.

HENRY T. CARR MADE MEMBER OF LICENSE BODY

Henry T. Carr has been appointed a member of the real estate brokers' license committee of the Illinois department of registration and education to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Col. W. C. Johnson of Danville. Mr. Carr is known as an authority on real estate appraisal and inheritance tax. He is chairman of the appraisal committee of the Chicago Real Estate board. Under the law members of the state license body must pass on every issuance, revocation and renewal of licenses before the department of registration can act. A. M. Shelton is director of the department. Joseph K. Brittain and Walter J. Ruediger of Belleville constitute the other members of the license committee.

WALKOVER SHOE COMPANY RENTS STORE ON 71ST ST.

The Walk-Over Shoe company has leased from B. F. Lindheimer the corner shop in the building at the northeast corner of 71st street and Oglesby avenue, in the south shore district. The lease is for ten years and the rental is undisclosed. After extensive remodeling the lessees plan to open one of the most attractive stores in the locality. J. I. Menkin of Kaplan & Co. was broker.

WILL OCCUPY PART OF LOEB RESIDENCE SITE

Total Investment to Be $1,300,000.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Peter F. Reynolds, realtor, who purchased the Victor Lawson Lake Shore drive residence and is replacing it with a towering coöperative apartment building, has turned his building activities a bit to the northwest. Yesterday he announced plans for a towering mass of small homes—an eighteen story structure at the southeast corner of Fullerton parkway and North Clark street, to represent a total investment in land and building of $1,300,000.

PETER F. REYNOLDS.

The Fullerton Parkway tower, as he has christened his new apartment project, will be enough different in design from its trio of tall neighbors to the east, to make it an outstanding bit of architecture in the district. It will be built in three levels—a strip of one story de luxe shops along the south part of the section fronting on North Clark street; a twelve story unit on the Fullerton-Clark corner and also a unit of similar height on the east, with the middle part of the Fullerton parkway frontage soaring eighteen stories above street level.

In addition a narrow strip of the Fullerton frontage at the east end of the building will be set back from the street in line with the adjoining Patrician annex apartments, so that many of the apartments will be able to have windows looking east toward the lake.

To Have Attractive Roof.

It is understood that the plans by McNally & Quinn, architects, call for the use of face brick on all sides. The one story wing on Clark street for shops gives apartments a permanent south exposure. It also is understood that the architects have followed the rapidly growing custom of recognizing that the upper part of a building is visible to the naked eye and therefore should not be disfigured with penthouses, roof tanks, undecorated smoke stacks, etc. Plans call for the proper architectural treatment of the sky line, with the usual unsightly features hidden from view.

One more word about the exterior of the Fullerton Parkway tower. It's to be of terra cotta with stone trim. Plate glass will be used in the first floor windows.

The interior is to contain 101 apartments divided into sixty-seven suites of three rooms, seventeen of 2½ rooms, and seventeen of two rooms. The flats are so arranged that it'll be possible to convert the three room suites into fours and the twos into threes or vice versa.

A New Idea in Sizes.

Probably the 2½ room flats, mentioned above, will be a puzzler to most readers. It's said to be a new idea. Or maybe it's merely being a bit more honest in describing what some owners might call a three room apartment. Anyway, the so-called half a room, is said to be a trifle too small to call it a room and yet too big to call it a closet. So it's frankly called 'arf a room. These apartments are to be rented unfurnished. There'll be nine stores fronting on Clark street and also one office for rent.

Of course, the apartments will contain all the modern luxuries and conveniences that the 1928 housewife demands. There'll be mechanical kitchen ventilators to whisk the odor of steak and onions out into the world instead of letting it waft through into the living rooms. And these steak and onions and other culinary ammunition will be kept chilled by electric refrigeration till ready for the stove.

"Special provisions will be installed to eliminate the noise nuisance which is very seldom done in apartments of this type," says an announcement of the project. Whether this means sound deadening of walls so tenants won't have to listen to their neighbor's radio when they'd rather play a quiet game of bridge, or whether it means saving the residents' ears from the screeching of motor brakes and the usual street uproar, we don't know.

Former Loeb Residence Site.

The site formerly was occupied by an old stone mansion, residence of Mrs. Nellie M. Loeb, daughter of Adolphus Busch, St. Louis brewer, of Anheuser-Busch fame. This will be the fourth tall apartment building to be erected on the grounds once occupied by the Loeb house. To the east of Fullerton Parkway tower is the Patrician annex and to the east of that are the Patrician apartments. Still farther east are the seventeen story Fullerton Parkway apartments.

Mr. Reynolds bought the entire Loeb property in November, 1925, for a reported $385,000. It had a frontage on Fullerton of 330 feet. The site of the Fullerton Parkway tower fronts 126 feet on Fullerton and 174 feet on Clark.

The Chicago Trust company is financing the construction with a $700,000 loan at 5½ per cent. The building is valued at $1,000,000 and the land at $300,000. Completion is planned for May 1, 1929.

MANY BUILDINGS UNDER WAY IN HAMMOND AREA

City's Workshop Develops at Brisk Pace.

Keeping step with the lively building pace in Chicago, building operations in the Hammond, Ind., district—one of the busiest parts of the city's giant workshops—are reported as exceedingly active. The Hammond district, which is distinct from the Gary and Calumet township area, embraces Hammond, Whiting, East Chicago, Calumet City, Hegewisch, Burnham, Lansing, Highlands, and suburbs.

Recent figures put the building operations for the four first towns above named at $6,915,081 for the first six months of 1928. The Gary figure for the same period is $3,661,250.

The widening of Hohman avenue in Hammond at a cost of nearly $1,000,000 has resulted in the starting of several good sized buildings projects. First there is a five story apartment building which Leo Deutsch is erecting at Hohman and Elizabeth streets at a cost of $500,000.

Buildings Under Way.

Rothschild & Hirsch are erecting in Hohman street just south of the Superior court house a five story structure of which the basement, first and second floors will be used by the builders as a clothing store. The upper stories will be divided into offices. Eventually the investment will be $500,000.

Then Kaufmann & Wolf are erecting a department store to cover an entire block which, it is stated, will represent an investment of $1,250,000. And finally a $100,000 addition is being constructed to the Gas and Electric building at Russell and Hohman streets.

As for the industrial development of the district—one of the most recent outstanding events was the purchase by the United States Gypsum company of a tract of thirty-four acres on which it is to erect a huge plant. This site is on a canal so raw materials may be delivered by boat direct from Michigan and other points.

Buys from Princeton.

The Inland Steel company bought from the trustees of Princeton university, Harvard university, and Massachusetts Tech a tract of 127 acres bequeathed to the eastern schools by Henry C. Frick. This tract extends along the Indiana Harbor canal. The price paid was reported as $543,000. Some time ago the Roxana Petroleum company bought a large site in Hammond and East Chicago that it might take advantage of the deep water facilities.

The East Chicago Dock and Terminal company recently acquired a tract and has completed the first unit of a $1,000,000 enterprise for the receipt, transfer, and reshipment of cargoes by water and rail.

Plan Gary Gold Coast.

Another big deal just closed was the purchase by George H. Wilson and associates of a 600 acre tract known as Dune acres for a reported $2,500,000. The former owners were William A. Wirt, A. P. Melton, and Oliver Starr. This is east of Gary and it is to be developed as a gold coast residential section. The purchasers propose to install a yacht harbor which will make it possible to commute by motor boat with the Chicago loop in short time.

Street and highway bonds issued by Hammond aggregate $6,000,000 for the last two years. One big improvement on the fire is a plan worked out by Edward A. Noonan of Chicago for railway track elevation and it is expected work will get under way on this in a year. According to recent figures, the population of Gary and its tributary cities is 110,000, while that of the Hammond group is 165,000.

AROUND OAKS GOLF CLUB SITE IS RELOCATED

Plans have been changed by the Around the Oaks Country club which announced last spring that it had acquired the property of the Oak Hills Golf club, a public fee course, at 131st and 76th. Victor J. LeGros, secretary and treasurer of the organization, states that the club now has under contract 240 acres having a road frontage of a mile on Will county road, a quarter mile on 123d street and a half a mile on 131st street. Plans call for two eighteen hole courses, with a water and other hazards. Both courses are to be built by Cal E. Wiman.

A clubhouse is proposed for the crest of a hill near the center of the grounds. There's to be a children's playground where youngsters may romp while their parents are on the fairways. Women are to be admitted to membership on equal terms with men. The limit of members is to be 800.

Thomas C. Irwin is president of the organization and J. Kentner Elliott is vice president. The board of governors consists of the following: Dana H. Howard, Dr. Ira E. Hoffman, Dr. W. B. Needles and Edward M. Tourtelot.

PAYS $225,000 FOR ESSEX AND 75TH ST. CORNER

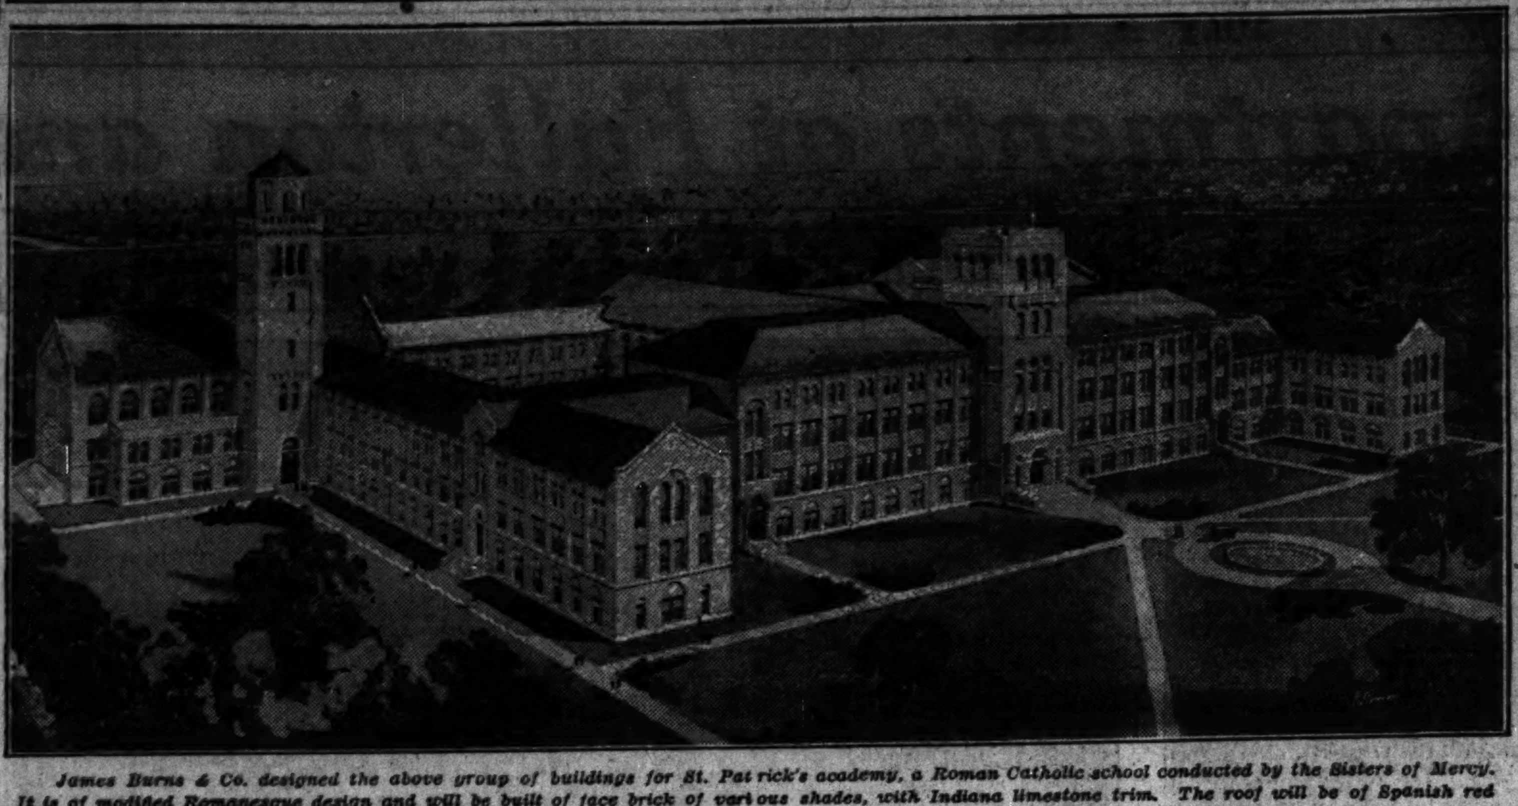
The business block at the southeast corner of Essex avenue and East 75th street, adjoining the Shore theater, recently erected, has been purchased for investment by Louis D. Schmidt, south side realty operator, for a reported $225,000, from Fred E. Downer. Emrie Beatty and B. H. Silvermann of Heffer & Beatty were brokers.

The building contains six stores and sixteen apartments and is part of the development of the block of north frontage on 75th, extending from Essex to Kingston. This block was purchased in 1925 by a syndicate composed of Mr. Downey, Edward I. Bloom and others, through the same brokers. Later it was improved with three units, one of which contains the Shore picture theater.

FLOSSMOOR TO OIL STREETS.

The Flossmoor village board has made an appropriation, subject to a like amount being raised by the Flossmoor Improvement association, to oil all unpaved streets in Flossmoor.

ST. PATRICK'S ACADEMY FOR ROMAN CATHOLIC GIRLS



James Burns & Co. designed the above group of buildings for St. Patrick's academy, a Roman Catholic school conducted by the Sisters of Mercy. It is of modified Romanesque design and will be built of face brick of various shades, with Indiana limestone trim. The roof will be of Spanish red tile. The William E. O'Neil Construction company has the general contract. H. J. Peterson made this sketch.

LARGE PLANT FOR CENTRAL FACTORY AREA

Indestro Will Build at 47th-St. Louis.

The trustees of the Central Manufacturing district have just entered into a long term lease with the Indestro Manufacturing company on 131,200 square feet of land at the southeast corner of 47th street and South St. Louis avenue on which they will erect a one and two story building for the lessee. It is stated the transaction represents about $800,000.

E. Epstein drew the plans for this addition to Chicago's manufacturing facilities. The building is to measure 360x305 feet. A mezzanine floor at the front of the structure will be used by the engineering and cost departments, while the second story at the front will be given over to the general offices, private offices and three lunchrooms.

The property is served by a switch from the Chicago River & Indiana railway.

Now on Coyne Street.

The Indestro company, which is now located at 2650 Coyne street, manufactures more than 200 products, including automotive equipment such as screw drivers, universal joints, valve lifters, drop forged hammers, wheel pullers, and wrenches. Other articles made include luggage carriers, mouse traps, bottle cappers and can openers.

The firm uses 6,000,000 pounds of steel annually in the manufacture of its wares. Its sales are made all over the world, a recent order coming from Nairobi, South Africa, where there is a white population of 3,000, with more than 7,000 motor cars and motor cycles to serve them.

H. G. Rice, president of the Indestro company, represented his firm, while J. C. Erickson and H. B. Henry represented the district. A. N. Devry & Co. were brokers.

Building for General Electric.

Another large building planned for the Central Manufacturing district is to be erected by the trustees at the southeast corner of West Pershing road and South Ashland avenue for the General Electric company. Graham, Anderson, Probst & White are the architects.

Part of the building will be one story and the balance eight stories with a three story octagonal tower. It will be used principally for warehouse purposes. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $1,500,000. Bids are to be in by July 31.

ADD 22 NAMES TO ROSTER OF REALTY BOARD

The Chicago Real Estate board has just set a new high mark for new memberships during the month, according to Pierce W. Jones, executive secretary. At a meeting of the membership committee during the week twenty-two new names were added to the board's roster. Eleven of these were active memberships, nine associate and two special associate memberships.

Those elected to active memberships were: Louis A. Albert, Robert Grant Blodgett, Thomas J. Boyer, Robert B. Clark, George B. Dors, M. Edward Gueroult, W. Burke Harmon, Raymond S. Jennings, John E. Stevens, Charles Louis Strauss, and George E. Whitmore.

FRANKLIN PARK PAVING STREETS WITH CONCRETE

Franklin Park, twelve miles west of State street between Addison on the north and Grand avenue on the south, reports considerable civic activity as under way. Five and a half miles of streets are being paved with concrete and a $90,000 sidewalk construction program is in progress. The north and south streets will be thirty feet in width and the east and west thoroughfares will be twenty feet wide. Combined storm water inlets and house drains are incorporated in the system.

PLAN $200,000 200 CAR GARAGE FOR BROADWAY

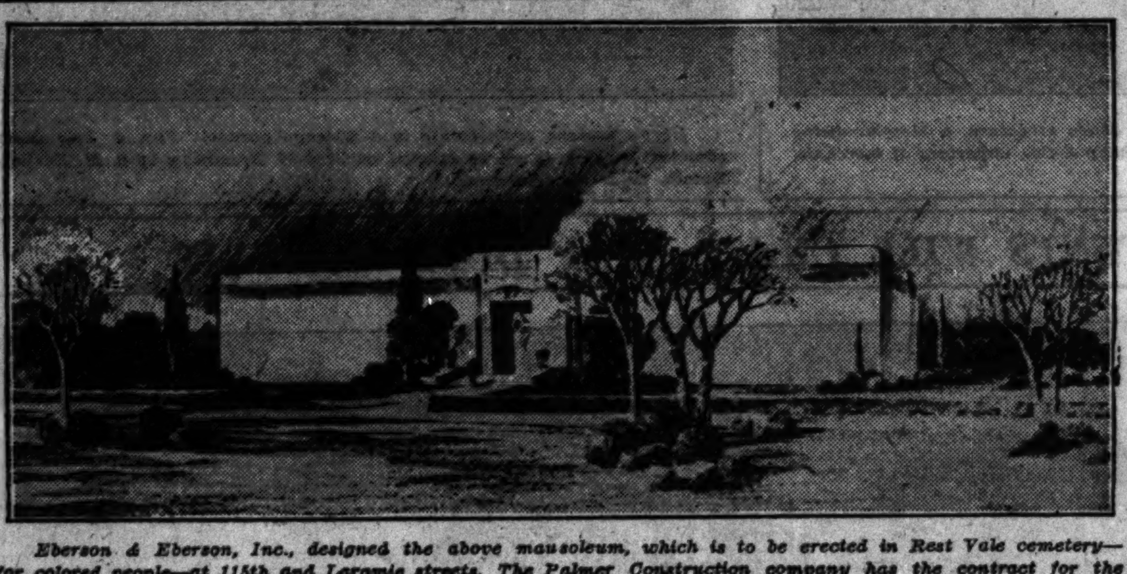
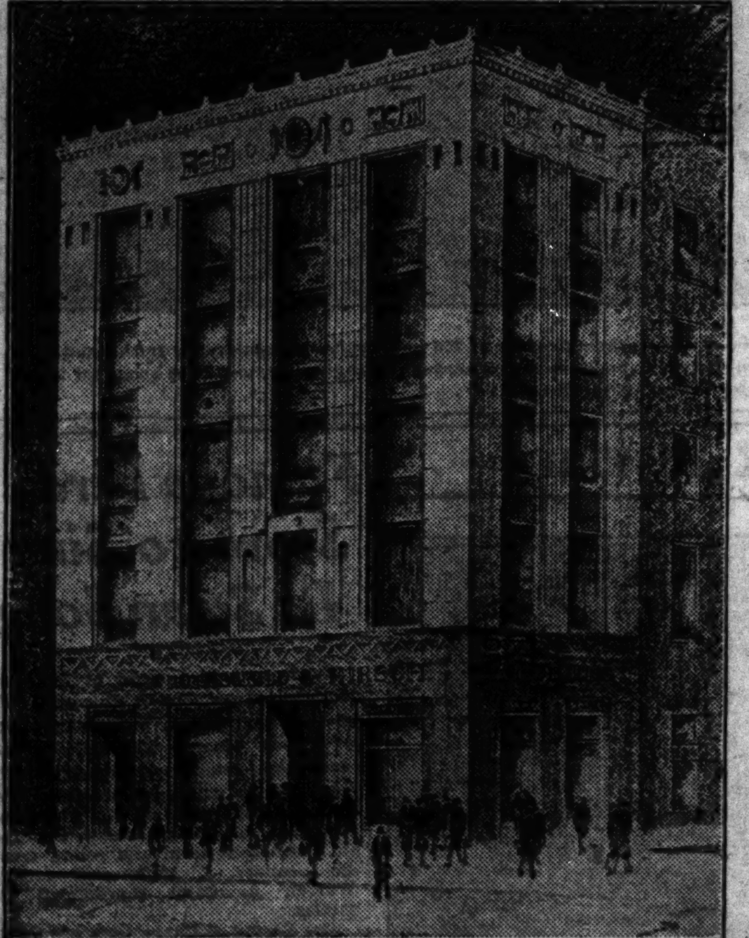
Fox & Fox have designed a two story ramp type garage to be erected at 5733-39 Broadway by S. M. Earling, which will have a capacity of 200 cars. It will have a front elevation entirely of Bedford stone with foundations capable of carrying two more stories. The building will be 85x230. Completion is planned for Sept. 15th. The land and building will cost a reported $200,000.

MAUSOLEUM FOR COLORED PEOPLE



Eberson & Eberson, Inc., designed the above mausoleum, which is to be erected in Rest Vale cemetery—for colored people—at 115th and Laramie streets. The Palmer Construction company has the contract for the structure which it is stated will cost $750,000. It is said this is the first mausoleum in the country for colored people. Walter Conley was artist.

FOR AN INDIANA SUBURB



Buckley & Skidmore are the architects who designed the above structure which is being erected by Rothschild & Hirsch in Hohman street, Hammond, Ind. The basement, first and second floors will be used as a store by the builders. The upper floors will be divided into general offices.

News of the Architects

The annual architectural tennis tournament this year will be held Aug. 4th and 5th at the Oak Park Tennis club. The committee in charge solicits the coöperation of the Chicago architectural firms for representation. They are invited to send in their entries as early as possible to J. F. McDermott of Childs & Smith, 720 North Michigan avenue.

MODERN DESIGN FOR STRUCTURE IN CHINATOWN

To Be Trade Center for Middle West.

Chicago's Chinatown in the vicinity of Wentworth avenue and 22nd street is to be enlarged through the addition of a good sized store building which is to be erected at 151-55 West 22nd street by Jay W. Rapp & Co., importers of merchandise and foodstuffs.

What's interesting is the fact that this structure will not find its architectural motif in the land of the dragon and the home of chop suey but will be ultra modern in design. Ernest Mayo and Mayo are the architects who drew the plans.

The exterior will be of cream colored terra cotta, with ornamentation of a darker terra cotta. Window fronts will be of the bronze.

This building is being erected with the idea of giving the city's Chinatown a de luxe merchandising center to draw the trade of the middle west. Hitherto, there have been only two establishments of this nature in the country—one in New York and the other in San Francisco.

The store will occupy the main floor, a mezzanine and the second story. On the third floor will be luxurious apartments for the proprietors, Jay W. Rapp and Hoy Yoon. Completion is planned for Nov. 1.

Indiana Man Sells 14 Flats, 2 Stores at 5614 Drexel

Simon McGinley of Valparaiso, Indiana, sold the fourteen flats and two stores at 5614-16 Drexel to Harold Lister for an undisclosed consideration. Mr. McGinley took in exchange a 340 acre farm near Francesville, Indiana. Charles C. Cross & Associates and McKey and Poague were brokers.

TO BUILD AT INDIAN HILL.

The Bills Realty Inc., report selling an acre on Mohawk road in the Indian Hill estates to Mr. and Mrs. George F. Gonsalves, who will erect a ten room residence.

COLLEGE BOYS MIX CONCRETE FOR EDUCATION

Work on Big Buildings Here During Vacations.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Construction work on the large office or hotel buildings going up about the city is divided into many classes. The structural iron worker, who rides high in the air on steel beams and erects the skeleton of a skyscraper, is classed as being engaged in the most hazardous branch of building work. The most laborious include caisson digging and concrete mixing.

WARREN W. KRIEBEL.

College boys, working during the summer months, are usually given work at concrete mixing. The idea of aiding college students in finding employment during vacation was first sponsored in the Chicago building industry by Samuel P. Luzzo, vice president of the building trades council.

Builders are unanimous in stating that the college boys can keep pace with the seasoned laborers.

This year Warren W. Kriebel of the University of Illinois is getting his summer vacation work out with a concrete mixing gang.

Warren's dad, W. W. Kriebel, is secretary of the O. W. Rosenthal-Cornell company, builders.

Explains Building Loan.

To obtain his degree of bachelor of arts in mathematics, Warren Junior wrote a thesis on building and loan associations which, in part, follows:

"Building and loan associations have been in existence for over 100 years, and some Illinois associations are over fifty years old. They have grown rapidly since the war, when, because of the decreased building activity, there became a shortage of homes. Rents increased, and many, who could neither afford to pay this increase nor the price of a home, found a way out by borrowing from building and loan associations.

"At the present time there are approximately 12,000 such associations in the United States, with assets of $5,000,000,000. In Illinois there are 852 associations, with about 900,000 members and assets of $300,000,000. Of these associations, 382 are in Cook county and 470 downstate. Most of the larger associations are downstate.

"Profits of the associations are derived from several sources.

"1. Interest paid by borrowers.

"2. Premiums paid by borrowers.

"3. Profit on money borrowed at lower interest rate than is paid by the association.

"4. Membership fees.

"5. Fines for delinquent payment of dues.

The interest charged is usually 6 or 7 per cent, payable weekly or monthly in advance."

Thanks for Tribunes.

Leo Jaworowski, assistant to James Petrillo, head of the Chicago Musicians' union, last week received a letter from his son who is a drummer in the Thirty-fifth United States Infantry band, stationed at Honolulu. Young Jaworowski's letter says:

"I get THE TRIBUNE every ten days. It arrives on the mail boat. I thank you very much, dad, for sending the Chicago paper. It makes a fellow feel at home to receive it. When I get through giving it the once up and down, the other members of the band want next on it."

PLAN HOSPITAL, HOTEL ON CLARK; COST $1,700,000

A major improvement is contemplated for the property at 2551-69 North Clark street, in which is now located the North Chicago hospital. Edward M. Levin bought the property for a reported $380,000, subject to $230,000. He proposes to erect an eleven story hospital building, to be leased back to the present institution, and a three story hotel and shop structure on the site which measures 208x268 feet. The hospital is to have accommodations for 300 patients and the hotel will have 100 rooms. It is stated the development will represent an investment of $1,700,000. Work is expected to get under way this fall. Knipp & Shapiro were brokers in the deal. Sidney Nierman and Irving Adler were attorneys.

LOOKING BACKWARD

To July 22, 1918; 10 Years Ago Today

The Amalgamated Machinery corporation purchased from John A. Spoor and Arthur G. Leonard, trustees of the central manufacturing district, the property on Racine avenue, on the east side of the Chicago river about 1,466 feet south of 35th street, on which it has a frontage of about 800 feet and an average width of about 1,050 feet, and about 950 feet on Racine avenue. The tract is irregular in shape, with an average length of about 325 feet. It is improved with three one story buildings, each 300x66 feet. The price paid for the property was $400,000.

A. G. LEONARD. [Waters Photo.]

Francis A. Hardy has deeded in trust his Chicago real estate holdings of an indicated value of more than $2,000,000 to the trustees of the Ridgecroft real estate trust. The trustees are Edward K. Hardy, Francis H. Hardy, and Archibald L. Young. The most valuable holdings are those at the northwest corner of Madison and Michigan.

To July 22, 1908; 20 Years Ago Today

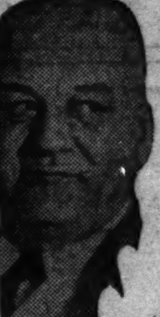
Congressman Frank O. Lowden has sold his former residence at 1912 Prairie avenue to Mrs. Isabella F. Blackstone, founder of the Blackstone library and widow of the late Timothy B. Blackstone, former president of the Chicago and Alton railway, for $69,187, thus definitely severing all his relations in a residence way with Chicago. His present address is Oregon, Ill. The house sold was erected in about 1880 by D. A. Moulton, costing for land and building about $200,000. Later it passed into the hands of Moshier T. Green, president of the Chicago Lumber company, who was drowned about ten years ago at Highland Park.

MRS. T. B. BLACKSTONE [Moffett Photo.]

Frederick A. Anderson sold to Annie Trienens the high grade three apartment building at 125 Buena avenue, between Hazel and Clarendon, with 44x192 feet of ground, for $35,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment residence property at 2215 Kenmore.

To July 22, 1898; 30 Years Ago Today

Joseph Leiter has transferred to John B. Wilson for the use of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank all the real estate held in his name, consisting of the property at 67 and 69 Washington street and 169-175 Adams street for a consideration of $1 and other good and valuable interests. Presumably the property will apply on Mr. Leiter's wheat indebtedness.



JOSEPH LEITER.

Ernest A. Mayo has completed the design of the new North Shore Suburban club to be built in Edgewater, near the lake. It will be of frame, with stone foundations, and will have cement floors, steam heat, electric lighting and hardwood trimming. There will be bowling alleys, billiard rooms, a ballroom, etc.

Ogden, Sheldon & Co. have renewed the lease of the Sheldon estate to Phelps, Dodge & Palmer of the large building at the northwest corner of 5th avenue and Adams street. The firm has occupied the property for the last fifteen years.

START WORK ON ACADEMY GROUP AT DES PLAINES

Plans have been completed by James Burns & Co., Chicago architects, and work is under way on a $1,500,000 group of buildings for St. Patrick's academy on the eighty acre tract at Touhy avenue, near Mannheim road, Des Plaines. The completed group will form a quadrangle, consisting of the main unit and several wings.

The main central administration and convent unit will have an English basement and three stories with attic. A large, square tower, with a marble stairway, will form the central feature. This unit will face south on Touhy avenue.

The chapel will form a "T" adjoining the rear of the central unit. It will be of Romanesque design, seating about 500. On the west will be the senior educational wing and at the east the junior educational wing. At the rear of the senior wing will be a modern gymnasium, with swimming pool. At the rear of the junior wing will be a large auditorium.

The buildings will have modern type laboratories, art and music studios, dormitories, private rooms, and dining rooms for nonresident girl students.

St. Patrick's academy, chartered in 1887, is conducted by the Sisters of Mercy. Classes will be opened in the new buildings next September.

Erect 5 Stores on North Kedzie; Investment $100,000

Wallach Brothers are erecting a one story building at 4730-34 North Kedzie avenue, near Lawrence avenue, to contain five stores. It is stated the investment will be $100,000. Harry Dalsey is architect.

HOME BUILDERS' DEPARTMENT

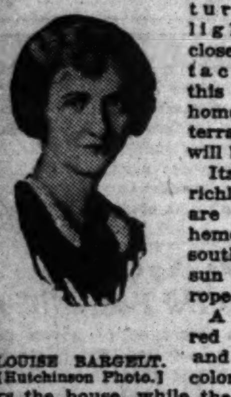
FIVE ROOM HOUSE HAVING DESIGN OF SOUTH EUROPE

Convenience and Comfort Are Its High Spots.

(A Tribune Competition House of five rooms designed by Willis J. Beck, Architect, 1019 Ainslie street, Chicago.)

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]

For the woman with a flair for sun porches, and terraces, breakfast nooks and built-in features, window lighted clothes closets and an attached garage this two story home in the Mediterranean style will be of interest.



LOUISE BARGELT.
[Hutchinson Photo.]

Its exterior is richly colorful, as are most of the homes from the southern lands of sun bathed Europe.

A Spanish tile, red fire flashed and terra cotta colored roof, covers the house, while the walls are of rough textured, light apricot stucco, feathered with wood float.

The doors are of weathered walnut; steel sash windows are installed throughout and the shutters are painted blue green, in vivid contrast to the stucco.

The entrance hall, with its tiled floor, or floor covered with inlaid linoleum or rubber tile, leads through arches into the living room and dining room. A small window in this hall gives added light to the interior and more ventilation on warm summer days.

There are no casings, the doors and windows are finished with plaster jambs, the walls are plaster, sand finish.

Floors Are Terrazo.

The floors are terrazo, monolithic with concrete slab. The sun porch opening from the dining room is of variegated red quarry tile.

An attached garage is another convenient feature of the house. It is well lighted, with overhead doors. This type of door is a recent development and is proving popular. It meets with the requirements of weather tightness, easy installation, simple manipulation and is durable. If expense is to be strictly considered, the swinging out door may be used.

On the second floor one should observe the swing downstair to the attic. Also the long, ample closet of the master bedrooms with window provided.

The bedrooms are square in shape, so arranged as to doors and windows to provide for all the major pieces of furniture usually required and also to allow for some shifting. Each bedroom opens on to an awning shaded porch with recessed seat.

Awnings Enhance Beauty.

Awnings for this home would enhance its beauty as well as serve a practical purpose.

The dome head awning or the elliptical awning is excellently adapted to the Spanish or Mediterranean type of architecture, with its arched doorways and windows. They are also effective on small houses of this type for the reason that larger awnings might appear bulky.

As the windows on the first floor are arched and on the second floor straight, the round or elliptical awnings might be used for the arched window and doorway and the boxed awning for the square windows.

If an inexpensive awning is desired, American duck serves the purpose excellently. Awnings of Italian or Venetian sail cloth are more expensive. Unless the windows of one's home are unusual in shape, awnings can be purchased ready made.

It is a wise measure for the home owner to have porch furniture, pillows, etc., covered with the awning material. In this way one does not run the danger of having too much color in the summer furnishing scheme. Wherever painted furniture is used, this too can be painted in the same general shades as the awnings.

For a stucco house of this type gay striped awnings are effective or awnings of one solid, brilliant color. Sometimes awnings are made up in two solid colors, a dark tone on the outside and a light tone underneath.

Considering how much beauty they add to a house and how much real service they render awnings are not expensive. Especially as good awnings, properly taken care of, should last from five to eight years, perhaps longer.

Answers to Questions on Home Owning

Both Are Right

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We can't seem to decide what color to have the walls of our Spanish home. My husband prefers orange and insists that white is too glaring and uninteresting. How about it? H. F.

Ans.: Orange is appropriate for the Spanish house; so is pink or yellow or buff or almost any shade. However, white can be made very interesting with a red tile roof for brilliance, and the green of the surrounding foliage echoed in the plants of the patio and the window shutters, and perhaps even the garage doors—those painted a rich blue green.

To Maintain Harmony

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We have a colonial house which we are going to paint next month. Recently a house with coffee brown shingles has been built on one side of us, and on the other a red brick house in the English style. What color can we paint our house that will make it harmonize and not clash with the houses on each side of it? Please suggest also a suitable shade of roof and trim. G. R.

Ans.: You might paint it cream or a yellow if you prefer; some yellow which inclines to buff. In this way you will still keep the colonial "tradition" and yet avoid any clash with the adjacent houses. If your siding is cream, green trim would be appropriate and a red brown roof. If the siding were yellow, you might use ivory trim and a variegated roof of greens and browns and reds.

Spanish Bedrooms

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: For a Spanish house, what colors would you suggest for the two bedrooms? Have been told that they may be plaster white in the Spanish fashion. S. A.

Ans.: You might leave one bedroom white, introducing color by means of tiles, curtains and draperies. Plain or striped linens, or heavy block pattern linens come in different shades suitable for a bedroom with white Spanish walls. The other bedroom might be decorated in rather warm colors, Madonna blue, that deep blue admired so greatly in Della Robbia plaques, or daffodil yellow or robinsegg blue.

TERRACE CONNECTING GARDEN AND HOUSE OFFERS ADVANTAGES

Connecting the house to the garden by means of a terrace has several distinct advantages.

If the living room has one side which faces the garden in the rear, one gets a better view of this garden than if one viewed it on a level.

Again, a terrace furnishes an outdoor living room for sunny days of summer, where one can have furnishings which are weatherproof and where informal meals may be served if the living room or dining room opens on this terrace by means of French doors.

Add to this same terrace an arbor at one end, and perhaps a tiny fountain at the other—it need not be a large fountain or a natural one, for by the camouflage of a few feet of pipe and a valve it can be made to resemble a trickling fountain without much effort.

There is something about the sound of dripping water on a hot day which does help to cool one. Close the eyes and listen to a fountain playing near one, and also feel an electric fan playing not far away, and many of July's heat terrors are dissipated.

ELECTRIC LIGHT IN CLOSET MAKES FOR CONVENIENCE

Give your clothes closet a light. It will repay you a hundred times over by eliminating forever the irritating business of fumbling in the semi-dark for clothes which elude and stay hidden.

This may be merely an unshaded bulb which is suspended by a cord and operated by a pull chain. Or, if you wish, this light may be connected with a switch which is operated by opening the door. The light is extinguished as soon as the door is closed.

By this latter device there is no danger of going away and forgetting the light and allowing the electric bill to mount upwards. On the other hand, if for any reason, cleaning or otherwise, one wished to let the door stand open, one would have to reach up and loosen the bulb from the socket.

Sunroom-Bedroom at Night, Sitting Room During Day

A sunroom, fitted with a disappearing bed, means that it may be used comfortably for sleeping purposes at night, and yet in the daytime offer all the uncrowded beauty of an outdoor living room.

Fireplaces on Market All Ready for Installation

Surely one need not be without a fireplace cool summer evenings or cold winter nights since ready built fireplaces, ready for installation in new homes and old, are manufactured in so many different and pleasing styles.

TWO CAR GARAGE USEFUL TO HOME IN MANY WAYS

A two car garage is never a "wasted" investment, even though the family building it may never rise to owning two cars.

The second half of the garage may either be rented, and become an income producing asset, or its space may be used to store articles of all kinds.

Or again, by erecting a slight wall board partition, the unused half may be converted into play space for the children. If the children are half grown, work benches and tools and other paraphernalia used in the practice of manual arts may be kept here.

If heavy rafters are provided, trapezes and adjustable rings may be hung and a veritable gymnasium afforded to the family.

INSULATING LATH NEW TO MARKET; HAS ADVANTAGES

Gives Excellent Backing to Plaster.

BY HOMER GRANT.

Today with insulation a building factor of such recognized importance in small homes as well as large, a new type of lath has been introduced which is causing widespread interest. This is a cane fiber board and as a plaster base it offers not only an excellent backing for plaster, but also the added value of insulation.

Insulation means living comfort and health at low heating cost.

Times have changed since our pioneer ancestors built homes of heavy timber or stone, dressed in thick woolens and were able to protect themselves against the elements adequately and cheaply.

Helps Lessen Burden

Heating expenses have risen mightily, house construction costs have soared proportionately, with the result that walls have become thinner in order to lessen expense. Therefore insulation at the present time is a solution offered to offset many present conditions and to insure the greatest home comfort at the least possible cost.

This new type of lath is made from the long tough fibers of cane and it forms a "stop" for both heat and cold. It makes possible an excellent job of plastering—with insulation—at little added first cost.

This lath is 18 inches wide and 48 inches long and comes ready for the wall and plaster. As each lath goes up a wall surface of six square feet is covered.

Its small size and light weight make easy work of lathing closets, ceilings and various restricted spaces.

Cold Weather Work.

This lath has beveled edges, which means that the bevels allow for special plaster reinforcement at the joints where cracks are most likely to occur. These long edges fit securely together and do not require a nailing base. Furthermore, since this lath has insulating properties of its own the plastering job may be done in colder weather than is usually possible and no great amount of warmth is necessary to dry the plaster out. Another advantage claimed for this lath is that it is not necessary to wet it as it comes ready for application.

Assuming that the framing is proper and the plastering of good quality this lath offers a high degree of excellence in a plastered wall. This excellence, plus its insulation asset, is a marked step forward in the building field—that vast field in which at the present time new and increasing improvements are constantly appearing for the home owner's benefit.

New Type of Door Adds to Joy of Fresh Air Fan

Ventilation through the door! It can be had, and plenty of it, by the installation of a door which has a ventilating panel at the top. This ventilator can be partially or fully open. It is designed with vertical lines, and it detracts in no way from the appearance of the door.

Elimination of Inside Keys Is Bother Reducer

The elimination of the old fashioned bother of inside keys is a never failing comfort. It is pleasant to be able to lock one's door simply without a key, merely by the act of shutting it; and unlocking it automatically by a turn of the inner lock.

What Do You Know?

1. What is the approximate cost of waterproofing the cellar walls?
2. What causes a white efflorescence which sometimes appears on brickwork?
3. What will remove this efflorescence?
4. What are the two generally accepted types of waterproofing a basement?
5. What modern home equipment assures more humidity in the air, cleaner draperies, less frequent redecorating bills as well as extra space for book shelves, flower stands and window seats?
6. Why should ashes never be placed in wooden boxes or barrels?
7. Why should chimneys be examined regularly?
8. As a fire preventive what device is wise to keep around the house?
9. What should be done first of all to kitchen walls which are to be freshly painted?
10. What type of paint usually shows stippling best—the flat tone paint or gloss paint?

FARM AND GARDEN

ROCK GARDEN MAY BE BUILT IN BACK YARD

Wilmette Man Creates Fine Example.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Grownups who still know how to play are turning more and more to their own back yards as a playground. A bare back yard is no more interesting to a grownup than a bare floor is to a child, who instinctively wants to keep his hands busy fumbling with toys. So if the back yard is to be made an interesting daily playground the grownup must have toys—not a top, train, or tinker, but a hammer, saw, boards, nails, hoes, rakes, rocks, strings, stakes, and seed catalogs. These are just as essential to the man who plays in the back yard as golf sticks are to John D Rockefeller or the mechanical horse is to the president.

Just as children grow tired of building houses with their blocks or playing train with chairs, grownups grow tired of making beds and borders where they are to grow the same flowers with the same colors every season. They want new toys occasionally and new things to build.

A Rock Garden.

F. J. Koza, an amateur suburban gardener, was in that fix not long ago. In the yard back of his home at 627 Maple avenue, Wilmette, Ill., he had experienced the fun of growing a great assortment of annuals, perennials, bulbous plants, and shrubs. But he wanted something new, something different. Now he has a rock garden and a pool. He doesn't believe he will ever grow tired of this new plaything.

Mr. and Mrs. Koza got the idea of building a rock garden at the big Chicago flower show held here a year ago last winter. At the show they bought the porous rocks which were used in a model rock garden to demonstrate how amateur home gardeners with a normal city or suburban lot can have a successful rockery. Koza liked the model garden so well he just bought the rocks from the exhibitor and moved them—ten tons of them—to his Wilmette home.

With a normal sized house on a lot 50x137 feet, Mr. Koza has found plenty of room in the corner of his back yard for this ten ton size rock garden, which is a feature of his simple but effective landscape plan. After his day's work is over as an engineer with the Chicago Surface lines he not only finds time to care for his specialized garden but, in addition, gets in a few rounds of golf each week.

Collecting Alpines.

The Kozas, like many other beginners in rock gardening in and around Chicago, are using many annuals temporarily while they are slowly collecting alpines. The stage is all set in this garden for the growing of mountain plants. Mr. Koza wisely built his rockery in a back corner of his garden and is selecting plants of various kinds so that the whole setting will be quite natural. It will soon be like a favorite mountain scene cut out of the Rockies and transplanted within four blocks of Lake Michigan's shore line.

Koza's miniature mountain scene is built around a small pool six or seven feet across. The pool is stocked with a dozen and a half gold fish that wiggle among the water hyacinths, water poppies, and pink and white blossomed lilies.

Tufa, the odd colored, cellular structured rock that comes from a surface deposit near Sandusky, O., is used in the garden. The rocks are piled several feet high back of the pool, trailing off in each direction from the corner of the lot, gradually becoming lower until they blend with the ground twelve to fifteen feet away. The rocks are tilted to catch water that trickles down into the crevices, which are filled with a rich loamy soil containing leaf mold.

Plants Grow in Crevices.

From the Des Plaines river banks Mr. Koza has brought to his rock garden five different kinds of ferns, all native of this section, including the maiden hair and Wisconsin ferns. A few small pine trees are used to make a suitable background for the rockery. A great assortment of plants stick out of the crevices of the rocks, including butterfly weed, nepeta, dianthus, phlox, several varieties of sedum, arabis, forget-me-nots, violas, campanules, veronicas, trillium, lobelias, primulas.

In a seventy-five foot border along the fence leading from the house to the rock garden, Mr. Koza has a mixed border of perennials. The border includes such plants as the phlox, coreopsis, shasta daisy, columbine, pyrethrum, veronica, iris, lily, and oriental poppy.

Making odd concrete walks and garden furniture are other playthings in Mr. Koza's backyard. He made a narrow, winding walk leading from the house through a homemade pergola to the garage. The walk is made of 10x18 inch concrete slabs with red granite screenings sprinkled over the surface.

Stump Made to Blossom.

At the corner of the house Mr. Koza transformed an old, unattractive stump into a useful piece of garden furniture by encasing it in concrete and mounting a two and a half foot concrete bowl on top. The bowl is filled with geraniums, petunias, vincas and wax begonias and is made to turn so that all of the plants are exposed to the sun daily.

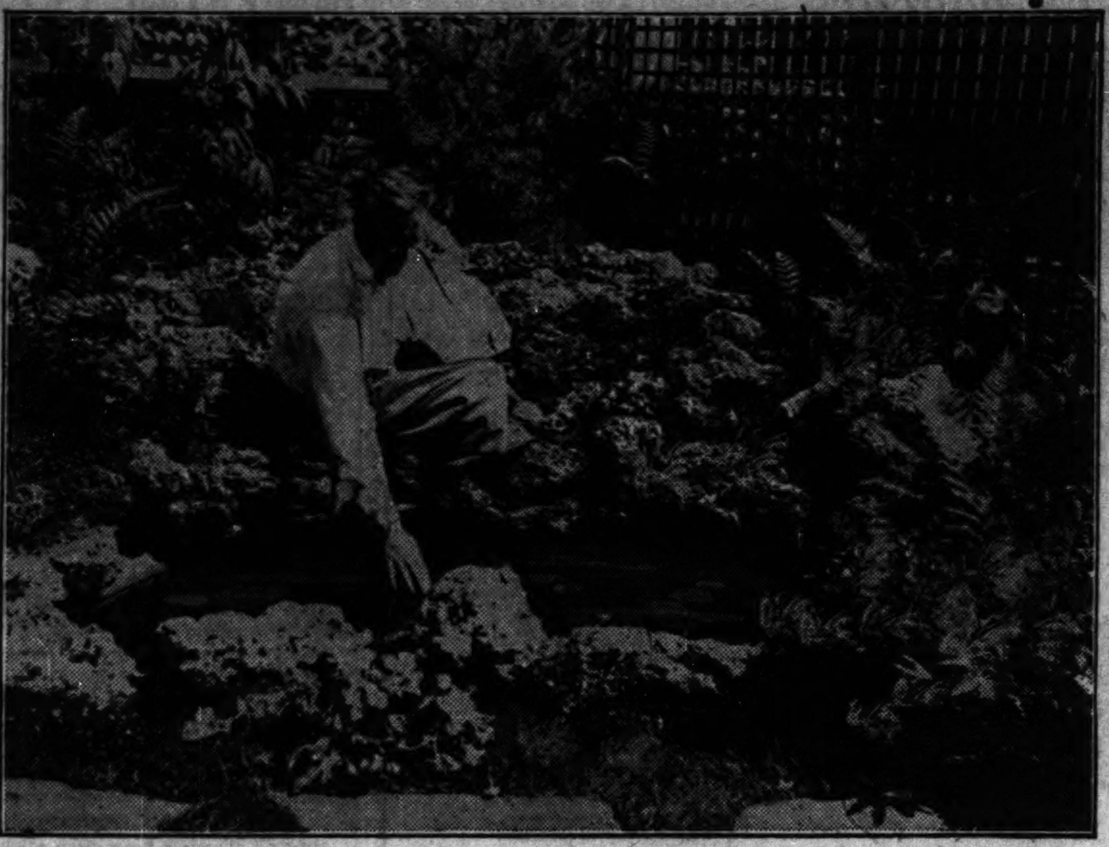
Mr. Koza has found room for three fine shade trees, two white oaks and one elm in his back yard. In building his rock garden he saw to it that the pool was put far enough away from the trees not to be disturbed by the roots. Tree roots often grow among the rocks and disturb the soil pockets in the crevices.

Garden Book Helps.

No attempt has been made here to give all the different plants grown in the Koza rockery because the plants used either by the amateur or the professional gardener are a matter of choice. There are hundreds to choose from. For example, Vols in his new book on "Home Flower-Growing," has carefully selected a list of about 148 plants, especially adapted to rock gardens, including 121 perennials, 14 annuals, and 13 bulbous plants.

Gardeners do not have to be especially skilled to build a rock garden. A back yard rockery can be built at a small cost and it will furnish an interesting feature in the home garden.

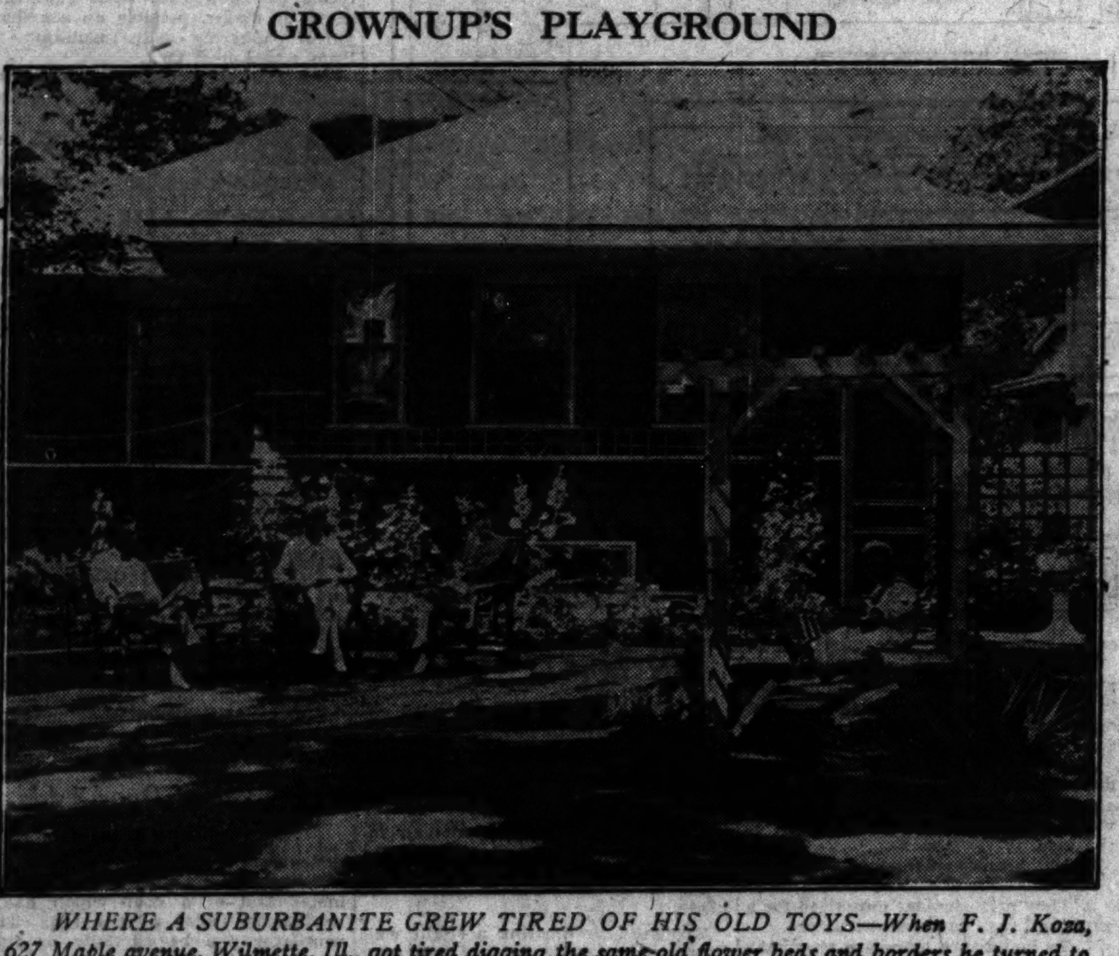
BACKYARD ROCKERY



KOZA'S MINIATURE MOUNTAIN SCENE AT HIS DOORWAY IN WILMETTE—F. J. Koza took ten tons of tufa rock and built this rock garden in his backyard at 627 Maple avenue, Wilmette, Ill. The photographer caught him straightening out the pads and feeding his school of gold fish in this pool filled with lilies, water hyacinths and water poppies.

These odd shaped rustic rocks came from a deposit near Sandusky, O. They were used in one of Chicago's flower shows, where this amateur gardener got his idea of a rock garden. Mr. Koza spends hours pottering around with his alpines, which he is establishing in the crevices of the rocks.

GROWNUP'S PLAYGROUND



WHERE A SUBURBANITE GREW TIRED OF HIS OLD TOYS—When F. J. Koza, 627 Maple avenue, Wilmette, Ill., got tired digging the same old flower beds and borders he turned to the building of a rockery that furnished endless hours of fussing and fixing and pottering with rocks and wild plants.

The urn on the extreme right was made by Mr. Koza. The pedestal is an old stump encased in concrete. The bowl on top turns easily so that the flowers on all sides can be sunned daily. Hall's honeysuckle vine is shown climbing over the pergola.

The walk running through the pergola is made of concrete slabs sprinkled with red granite screenings. Mr. and Mrs. Koza are shown on the left.

Gardener's Hot Day Hints.

If you do not have a copy of "Suburban Gardening," The Tribune's pocket size gardener's guide, copies are now available at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, or in the lobby of The Tribune Tower, for 10 cents a copy. A copy will be sent by mail for 13 cents.

Expert Gives Tips on Growing of Alfalfa

"Lime should be applied to alfalfa land several weeks ahead of the seeding. If applied during the early part of the seedbed preparation, it will be of greater benefit to the alfalfa the first year than if not applied until immediately before seeding. It is a good plan to decide early whether lime is to be applied so arrangements may be made for a supply of ground limestone," says R. I. Throckmorton of the agricultural station at Manhattan, Kas.

Clubs Choose Judges to Pick Garden Contest Prize Winners

Garden clubs throughout the Chicago metropolitan area have been busy during the last week appointing members to serve as judges in THE TRIBUNE's 1928 home flower garden contest.

All of the work of selecting the prize winners will be turned over to the judging committees representing the various garden organizations in the city and suburbs. They will start picking the best gardens on Aug. 8, according to plans announced in last Sunday's TRIBUNE.

$6,000 to Be Paid in Prizes.

Each one of the judging committees, composed of three members, will actually visit the gardens to which it is assigned, selecting the ones to the makers of which this newspaper will pay cash prizes amounting to $6,000.

Somewhere in the contest zone, which stretches out for approximately forty miles north, west, and south of Tribune Tower, there are ninety-nine gardeners who will be awarded prizes when the judges have finished their work.

DR. G. I. CHRISTIE MADE HEAD OF CANADA SCHOOL

Leaves Purdue University for Guelph, Ont.

Dr. G. I. Christie, who has been director of the agricultural experiment station and extension work at Purdue university for about eight years, will go back to Canada this fall to become president of the Ontario Agriculture college, Guelph, Ont. The school which he is now to head gave him his bachelor's degree in agriculture twenty-six years ago.

DR. G. I. CHRISTIE.
[Phillips Photo.]

He will move to Guelph and start on his new work about the first of September. Dr. Christie is 47 today and a native of Canada. Immediately after he was graduated from the Ontario school he came to the United States and in 1903 he received his bachelor of science degree from the Iowa State college where he later worked as a soil and crop specialist.

Dr. Christie has been at Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., since 1905 where he served in various capacities as an agronomist, becoming director of the Hoosier station in 1920. Since 1919 he has been director of the hay and grain show held in connection with the International Live Stock exposition, Chicago, and has served in the interest of agriculture on many important state and national commissions. Recently he has been one of the leaders in the fight against the European corn borer, serving as an official on the international European corn borer committee. Last year he was sent with other agricultural leaders to make a special investigation of the corn borer in its original European home.

POSTER SHOWS LOSS AND GAINS IN DAIRYING

Dairy experts in Wisconsin are emphasizing to farmers the important fact that high production of milk and low costs go together. This fact is clearly illustrated in a poster sent out by the University of Wisconsin graphically showing the loss and gains of three farmers who sold their milk at $2.30 a hundred.

It is shown that the first farmer sold his can of milk at the rate of $2.30 a hundred and made 20 cents, because his cows averaged 8,622 pounds of milk yearly, costing $2.10 a hundred pounds. The second farmer sold his can of milk at the same price and made 5 cents—15 cents less than the first farmer—because his cows averaged 7,130 pounds of milk yearly, costing $2.25 a hundred pounds.

The third farmer got just as much for his can of milk as did either one of the other two, but he lost 59 cents, because his cows only averaged 5,200 pounds of milk yearly, costing $2.89 a hundred pounds.

This Year's Pig Crop Falls Off Four Million

There is a decrease of seven per cent in the size of the 1928 pig crop, compared with last year, in the United States taken as a whole, and also in the corn belt, according to the government's recent survey. This means that the country is short the equivalent of 4,000,000 head of pigs, and over 3,000,000 represents the decrease for the corn belt states.

Indicated decreases for states in the corn belt were: Iowa, 7.9 per cent; Ohio, 3 per cent; Illinois, 10 per cent; Kansas, 3.1 per cent; Minnesota, 18.8 per cent; Wisconsin, 18.3 per cent; Indiana, 8.9 per cent; Michigan, 22.4 per cent; North Dakota, 10 per cent, and South Dakota, 3.5 per cent.

Increases were shown in two states Missouri with 7.4 per cent, and Nebraska with .6 per cent.

Finance——Commerce——Markets

CREDIT GROWING FASTER THAN PHYSICAL ASSETS

BY HARPER LEECH.

Perhaps the most incisive summary of the questions which have arisen in the money market was the utterance of a Chicago banker when he said, "the nation has been mistaking the richness of credit for the richness of capital."

That gets under the complications of reserve ratios, international payments, discount rates, ratios of commercial and security credit, etc., which complicate the question for laymen. Without presuming to interpret or elucidate the banker's utterance, but using it as a suggestion, the attempt is made here, rashly perhaps, to get at the core of the money market controversy from a new angle.

Avoids Pitfalls at Start.

Without entering into the fruitless discussions, which always arise when one attempts to define such terms as "credit" and "capital," we may get an idea from two estimates recently put out by competent organizations.

Stone & Webster & Blodgett of 120 Broadway recently issued a booklet "One Thousand Dollars a Second," which showed that every second of every business day the American people have been absorbing $1,000 worth of securities. They have bought from 1923 to 1927, inclusive, $34,806,780,000 worth of bonds, preferred and common stock. How much of these securities represents the creation of new physical wealth, by the use of the funds thus secured, and how much represents the sale of values of closed corporations to the public by owner managers who for purposes of diversified investment, inheritance and other things desired to publicize their concerns cannot of course be told—but in either case the bulk of these investments undoubtedly is sound.

Other Factors of Value.

No one in his senses would say credit can only be safely increased in proportion to the increase of physical wealth in a country. That would ignore the increasing productivity of brains and labor—it would ignore the fact that the capitalized earning capacity of our existing population is close to five times the estimated value of our national wealth.

Considerations such as these give the measure of validity possessed by the arguments of the expansionist party, that has contended there has been no real excess in security credit—brokers' loans, bond credit, etc.

On the other hand it is quite evident that the volume of credit, irrespective of the question of gold reserves and movements, also must preserve some sort of reasonable relation to the physical assets of the country. The rate of increase of credit must not gain too fast upon the increase of physical assets. Issuing securities on already existing assets, and then borrowing on the securities, is an indirect mode of borrowing on the physical assets—and so, to argue that the increase of capital flotations of itself justifies an increase of brokers' loans or of loans on bonds, etc., is the old device and vice of reasoning in a circle.

Signs of Circular Reasoning.

There have been traces of such reasoning in some of the complaints that the recent stiffening of money rates was "artificial"—produced by the bankers or the Federal Reserve board.

We have no measure of the annual physical increments of national wealth—we have no exact measure of the national wealth in dollars, but we do have some pretty reliable estimates.

The national industrial conference board estimates national wealth of a physical nature such that it is statistically distributable by states in terms of current dollars for the years 1923-1927, inclusive, as follows: $329,210,000,000, $334,662,000,000, $348,443,000,000, $355,391,000,000, $330,199,000,000.

Such are the fluctuations in prices or purchasing power of money that in current dollars there was little increase in wealth from 1923 to 1927. But, of course, there was a great increase of physical assets during that period. [We do not usually refer to depletion of natural resources in considering national wealth from the standpoint of a money and profit economy.]

Revaluating the Dollar.

An idea of the rate of increase of physical assets from 1923 to 1927 may be had by reducing current dollars to dollars of a constant value.

Using "1913 dollars," we find national wealth increasing, 1923-1927, inclusive, as follows: $214,190,000,000, $216,875,000,000, $219,561,000,000, $222,246,000,000, $224,931,000,000.

This indicates that in the five years there took place a growth in the physical assets of the nation, the reproduction cost of which in current dollars at the end of 1927 would have been about 15 or 16 billions, and that in the same five years we have sold of new and refunding securities an amount with a face value of over twice that sum. Considering the more rapid increase of the national income than of physical wealth, due to the increasing productivity of labor and machinery, the improvement of business organization and the fact that so many closed corporations have been capitalized and sold, we need not worry about any over capitalization of the country, but we should not blink the fact that there are dangers of inflation, unless credit control is strict.

Expenses of North Western May Nullify Larger Gross

New York, July 21.—(AP)—The Chicago and North Western railway will show slightly better gross revenues for June than the $13,580,553 for June, 1927, said Fred W. Sargent, president; but, if operating expenses continued to run at the high level of the two preceding months, June net operating income would be somewhat under the $2,852,191 a year ago. Miscellaneous freight has been holding up well in July.

N.Y. Clearing House Banks Show Decline in Deposits

New York, July 21.—(AP)—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House association shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $32,503,100 increase; net demand deposits [average], $[illegible],000 decrease; time deposits [average], $18,964,000 decrease; clearings, week ended July 21, $6,137,878,831; clearings, week ended July 14, $6,485,178,946.

Foreign Bonds Loom Large in New Financing

Foreign financing which has been in the development stage for the last few weeks has reached a head and offerings of this type in the next wee kor two are expected to lead the new bond market out of its lethargy, providing the money situation remains stable.

One of the most important issues which will reach the market tomorrow is a $15,000,000 loan of the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil, which has been purchased by Speyer & Co. The bonds will be offered at 94½ and interest to yield over 6⅝ per cent. The American portion of a $250,000,000 international loan to Roumania is expected to be offered shortly by Blair & Co. E. H. Rollins & Sons and H. M. Byllesby & Co. will shortly offer $3,396,000 city of Tucuman, Argentine Republic, external twenty-three year 7 per cent secured sinking fund gold bonds.

New Offerings Decline.

New bond offerings brought out last week totaled $22,752,000, as compared with $54,028,000 in the previous week and $73,617,000 in the corresponding period of last year. Last week's total was the second smallest of the year, the low record for 1928 having been made the week of July 6, when new offerings aggregated only $13,148,000.

The offerings of last week and the previous week, by groups, follow:

Issue.	Last week.	Prev. week.
State and Municipal	$17,002,000	$ 6,278,000
Industrial	3,700,000	16,200,000
Public Utilities	2,050,000	8,050,000
Foreign		23,000,000
Farm Loan		500,000
Total	$22,752,000	$54,028,000

The biggest offering of the week was in the state and municipal division, which was headed by $13,000,000 state of Illinois 4 per cent bonds and sold to the public on a yield basis of 4⅛ per cent. Eight other municipal issues were brought out for amounts ranging from $50,000 to $1,875,000. One public utility issues reached the market, consisting of $2,050,000 of 5½s of the Central West Public Service company, and three small industrial offerings.

State and Municipal Financing.

A drop in new state and municipal bonds to be sold this week is seen in the scheduled list. The total stands at $5,342,000 and compares with $28,354,921 last week and $19,452,930 in the previous week. The largest issue is for $1,700,000 which the state of Maryland will sell on Wednesday.

The St. Louis County Water company has sold an issue of $1,000,000 first mortgage 5 per cent series "B" bonds to P. W. Chapman & Co., and Francis Bros. & Co., who will offer them tomorrow at 99 and interest to yield about 5.08 per cent. The issue is due Dec. 1, 1945.

The Gannet chain of newspapers, owned by the Gannett Co., Inc., and scattered through New England, will offer soon through a syndicate headed by Hemphill, Noyes & Co., $5,000,000 of 15 year six per cent sinking fund debentures, series "A".

Texas Corporation Makes Important Developments

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Three important developments in the expansion program of the Texas corporation in the last month were reported to stockholders today by R. C. Holmes, president. The first was the extension of pipe line facilities to the company's light oil production in the Panhandle district, Gray county, Texas, followed by the purchase of 4,265,000 barrels of steel tankage and 3,000,000 barrels of crude oil.

Developed and undeveloped leases in this area also were obtained, with 27 wells and an estimated potential daily production of 30,000 barrels. The third step was the laying of a 12 inch trunk pipe line from the west Texas fields to Houston and a 10 inch line from Houston to Port Arthur, a total distance of 550 miles.

Business Failures Fewer; Bank Clearings Increase

New York, July 21.—There is considerable improvement in the insolvency record this week, with a total of 426 failures in the United States, according to R. G. Dun & Co. This is 40 less than last year's number, although being 12 in excess of the 414 defaults a year ago.

Among the current favorable statistical exhibits, returns of bank clearings still hold a prominent place. The aggregate of $10,358,137,000 at leading cities of the United States this week is 13.4 per cent in excess of the amount for the same period last year, while average daily payments for July to date show a gain of 12.3 per cent.

Richfield Oil Adds Stock to Complete Merger Deal

San Francisco, Cal., July 21.—Stockholders of the Richfield Oil company of California at a special meeting yesterday at Los Angeles approved the proposal of the board of directors to increase the company's capital stock from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares of $25 par value. The increased capital will be used to facilitate the exchange of Richfield shares for Pan-American Western B stock and for further expansion.

Armour Finds Meat Trade Good Despite Hot Weather

Armour & Co., in its review of general packing house trade conditions, says:

"Extremely hot weather tended to curtail consumption of some fresh meat products, but smoked meats, dry salt meats, and fresh pork products were more than able to overcome the weather handicap. Hams were in excellent demand and prices again were stronger, with other smoked meats falling in line. Dry salt meats also were well taken on a firm to stronger basis."

PUBLIC IS WARY; LONDON STOCK MARKET QUIET

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, July 21.—Speculative interest momentarily is dead in the London stock market. This may be the result of the heat wave, that vacation feeling, or general summer dullness—anyhow there is little battle being given either by bulls or bears. The latter is hopeful, indicating that liquidation has spent its force for the present so far as the general list of securities is concerned.

Public May Be Wary.

The public apparently is getting wary of the kind of questionable flotations such as sprung up overnight earlier in the year. Generally now, however, the tone is moderately steady. The money markets are comparatively comfortable. There is a tendency for discount rates to lose some of the firmness which has characterized them since the American bank rate advanced.

The issuance of another big loan for Australia depressed the markets temporarily, but later a rally in sterling exchange assisted towards a better close. A five per cent war loan reflected renewed investment and four per cent consols rallied smartly at 86.5. The new Australian five per cent loan issued at 98 was dealt around at a discount of a half. Activity again ruled in the recently issued home corporation and colonial loan scripts.

Far Eastern Shares Rise.

Far eastern stocks occupied the limelight in the foreign bond section, buying emanating from the east. This was reflected in the decided upward movement of the Chinese and Japanese bonds, most of the Chinese securities showing a gain of a point or more, while in the Japanese list there were two point rises in numerous instances.

Chilean bonds, too, are attracting interest, but Mexicans all show a loss because of the assassination of Gen. Obregon. Operators show nervousness regarding the Mexican situation.

British "Rails" Do Better.

After reaching depths of depression home rails have given a better account of themselves.

The outstanding movements in the industrial section were provided by River Plate British and Continental meat shares in an arrangement with Armour's, the latter guaranteeing interest and sinking fund payments on River Plate's seven per cent debentures and eight per cent preferred stock.

The agreements have already had striking effect, pushing up debenture stock 20 to 90, and skyrocketing preferred several points to 75. Armour's will virtually operate the River Plate works and manage the company—arrangements which, it is believed here, will bring renewal of prosperity.

Art Silks in Less Favor.

Art Silks momentarily are out of favor with the leaders all lower, while the gramophone group is dull and irregular with the exception of Victor's, which spurted to 95 on the revival of amalgamation talk.

The radio group is easier, while the markets closed the week with considerable interest in rubber and tins—being a persistent buyer of tin shares.

Paris Bourse Quieter.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 21.—The hot weather this week brought about a lack of business on the Paris bourse, furthere hampered by vacations, bad liquidation of July 15, and the month-end liquidation, which is causing uncertainty. Despite the small attendance, offers were easily absorbed, which was interpreted as an indication that the market is fundamentally sound.

The fact of the matter is that, although the market undoubtedly is firm, the bourse is learning that money is not made by the optimistic words of parliamentarians and such factors as war inflation and stabilization have not resulted in producing wealth.

Bank stocks and rentes were good, although they slipped down Tuesday, recovering slowly during the remainder of the week. After opening weak the market showed a general advance, apparently because it was oversold in the last few days. On the other hand large funds seeking employment as carry-over money only partially were taken up, resulting in the carry-over rate dropping to 3½ per cent, as contrasted with 5 per cent on the previous settlement.

Better at Week's Close.

The market became more firm Thursday, when the bi-weekly settlement ended, passing off without great difficulty, although, due to the differences, the buyers were forced to meet the heavy price fall in the last two weeks. The close of the week was not exicting, but witnessed a slight upward movement in banks, rails, electric power, Suez canal, rubber, and other stocks.

The Bank of France statement shows 29,403,240,563 francs, which was an increase of 227,263,618 francs over the preceding week, representing a slight run over the promised margin of 40 per cent, but being a safe distance from the legal limitation of 35 per cent.

American Investors Press British in South America

New York, July 21.—American investments in South America are catching up with British, and are having a profound influence in the development of the country, Arthur W. McCain, recently elected vice president of the National Park bank, said on his return from South America. While the British control a number of important industries, notably the railroads, American investments in hydro-electric development and in the packing industry have been mounting steadily. The two nations now are nearly on a parity in the total investment of capital, he said.

Finds Heavy Construction Shows a Seasonal Decline

While the volume of proposed construction that is being announced in the heavy construction field shows a decline, compared with earlier in the year, the drop appears to be no more than seasonal. Projects that reached the proposed stage in the last week, covering the entire country, were valued at $57,650,000, as against $54,250,000 in the previous week, and $60,275,000 in the corresponding week last year, the McGraw-Hill Construction Daily reports.

TOPICS OF FINANCE AND TRADE

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago for the week ended July 18, 1928, by 250 banks in 37 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,589,970,000, an increase of 1.8 per cent compared with a week ago [$1,561,485,000]. Compared with the corresponding week of last year [$1,410,366,000], an increase of 12.7 per cent was shown.

Phillips Petroleum company, largest manufacturer of natural gasoline, reports a better market for that product than at any time since January, 1927. Little material is available in the mid-continent, either for immediate or over the month shipment, with a similar outlook for August. Increased demand by refiners for natural gasoline for blending with low gravity west Texas and Venezuela crudes has caused an upward price trend.

During the first half of 1928 about 35 per cent of railroad financing was accomplished through the sale of stock and the balance represented bonds. The ratio of stock sales to bonds was the highest in the railroad group for any similar period in the last five years. Total financing by the railroads for the period amounted to $511,032,350, of which $174,052,350 was stocks. Of the stock sales, $34,097,650 represented new capital and the balance went for refunding purposes. The bulk of the new financing, or $302,752,200, was used for refunding operations.

Production of lead by countries furnishing about 90 per cent of the world's output was 131,263 short tons in June, against 131,949 tons in May and 137,553 tons in June, 1927, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. Output of slab zinc was 123,830 short tons in June, against 127,476 tons in May and 116,533 tons in June, last year.

Stockholders of Independent Oil and Gas have approved an increase in capital stock to 2,000,000 shares from 1,000,000 shares and acquisition of Manhattan Oil company through an exchange of stock on the basis of one and one-half shares of Manhattan for one of Independent.

H. C. Frick Coke company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, has blown out 300 coke ovens in the Connellsville district, comprising two plants. This leaves but one plant, or fifty ovens, in operation. A similar recession was practiced late in October of last year.

Stockholders of the Travellers Insurance company have approved an increase in the company's capital stock from $15,000,000 to $17,500,000. The increase in capitalization provides for the issuance of 25,000 shares at par of $100 a share to stockholders of record at the close of business on June 18, payment to be made on or before Sept. 20.

Sales of electrical equipment throughout the country are at a normal level for this time of the year, with the trend on the Pacific coast and in the middle west slightly upward, Electrical World says. Business was fairly active in small apparatus, but rather quiet in heavy equipment the last week.

Increased sales of Willys-Overland company cars expected in Europe during the next year has caused the company to let a contract for an addition costing $250,000 to the new $1,000,000 export building recently completed.

Pacific Lighting corporation officials announced the purchase of the capital stock of the Santa Maria Gas company, which, with one exception, is the last of the independent gas companies of California. The new acquisition will retain its corporate identity and no physical merger is contemplated.

Total melt of fifteen United States sugar refiners from Jan. 1 to July 14, according to the Sugar Institute, Inc., was 5,271,195,889 pounds, against 6,267,230,330 pounds from Jan. 1 to July 16, 1927.

More than 500 manufacturing plants were established in 1927 in the principal cities of the fourteen states in which the Illinois Central system operates. These new plants employ approximately 25,000 persons.

Heavy melting steel scrap No. 1 has touched $13.75 a ton in the Pittsburgh district, a decline of 25c. Sales were reported at $13.50, but only for certain delivery points.

Sinclair Refining company has advanced the wholesale tank car market price of gasoline ¼c a gallon to 8¾c in the midcontinental area.

Collateral Trust Bonds.

Collateral trust bonds are secured by the pledge or deposit of other collateral securities, either stocks or bonds.

These collateral securities may be those of the company issuing the bonds, of its subsidiaries, or of other companies.

The safety of collateral trust bonds is, of course, largely dependent on the character of the collateral securities securing them.

The securities of other companies entirely foreign to the issuing company are probably the most desirable form of collateral.

The form of the collateral securities is also of importance, i. e., whether they are stocks or bonds.

If the collateral bonds are secured by stocks, the prospective purchaser should be careful to ascertain the nature of these stocks.

Such bonds will fluctuate on the market in sympathy with the stocks securing them and will also be quite responsive to market changes.

Such bonds are often a good speculative buy, but are not, as a rule, a conservative investment.

Collateral trust bonds have been used quite extensively in financing holding companies and railroads and are a convenient form for the corporation, because of the readiness with which the bonds can be withdrawn and the collateral securities sold.

Where the trust deed gives the corporation the right to substitute collateral of equal value for the underlying collateral the bondholder has little security.

This right of substitution is too frequently abused and there is too much temptation for the corporation to speculate with its collateral holdings.

There is also a possibility of future weakness if the collateral bonds are issued for the purpose of paying off the company's floating debt or if they are secured by those of the company's own stocks or bonds which could not be marketed.

In the purchase of collateral trust bonds, therefore, it is important to examine the terms of the trust deed and also the nature of the collateral securities which underlie the issue.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $662,200,000, a decline of $54,700,000 from the preceding week and a decrease of $14,200,000 from the corresponding period of last year. Balances totaled $55,200,000, the same as the preceding week, but a decrease of $12,600,000 from the same week of 1927. The figures for the week, day by day [with last three ciphers omitted] follow:

Clark Finds Oil Industry More Stable Than in Years

New York, July 21.—E. W. Clark, executive president of the Union Oil company of California and president of the American Petroleum institute, characterized the domestic oil situation as better stabilized than it has been for a number of years.

"For the first time in its history," Mr. Clark stated, "the oil industry has blocked out known reserves of crude which insure an adequate supply of its basic raw material for many years to come. This has removed a large degree of uncertainty which has heretofore been inseparable from the business of producing, refining and marketing oil. With this as a basis we can go forward with confidence that an era of prosperity lies ahead of us."

Chicago Grocers Report Good Business Conditions

Wholesale grocers of the Chicago territory are optimistic concerning the future business outlook, according to a survey completed by the Chicago Association of Credit Men. Both collections and sales for June have been better than last year, a majority of the wholesalers reported, while 87.5 per cent of the group expect further improvement in both these divisions this fall. A majority of the grocers also expressed the belief that business will become more settled this fall and that future orders will hold up well.

Chicago Curb Market Does 5,965 Shares First Week

The total number of sales on the Chicago curb exchange during the first week of its existence was 5,965 shares. The largest single day's transaction was on Saturday, July 14, the opening day, when 1,525 shares were sold. The next biggest day was Thursday, with sales of 1,300 shares. On Friday 600 shares were traded in, but yesterday [illegible] no trades.

Sales of Life Insurance Show Gain Over Last Year

Hartford, Conn., July 21.—The volume of ordinary life insurance sold during June amounted to $805,695,000. June ends the first half of this year with an excellent record for the six months period. New business for the year to date is 4 per cent better than during the corresponding period last year. The extent of the monthly increase is indicated by the fact that 55 per cent of all the reporting companies experienced increased sales over last June. All sections share the country's gain with the exception of the South Atlantic section. The figures have just been issued by the Life Insurance Sales Research bureau.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET DULL; PRICES SEESAW

Chicago stock trading was the usual week end dull affair yesterday with active issues numbering less than half a dozen. The outstanding strong spot was Godchaux Sugars, which was taken in hand by a pool recently after being on the inactive shelf for years. The company has improved its earnings lately and the pool has acted accordingly. Yesterday's close was 15¾, a net gain of 2¾ on the day.

Sonatron Tube managed to withstand most of the week-end profit taking and closed up a major fraction. A small fractional gain was made by Atlas Stores. Zenith Radio was the subject of realizing sales and dropped 3 points to 85½. Standard Dredging was down a small fraction.

Stewart-Warner Advances.

On small sales, Stewart-Warner sold up 2¾ and Art Metal Works finished 2 points higher. The preliminary account of Art Metal works as of June 30, 1928, shows net earnings for the six months, after depreciation and federal taxes, of $399,199, equivalent after preferred dividends to $3.30 per share earned on the 110,000 shares of common stock. The preliminary balance sheet shows current assets of $1,130,343, of which $464,111 is cash, against liabilities and tax reserves of $216,436, as net quick asset ratio of over five to one. Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee preferred sold off 2¾ and losses of around a point were felt by Bendix B and Middle West Utilities.

For the week as a whole, prices showed improvement, although total sales registered a decline of 100,000 shares to 319,000 from the previous week. This compares with sales of 170,700 in the corresponding period of last year. For the year to date, total sales were 15,442,827, compared with 4,966,200.

The fifty most active stocks during the week showed an increase in market values of a bit over 2 per cent. The total value of these stocks is given as $594,503,297 in a compilation by Lage & Co., as compared with $581,929,281 at the end of the previous week.

Zenith Radio established the biggest gain of the week, moving up to 12 points to 85½. American Shipbuilding closed 10 points higher, although sales were confined to a small amount. Kalamazoo Stove climbed 7½ points, and gains of from more than 3 points to 5 points were established by Borg-Warner, Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry, United Paperboard, Super Maid, Q. R. S., Grigsby-Grunow, Atlas Stores, Standard Dredging, and Bendix B.

Several Issues Slump.

Great Lakes Dredge headed the down side with a loss of 10 points. The decline came on Friday as bids on the Chicago river straightening project which were opened during the day showed the company to have not been the lowest with their bid. Indian Refining sold off 5 points, Yates Machine was down 4 points, and Independent Pneumatic Tool eased 3½. Losses of from one to 3 points were felt by about 15 other issues including Wayne Pump, Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee preferred, and Auburn Automobile. About 25 issues sold up from one to 3 points.

Activity in the bonds brought only fractional net changes with the exception of Texas Water Utilities 6s, which gained 2 points.

United States Gypsum Co. Wins in Patent Litigation

Cleveland, O., July 21.—A plea for a stay of injunction in the suit brought by the United States Gypsum company of Chicago against the American Gypsum company of Port Clinton, O., yesterday was denied by Judge John Paul Jones in the United States District court here. The suit was brought for alleged patent infringement in the manufacture of gypsum wallboard, and Judge Jones ordered the American Gypsum company to cease manufacture of the type of wallboard covered by the patent by Aug. 9.

Decision in favor of the United States Gypsum company was handed down by Judge Jones on July 2, at which time he ordered the case to a master in chancery for determination of damages occasioned by the infringement.

Sinclair Pipe Line Plans Another Lead to Chicago

The Sinclair Pipe Line company, jointly owned by Standard Oil of Indiana and Sinclair Consolidated Oil, is planning a $15,000,000 pipe line to enlarge its line facilities from Cushing, Okla., to the Chicago district. This will be one of the largest pieces of oil industry line construction in recent years.

Supplementary to this plan, which probably will be carried out in the main this year, are contemplated expansions of large extent in capacity and operations of both Standard's Whiting refinery and the Sinclair Refining company's East Chicago plant.

Chicago Bank Stocks Quiet and Irregular

Trading in bank stocks was rather light last week and sentiment much unsettled. Continental National Bank and Trust was in good demand, being quoted 545 bid, offered at 550. Interest seems to lag in Illinois Merchants, and at 877 bid, 880 asked, it was down 15 points from previous transactions. Foreman National was unchanged at 815 to 820.

First National and National Bank of the Republic were both 5 points easier, the former at 793 to 796, and the latter at 529 to 533. Six hundred and sixty-three was again bid for shares of State Bank of Chicago but it failed to bring out stock. Bank of America changed hands between 390 and 395. Union Trust was dealt in around 840. Chicago Trust and Central Trust Company of Illinois were an exception to the general trend, improving slightly over former sales. Chicago Trust was traded in between 481 and 485, an increase of 5 points; while Central moved up to 525 bid, offered at 530.

Industrial Issues Irregular.

There was little of special interest in the miscellaneous group, gains and losses being well distributed. Greenebaum Investment rose to sales of 625, but it was offered down toward the close to 600 without attracting buyers, at better than 585. Hart Parr common had a considerable decline on receipt of a letter from the president of the company offering a plan of recapitalization without subscription rights for present stockholders. Earnings are reported ahead of last year. After being traded in around 35½ it firmed up to 37½ bid, 39 asked.

Borg Warner preferred was traded in between 100½ and 101½. Chicago Daily News common was a point higher at 63 to 63¾, as was the preferred at 102¼ to 102¾. Offerings of Continental Steel at 32½ failed to attract buyers at better than 31½. Creamery Package was neglected and a point easier at 37¼. There were a few reported trades in Dodge 8% preferred at 22, up 1½.

Godchaux Sugar Rises.

Godchaux Sugar preferred was in good demand and rose 10 points to sales at 64. Stock was offered a point and a half lower at the close, with no bids. Federal Electric common and preferred continue steady at 44 bid and 102 bid, respectively. National Gypsum receded to 23 bid, offered at 25, off 3. The preferred was also slightly easier at 64 to 66. After a period of inactivity Northwestern Yeast was traded in at 195.

McCord Manufacturing issues were quoted as follows: Common, 9½ to 10; class A, 69 to 70½; offerings at 17½ for the debenture shares failed to attract buyers. Staley Manufacturing lost another 10 points in changing hands at 245. Wahl preferred was a trifle better at 78 to 80.

Institute of Agriculture to Join League of Nations

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune].

ROME, July 21.—The International Institute of Agriculture, which was established by convention in 1905, will be completely overhauled and will become a technico-agricultural branch of the league of nations, it was announced today. At the same time, the institute's constitution and bylaws will be radically modified so as to give the organization a more international character.

The present plans for modification of the institute follow the withdrawal last January of the American representative, Asher Hobson, with the approval of the United States department of agriculture. Mr. Hobson withdrew to Geneva and established a special American agricultural bureau there, claiming that the institute was not sufficiently technical in character, and objecting to the present system by which the institute's representatives are diplomats and not agricultural experts.

Woodlawn Trust & Savings Elects New Vice President

Directors of the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank yesterday elected Arthur H. Meyer, connected with the Continental Bank and Trust company for years, to the office of first vice president. Henry T. Boberg was promoted from assistant cashier to cashier.

STOCKS DECLINE ON BEAR DRIVE AS WEEK ENDS

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net change.
25 railroads	117.95	117.62	117.75+	.60
25 industrials	256.60	254.73	255.21—	.40
50 stocks	187.27	186.17	186.48—	.15

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—The stock market ended the week today with a downward movement that was accentuated toward the close when bear traders launched a drive against some of the pivotal issues. Previous to this raid prices had advanced moderately in dull trading.

The professional attack was centered on Freeport Texas, which was hammered down 6¾ points. Bear traders sensed an over-extended speculative position in this issue and also used the fact that the company's earnings report for the second quarter failed to show the expected increase over a year ago. Selling pressure then was directed at other parts of the list and most of the market leaders yielded.

Debate Credit Situation.

The market continued almost entirely professional, with public participation apparently waiting a clearer definition of the credit situation. There was considerable comment on the disproportionate amount of corporation and individual funds being loaned on call. These funds now are about double the loans of the New York banks and should need for them develop, loan calling probably would be heavy and the banks should be confronted with an additional burden.

On the other hand, there were opinions that the gold export movement is nearing an end and there also are signs that the general credit situation is slowly improving. With these diverse influences, the stock market continued to drag and the volume of trading today was only 558,800 shares.

Market Leaders Decline.

The decline of the market today affected both the standard industrials and high grade dividend payers, as well as some of the specialties. Allied Chemical supplied some action in the first hour by advancing a couple of points, but it relapsed later and finished with a net loss of more than a point. General Motors and Radio declined 2⅝ and 2⅜ points, respectively. American Smelting sagged a point, and United States Steel lost nearly as much.

Most of the motor, steel and equipment issues followed the leaders. Net losses of a point or more were incurred by Colorado Fuel and Iron, American Car and Foundry, American Locomotive, Hudson Motor, International Combustion, and Lima Locomotive. Briggs Manufacturing, however, gained more than a point.

Other Issues Irregular.

The merchandising and chain store issues were irregular. Profit taking brought a decline of three points in National Tea, while Montgomery Ward and Kresge Department Stores lost 2⅛ and a point, respectively. On the other hand, McCrory Stores A jumped 3⅝ points, while Kroger Grocery advanced 1¾ points.

In the general industrial list, Union Carbide ran into selling and declined 2⅝ points, while smaller losses were shown by Advance Rumely, Atlantic Refining, Brunswick Balke, Canada Dry, Curtiss Aero, Deere preferred, Gold Dust, Greene Cananea, United Fruit, and Wright Aero. But Case Threshing soared 8½ points, and gains running up to three points were made by American Beet Sugar, Columbia Gas, International Telephone, Lehn & Fink, Loose Wiles, Mathieson Alkali, Mexican Seaboard, National Biscuit, Pathe Exchange A, Warren Brothers, and Western Union.

WAVE OF SELLING HAMMERS DOWN PRICE OF WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Selling of wheat futures was persistent here yesterday. Prices declined sharply, closing near the bottom. Hedging pressure came from the southwest and the northwest, scattered holders of wheat were dislodged from their position and there was active selling credited to a prominent operators.

Nearby deliveries came close to lowest prices for the season, while December reached a new low point. September dropped to $1.26⅜ and closed at $1.26½@1.26⅝. Prices for the day were 1⅞@2⅝c lower. Corn closed ⅝@1c lower; oats, steady to ½c lower, and rye, 1⅞@2⅜c lower. September corn closed at 96⅜@96⅝. For the week wheat shows a decline of 5@6⅜c, corn 1c higher for July and ¾@1⅜c lower for deferred months; oats, ½c higher to 1⅝c lower, and rye, 6⅝@11c lower.

Buying Fails to Halt Slump.

Buying of wheat was good at times, but it did not have much effect on the market on account of the heavy offerings. Winnipeg was heavy and this was a depressing influence, while the trade at the outset was affected by disappointing action at Liverpool. The latter market closed ⅜d lower. Canadian wheat is being pressed for sale at prices lower than any other wheat. There was some business at the seaboard, but figures were not given out. Weather is clearing in the southwest, and movement there is heavy. Fair weather is also forecast for the northwest, while temperatures up there remain mild and progress of black rust is retarded. Canadian crop reports were very favorable.

Long Corn Unloaded.

Recently bought corn was dumped on the market and prices were lower in consequence. July corn was higher at the outset on local buying, but later became weaker than deferred deliveries. Commission houses sold considerable corn, and there was no active buying. Support was local in character. Receipts were large, and there were 990,000 bu booked to arrive.

Demand for spot corn lagged, and basis was lower. December corn was sold freely by an Omaha house, and reached a new low point for the season. The crop is making rapid advancement, and conditions generally are reported as almost perfect. Holders of July corn are taking delivery of the grain which shorts are making big efforts to bring to this market.

Oats were affected by the weakness of other markets, and there was liquidation by longs. Buying was scattered with some investment demand for December. Receipts were light, but only choice oats are meeting with demand in the spot market. Weather conditions were not favorable for harvest operations, and early movement of new crop is dependent upon this.

Liquidation by discouraged holders and the weakness of the wheat market made a heavy market for rye. Buying on the break appeared to be of fairly substantial character, and was partly credited to cash interests. There was no fresh export trade reported.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

"Weather since July 1 has been generally favorable and all crops made good progress. The season is considered ahead of last year," says the mid-month South Dakota crop report. "Black rust, while present in small quantities, has not as yet attacked the head stem. In the southern half of the state corn is nearly laid by and harvesting of barley began before July 15. Harvesting of wheat and oats began the first of the week. By the first of next week harvesting of oats and barely will be under way in the rest of the state. In northern counties a considerable portion of the acreage will probably be cut for hay on account of short straw. In some localities 50 per cent of the acreage will be harvested in this way."

The Winnipeg Free Press report says: "Wheat makes good progress, majority of wheat headed in Manitoba, over 80 per cent headed in other provinces. Good crop of oats and barley developing. Damage from plant diseases almost negligible; damage from hail practically all in Saskatchewan. Rust development dependent on weather, moisture plentiful for filling of crop; spirit of optimism generally prevalent."

H. C. Donovan wires Logan & Bryan from Moosejaw, Sask.: "From Weyburn to here wheat promises an average close to 30 bu. Some of the fields uneven in growth due to late germination in spots, which means a drawback in grade from possible unevenness in ripening, but not to yield in bulk. Heads are extra long and filling well. Moisture enough to do until harvest. Some traces of black rust, which weather continues to hold in check."

George C. Bryant wires from Delmas, Sask.: "Saskatoon to Biggar, Battleford and here wheat fields very patchy with thin stand and quite weedy. Farmers generally are expecting less than average yield until leaving Battleford, when considerable improvement is apparent. Oats all slightly better than wheat throughout this section."

LARD PRICES LOWER

Moderate selling by commission houses and especially those who are credited with being the largest holders, with limited buying pressure, carried prices down, especially as hogs were easier, and lard futures closed 7½c lower on the active deliveries. Liverpool was 3d to 6d higher on futures. Export clearances were 140,000 lbs.

Ribs were unchanged to 5c lower, with limited trading, while bellies were 2½c higher to unchanged. Shipments of lard and meats for the week were smaller than the previous week and larger than last year. Prices follow:

NEW HAY ON MARKET

Three cars of new timothy hay reached Chicago on Saturday, the first of the season, but was not sold up to noon. Arrivals of all kinds of hay were 40 cars, heaviest in recent weeks. There were also 3 cars of packing hay. While the demand was good, the market had an easy tone.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The wheat market was called on to take steady selling by northwestern and southwestern hedgers, as well as that from local traders, who in the main are bearish. All traders are willing to admit that the market should have a rally after the recent heavy decline, as it is considered oversold. The traders have it that the local operator who was recently on the bull side in Winnipeg largely is short in Chicago. The general impression is that for the moment wheat has had enough break, but all bulges bring selling pressure.

Expectations are that the run of wheat at Kansas City on Monday will be very heavy. Loadings throughout the southwest, while large, were not as heavy as during the previous week. Based on the report of the Santa Fe railroad business, which aggregated 10,537 cars of all grain, mostly wheat, compared with 11,601 cars the previous week, and 2,997 cars last year.

A large cash grain handler operating in the Missouri river territory says that supplies of corn in the west are very light, while the demand from consumers keeps up at a good rate, averaging around a car for each town. He sold 40,000 bu yesterday to about as many different places throughout the west, southwest, with some in the middle west. There are no indications of any increase in the movement, he says, as the corn is not there.

A Board of Trade membership sold at $10,600, or $100 more than the last previous sale.

A Moscow cable to the London Times says that 5 billion poods, or 180 billion lbs of all grains is the latest estimate of the coming harvest in Russia. The soviet minister of trades announced that he had raised the estimate of his colleague premier, who a week ago said the crop would be 4 billion 900 million poods.

"New crop corn conditions are very favorable and could hardly be improved upon with the good rains and the fairly warm temperatures," says J. E. Bennett. "We, however, anticipate that old corn supplies, before new crop moves, will be scarce, and feel that higher prices for September corn will be seen."

Broomhall says that over ten million bushels of Canadian wheat has been sold abroad this week; also that a lot of Argentine wheat is tied up at Rosario owing to the port strike, which will have to be placed elsewhere. Canadian wheats are very cheap at the present level, and No. 3 Manitobas are in plentiful supply, although it is thought if the weather keeps favorable until harvest in Canada there will be an abundance of No. 1 and No. 2 grades, with a shortage of lower grades next season.

"The price of wheat has declined to a point where the chief exportable grade of Manitobas is below an accepted parity with Liverpool," says Thomson & McKinnon. "Therefore there should be a continuation of foreign demand to the extent to stopping the declining tendency of the market. From the standpoint of world prices our market is now on neutral ground and should prove more stable. Heavy receipts in southwestern markets over Sunday will color today's market."

Argentine exports of wheat so far this season have been 148,456,000 bu. Broomhall says that the remaining surplus is officially estimated at 35,000,000 bu, making a total for the season of 183,000,000 bu, provided there is no carry-over. The crop was officially estimated at 18,000,000 bu more than in 1927, from which exports were 160,000,000 bu. He says that it is thought that shipments will exceed last year by a fair margin.

COTTON PRICES LOWER

A decline in Liverpool, with a net loss there of 13 to 16 points, was mainly responsible for sufficient scattered selling to offset the effect of rains in northwest Texas and of increased activity of boll weevil in Texas and Arkansas.

Closing trades were slightly above the inside figures, with losses on futures in Chicago of 8 to 15 points, while the close was unchanged to 15 points lower. In other markets losses were 3 to 13 points. Spots were unchanged in New Orleans at 20.90c, with New York off 10 points to 21.10c, Houston and Galveston 20.75c. Prices follow:

Saturday's hog market was on the toboggan again. Prices went down 15@25c more, reaching the lowest point since late in June. Best sold at $11.10, with the average $10.40 standing 60c lower on tops and 50c off on the avarege compared with last Wednesday, high day of the year. Demand was indifferent and 7,000 remained in the pens. Pigs declined sharply; quality fair.

Small Receipts of Hogs.

Week's receipts of hogs at 133,300 were second smallest in ten weeks, nearly 8,000 smaller than previous week and 10,000 below the five year average for corresponding week since 1922 at Chicago.

Estimated average weight of hogs received at Chicago last week 239 lbs, the heaviest since last October, and 13 lbs heavier than the first week of last January, the lightest of the year at 226 lbs. Week stood 7 lbs lighter than the five year average.

Top hogs reached $11.70 during the week, highest since last October. Week's average price at $10.80 also stood highest of the year, $1.50 above a year ago, and 75c higher than the five year average.

Lambs Average $15.50.

The average price paid for lambs during the last week was $15.50 compared with $15.90 the previous week. Although the average shows a decline of 40c, opening and closing prices were but little different. Top western lambs sold at $15.85 early in the week and at $15.75 late. The average for native lambs alone was $15.15, compared with $15.50 for the previous week. Bulk of the fat lambs arrived from Idaho and Washington as well as from native pastures and feed lots. Demand for lamb and mutton was curtailed at most of the large consuming centers by the extremely hot weather.

Yearlings Gain 40c.

Good and choice yearlings and baby beeves advanced 40c during the last week and a new top of $16.70 was paid for little cattle. Heavy steers and all medium grades and grass cattle suffered rather severe price declines. At the close of the week cases of 75c to $1.00 dcline were noted on grass cattle. There were many good and choice yearlings on sale, and the average price for the week at $15.15 stood 10c above the previous week's average. Butcher stock showed little change during the week, prices strengthening if anything. Bulls lost 25c, calves dropped $1.00 to $1.50, and stock cattle were so scarce that the market was more or less a nominal affair.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 17,000 cattle, 44,000 hogs, and 16,000 sheep, against 15,640 cattle, 44,199 hogs, and 14,385 sheep a week ago, and 14,252 cattle, 43,014 hogs, and 14,067 sheep the corresponding day a year ago.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The Australian government plans a $96,000,000 bond issue to meet a war loan maturing in September, according to a Sydney dispatch. This will be the final financing in the Australian government program for the fiscal year ended June 30. The loan will bring the total public borrowing of the commonwealth in the year ended June 30 to approximately $545,000,000, of which $90,000,000 was raised in New York, $185,000,000 in London and $270,000,000 for conversion purposes in Australia. Terms of the new conversion loan are to be the same as for the previous loan of the same character—interest at 5¼ per cent with the issue price 98½.

Trading in United States government issues, foreign government loans, foreign and domestic corporation bonds on New York stock exchange in June, 1928, fell to $261,402,000 from $278,152,000 in May and from $323,306,000 in June, 1927. Daily average sales were: Miscellaneous, $9,495,577; Liberty and treasury issues, $558,346; all bonds, $10,053,923, and all bonds, June, 1927, $12,932,240.

"Our June gross revenues will be slightly above June a year ago," said Fred Sargent, president of Chicago & North Western railway. "Gross for last year in June was $13,580,533 and net operating income $2,853,191. If operating expenses continue to run at the high level as in the two months preceding June in comparison with last year the June net will be somewhat under 1927."

June surplus of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis [Nickel Plate] declined to $153,187 after charges, from $432,974 in June last year, and for the half year to $2,621,622 from $3,294,369 in the first half of 1927. June gross revenues were $275,360 less than a year ago.

Railroad passenger business during the first half of 1928 was the smallest in eighteen years, freight business was the smallest since 1925, and in consequence, total earnings of the railroads were the smallest since 1925, says the Railway Age in discussing problems of railway operation thus far this year.

N. Y. CURB MART TREND UPWARD; BONDS ARE FIRM

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Price movements were mixed on the curb market today, but the general trend was toward higher levels, with industrial specialties leading the advance.

Warner Brothers Pictures, which opened up 4½ points at 49½, a new high, was one of the strong features, although the price dropped to 46½ at the close. Spanish and General extended its recent gains to 9⅛, also a new high. Spencer Kellogg and Sons reached a new peak at 170¾, closing with a net gain of more than 10 points. Auburn Auto, Tubize, Safe-T-Stat, Brill Corporation A, Ford of Canada, Marconi Wireless B, Deere & Co., Melville Shoe, and Sanitary Grocers registered gains of 3 to 10 points.

Other Issues Decline.

These advances, however, were offset to a degree by declines in such favorites as Hudson Bay Mining, Industrial Rayon, Columbia Graphophone, Zenith Radio, Nichols and Shepherd, and American Rolling Mills. Utilities and oils reflected general market irregularity, with price changes in both groups narrow.

Prices became firmer near the close of today's brief session of the bond market, railroad obligations particularly recovering some of the ground lost during a week of declines. However, trading was light and most price changes small. U. S. government obligations, which have been firming up, turned suddenly soft.

Railway Bonds Advance.

Erie convertible 4s, with a gain of nearly 7 points on a small turnover, led the advance of the rails, touching a new top for the year at 92¾. Hudson and Manhattan 5s, Baltimore and Ohio 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, and Pennsylvania 7s were prominent among many rails to show fractional gains. National Railways of Mexico 4½s assented of 1957 Frisco 4½s sought lower levels.

There was little trading in the industrial group. American Smelting 5s, Purity Bakery 5s, and the U. S. Steel issues sagged with others under week-end profit taking. However, small gains were recorded by such issues as Goodrich 6½s, Sinclair Consolidated Oil 6½s, Wilson & Co. first 6s, and California Petroleum 5s. The foreign list was steady, with Mexican government obligations recovering some lost ground.

METALS.

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—COPPER—Exporters continue purchases for August shipment, but the demand has fallen off somewhat. Buyers for home consumption confine purchases to small lots. Producers quote electrolytic at 14.75c delivered at Connecticut valley points. TIN—Steadier. Sellers reported offering moderately. Buying supply August position. LEAD—Steadier. Fairly active consuming demand. Some mills sold for the balance of July. ZINC—Quiet, with intimations that asking prices of producers were open to some shading. ANTIMONY—Featured largely by increased offering on spot as a result of larger arrivals. Material was not pressing for sale, however, and the market held fairly steady. ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Steady at 6.05c. ZINC—Slab, steady at 6.20c.

DRY GOODS.

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Cotton goods markets were quiet and steady today. Inquiries continued for small lots of fine and fancy goods for sampling purposes for spring. Formal openings of the largest lines of tropical and light weight suitings for spring, 1929, will be made on Monday. Burlaps were steady and quiet. Raw silk reflected the firmness reported on Friday and little buying was done. It has been very generally decided to curtail production in many print cloth and sheeting mills for the week of July 30. Leaders in the wash goods trade expect to begin spring, 1929, openings about Aug. 16.

The Richest Man in the world can't buy better heat

CONSTANT circulation of moist, warm air—nature's own plan—provides the best heat money can buy. This is the principle of the Holland Vaporaire System, built for homes of all sizes and within easy reach of every purse. Heating response is direct, quick and positive. Minutes change cold to comfort. Warmth is distributed in measured volumes to all parts of the home. Uniform temperature and proper humidity are maintained constantly and automatically. Floors are always warm and draft-free. The air—like a running brook—is always in motion, never stagnant—wonderful to breathe—refreshing, stimulating and teeming with life and energy. Stagnant air in the average home—drier than desert air—is a prevalent cause of general discomfort and ill-health. Any Holland-heated home is ideally comfortable at 68 degrees. Dry air at this temperature causes rapid evaporation of body moisture and produces a chilling sensation. It dries throat and nose tissues, stopping natural secretions that possess antiseptic properties and constitute nature's protection against colds and other common complaints. Holland Vaporaire Heating costs no more than ordinary heating plants. For fine, large homes the Deluxe System, combining the advantages of the heating-cooling installations used in modern theaters, schools and hospitals, provides year around comfort. For every home, large or small, costly or modest, there's a Holland that guarantees unsurpassed comfort, cleanliness, convenience and economy, requires only two firings daily and uses from 10% to 35% less fuel. The saving in operation costs practically pays for the system. Your order now will assure installation before the first chilly day. Purchase may be made on a convenient deferred payment plan if desired. Get the facts and you'll get a Holland.

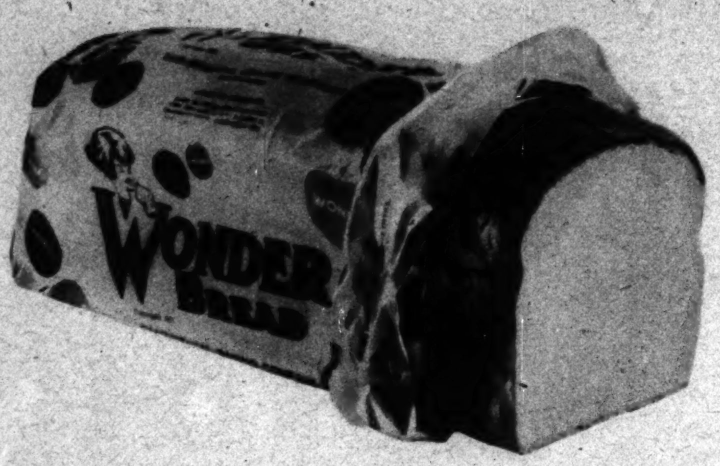
Now She Insists on this Slo-Baked Bread



WONDER

In Chicago's most discriminating homes you'll find this delicate bread the favorite.
Chosen for its freshness,
its fine close texture,
its rare delicious flavor

PARTICULAR hostesses . . . women whose teas and luncheons are famous for delicious food . . . are rapidly adopting a delicious bread.

It is a bread that in less than two years' time has won its way into thousands upon thousands of Chicago's finest homes.

Everywhere it is praised for its flavor . . . its delicate texture . . . its remarkable extra freshness.

Quite frankly, Madam, we want you to try it, too. We can't help feeling that you'll be just as enthusiastic as the others . . . once you've given it a thorough trial.

"Wonder Bread" is the name. You'll find it at your grocer's. He has it direct from our ovens. Fresh twice daily.

Slo-baking . . . that's the secret

The secret of this marvelous bread is really wonderfully simple.

We use only the finest, purest ingredients . . . and we slo-bake every loaf. That is how we seal in the delicate flavor . . . prolong the original freshness so much longer.

You will taste the difference the first time you try it. A new freshness. A delicate new texture. A delicious new bread flavor.

You will marvel, too, at the way it slices. It cuts quickly, easily and smoothly.

Our flour is specially selected . . . scientifically blended. Only the heart of the wheat berry is chosen. It is a far better flour than most women buy in the stores. And our recipe calls for double the usual quantity of milk.

You mothers can readily see why this bread is so good for children! It is one of the best energy-building foods you can possibly give them. It is packed with calories . . . and plenty of muscle- and-bone-building elements, too. It builds strong, sturdy muscle. Hardens growing teeth and bones.

Please make a test

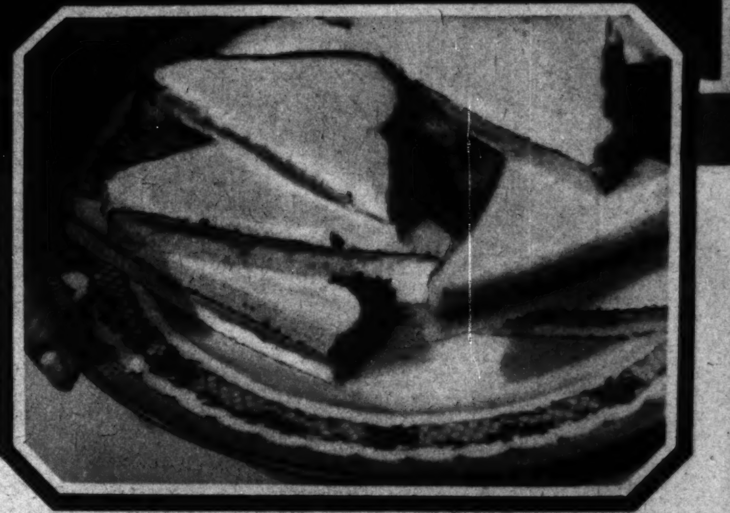
Madam, if you baked Wonder Bread yourself . . . right in your own kitchen . . . you couldn't take more pains than we do.

So if you pride yourself on serving good wholesome food at your table, please try this delicious bread at once . . . simply as a test if you wish! Order your supply tomorrow morning. Serve it at every meal.

Notice how firm and tender it is . . . how smoothly and easily it slices . . . how long it keeps its original delicate freshness. But, most important of all, notice that wonderfully delicious flavor that has won so many friends.

Now just this one word of warning. Don't ever expect to find Wonder Bread flavor in ordinary breads. Only from this one bread alone can you expect the remarkable advantages that we have described for you in this advertisement. So always let your grocer distinctly understand that none but the genuine will satisfy. Now at your grocer's . . . fresh twice a day. Two convenient sizes.

{ A Product of the Continental Baking Company }



MOTHER: SEE HOW CHILDREN take to this slo-baked bread. They love it plain or spread with jam. And wise mothers give them all they can possibly eat.

Please make this amazing 3-minute test

Take a slice of Wonder Bread and a slice of any ordinary bread. Toast each 3 minutes—1½ minutes on each side. The Wonder Bread toast will be browned evenly. The other slice will be unevenly browned.

EIGHTY MILES AN HOUR in a stock Studebaker Commander roadster is thrilling sport, according to Mary Jobling, English film star, shown piloting the world's champion car during speed tests in which The Commander, driven entirely by women, averaged 77.21 m.p.h. for 500 miles. The tests were held to show the ease with which the average driver can obtain the speed of Studebaker and Erskine cars, which hold all official records for fully equipped stock cars, regardless of power or price.

. . . an ideal summer combination

LUNCHEON BY A CLUB WINDOW

"Canada Dry" on the cap is your guarantee of purity, genuineness and fine flavor.

Don't accept substitutes or imitations.

On a summer morning when the weather is hot and sticky, you're worried, tired and nervous about business. You wonder how you'll ever get through the rest of the day.

Forget it! Go out to lunch! Pick a table by the window! Order something cool . . . cold cuts . . . salad . . . and an iced bottle of "Canada Dry."

A cooling, thirst-quenching drink on a summer day—and sensible too!

This is the drink to cool you off in the heat of a summer day. It has dryness to its taste. It quenches your thirst. It has a subtle, gingery taste which calms your temper and puts you right with all the world. It has smoothness and a mellow quality which you can find otherwhere in a glass of some rare old wine.

A ginger ale which is really good for you in hot weather

"Canada Dry" contains high-grade Jamaica ginger and other absolutely pure ingredients. It does not contain capsicum (red pepper) and therefore it has no false bite, no unpleasant after-effect. No matter how warm the weather, you can drink as much of it as you want.

"Canada Dry" is made under laboratory methods. The ingredients are of the highest quality. The blending and balancing of the beverage is a highly developed art. So exact is the process that hourly tests are made to determine both the purity of this fine old ginger ale and the true proportions of its ingredients. Never-varying carbonation is achieved by a secret process and the delightful sparkle of the beverage is, as a result, retained long after the bottle is opened. No wonder "Canada Dry" is served in many leading hospitals of this country.

So, order it today at luncheon. You'll see, for you'll never know until you do, how good ginger ale can be. "Canada Dry" tastes mighty good after 18 holes — don't forget that, either!

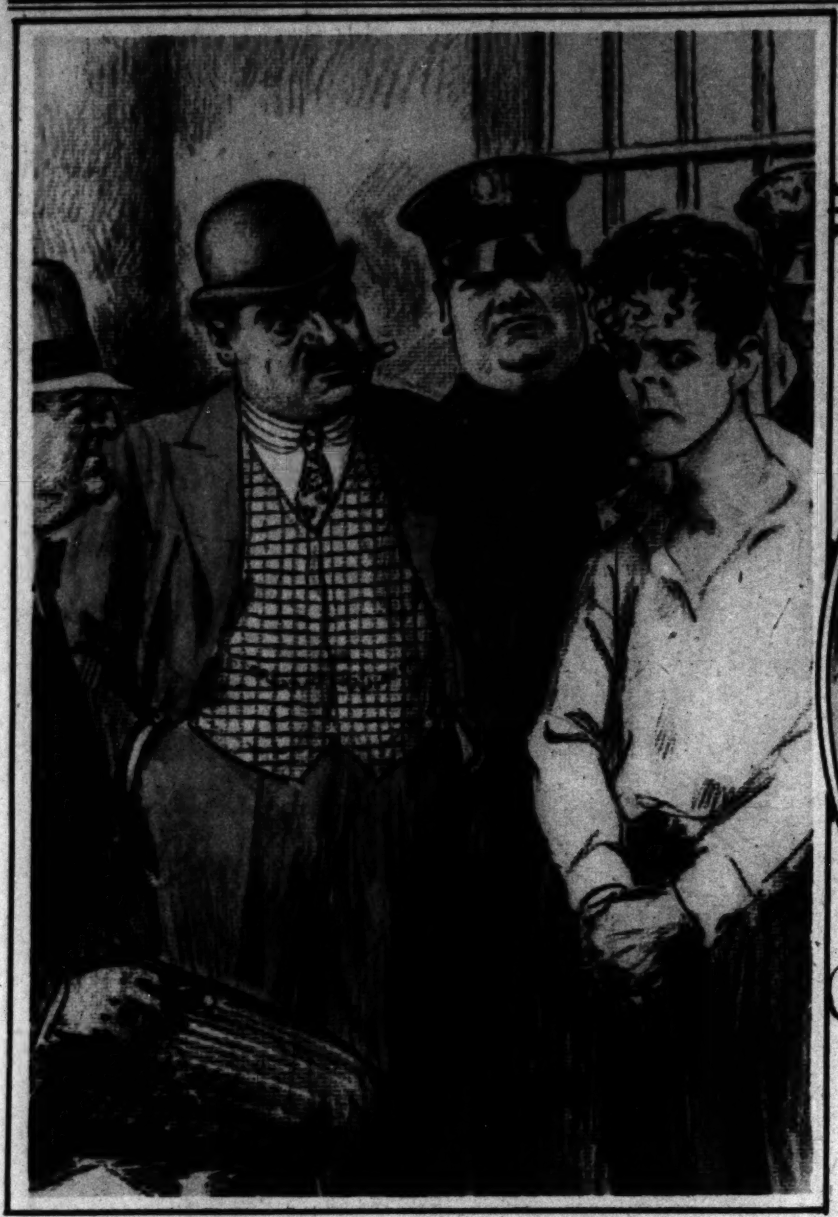
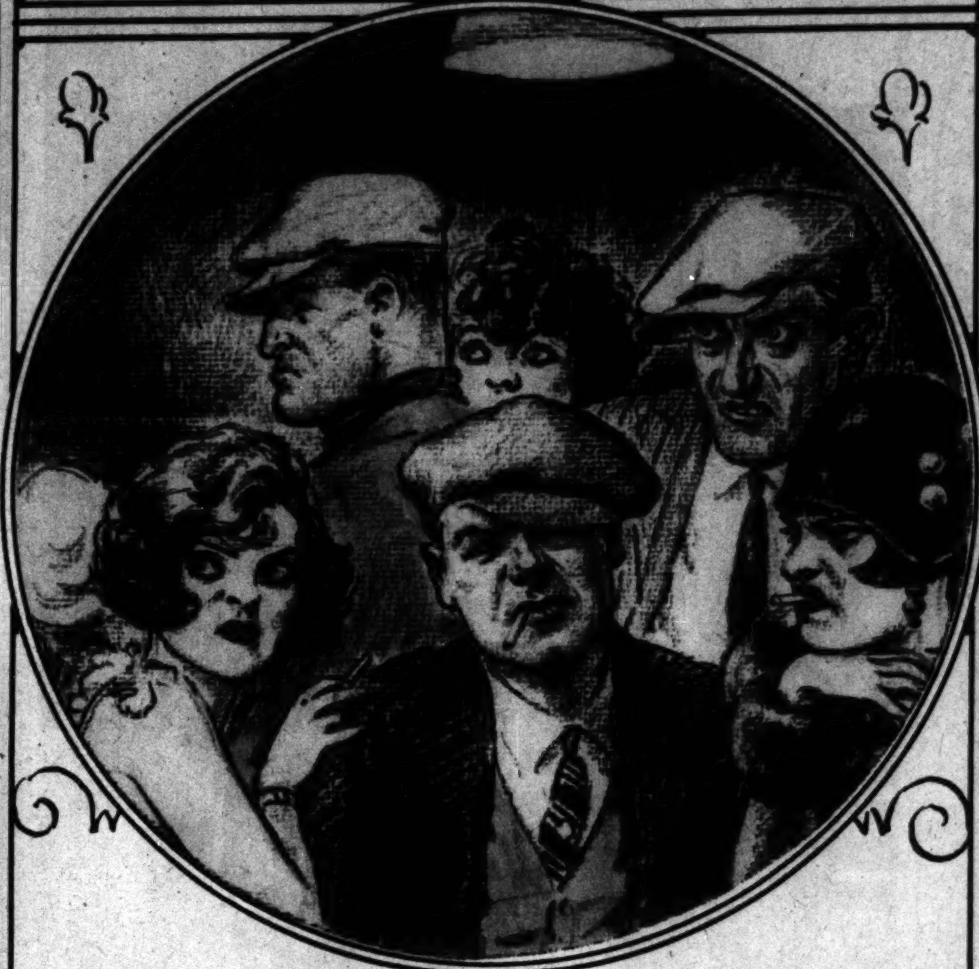
The Underworld Film

By W. E. Hill

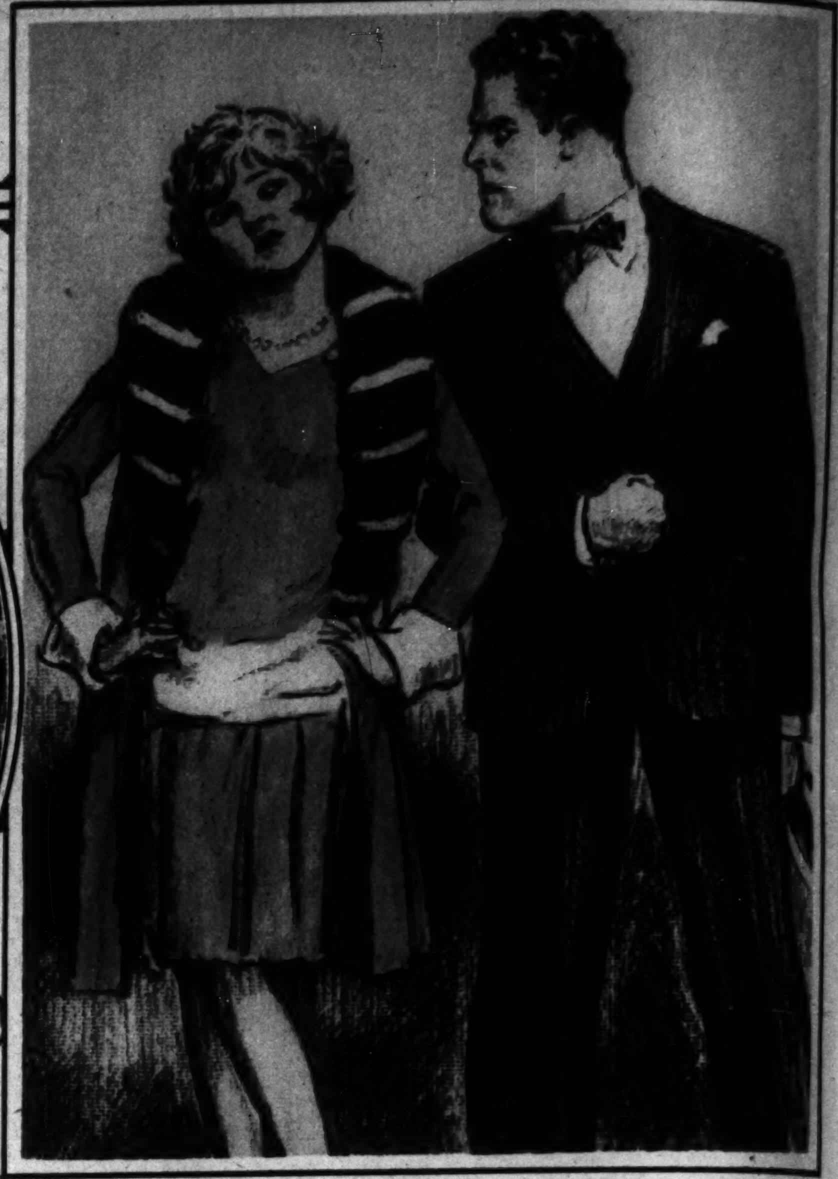
[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]



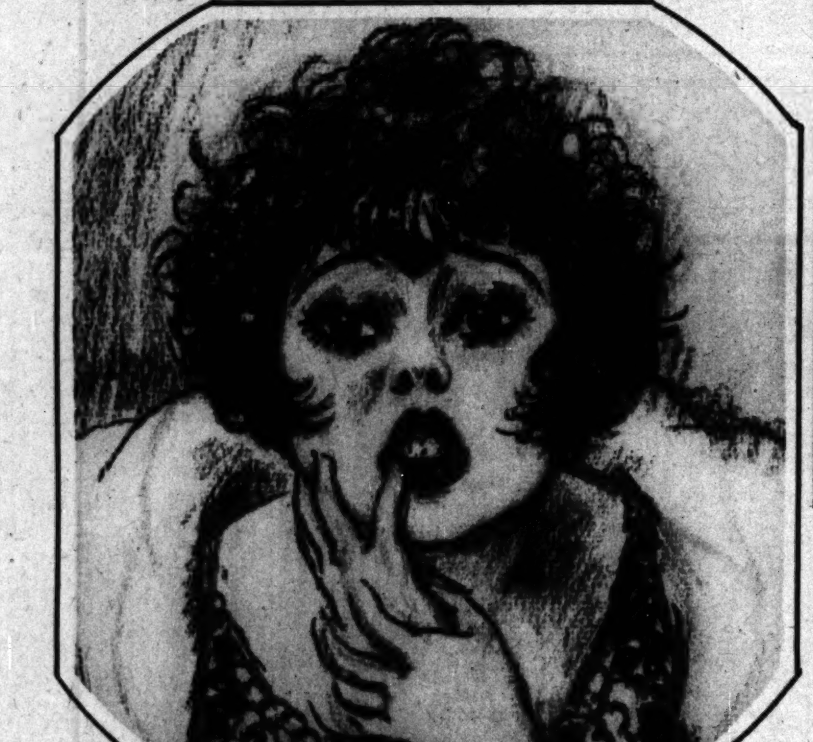
The third degree. Things are looking pretty drab for Paul, the hero. The police are out for information concerning the beheading in cold blood with a meat ax of Soft Spoken Annie, the coke addict, in the apartment of Golden Gate Grace. The detectives know anyone as handsome as Paul could never have done so foul a deed, but they are going to question him. Paul, as you no doubt have guessed, is protecting Grace's unsullied name by his silence.



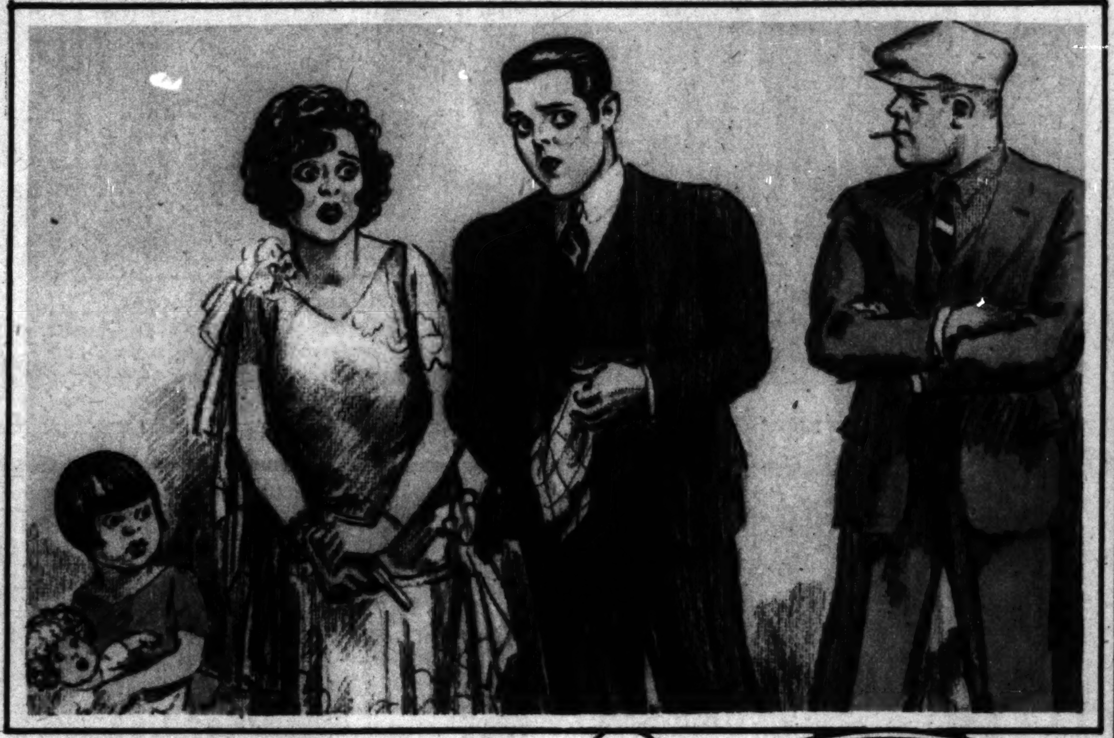
The local color. Showing denizens of the underworld sneering and snarling at the officers of the law. O, how they glower and glare!



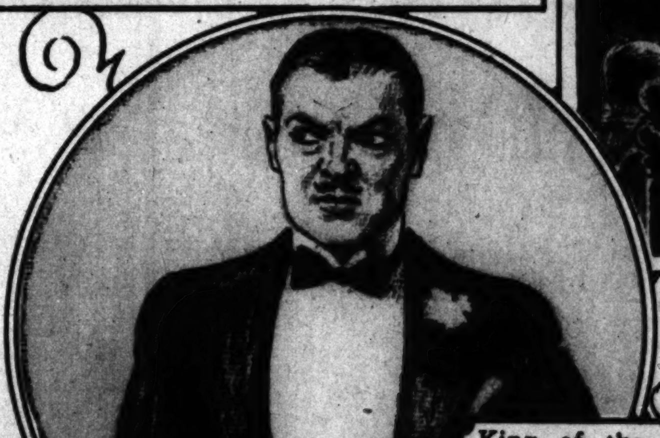
The dawn of love. Babe, the bank robber's girl, and Hard Boiled Logan, the plain clothes man, are casting the dirtiest looks at each other. Such epithets as they are hurling hither and yon! Never mind, if we know our films, this is just the prelude to love's young dream.



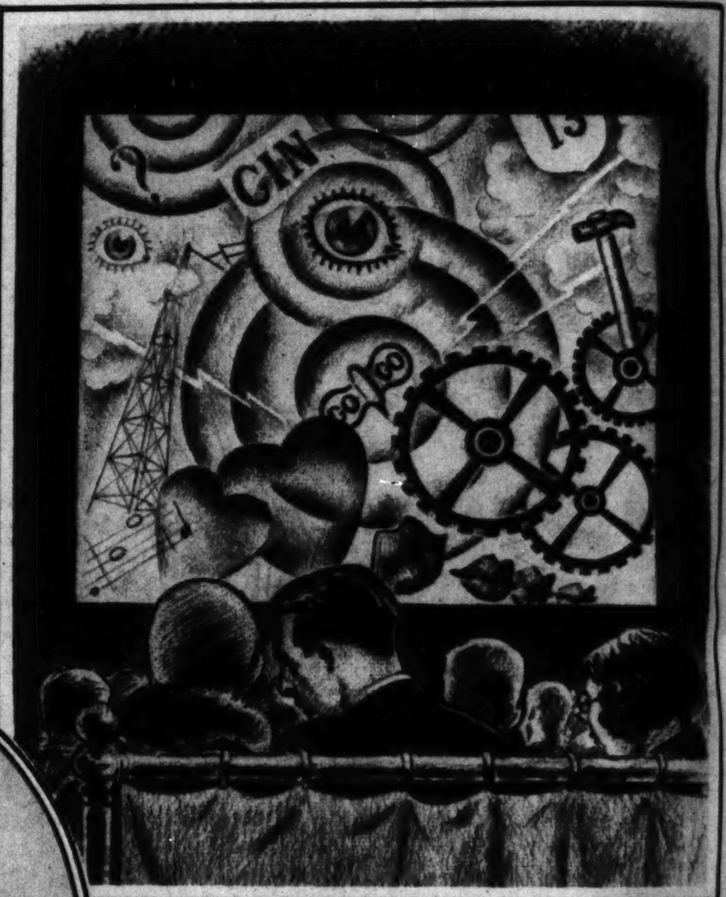
The closeup. Just an underworld heroine looking wistful and wishing she could go straight. O, how she longs for a little home in the country and the love of an honest man whose only jewels are the drops of honest sweat which glisten like pearls upon his brow—and some sweet little kiddies playing around.



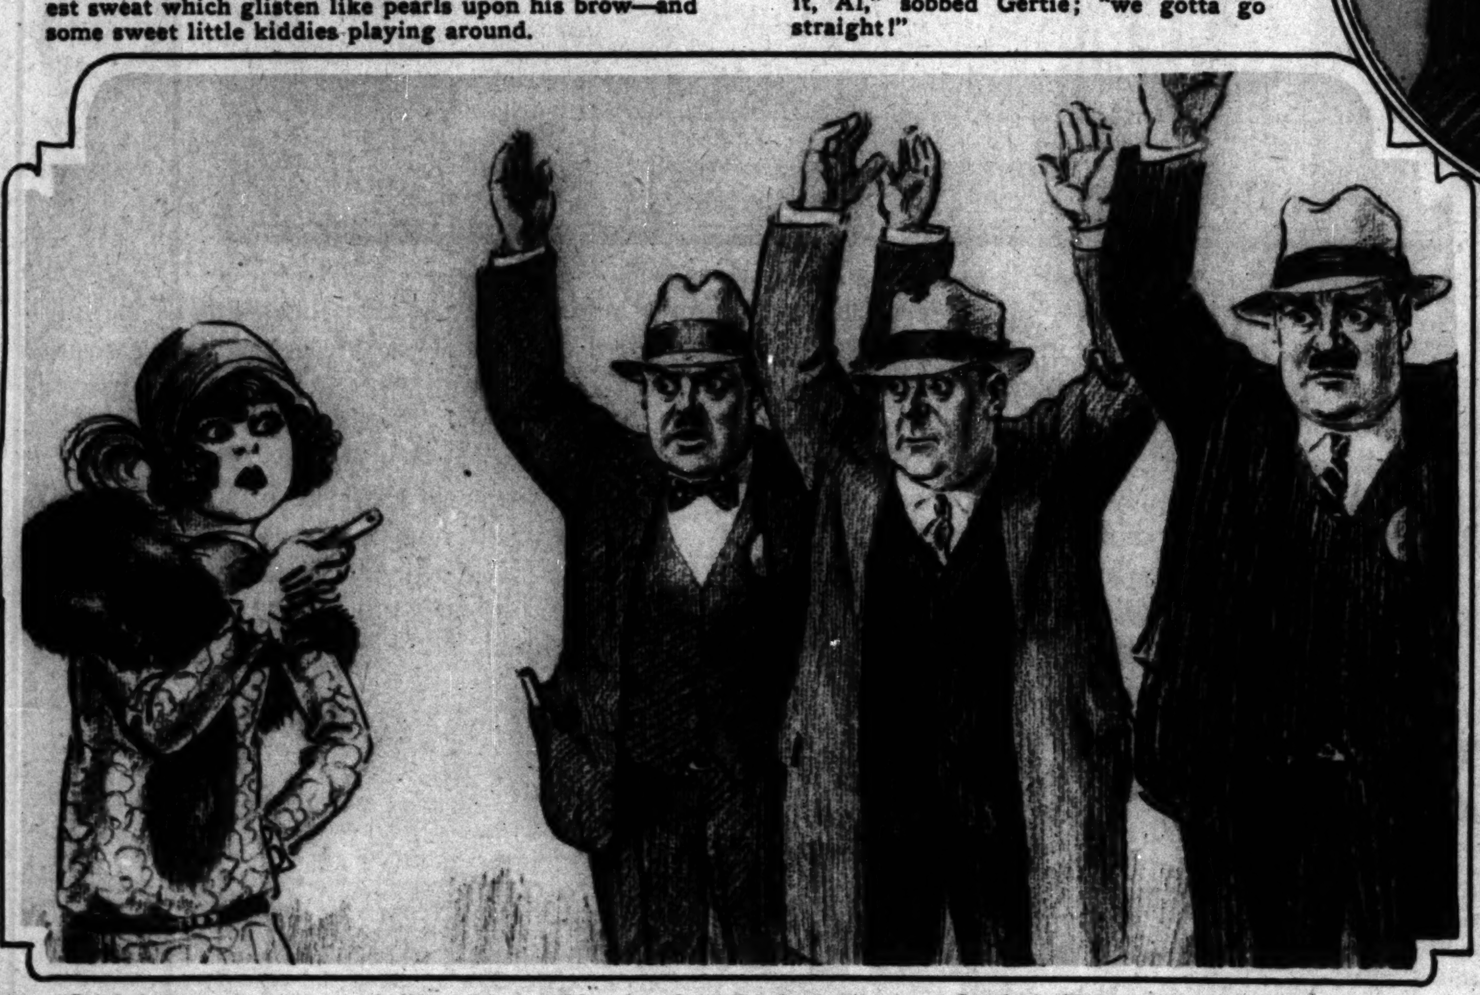
Going straight. Two Gat Gertie and Slippery Al cared for each other in a big way, so they married and tried, O, so hard, to go straight. But Al missed the racket and kept wanting to go back. And one night when Pie Eyed Percy, pal of the old days, stopped by and invited him to help bump off a couple of fresh district attorneys, it was almost too much. If little Gertie junior hadn't piped up and said (closeup), "Poppa, my dollie is sick; don't leave her and I alone tonight," there's no telling what would have happened. And, just to make doubly sure, Two Gat Gertie shot Pie Eyed Percy in the liver. "I had to do it, Al," sobbed Gertie; "we gotta go straight!"



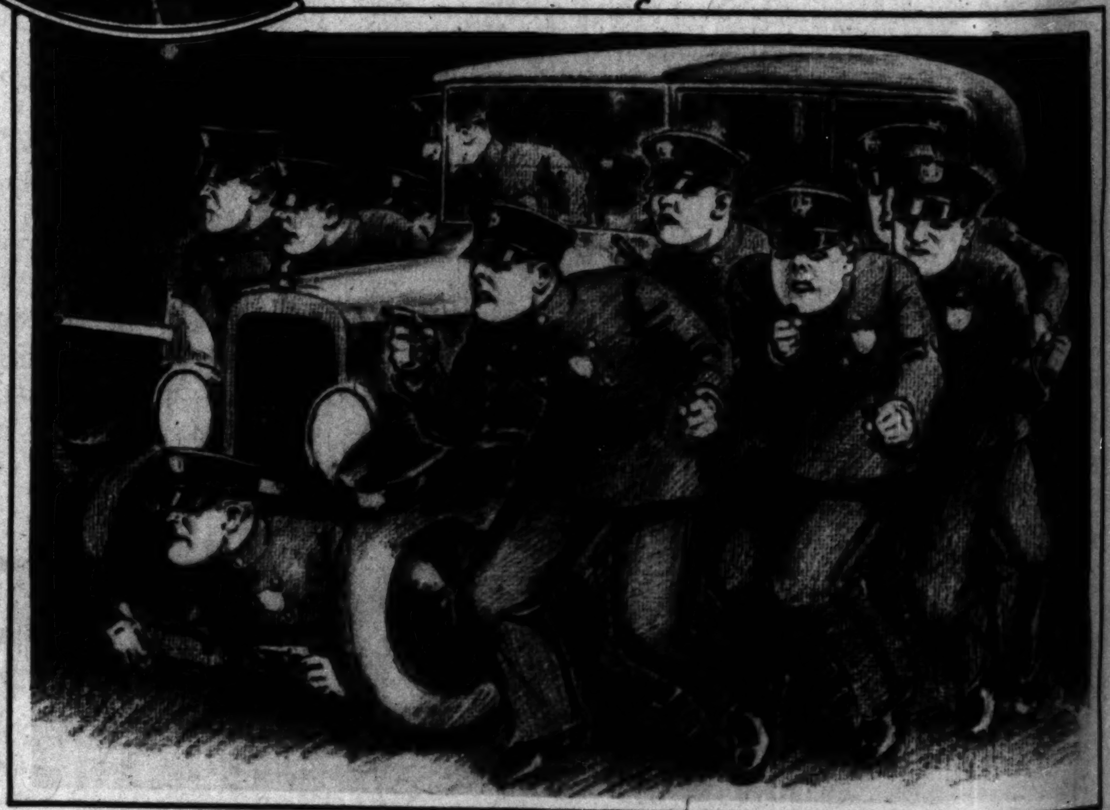
King of the bootleggers. Meet Slick Sam, whose paid vassals are ready and willing at a moment's notice to bump off the police force or blow up a judge and jury.



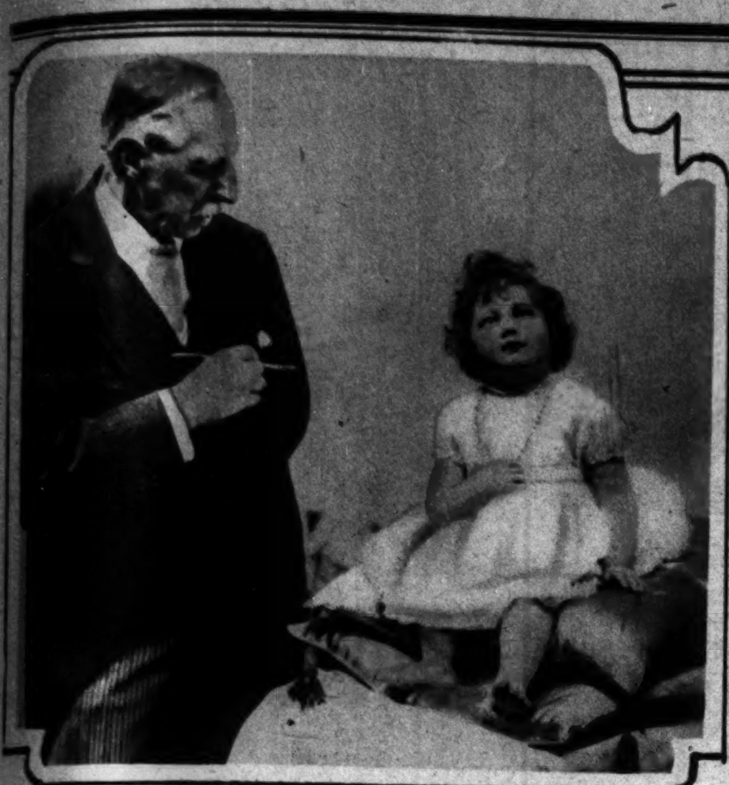
The German influence. "Kiss me, you fool," said Red Lottie to Harold, the police captain, whom she had come to love madly. And this is a closeup of their first kiss. It shows you the spirit of the thing, and not the old fashioned closeup of two great big faces in contact. Hot stuff, if you like your films that way.



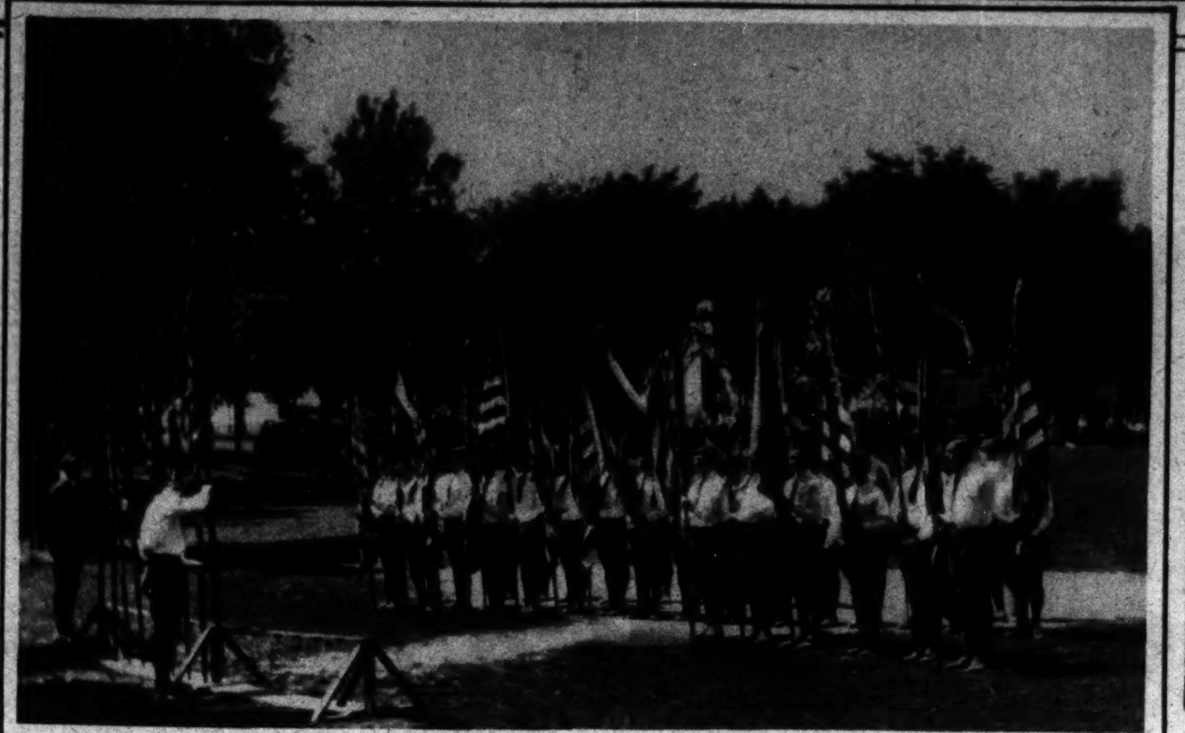
"Stick 'em up, boys!" A thrilling bit in "Manslaughter Preferred," where Cowhide Helen (alias Pin Head Patsy) cows three members of the force with the handle of a saucepan, while Rat Faced Bernie makes his getaway.



"My Gawd! the bulls!" Here's the carload of fierce cops from out the black night, all set to shoot up the gangsters' nest.



A BABY PRINCESS IN WAX is added to Mme. Tussaud's new waxworks in London. The figure is a life-sized effigy of Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York. (Photograph from Wide World.)



THIRTY-ONE PRIZE FLAGS, won on thirty-one consecutive Flag days by the best military drill teams of Glenwood Manual Training school, go on parade at Glenwood, Ill. So old has this recurrent ceremony grown that many of the flags are worn to shreds.

OLD GOLD

"One cigarette of the four I smoked in the blindfold test was like shooting a scene successfully after a whole series of failures. It just 'clicked' and I named it as my choice. It was OLD GOLD. Which clears up a mystery, for the supply of OLD GOLDS in my Beverly Hills home is constantly being depleted. It seems that Strongheart and Rin-tin-tin are the only motion picture actor stars who don't smoke them."

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant

How does OLD GOLD do it?

WHAT'S the secret of OLD GOLD'S winning charm? The answer is very simple. Three types of leaves grow on the tobacco plant . . . coarse, heavy top-leaves, irritating to the throat . . . withered ground-leaves, without taste or aroma . . . and the heart-leaves, rich in cool and fragrant smoking qualities. These golden-ripe heart-leaves give Old Golds their honey-like smoothness. That's why so many famous people choose them. And that's why you too can pick them . . . even in the dark.

Super Suds....

works twice as fast as chips ...prove it to yourself by this simple test

Fill a pan full of warm water. Take two strainers. In one a tablespoon of chip soap. In the other, the same amount of Super Suds

Plunge both strainers into the water. Stir both briskly with spoons while you count ten. Then—lift both strainers!

In one strainer, half of the chips still there. In the other, Super Suds all gone!.., Quick-dissolving Super Suds saves dishwashing time, makes clothes whiter

A SOAP that dissolves twice as fast as the speediest soap you ever saw!

"Impossible," you say—unless you have tried Super Suds, the amazing new soap discovery—beads of soap!

Try Super Suds under the hardest conditions. Go into your own kitchen. Take down the package of chips you like best. Make the easy test we show above, and see for yourself how the tiny hollow beads of Super Suds dissolve faster and work better. In ten seconds—a perfect soap solution!

Why Super Suds is better

Super Suds is made by a revolutionary new process to dissolve instantly. It is unbelievably thin—four times as thin as chips—the thinnest soap ever made.

Every housewife knows how important it is to have a soap that dissolves well. And now, because of the thinness of Super Suds, you have a soap that dissolves instantly and completely.

Super Suds goes further. No soap wasted. It works well in washtubs. A fine washing-machine soap, too. Super Suds gives quick, thorough rinsing. No chance for yellow clothes or soap stains.

New soap sweeps the country

Super Suds has taken the country by storm because it has brought women something new and something better. Women by thousands have changed to Super Suds as they have learned how fine it is for laundry work, and for dishes, too.

Have you tried Super Suds yet? Please do. Full directions on every package, and a valuable Octagon coupon, too—our discount to you! Ask your grocer for Super Suds and he will hand you the giant red package—the largest box of soap you ever saw for 10 cents.

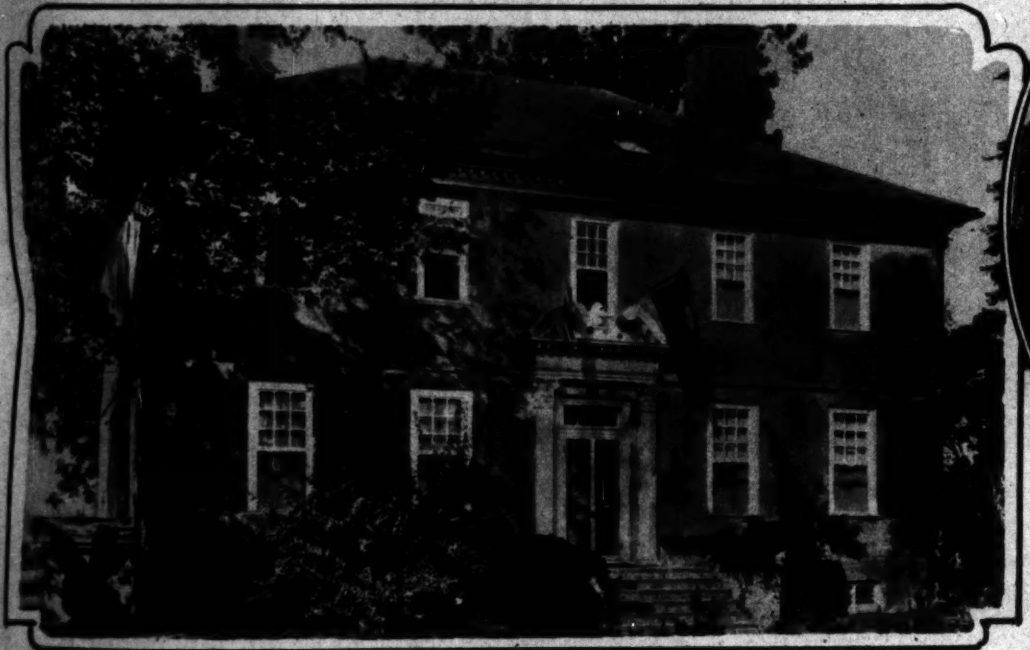
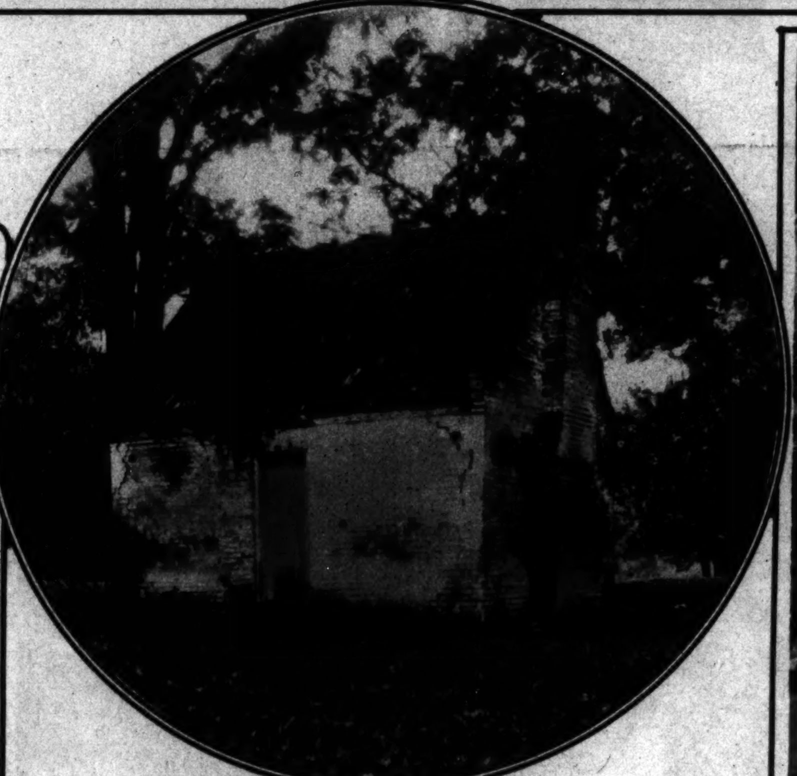
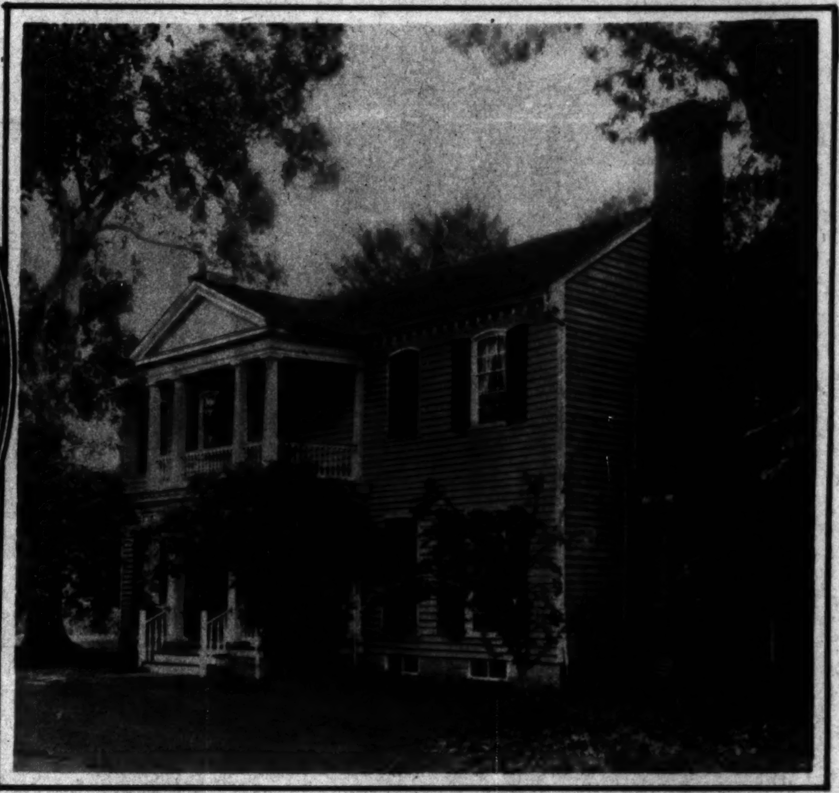
BRINGING BACK THE COLONIAL DAYS—At a cost of several million dollars, John D. Rockefeller Jr. is to restore Williamsburg, the oldest incorporated town in Virginia. Among the buildings to undergo the treatment is the one shown above, on the campus of William and Mary college, which yields to only Harvard in the matter of being the first in America.



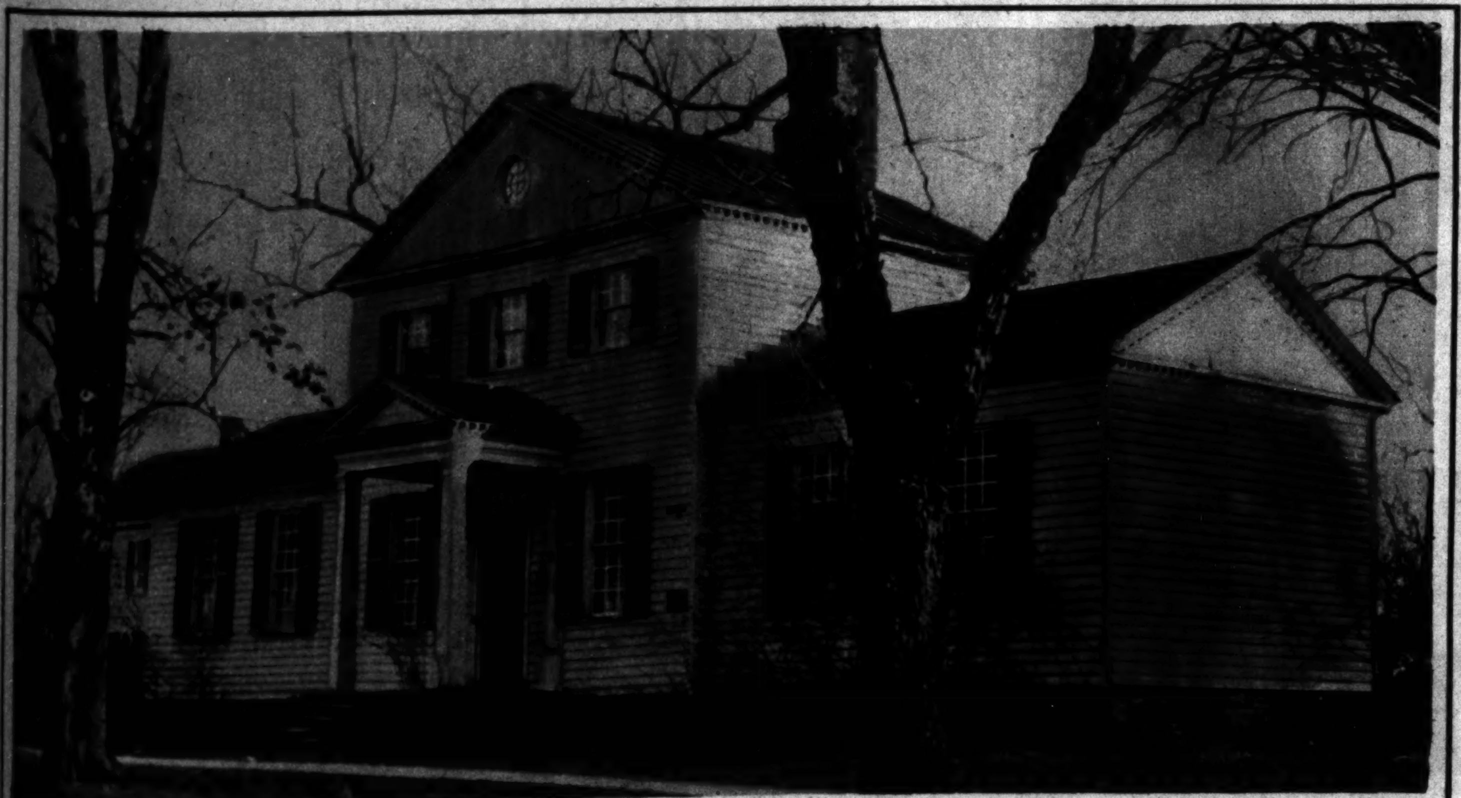
WHERE WASHINGTON STAYED—The George Wythe house, headquarters of Gen. Washington in the siege of Yorktown in 1781, is one of the Williamsburg structures already restored to its original condition.



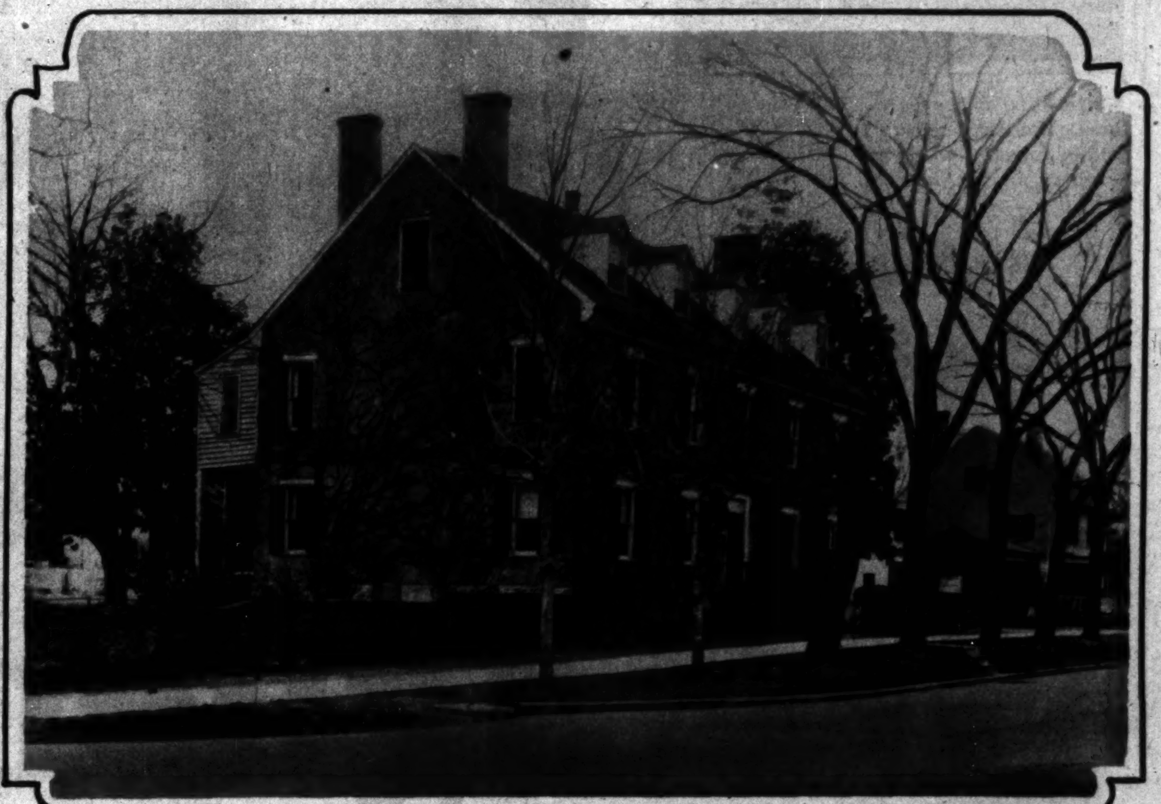
MARTHA WASHINGTON'S KITCHEN—This is all that remains of the Williamsburg home of the first First Lady of the land. Like many other structures in that town, it is rich in historical lore after having weathered wars and the elements ever since colonial times.



BASSETT HALL, once the residence of President John Tyler. In the work now under way, newer structures will be torn down, and those of ancient vintage, as well as those of historic importance, will take their places.



THE RANDOLPH HOUSE has survived two centuries of storms and souvenir hunters. Williamsburg itself dates back to 1632—nearly three hundred years—when it became a walled-in refuge against Indian attacks. It earned immortality in 1765, when Patrick Henry chose it as the scene of his famous philippic against the stamp act.



THE VEST HOUSE, where Gen. McClellan once made his headquarters in the Civil war. After having played a prominent role in the Revolution, Williamsburg again was in the forefront in the war of the rebellion. It was the scene of a bloody battle in the course of the Peninsular campaign of 1862.

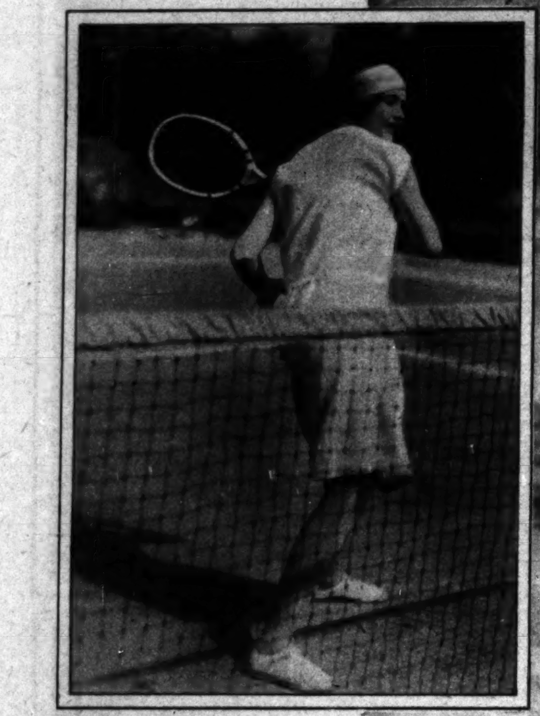
DON'T say "no" to summer! . . . Its clear, bright days were made for pleasure. Enjoy them—spend every hour you can in the out-of-doors. Swim in lake or river. Golf. Fish. Go on motoring trips. Make every day a fresh adventure!

But be wise, be armed! Sunburn can get you when your heart is lightest.

Keep a tube of Unguentine always at hand. Soothe the smart of sunburn at once, heal the scorched skin. At the first sign of redness, apply Unguentine liberally. The ugly redness goes, you will not blister painfully now. Sunburn poisons cannot develop with Unguentine. You are protected on the hottest day.

Many apply Unguentine before exposure—are assured of a healthy tan without serious burn. Make certain that a tube is in your outing kit as well as at home. At your druggist's —50c. The Norwich Pharmacal Company, Norwich, N. Y. Canada—193 Spadina Avenue, Toronto.



Tennis is too fast a game to wear superfluous clothes. Guard against sunburn with Unguentine

Golfing is at its best now. Smooth, velvety courses await you—but watch for sunburn

CHICAGO HOST TO MISS EARHART—The heroine of the first feminine trans-Atlantic flight concludes today her four day visit of triumph to the city of her high school days. At the top, Miss Earhart and her mother. Below, Wilmer Stultz, pilot of the Friendship, and Lou Gordon, mechanic. (Photographs from Pacific and Atlantic.)

CHICAGO HAILS HERBERT HOOVER—When the Republican presidential nominee reached this city last Sunday on his way from Washington to Brule, Wis., and points west, he and Mrs. Hoover were met at the station by Vice President and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes. The Hoovers were guests for a few hours at the Dawes home in Evanston, where the secretary of commerce made his first "front porch" appearance of the campaign.

DEMOCRACY'S BIG THREE, John J. Raskob, Al Smith, and Joseph T. Robinson, pose for their first group picture after the selection of Mr. Raskob as chairman of the national committee. The choice of Mr. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee of General Motors and listed as a Republican, came as a stunning surprise to political leaders.

MEXICO'S LINDBERGH GOES HOME—Following funeral services in New York, with 10,000 American soldiers marching behind the flag-draped caisson to the beat of muffled drums, the body of Capt. Emilio Carranza was started for Mexico Wednesday. The heroic flyer had crashed in New Jersey; his good will mission had ended gloriously, though tragically, in death. THE RESCUE SHIP OF THE NOBILE TRAGEDY, the Russian icebreaker Krassin, batters its way through Arctic ice in an effort to reach men still at the mercy of the elements. As this page went to press nine men had been rescued and eighteen still were missing. It was hoped that Roald Amundsen, the celebrated explorer, survived among the latter. A serial story beginnnig soon in The Sunday Tribune

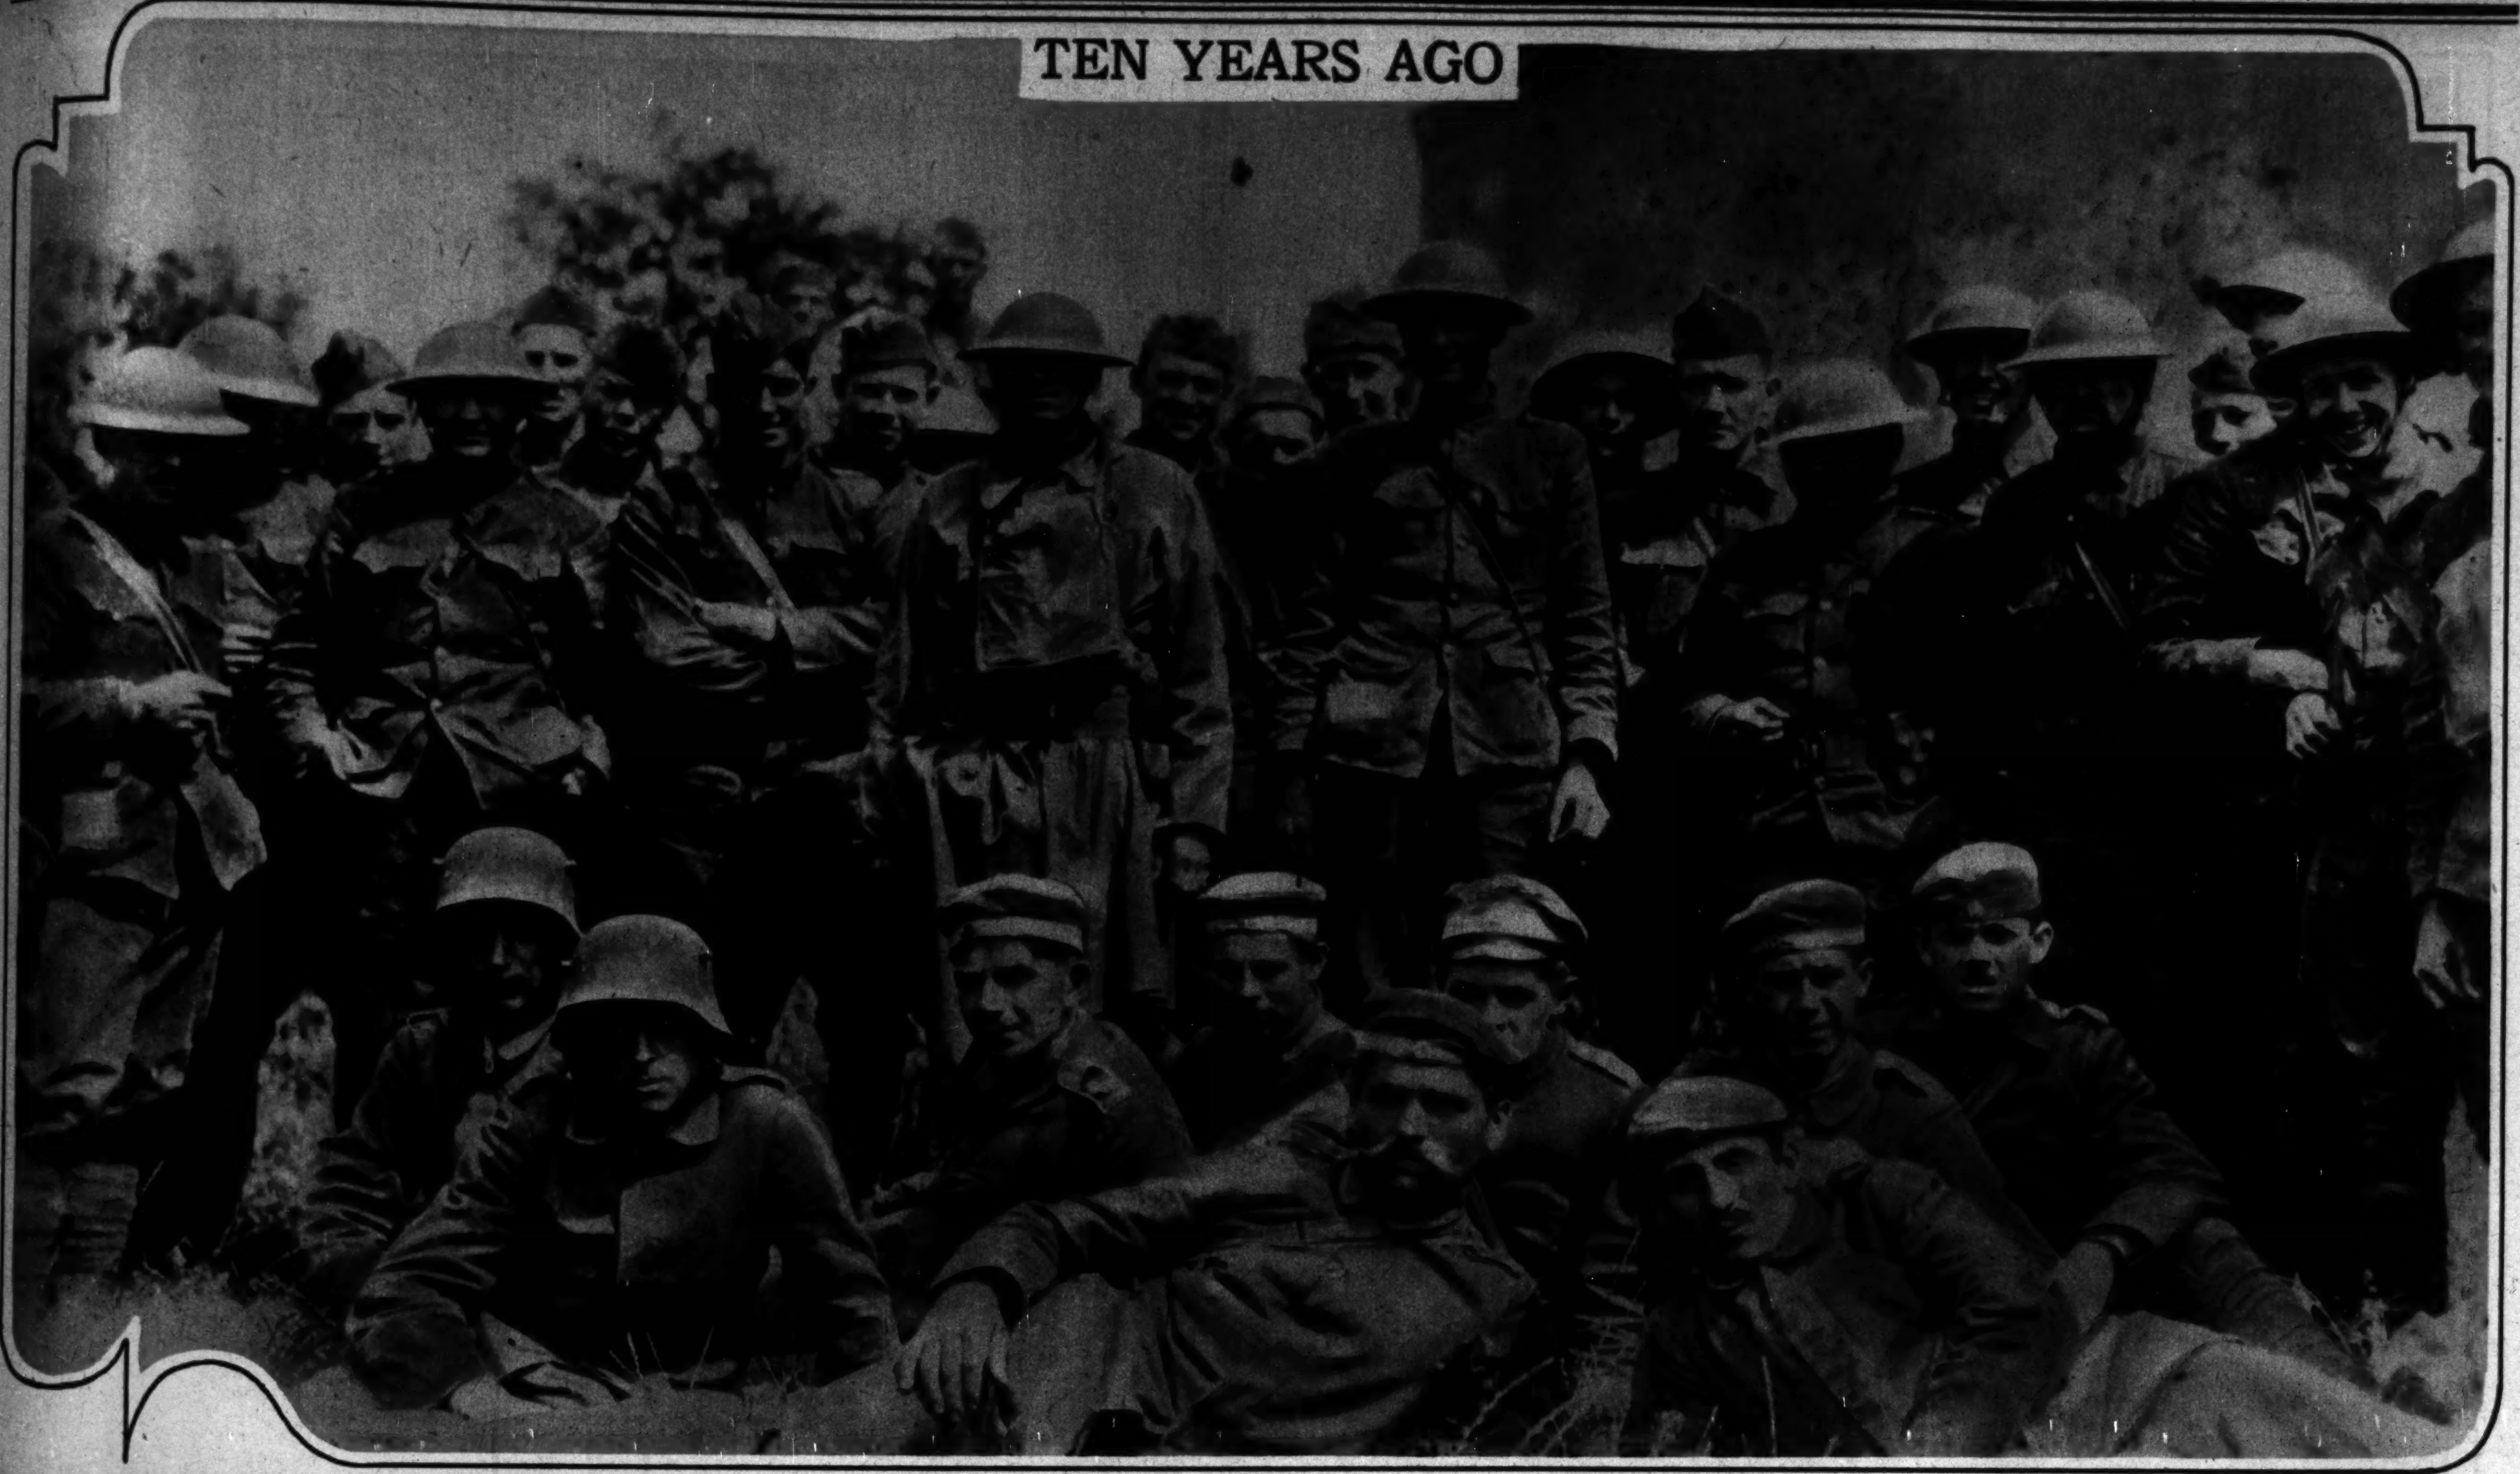
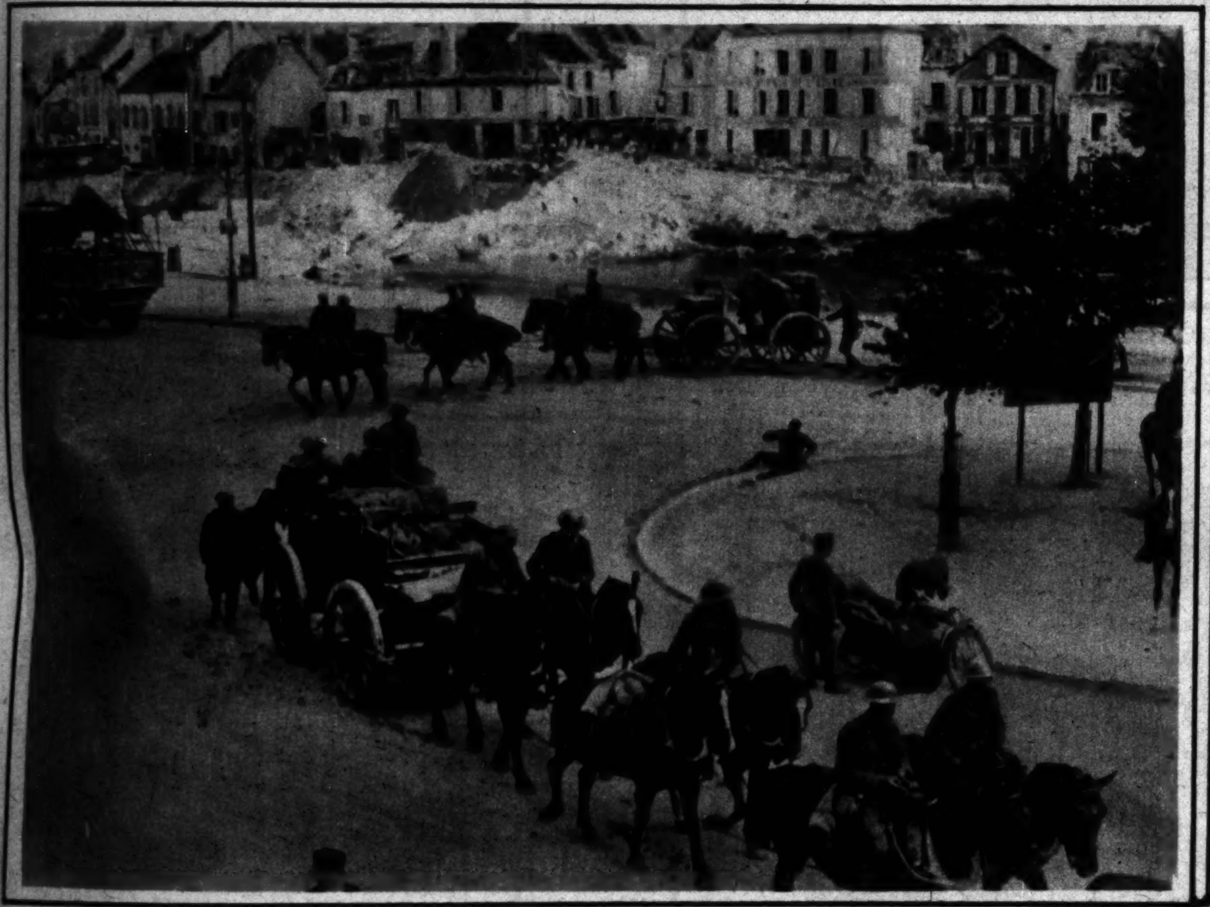
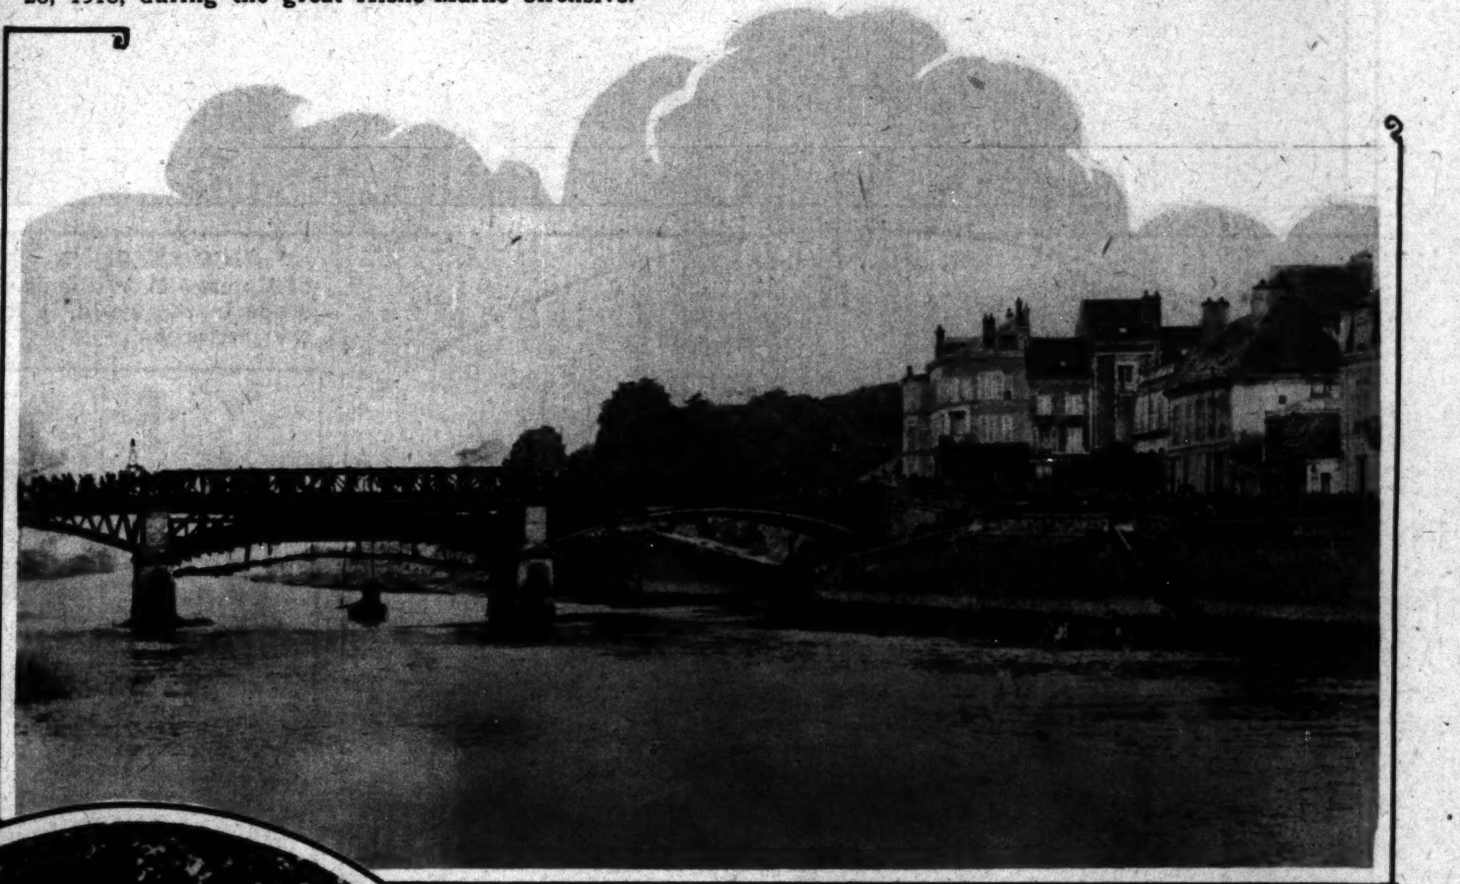
TEN YEARS AGO



TAKE NINE BOCHE, FOUR MACHINE GUNS, and three Yanks of the 168th infantry, 42nd division. Shake well. Result: End of the war for these German prisoners near Chateau la Foret on July 28, 1918, during the great Aisne-Marne offensive.



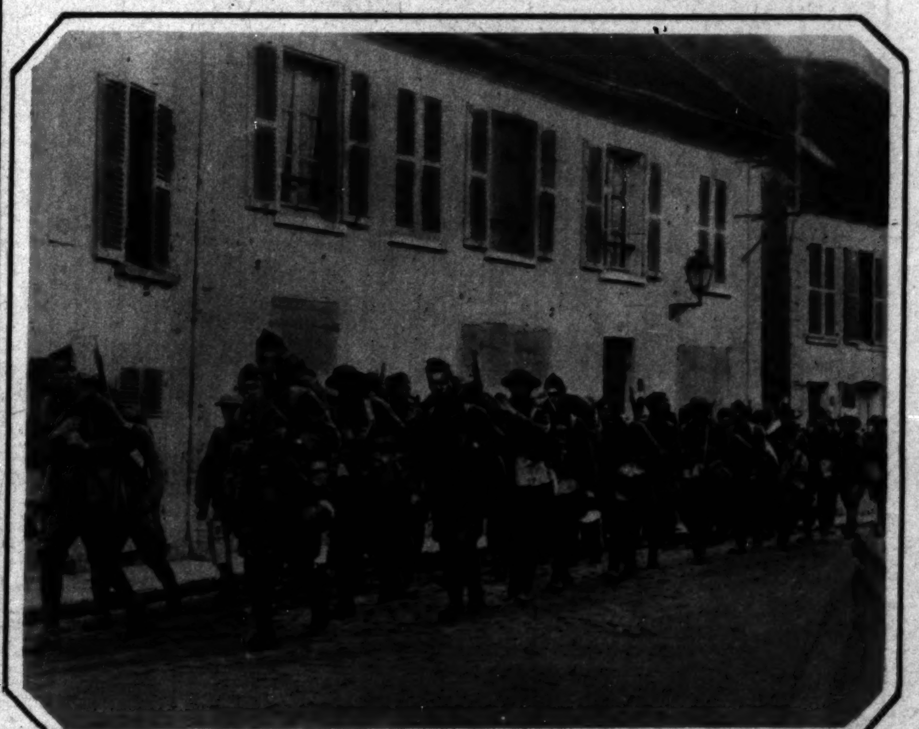
THROUGH BATTERED CHATEAU-THIERRY wound the 150th field artillery, 42nd division, on July 25, 1918, bound for the Ourcq, to help relieve the 26th division and help roll back the enemy in the first of the smashing allied drives.



SOME 25 KILOMETERS BEHIND CHATEAU-THIERRY these Yanks marched toward the battlefront across a bridge at La Ferte-sous-Jouarre on July 22, 1918. They walked over dynamite—the bridge was mined for destruction in case of retreat.

PRICE OF VICTORY—French and American wounded who helped batter in the Tardenois salient get first aid treatment in the station of the 117th sanitary train at Epieds on July 27.

ANGELS OF THE A. E. F.—Mrs. W. Farwell and Miss B. Scott of the Red Cross dispense food and smiles to all comers at La Ferte-sous-Jouarre. Time, ten years ago tomorrow.



SOME WHO WERE FED at La Ferte-sous-Jouarre. They are doughboys of the Rainbow, part of the 166th infantry, hob-nailing into town on July 23.

PICTURESQUE CHICAGOLAND—Stars yield their secrets to scientists at the Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams Bay, Wis., near Lake Geneva. A six-ton telescope with 40-inch lens, the largest refracting lens telescope in the world, is located here. For twenty-three years Dr. Edwin B. Frost, noted astrophysicist, has been director of the institution.

A NEW ADDITION TO THE YACHT FLEETS of the Atlantic, the auxiliary schooner Hardi Biaou, is launched for Dr. Henry D. Lloyd of Boston. The yacht, constructed entirely of steel, is 110 feet 6 inches long on deck, 84 feet 6 inches on the waterline, 24 feet 3 inches beam and of 13 foot draft. Dr. Lloyd plans to take a party on a cruise around the world aboard the yacht next year.

A ONE-EYED CLARA BOW is just exactly as devastating a creature as a two-eyed one. There can be no argument. We submit this picture to support the statement.

OLGA BAKLANOVA, though you'd hardly believe it from this picture, is the vicious blonde of "The Street of Sin," in which she supported Emil Jannings. She is Russian, and formerly starred in the Moscow Art theater.

To Your Child's Weight This Summer

—In a Way Youngsters Delight In 50c Shaker FREE!

NOTE COUPON BELOW

. . . I wouldn't be without Ovaltine—it is wonderful. My 9-year-old daughter who refused to drink milk and after a sick spell was very run-down, has gained 2½ pounds in two weeks—Mrs. J. M. S.

An Utterly NEW-TYPE Food-Drink From Switzerland That Is Working Wonders

NOW comes a way of increasing children's weight, that you need neither urge nor command your child to take. Thousands of mothers, on expert advice, are adopting it.

It comes from Switzerland, the country which has done so many wonderful things in child building. And so remarkable have been results, that its use has spread to some 50 different nations.

New to America, it is almost a national beverage in Switzerland, England, and in most of Europe. 20,000 doctors are advising it—A supremely delicious food-drink called Ovaltine.

The Most Delicious Food-Drink Known

Children drink it, not because they "must" but because they like to. A scientific food-concentrate — widely different in composition, flavor and result from the "chocolate" and "malt" drinks in this country—weight increases of 8 ounces to 1½ pounds weekly are commonly credited to this Swiss creation. "Nervousness" is often noticeably curbed in a few days.

It supplies highly concentrated food energy in itself. And—acts to digest the starches, from other foods the child eats, into strength and flesh. Thus results are often little short of amazing.

You give in summer as a shake-up drink with milk. Give as a beverage at meals; as a food-drink between meals. Soon you notice a change in weight, activity and better nerve balance in your child. Results are marked and noticeable.

Get Ovaltine at any drug or grocery store. Or send coupon for 3-day test. Do this today. Do it for your child's sake. But be careful you get genuine "Ovaltine." There is no other drink "like" it. No other drink the "same" as Ovaltine. Watch out if you are told there is.

THE WANDER COMPANY, DEPT. N-305
180 No. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

I enclose 10c to cover cost of packing and mailing. Send me your 3-day test package of Ovaltine. Also free shaker.

MARRIED...

Yet They Met Only Three Months Ago

Did she possess some compelling charm that other girls lack? Let me tell you the secret of her loveliness

By Mme. Jeannette de Cordet

WHY did he fall in love with her? Why did she hold an allure where all others failed? Let the young husband answer—"It was her depth of expression that first attracted and later held me. She has made the most of her beauty. Hers is a distinct individuality—a type—with every feature accentuated . . ."

You, Too, Can Take the Path to Greater Beauty

I wish I could say to YOU and to every other woman . . . Find your type. For you are a type. Never mind the old blonde and brunette divisions. There are so many more than these. For type, you know, is determined by skin-tone and not by the color of eyes and hair.

Then be your type. Emphasize it in every possible way. Please, please, don't disguise it with the wrong powder and rouge. Sounds difficult? But it isn't. With the offer below, you can know in ten minutes exactly what type you are, and the exact shades of rouge and powder we have blended in the Pompeian Laboratories to bring out your greatest beauty. Can you imagine anything so helpful?

Here's Just the Help You've Always Wanted

Women everywhere are finding new admiration . . . happiness . . . love . . . through my amazing new booklet and Beauty Sampler. In the booklet are colored drawings of all the varied types. You are among them . . . In the Sampler, glass tubes contain the five exquisite shades of Pompeian Powder. One of these shades—the booklet tells you which—holds new beauty magic for your skin-tone. Examine them, for yourself, by sending the coupon—today. Feel their smooth richness. Made from the finest ingredients, Pompeian Powder is textured to give a satin finish that lasts for hours.

Then try your shade. On your face and—what is this new translucence? . . . You've really become your own type—found beauty you never dreamed of! . . . Send now for these guides to self-discovery. Don't delay a thing so vital.

FLIES and MOSQUITOES quickly killed

FLIT means freedom from the torment of disease-bearing flies and sleep-wrecking mosquitoes.

Comfort and cleanliness are coming into millions of homes with Flit. Flit is the wonderful new liquid which frees the whole home of flies and mosquitoes in a few moments.

Flit has full killing strength. It penetrates the cracks and crevices where flies, mosquitoes, roaches, bed bugs and ants hide and breed. It destroys both insects and eggs. Flit is deadly to insects, but harmless to people. And it will not stain fine fabrics.

Outdoors Flit is effective in driving insects away. It makes evenings on the porch comfortable. Spray Flit around the porch just as you do around a room.

Do not confuse Flit with any other product. Flit is guaranteed to kill insects—or money back. One of the world's greatest corporations is back of this guarantee.

Buy Flit and a Flit sprayer today. Look for the yellow can with the black band. Spray Flit and say good-bye to every summertime pest. Flit does kill.

Frocks for Morning, Afternoon and Night

Lace, Tulle and Bright Colors Make the Summer a Time of Gayety and Charm.

By CORINNE LOWE

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—"What, no lace!"

Think of the folks who might have uttered this in the most peevish way. Little Lord Fauntleroy, for example, might have redeemed his career of gross amiability by some annoyance had "Dearest" not provided him with lace cuffs and collar. And would anybody have felt more wronged than Van Dyck if a sitter had come to him minus the touches of lace which that industrious Dutch brush always rendered so beauteously?

Yet, profound as may have been the indignation of these two in the face of a lace shortage, the sentiment would pale in comparison with that of a modern woman who was confronted with the same deficiency. For so important is lace in the summer mode that there is today hardly a woman of fashion who is not exploiting it in her wardrobe.

Yes, we are taking the season on its lace value and in testimony to that fact we offer three of the sketches on today's page. Perhaps the most important of these sketches both from a practical and a style viewpoint is the grége lace frock designed by Martial et Armand illustrated second from the left.

Now, whether gentlemen prefer blonde laces or not one does not know. But certainly their wives and sisters do. All tints from bleached to natural are embraced in the summer schedule of fashion and they are equally good for both evening and afternoon wear. In this present example one strikes a compromise between the two. For, although this model is designed for the formal afternoon, it is equally correct for the informal evening. It is, in fact, an admirable selection for at least three summer occasions—the big afternoon bridge, the roof garden dinner and the country club dinner.

Aside from its choice of the fashionable blonde lace as a medium, the model possesses other features of interest. Foremost among these is the introduction of that vivid color which makes us of this summer not far from the parrakeet in the tropical forest. Yes, today's modish gown may be as neutral in tint as a well bred wall paper. Usually, however, such drabness is relieved by modulations of color that exceed anything of which the past ever dreamed.

So, presto, we add to the sober lace of this Martial et Armand creation a sash of three tones of chiffon. Shading from pomegranate red to a light tone of orange, this tritonal sash is knotted at the side to float its three streamers almost to the ground. Yes, to be sure, here is a mere detail, yet through such trifles as this a gown of this summer is swung into the broad current of "the very latest thing."

The lace is draped over a foundation of cream colored taffeta and this blends delightfully into the tonal system of lace and chiffon sash. For the rest, there is that scalloped bolero so dear to the heart of the present day designer and there also is the scalloped skirt with its customary side issues of length.

Already I have spoken in such impassioned tones of the various new laces that I shall not dwell here upon those various ciré and brilliant hued weaves that make this year of lace different from all others. I shall content myself merely with pointing to two examples of this garish mood in laces. The first of these occurs in a dance model sketched at the extreme left.

Now, here is one of those laces that look as brilliant as a stained glass window. Indeed, it is a stained glass window blue which has been borrowed for those two lace flounces added to a corsage of matching satin. The formula of the gown itself is simple enough, for there is really no need of an intricate silhouette where so much color is involved. Consequently, we find here a simple surplice bodice outlined in rhinestones and the same aggressive hip drapery with which everybody nowadays is so thoroughly familiar. It goes without saying that the latter is also of the satin.

The corsage of these brilliant lace evening gowns is only occasionally of the lace achieving the skirt. It is usually of moire, taffeta or satin and frequently it is so heavily embroidered in beads and rhinestones that it resembles a coat of mail. Indeed, as has frequently been remarked, the lace itself is sometimes treated to such elaborate pailletting.

Our final witness to the lace vogue is discovered in the fourth sketch. Here in this simple little afternoon gown from Beer we discover again that there is nothing—not even printed chiffon—better for the afternoon bridge than one of these Burbanked laces. In this case the gown is blue and it is made of crêpe which is finely plaited and then trimmed with insertion of matching lace with ciré finish.

Of course, however, lace is not left in undisputed sovereignty over our summers. Ever since the spring opening it has been quite clear, in fact, that tulle-ips were one of the flowers that bloomed in the spring. And so, along with wearers of lace and satin and flowered chiffon and georgette—all the other lamplight favorites—we encounter a large and fashionable army out in tulle.

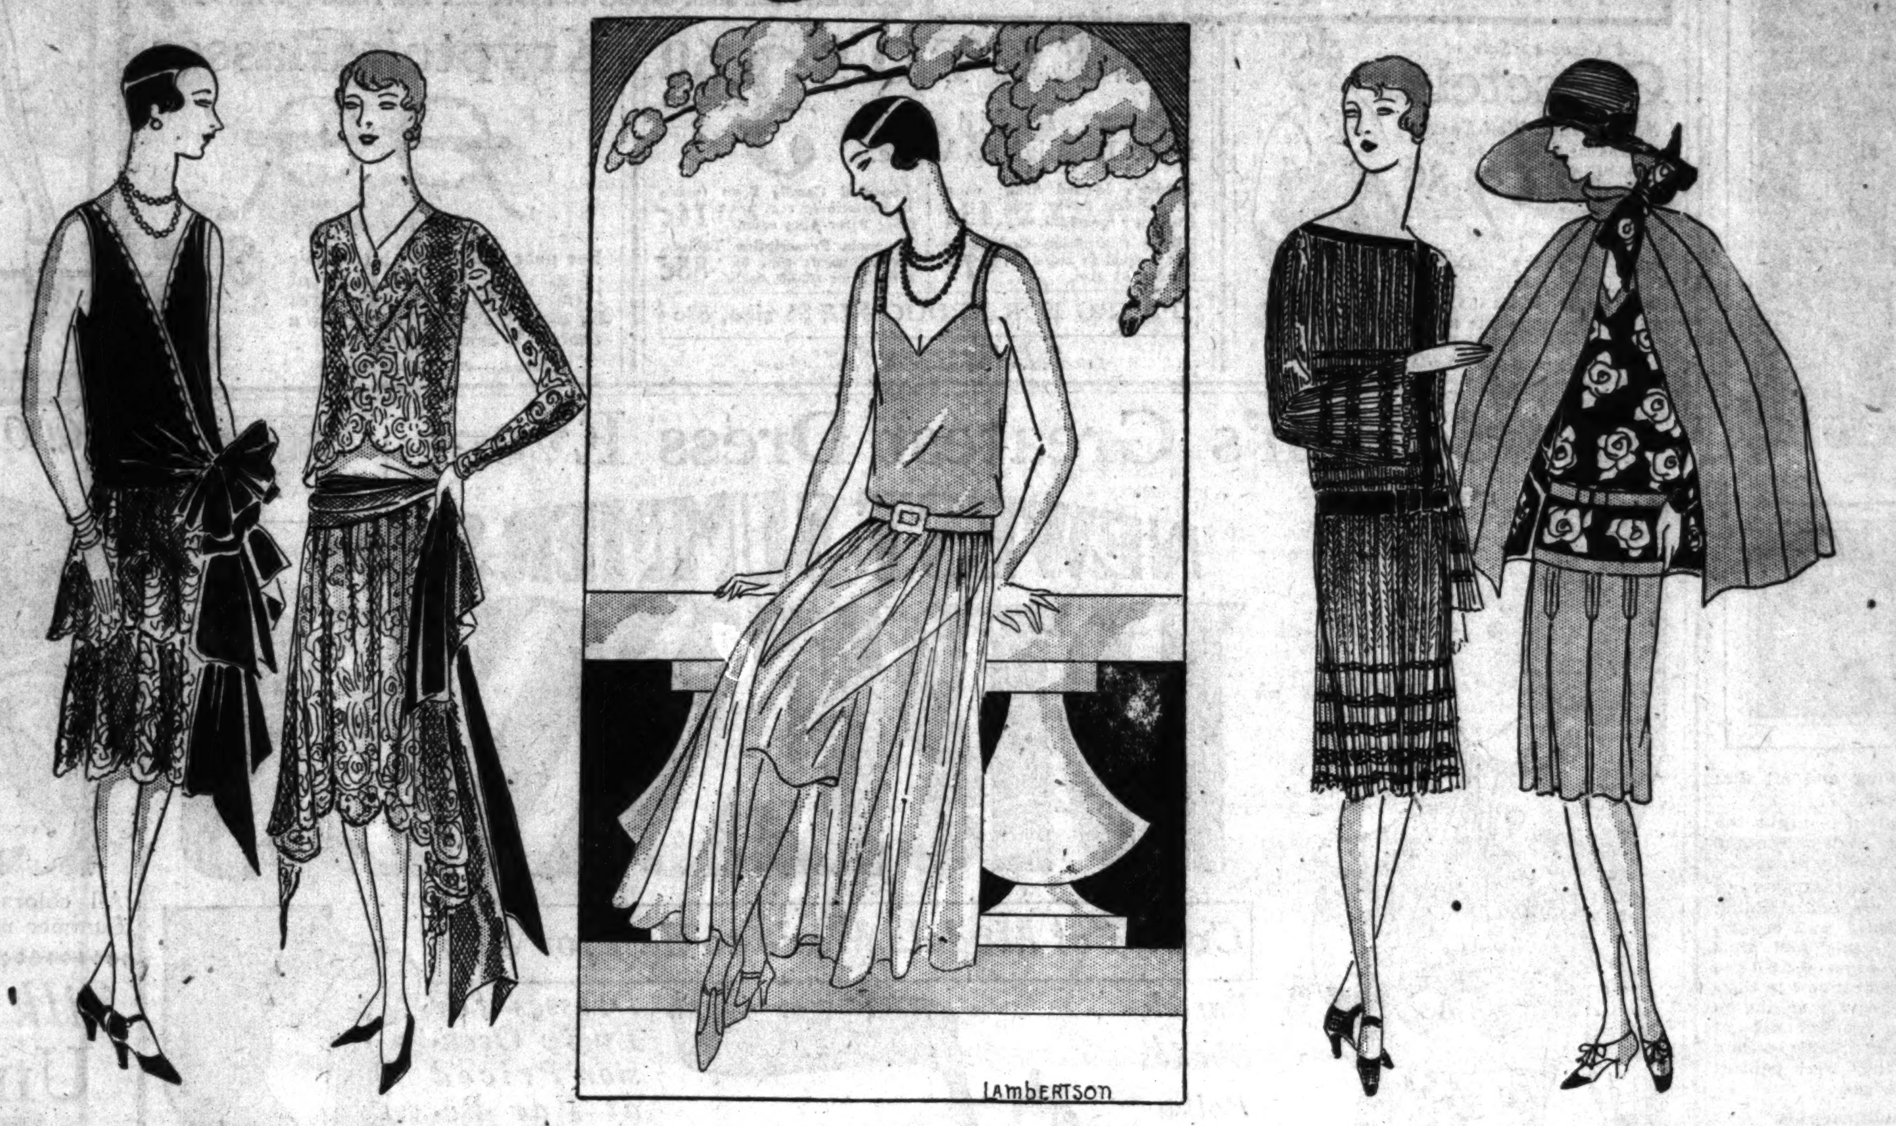
Such tulle frocks cover a wide range of inspiration. Many are in the degradé tones of some color and many others are of black. The latter are sometimes relieved by brilliant touches of color as, for example, one bouffante model the skirt of which is encircled by gigantic red roses appliqued with rhinestones. But that there is, after all, nothing quite so smart as just plain black is demonstrated by the success of one of Chanel's models—the gown sketched here in the center of the page.

Now, could anything be simpler in conception than this black tulle creation with its normal waistline, its side draperies and its V décolletage? Yet apparently nothing struck the sophisticated fancy of the Parisienne more forcefully than this frock.

In this case the tulle is combined with black taffeta and the draping of the transparent fabric is one of the most ingenious tricks played this year. Again you will notice that a single rhinestone ornament can convoy almost any model safely into the harbor of chic. For that rhinestone buckle is absolutely the touch of trimming on the frock.

For the sports costume that we have shown today it is the cape and not the jacket which becomes the basis and exponent of new color touches. Both this cape and the skirt are in yellow crepella and the former, seamed attractively all about its circumference, is lined with the same black crêpe de chine printed in green composing the jumper. What gives this suit its supreme finish is the saucy bow into which the cape adjusts itself, for this exploits the same figured design of blouse and lining.

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]



First at the left is a dance frock of ultra simple mode. Its upper section and the huge cascading bow at one side are of satin in a stained glass window blue. The surplice draping is edged with rhinestones and the two-tiered skirt is of lace in matching blue.

Next to it is an equally typical lace creation designed by Martial et Armand. An all-over grege lace is posed above a foundation of cream colored satin which shows itself where the bolero, scalloped like the full skirt, dips upward above the girdle. The latter consists of tulle in three tones of red to orange.

Black is the center frock which poses tulle over taffeta. Here, if ever, Chanel, the designer, dares to be simple. Shoulder straps, the V neck, a flat belt at the normal waist line and the straight fall of long, transparent draperies over a short skirt—all produce an effect of chic severity established by the square buckle of rhinestones directly in front.

From Beer is the afternoon frock shown next. It is executed in finely plaited blue crepe and trimmed with insertions of matching lace with cire finish. Cire ribbon in matching shade is used for tailored girdle and bindings.

Last we discover a sports suit in yellow crepella. Blouse and cape lining sponsor the same fabric—black crepe printed in green. It appears, also, in the under-the-ear bow, fastening the cape collar.

Here Are Some Reasons Why Bachelors Are Increasing in Numbers.

THERE was a time when gentlemen of marriageable age and over felt it incumbent on themselves to present an alibi for their preferred bachelorhood.

Sometimes the alibi was a sob tribute to the one girl whom some other man succeeded in getting to the altar first. Sometimes it was the legitimate one of dependent sisters or parents. No man remained a bachelor without a good alibi for remaining one.

But now does the bachelor say in melancholy tones he could't get the girl he wanted? Does he say some woman changed the whole face of women's attractions for him? Does he say he isn't married because he couldn't get a girl to have him?

He does not. He, with alarming frankness, states the case in bald terms of preferring his bachelorhood for no other reason than that the life of the bachelor appeals to him.

I say with alarming frankness, because women are beginning to realize that it is a serious preference—not a teasing statement to exert them to further wiles. Furthermore, in their frankness, the bachelors are making it plain that wives are no longer the creatures designed by Providence to look after their comforts and minister to their needs.

And looking about at the divorce situation in this country, one is inclined to believe with the bachelors that they have a legitimate reason to ask, as they are doing, "What does a man get out of matrimony, anyway?"

Divorces Are Increasing.

Statistics for the year 1926 just compiled by the census bureau at Washington show a further increase in the mounting divorce rate for the country as a whole. Though we have no way of determining how many of the divorces granted each year are based on legitimate causes of cruelty and desertion, drunkenness and infidelity on the part of the man, there is evidence to sustain the suspicion that in no small percentage of cases women have driven men to the infractions for which they are now on the alimony list.

Seventy per cent of all divorces are granted to wives, the recent statistics show. Allowing for the body of "honorables" among the male sex who permit their wives to prosecute them legally, the figures do not mean that women are discontented with matrimony over men in the ratio of 70-30. But it does mean that there is something radically wrong with modern woman's attitude toward housekeeping, home making and all that marriage should mean.

It is not my intention to argue the pros and cons of this high percentage of divorce seekers among women.

What is happening is that men are pointing to the figures and deciding that they'd better leave well enough alone and remain single and thus escape the popular charges and all the financial difficulties that follow in their train. Men simply are not willing to accept the fact that the husbands of the seventy per cent of divorce seeking wives are all that they were painted before the divorce judges.

No Longer Indispensable.

They take those figures as a barometer of the state of modern woman's suitability to an institution, the success of which keeps on depending on the application of many of the old fashioned virtues of tolerance and sympathy and patience.

And the result is that woman is no longer the desired creature she keeps on believing herself to be. That she will not be able to nurse the illusion about her desirability much longer is evidenced in the straightforward attacks made against her in public print. Some of these are enough to shrivel the very soul of her if she weren't fortified with the tradition of the ages that she is indispensable to man.

Within the last fortnight three well known bachelors in public life openly expressed themselves as being able to live more comfortably and therefore more happily without a woman around their respective ménages.

There is, in addition to the evidence women themselves have subscribed in the divorce statistics about their inadaptability to the time honored institution of marriage, another reason for the growing bachelor-establishment menace. And this discovery of the male that he can operate a home on a smooth running basis and do it, as he frequently does, in a more comfortable manner than a woman, is a menace if it keeps on growing at the rate it now threatens.

The other advantage to the bachelor, if advantage you wish to call it, is the freedom with which he may open his doors to women sans convention, chaperonage or criticism among his fellow men. The fact that many free women are available on any social occasion the bachelor-host may promote, is not for the good of the sex as a whole. For as a whole women still want the conventional treatment from men that makes them respectable wives of standing in respectable communities.

What is happening is that they are being taken at their surface "free and easy" value. I do not mean to infer that every bachelor apartment is a den of iniquity nor that women who attend the social functions given there are women of loose morals. But in letting down the bars around themselves, women are lessening their value as necessary home fixtures, if I may so call them.

Perhaps when women are confronted with more of the smooth-running, comfort giving establishments run by men desirable for their position, charm, success, they will wake up to the fact that in order to make life attractive to these desirable men they'll have to become super-housewives and super-companions.

Doris Blake's Answers TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Says He Doesn't Care.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend tells me he loves me, but I can't seem to arouse his interest in me in the least. Others tell me he doesn't care for me. Please advise. WORRIED."

You have felt his lack of interest and others have noticed it, too, so there can be no mistake about it. It would be well to make new friends.

Makes Too Much Noise.

"Dear Miss Blake: Lately I heard tha tthe one I love does not love me because I am always running around and making much noise. Please advise. R. H. F."

You're too strenuous, R. H. F. Cultivate a quieter manner and you'll keep your friends longer, dear.

About Changing Habits.

"Dear Miss Blake: Is it right for a girl deeply in love to give up habits her friend doesn't approve? "WORRIED."

A man shouldn't make unreasonable requests, nor ask a girl to give up privileges which are hers. Nor need she consent. She may flatter him by giving in on some of the minor points.

Can't Expect More.

"Dear Miss Blake: My fellow takes me out for about a month, then gives me a standup. Later, he says he is sorry and gives me an excuse which I cannot believe. LOVE SICK."

If you are willing to accept excuses, in which you haven't faith, you must expect further disappointments.

Why Procrastinate with Deafness?

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY to find hearing, and the health and happiness that go with it. And that's to look for it. Each day that you put off the search is only another lost day of nervous irritation and social embarrassment.

So why not look for hearing today? And why not start the quest in the private consultation rooms of the

New Acousticon

We honestly believe that you will find it there, as so many others have, through the medium of the new and finer Acousticon—a scientific hearing aid with a tiny receiver, or earpiece, no larger than a silver dime.

TEN-DAY FREE TRIAL

Take the instrument home with you if you wish. Test it for ten days. Be sure that it's the sort of hearing aid you've always hoped to find. Learn how clearly, how distinctly it transmits sounds to subnormal ears. Probably you'll keep it, but if you don't you may return it without charge or obligation.

If you find a call impossible, merely, send your name and address to Dept. 73, for a free home test.

BEAUTY POWERS THAT ATTRACT

by Antoinette Donnelly

What Is It About a Lovely Woman That Is So Alluring? Antoinette Lists Qualities That Never Fail to Charm.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Views on beauty are personal, said Saltus. They lack indorsement. Gautier said a woman who is beautiful is witty enough. "She has the wit to be beautiful and I know of none equal to that."

Beauty, says some one else, lacks not merely a philosophy but a synonym. It stands as love stands—alluring and undefined.

What a beauty is we all know or think we know. We know, or fancy we do, what it is not.

If it cannot be dissected, as some of the profound thinkers assure us, at least we know that the essence of beauty consists in the power of attraction.

Which brings us around to the object of today's little argument—or study, if you'd rather study than argue. Instead of confining ourselves today to any of the various beauty items and how to improve them, let us see what are "powers of attraction" from a straight beauty angle.

What are the seven, eight, nine or ten deadly attractions?

There are beautiful women, handsome women, comely women, smart women, chic women, women who inspire the imagination, women who leave you cold, outdoor beauties and hot house beauties. One could go on indefinitely in order to embrace all types. But if we can be practical about woman's attractions we'll have to confine ourselves to the obvious features in order to get at the good points that can be cultivated, if they are not already possessed.

Jot Down the Points.

If you want to play a little game you might have paper and pencil handy and check yourself off according to the number of "attractions" you possess. Lay modesty aside for a few minutes and give yourself a perfectly honest rating. I don't want you to use any great professional beauty in a comparative way. That's a bit discouraging, and unnecessary. You can gauge your own assets by accepting a more general beauty standard.

Setting down the deadly attractions according to their order of importance, I cannot but be tempted to lead off with a snappy looking pair of ankles, since women themselves set such store by them and men set such eyes by them.

Girl or woman coming toward you or walking away from you, sitting across from you in room or street car, is subjected to a study of those supporting extremities of hers before you begin to study her dress, coiffure, jewelry or anything else about her. Isn't it true?

So legs, ankles, feet and their manner of dressing, which we'll put under one classification, unquestionably have a leading place in today's summary of beauty assets.

Perfect Figures Are Rare.

A perfect figure is one of woman's chief attractions. It should be well proportioned, slender without being thin, and, above all, supple and young in its bearing and movements. All degrees of magnitude contribute to beauty in proportion as they show objects to be perfect in their kind. The dimensions of a beautiful horse differ from those of a lap dog, a beautiful oak from those of a myrtle. Tall girls may score as high, if their proportions are good, as small women or those of the average five feet five.

Few women are born with perfect figures. And while it is impossible to make limbs shorter or longer or to increase the length of a short, thick body, by exercise and diet very much may be effected. A graceful carriage, easy, graceful movements, give the impression of beauty even where no beauty exists.

Beautiful hair, I think, would earn third place in the list of deadly attractions. Ankles, hair, and figure are certainly the three most absorbing interests of women of this immediate day and age. Whatever absorbs woman's own interest you may be sure is of generally absorbing interest, in spite of the erroneous impression some folk entertain that woman dresses and pretties herself for her own delight.

Then the mouth. I'm not satisfied myself with the position a lovely mouth with gleaming white and perfect teeth is falling into here. If you were to try to get into the movies, into a chorus, or to get any stage job on your beauty, and you had all the other attractions listed but lacked the good mouth, you'd be out of luck. The shape of the mouth doesn't matter so long as it is agreeably shaped. I mean it may be large or small in proportion to the rest of the face, but the teeth in either case have to be in excellent condition or you can't chalk up any score on that tally you're keeping.

Complexion Is Important.

Eyes, in view of the countless thousands of victims that have been lured into captivity by them, are most assuredly to be included among the deadly charms. There was a time in the affairs of woman and beauty when eyes would have been given first place. More odes, sonnets, and paeans of praise have been sung to her orbs than to any other feature of the lady. But in our day a girl manages to get by quite well indeed without the purple of a descending night or the gleam of the Adriatic in her eyes. Sufficient to her reckoning of their attractiveness is that they're happy, clear, with the sparkle of fine health in them.

Complexion should be introduced right away, quickly. Perhaps you think it deserved earlier consideration. But complexions of today being so much art [or near-art] and there being so much standardization in the color schemes thereof I set it down as an attraction but hesitate to say it is one of the very deadliest. One so seldom sees a pure, natural complexion of beauty these days. And of a "canned" skin, no matter how charmingly painted, one simply cannot read a deadly lure into it, can one?

A perfect profile is one of the rarest of the big league attractions. The woman who has it is blessed in that she is usually handsome all her life and mostly so when she is over 30. The perfectly proportioned face can be divided into three equal parts—the forehead, nose and mouth should measure exactly the same number of inches. A beautiful nose is imperative in a beautiful profile. A good brow, a good chin and a pleasing curve of the lips must likewise be present. It does not follow, however, that a woman cannot be a beauty without regular features. Portrait painters have often expressed a preference for the irregular featured girl, reading character into a nose, a mouth or chin that are not perfectly proportioned.

A throat, dazzlingly white, shapely, and smooth as a column of alabaster, as the poets would describe it, is a lovely asset. Its possession would bear out the statement of the man who said that beauty is one thing that cannot be acquired—it has to be congenitally bestowed. The throat that rises like a flower-stem or like the aforementioned alabaster column has its throat ancestors to thank. Nothing about a woman marks her quite so much the aristocrat as this one possession. Nothing gives her quite the chic it does, nor lends the coiffure so much distinction.

Minor Attractions.

Of the minor attractions—there are the eyebrows. The forehead announces the intellectuality of the character. And the oval face. I say minor because I'm speaking of the beauty features I know to be the most discussed. And beautiful arms are another asset that would earn a more prominent place were there more of them in existence. The well molded arm tapering to a slender wrist, ending with a shapely, well-kept hand, the skin white and satin-smooth, the elbow round and dimpled is a rare possession indeed, and one over which I think, barring fat encouragement, our ancestors had more control than we.

But here I am at the end of my space discovering that I have forgotten hands. If a lovely hand isn't one of the deadly attractions, then there aren't any such things as attractions for women to reckon on or wrestle for. By all means count them in as deadly if they're beautiful. They're more important than eyes. They're more important than profile.

Going back over the list now, are you not surprised how many of woman's fatal charms are within your cultivation? Legs, figure, hair, mouth, eyes, complexion, eyebrows and hands—eight of them—are all features over which you have the power of improvement if improvement any of them needed.

RAIN IN THE NIGHT

DETOUR
Eleanor Duke

By Eleanor Jewett.

Last night it rained,
I heard it in my sleep.
I thought the angels chose
A lonesome time to weep,

For it was dark, I looked—
The moon had gone to bed,
And all the tiny silver stars
Picked up their skirts and fled.

Outside the house was only night,
So lonely, big and black—
Do you think the angels missed the moon
And cried to get it back?

YOU AND YOUR CHILDREN by MRS. GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We Pay Lots of Attention to His Physical Well-Being, But How Much Thought Do We Give to His Mental and Spiritual Side?

THOSE who know Eskimos say they adore castor oil.

Haven't you often wished that your offspring might change into Eskimos when the taking of one of those horrible doses loomed up ahead?

Having had a theory about its being purely idea-istic—this revulsion for castor oil (which I share with the world)—I was delighted when my baby took it without a quaver. Sedulously we never allowed a word against castor oil to enter our conversation.

Nevertheless my theory was destined to be smashed to smithereens. I found before long that my child shared the common emotion about castor oil.

Other mothers I knew of had the same story to tell. They used orange juice, scoldings, cracked ice, spankings, lemon rind, holding the nose, rewards, and so forth and so on, to get it in. Each one resorted to different tactics.

When I first discovered that my theory was exploded I tried the spring-it-on-him plan, thinking it would be least awful. Suddenly I'd appear with a spoonful—but it didn't work. Little as he was he would say, "Mommie, just wait till I get my mind made up, then I'll take it."

At first I was a little intolerant of this idea. But finally I waited. And pretty soon the poor little thing would say, "All right," and down it would go, followed by a rough crust of bread to chew on.

Swim with the Tide.

And I came to realize that when we had a big unpleasant job ahead, like, for instance, a certain visit to the doctor's, it was disorganizing for me to keep it from him until just before it happened. He seemed to gain poise and control if he had time to realize that here was a nasty job that he was willing himself to do—not be thrust into. As he grew older he became conscious of this, himself.

"Don't spring it on me, mommie," he would say. "Give me time to get used to the idea of something I don't like." And I try to do so. That is the way he works. With some children such methods might be most harmful. They are all so different, these children—as witness the castor oil stories of other mothers.

Human nature is universal. Yes, of course, it is. But individuals are so individual.

If we see that he inevitably functions in a certain way, we must fall in with that, oiling the wheels, not throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery because we don't like the way it works. Accepting inherent traits (and I'm not talking about what we call faults, because I won't admit they're inherent) we must work with them if we are to make headway in bringing a child into the fulness of his powers—if we are to see him develop in harmony with himself, not with some one else's conception of him. It spells all the difference between swimming with the tide and against it.

It is, after all, the thing that makes life interesting—this very individuality. It manifests itself in all orders, high and low. We see it in our family, in the turtles we get from time to time, and in our cats—while our nine puppies were a fascinating and spectacular example of it. By the time they were able to stagger plumply about individuality was evident. There was the adventurous puppy, and the frolicsome one, and the two who were always together, one invariably following his brother or leaning heavily against him when they sat down. There was the pup who always went off by himself in a corner, the one who was timid, and the one who walked about in such a manner that we called him the ward politician. And so it went.

Each Is an Entity.

No two thumb prints in the world are alike. Neither are any two children. For them to be most interesting to their parents and themselves the fact that each is a distinct entity must be kept in mind.

Children in institutions cannot at most receive much more than good physical care. Consideration of their other capacities—their talents, their temperaments, their emotions — all those qualities that go to make each child unique are impossible in such a place, even with the best intention in the world. The result is astonishing in this—that it actually affects the children's health. There is a disharmony in lack of fulfillment that often brings physical ills in its train. The sooner we accept and develop the individualness of our children, the better for them and for us.

A mother went to see her boy's teacher one day.

"Why doesn't Bill stay and play with the boys after school any more?" she asked.

"He says they play war all the time and that he gets sick of poking around with sticks and making believe kill people," answered the teacher.

"Why, I thought all boys liked to play war! I think he just ought to be made to stay and play the way other boys do. I think it's wholesome for him to be noisy and rough."

The teacher laughed.

"He can be noisy and full enough of boy nonsense when he feels like it. But he has constructive talent to a great degree. War play just doesn't appeal to him. All boys, even lively, healthy, mischievous ones, are not alike. Let him be himself and he'll find boy companions who are congenial in tastes."

* *

Parents Didn't Understand.

And the teacher who was telling me about it went on to say:

"This little boy has great physical vitality which expresses itself in wrestling, running, and speeding on his scooter—he has little competitive or game instinct. He has a scientific imagination but none of the fantastic sort like believing in fairies or Santa Claus. He's full of miscief, but honorable and open as the day.

"His parents haven't a conception of what the essence of their boy is. Consequently they don't know how to handle him. It makes me boil," she said. "They don't treat him as an individual, but just as some sort of Average Boy who exists in their minds—but nowhere else in the world."

Look for the individual in your child. Physically we do that quite well as a rule. We suit his food, his sleep, his exercise, his play to his individual bodily needs. We want him to blossom physically. Much less effort do most of us expend toward helping him to blossom mentally and spiritually. We would do well to become more alert to these aspects of his individuality.

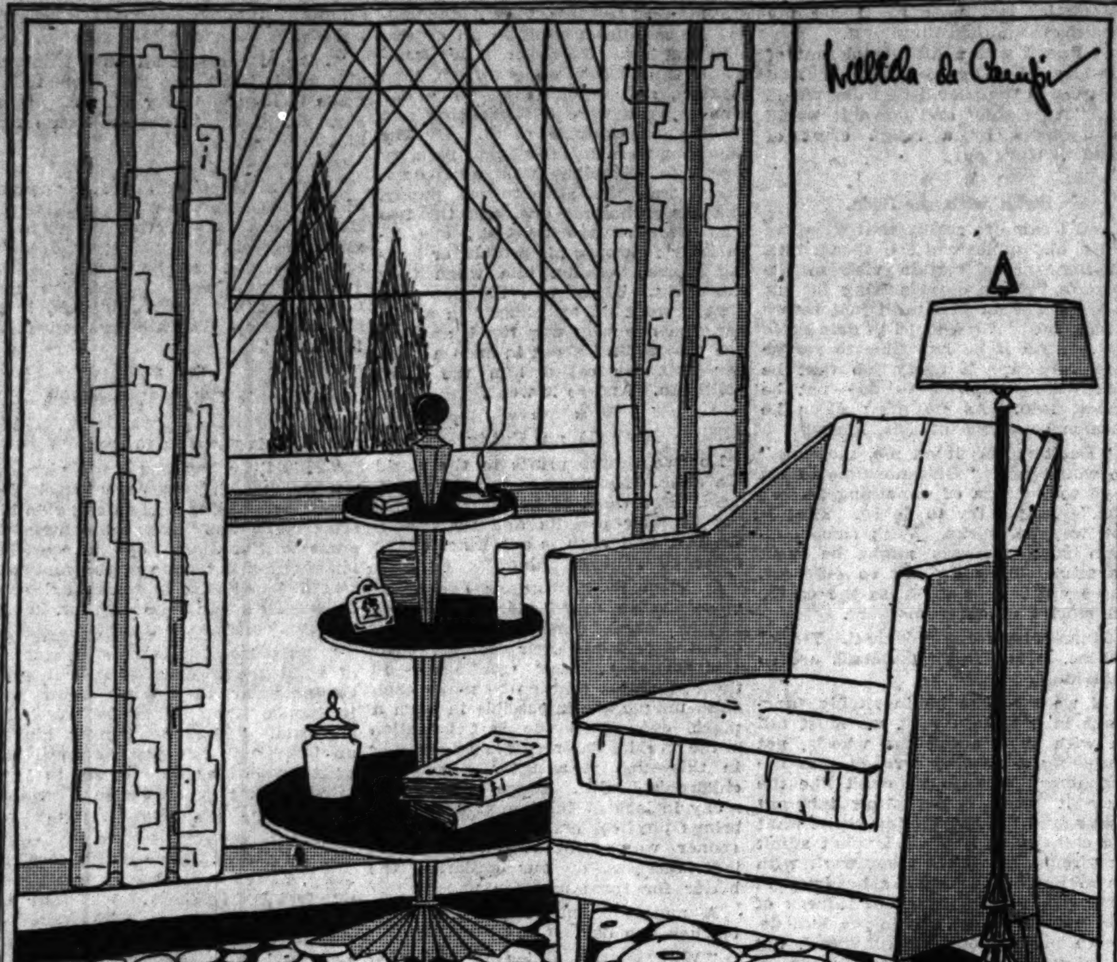
Figured Floor Coverings, Absent Since the Days of Our Grandmothers, Are Coming Back Into Favor



Carpeting of a floral design makes up this gay living room rug.

WHEN it comes to the consideration of the architectural features of a room, the importance of the floor is frequently undervalued. Walls, woodwork, window treatments—all of these are carefully planned. Be that as it may, if the floors and their coverings are not given a due amount of notice, the final result is bound to be lacking in character.

It is interesting to note that favor is being shown, again, to figured floor coverings. Very different, though, is the present conception from those hideous domestic reproductions of orientals, and those wildly flowered creations which were in vogue during the Victorian age. Those atrocities were largely responsible for a revulsion and the ensuing adoption of plain, monotone floors.

At last we are emerging from that recent lethargic state. Even those who still prefer a one color floor no longer limit themselves to the drab tones of a bygone day. Through carpeting, rugs, and linoleums, floors are attaining new distinction.

The influence of modern art is strongly felt in many rugs and linoleums which are being manufactured today. Patterns are tempered by a fine sense of balance in design and by a studied understanding of color blendings and contrasts. Many geometric forms are employed. Even rugs which are done in floral designs show a certain feeling of geometric restraint.

Today's illustration portrays one corner of a living room done in modern décor. Carpeting of floral pattern is made up into a rug with a plain border. The border is deep brown, one of the dominant shades in the carpeting. In tones of brown, purple and green with a few touches of yellow this rug assimilates a deep bed of great, lovely pansies.

Decorations for the room carry out this color scheme. The walls and woodwork are painted a soft, dusty yellow. At the windows are draperies of a modern silk fabric showing an odd geometric design in shades of a wine purple color. These hang straight to the floor. Glass curtains of ecru net are tightly drawn down to a point at the lower corners of the windows, making interesting cross lines.

A modern sofa is upholstered in deep brown velvet, as is one large arm chair which stands near a set of open book shelves. The chair shown in the illustration, in contrast to the rest of the room, is done in deep turquoise leather.

Exceptionally pleasing is a modern bedroom which has just been completed. Here again the rug is the basis upon which the decorative scheme of the room is built up. It is a hand tufted rug, showing a curious treatment of diamond shaped motifs beautifully developed in tones of gray and rose-beige, with accents of black. Although this may sound somewhat bizarre in description, in reality it is unquestionably livable, as the soft blendings of the colors make the design satisfactorily unobtrusive.

Walls in this room are in a light, soft beige and the woodwork is a trifle darker. The furniture is made of very light, unfinished maple decorated with touches of ebony. An arch topped, recessed niche, backed with mirror, has a low table and bench placed before it. This arrangement takes the place of a dressing table. At the windows are glass curtains of pale beige silk gauze. Draperies are of diagonally striped taffeta in ash-rose and beige. The same material makes an interesting bed cover. Altogether the room is most peacefully restful and charming.

In spite of the present popularity of figured floor coverings, many decorators of indisputably good taste are employing solid color carpets as successfully as ever. In some instances, an appropriate pattern cannot be found. It is recognized as decidedly preferable to have a plain rug, in color to harmonize with the scheme of the room, rather than one in which the design obviously does not "belong."

One fascinating living room in a city apartment has its floor carpeted in deep pile black chenille. In pleasing contrast to this depth of black, and to alleviate its somberness, the paneled walls are painted a warm, shrimp pink. At the windows are glass curtains of cream net. Draperies of shrimp pink sunfast of a lustrous silk quality are finished with a narrow binding of black velvet, and are topped by black glass cornices. A comfortable sofa is upholstered in sage green friezé. One large arm chair is done in flame colored velvet, and another in needlepoint on a black ground. The remaining pieces are of walnut.

Linoleum plays an important part in the coloring of floors. There are innumerable patterns, suited to any room, and colors to fit in with every color scheme. In a delightful little breakfast room the floor is covered with inlaid linoleum in a large square tile pattern. The color is a lovely delft blue with cream colored mortar lines. Woodwork is painted blue to match, and the walls are a deep cream.

Window curtains of large checked gingham in delft blue and white have ruffled edges and tiebacks of the same material. To make a pleasing combination, the furniture is enameled dull turquoise blue and is decorated with bright floral motifs in peasant

You Are Lucky If Today Is Your Birthday

Marion Meyer Drew's weekly articles are presented solely for the entertainment of readers. Separate answers to individual questions cannot be given.

By Marion Meyer Drew.

TODAY is the birthdate of some rather lucky folk for the coming year, as all those who celebrate on July 22 begin the period with a horoscope full of interesting planetary positions, most of them good and just enough of them bad to make life exciting.

Thrilling emotional affairs lie in wait around the nearest corner of the kidnaping of the affections of the man or woman born on this day of the year, and if the summer rolls by without some absorbing new friendship, then consider the possibility of a new birthdate for yourself. Money matters may not be quite as lively, but that is true of all business in a presidential year, so the wiseacres tell us, and we must content ourselves with our social opportunities for the time being. November will be indeed strenuous!

Monday, the 23d, is an anniversary which misses a good many of the best aspects for the year which brighten the lot of those whose birthdates fall either just before or just after this day.

The twelve months now beginning to unfold will doubtless seem rather dull and colorless to these people, although the winter months will hold their share of incident. The aspects of Jupiter at that time will not be of the best, however, and this will empty the pocketbook, while Uranian rays may cause one to look upon such affairs as capable of betterment through radical change.

This desire for anything as long as it is new and different will do no good, and if you insist upon getting a new job or a new sweetie, don't expect any marked improvement through the moving about. The sign Leo is strong in here, and Leo counts too much upon appearances.

Tuesday and Wednesday are active birthdates for 1929, the planets which move more slowly, and therefore making in astrology what are considered more powerful aspects, forming this year several lasting and exact relationships with the sun in the horoscopes of the people who have been born on these dates. Unfortunately, these are somewhat difficult vibrations to control—our planetary radio at this time can be pictured as a complicated and sensitive mechanism—and our lives under these rays seem adverse, disappointing and aimless. But this attitude is due to our lack of understanding of a positive plan of life such as the horoscope offers us and in our effort to stumble along, piecing together the ups and downs of existence to create a definite whole based upon some intelligible scheme of development, we are apt to become discouraged with the entire scramble and cry aloud that life is a sham or a spasm of stage fright, when in reality all we need is a knowledge of conditions and the courage to face them. No one but ourselves can supply the latter, but the study of astrology gives us the former. For these people the winter months will indeed prove eventful.

The 26th of this month brings its sons and daughters a rather languid and even dreamy attitude toward many of the practical matters of life as the rest of us view them, but at the same time great persistence and depth where more sparkling emotions might only be rippling brooks. The influence of Neptune this year will create puzzling situations where the first impression will not always be the safe guide; but after the winter's introductory spell of foggy conditions in personal affairs as well as in the weather, the general run of things will clear up a little. Don't expect too much this year.

Friday and Saturday, too, are days which perforce must be written down upon the minus side of the books, and preparations for real, live circumstances and events of a negative nature must be made. November and December—yes, into January too—seem the months for the most unusual of these occurrences and the most numerous dates which the horoscope for the birthdays shows to be clouded by an adverse aspect. Avoid new plans during the winter, and make new friends slowly.

As for the rest of us, this present week should be one of some clearing-up of details, much running about after odds and ends of matters which really amount to little, and yet which have to be moved to one side or the big business of the day will not have space to turn around. The busiest group of the time appears to be the little parcel of folk born near March 26, although the Dec. 5 people run them a close second.

The luckiest, by all accounts, should be the men and women born near May 1, with the beneficient plant Jupiter sailing close to his or her sun and stimulating all the opportunities for gold, friends or general welfare, and the group most urged to watch its step just now is that born near Jan. 23, for health or business will receive poor aspects at this time, and men of this date will suffer personally while women of the date will find their closest male relatives passing through very adverse conditions.

The general tendency of the week will be exemplified in the affairs of the famous people who were born during this period, among whom we may watch, David Belasco, Larry Semon, Johnny Hines, George Bernard Shaw and Mussolini, all or any of whom will make minor changes, come to sudden remarkable decisions in regard to things which have been hanging fire for some time, and whose money matters will be less favorable than usual.

Leo people love the footlights and usually make their gesture with an eye to the audience and its reception of their theatricals. The coming year is not so strong for Leo, but after a little bewailing of their lot they can pick up again after the passing of the next twelve months.

Here's a Real Treat: Afternoon at Rodeo

By Sally Joy Brown.

READY, now, girls and boys, for the news of our next great party! On Aug. 2, a week from next Thursday, we'll visit the rodeo at Soldiers' field.

Here is a breath of the old west, with its daredevil riders, carefree sports, and the spirit of the open range, come to take our thoughts from smoky streets and the heat and bustle of the city for an afternoon! Here you will see the champion cowboys and cowgirls of the range—riders who have won honors at all the great rodeos of the country come to compete for the highest honors of all here in Chicago. We'll see champion animals—bucking bronchos that delight in unseating the most skillful riders, and the best trick horses. It will be life in the wild west with world champions of every sport showing us how everything is done.

To let you know how fine everything will be, I'll mention that among the performers we'll see Tad Lucas, world's champion all around cowgirl; Ruth Roach, world's champion broncho rider, and Florence Hughes, world's champion trick rider. Among the men there'll be the following champions: Mike Hastings, the steer wrestler; Chester Byers, trick roper; Ted Elder, trick rider; Floyd Stillings, broncho rider. And to spur all these champions to their best efforts, Tex Austin of Las Vegas, N. M., managing director of the contest, will distribute $33,000 in cash prizes, as well as championship belts and trophies.

To share in all this fun, you need only write me a letter, as usual, telling me why you'd like to come and why you'd like to see the rodeo, so I can choose the hundred girls and boys who'll send the best letters. Be sure, though, to write out your name in full, to give your street address and age. Mail your letters by Wednesday afternoon at the latest; watch next Sunday's TRIBUNE for the names of the hundred winners, and a week from Thursday we'll be off for an afternoon of the old wild west at the rodeo.

I've chosen the winners for my Ravinia party next Thursday, July 26, and I'm printing their names below; also, I shall mail a letter to each one. In this letter, which should reach you by Tuesday or Wednesday, I'll tell you the plans for meeting; so if your name is in the list, watch for your invitation and the letter telling you all about it.

Ravinia Party Guests.

BOYS.

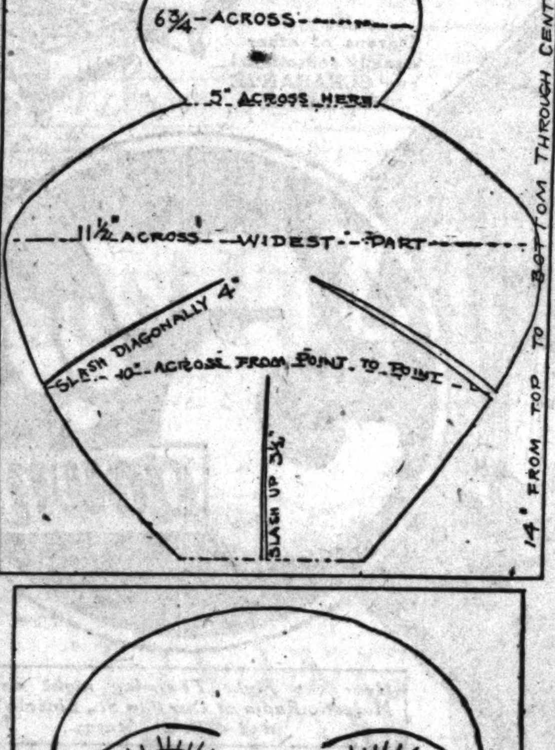
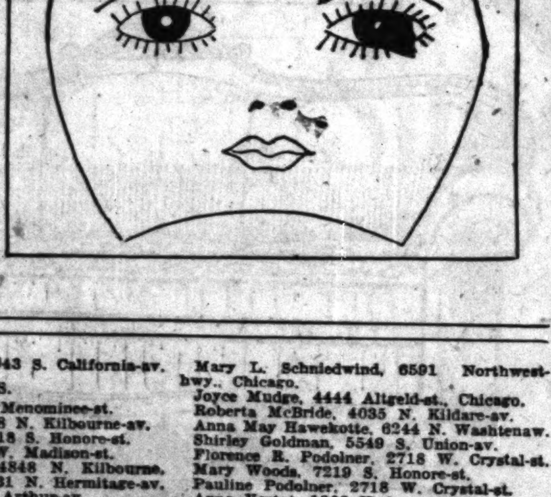
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde

A Patchwork Dolly Is Sure to Delight the Heart of Any Child.





THERE seem to be new fashions in dolls from time to time, just as there are in other lines, and these rag ones are much liked by small children.

These patchwork dolls can be made of any pieces of cotton prints you may have, and the brighter the colors are and the sharper the contrast is in the colors in the squares the gayer looking the doll will be. Five rows of three squares, making each square three inches, will be needed for the back and front of the doll. Then extra squares for the arms and feet.

These squares must be sewed together firmly—stitching on the machine will be the best way. After stitching all the squares together the doll is cut out and stitched together, leaving the top open until it is well filled out with cotton batting. Then the edges across the top are turned in and overhanded together.

Before stitching the doll together the face must be made and sewed in place. Use white cambric for this. Make the eyes, lashes, eyebrows, and outline of the mouth of black, using a reasonably soft pencil. Then fill in between the mouth outline with red. A dotted line of black can be marked through the center of the red, simulating teeth.

The edges of the face piece should be neatly turned in all around and hemmed in place on one of the head pieces. The cloth for the face measures 5½ inches straight across in the widest part, and from top to bottom the measure is 4½ inches. Then it is cut in a rounding shape, as you can see, coming down below the 4½ inch measure at each side.

The diagrams of the body and the face have all the measurements clearly marked, so there will be no trouble in cutting out. Of course, a paper pattern should be cut, corresponding exactly to the measure given.

Healthy Tan Without Sunburn

Be out-of-doors all you can this summer, but protect your skin from the wind that coarsens it and the sun that burns and wrinkles it. Take this simple precaution. Ask your druggist for a package of Epiol. Mix it with water and glycerine to a satiny cold cream. Use this like any vanishing cream, wherever the skin is exposed, and autumn will find you with a golden tan but a skin still soft, supple, unwrinkled. Try it.

SOMETHING CALLING

by DOUGLAS NEWTON

A Clerk Becomes a Quixote and Meets with Better Results than Those Attained by the Dreamy Spaniard, for in His Case Chivalry Is Rewarded.

OWEN SAYCE heard the two men plainly and, anyhow, he was deliberately listening. That was why he was here in this little dockside "pub." It was adventure—almost; or, and his thin, white face smiled wearily, as much adventure as a man of his sort deserved.

That was his attitude until the murder was mentioned.

The men were not seamen, as he had expected. They did not speak of the breathless experiences beyond romance as his parched soul thirsted for. They were criminals, and mean ones at that. Their talk was of sneaking crimes, some of them vile, furtive evasions of the police—and home.

Queer, that—home! But it was true. Both had come from some small country place, the name of which Owen Sayce never caught, and they had not been for many years. They had celebrated the occasion and were a little drunk. It made them boastful, incautious and louder of voice than they knew. If it had not been for all this Owen Sayce would never have heard about the murder.

They were on the other side of a partition, close to it as he was, so that he was practically at their elbow, though they could not see him. Their end of bar, no doubt, was as empty as the saloon bar in which he sat, pretending to read, but really reaching out for something—something that had more of the breath of living in it than his own flat existence.

The men talked with the increasing recklessness of the slightly tipsy, as each strove to show he was more of a devil of a chap than the other. The monotony of their low adventures was only persuading Owen that crime was even more dull than his own daily round, when the one with the husky voice said: "Torkin', o' 'ome, 'oo do you think I see in Santa Orca, two-three year back?"

"Santa Orca?" said the better educated and brighter of the twain. "That's South America, hey? Harvey Regent, dodging warrants?"

"Guess again."

"Only chap I can think of."

"Young 'Sandy' from the manor. The chap who did in the old squire; remember that murder?"

"You bet I remember it," jeered the other in a meaning tone. "There ain't many who know as much about that as I do. But you're wrong about young 'Sandy.' He's dead."

"He ain't, then. Saw him as large as life in the Plaza del Coliseo, Santa Orca. Of course, he's getting on now, like the rest o' us. He must be over fifty, but I knew 'im, all right."

"Couldn't have been him," snapped the other. "He was drowned at sea. Him an' the girl who ran away with him."

"I guess that drowning was a fake. Wasn't I gardener boy at the manor? Didn't I know Mr. 'Sandy,' an' look you, didn't he 'ave a white scar in 'is right eyebrow where 'e fell from 'is cob? Well, so did this 'Enry Wild, not that I didn't know 'im before I saw the scar."

"So he calls himself Henry Wild?" said the other, suddenly giving in.

"That's the name, 'Enry Wild. Found that out when I shadowed 'im to 'is 'otel. I 'ad an idea about touchin' 'im for a little 'ush money—till I saw the 'otel."

"A na-poo place?"

"Regular dog's 'ole. A low, dirty Dago place. I wouldn't be seen in it, hard up as I was."

"He's pretty low down, then?"

"About as low as a man c'd get, I should say. I thought as much when I saw 'is clothes. Bit of a shock they was, when you remember what a smart, careful chap he was. When I saw that half-breed doss-'ouse I knew there was no money there. Made me sick to think a decent white man had come to that, let alone a white woman."

"The girl's still with him?"

"Married to 'im," said the husky man. "Only she ain't a girl now. She's white haired an' pinched. That's part o' wot made me turn up the 'ush money idea. Miss Cissy an' 'er aunt was uncommon good to my old ma. I hadn't the 'eart to string 'em up, seeing what she's become; she, 'oo was such a pretty, perky young lady. She's got pluck, Miss Cissy."

"Yes, she always had. She was a fine young girl," said the other man. "Comic, ain't it, to think she's got 1,500 a year in her own right, too?"

"Fifteen 'undred!" gasped the other. "Garn, you're codding. When I saw them they didn't look like fifteen 'unpence."

"I didn't say she touched it, did I?" snarled the other. "I said she'd a right to it. So she has. That's where it's comic. She can't touch it because it'd give him away, see? She had to leave it behind with her good home and a lot of other things, and, I guess, she's sorry by now she was such a fool."

"No, I think, she ain't," said the husky voice. "I see 'em together, and whatever she feels, she ain't sorry, unless it's for 'im."

"Well, she's got a right to be that, anyhow."

"I dunno," said the other, "if a man done off 'is own father——"

"You don't believe that, this day," said the other, in a voice of superior acumen.

"But there ain't a doubt o' it," said the other, pugnaciously. "The evidence——"

"O, the evidence," the other mocked. "The evidence would have hanged him all right—but he didn't do it, all the same."

"'Oo did it, then, if 'e didn't?"

"Ah, that's telling," jeered the other, in a voice that said, "But I can tell."

"O' course 'e did it," insisted the husky voice. "Didn't all the servants 'ear 'im quarreling with the old man? Didn't 'e go off in a mad rage? Didn't 'e bolt for it directly after the murder, an' Miss Cissy with 'im?"

"They bolted because they saw the evidence was dead against them. But that doesn't say he did it. And nobody saw him do it, anyhow."

"What does that matter? He could 'ave sneaked back across the grounds while the old man was walking the terrace an' done it, nobody knowing."

"He wasn't the only one who could have come sneaking back after a quarrel," jeered the sharp voice.

"I know what you're getting at," the husky voice was a taunt, "that what's-his-name, the fly-by-night cousin who's got the manor now. But that's tripe. 'E was in 'is 'otel two miles away. The servants saw 'im go to bed, an' all——"

"Yes, they did—fine alibi, that," the other was bubbling with triumph. "Only some one else saw him sneak across the fields and knife the old man in the back—an' then sneak back the way he came, so that the hotel servants could swear that they called him early in the morning."

"Lummy!" said the other in awe. "You man it, Ben? Some one saw 'im, you say! . . . At that time o' night?"

"Some one setting snares in the big spinney which looks downs on the terrace," chuckled the other. "It was a moonlight night, too."

"Why didn't 'e come forward, then?"

"He had no right in that spinney," said the other, who was obviously enjoying his companion's awe. "An' he had no right to set snares——"

"Poaching—'oo was it, Bill Jones or Slick Sam?"

"Don't matter," said the smart one. "The police had a down on him anyhow, and then the man he saw do it, the cousin, could tell things about the shooting up of a keeper, that meant at least a life stretch——"

"Slick Sam, by gum!" cried the other in awe. "An' 'e saw it all, Ben?"

"He saw it all," said the other, enjoying the sensation he had caused, and then, in grim, homely words, he described that murder. It was so vivid that Owen Sayce shuddered and almost saw, with Slick Sam, that slinking figure of a man creeping across the moonlight, dodging through the shadows until he was at the back of the old man pacing the terrace. He saw the flash of the knife in the moonlight, the fall of the victim. He saw the murderer dispose of the incriminating weapon.

"You know, there are big stone statues all along the terrace at the manor," the man Ben explained. "They are hollow. The chap shoved the knife into the mouth of the grinning one by the steps down to the lawn. . . . It's still there, like as not. It's a sure hiding place and he wouldn't risk finding another."

THE man went on to describe the murderer sneaking off in the shadows across the fields and how Slick Sam, the poacher, had torn up his traps in frantic fear of leaving evidence of his being there and so being drawn into the business, when his own past might be exposed.

"Why did he blab to you?" asked husky voice.

"He was in a hospital with me, second time I was in 'stir,'" said Ben. "He was beginning to get religion then. He's got it bad now; last time I was home he was the rector's gardener and a sidesman, too. Well, his conscience was beginning to hurt him an' he asked me about it, whether he ought to give the feller up to justice or not, that sort of thing."

"An, you told him not to be a fool?"

"Yes. I told him that; 'Sandy' being dead, bringing it up might only hurt im an' do nobody any good."

"But 'Sandy' ain't dead."

"That only makes it worse for Sam and-me—and you!" Ben's voice had changed to a sullen tone, he was beginning to feel that he had talked too much. "Accessory after the fact, you see—that means a long term for all of us—unless we all keep our faces shut about it."

"Don't I know?" said the other, a little fearfully. "But wot I meant was, mightn't it be worth something to us? That chap at the manor must be worth thousands a year. Well, mightn't 'e be worth touching——?"

"Blackmail—a mug's game for our sort," snarled the other. "Forget it, you fool. A man who's done murder is an unhealthy feller for you an' me to tackle."

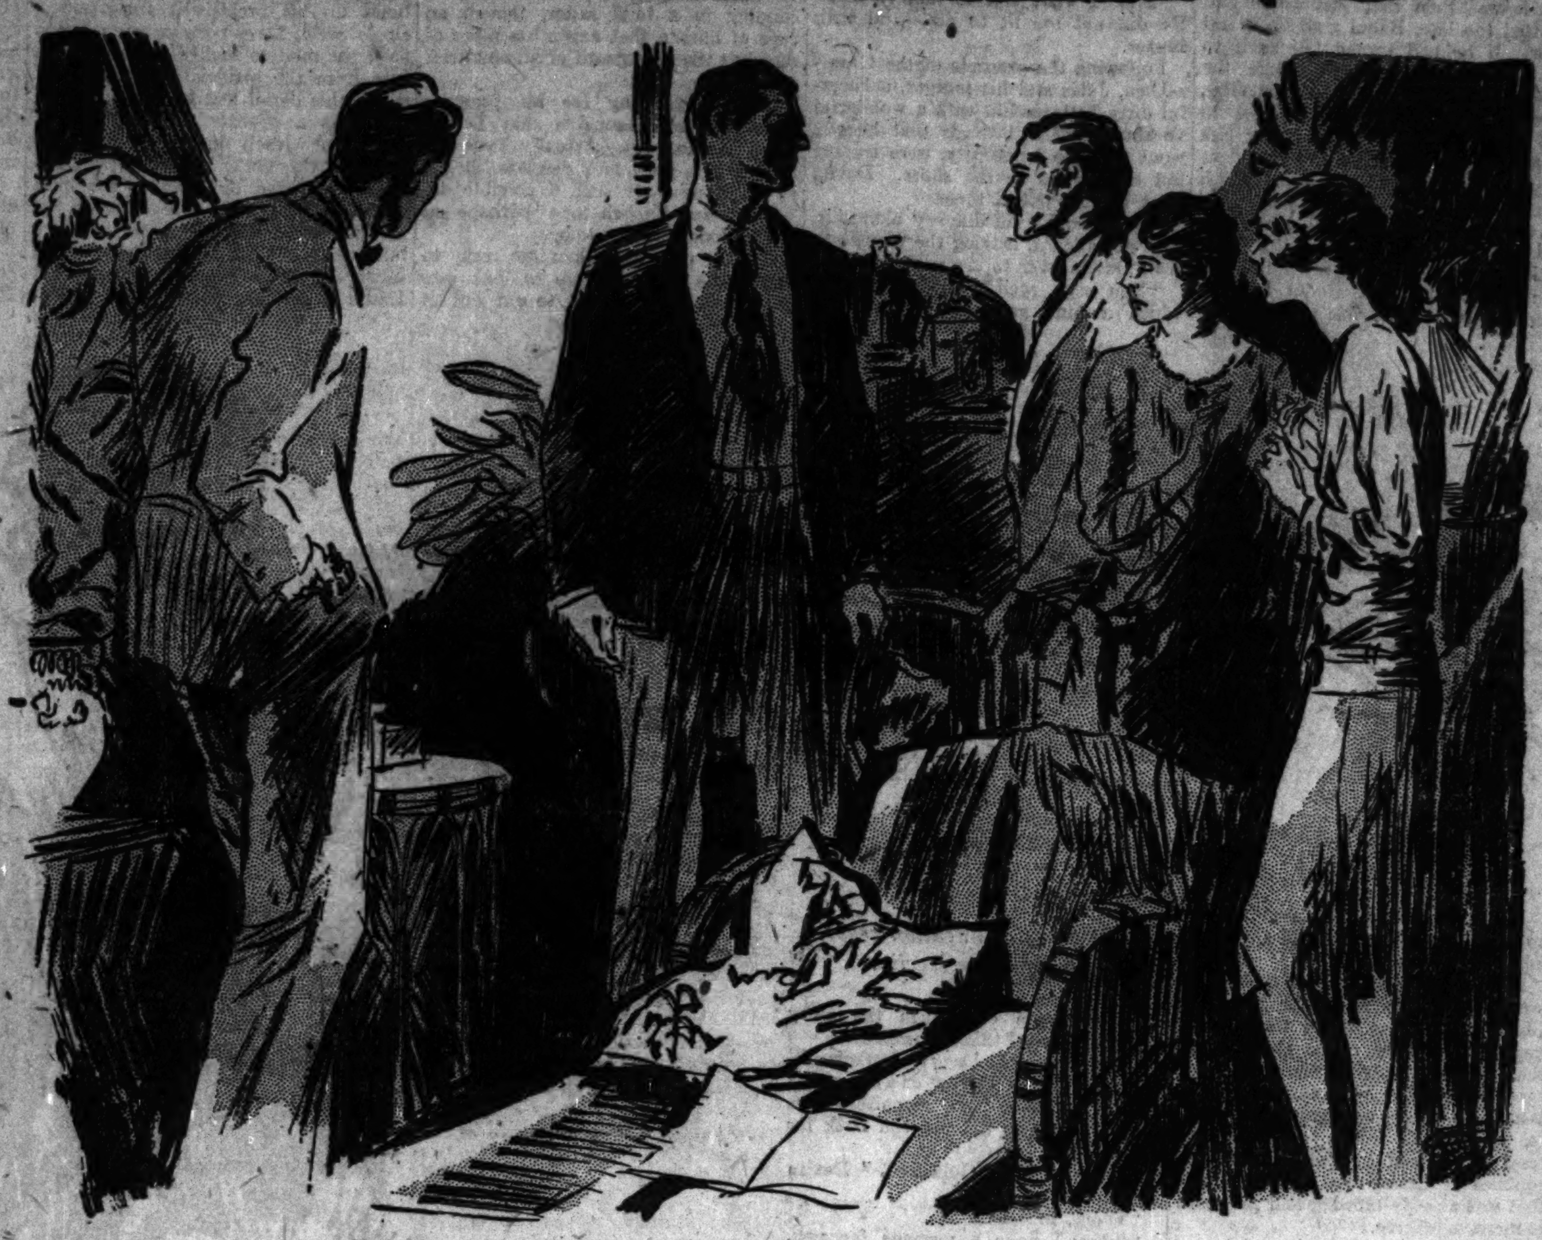
"Well—what about the other over in Santa Orca? He'd pay good money to clear himself and get back to the manor."

"Yes," the other said furiously, "an' you'll feel fine standin' up before a court giving evidence on his behalf. Anxious to have your record mauled over by the police, hey?"

"Cripes, no!" quavered the other. "But it might be done cunning."

"It can't be, you bonehead! How will the chap clear himself unless he brings in Slick Sam? An' then Sam'll drag me in, and I'll drag you. They'll pull the lot of us for various little jobs we want forgotten, an' as accessories, too. You know how the police deal with us? I'm not anxious to go back to stir, an' I don't suppose you want to either. Thought not—then keep your trap shut. I don't know that I haven't been a darn fool talking as it is. Who knows who is on the other side of the partition listening?"

Husky Voice uttered an oath and sprang up, and Owen Sayce, who knew enough of the theory of adventure at least to know when to make himself scarce, slipped silently out of the saloon bar into the misty street. The crooks never saw him—and he never saw them.



The old man had risen grimly and faced him with a bitter look on his face.

OWEN SAYCE was a clerk. He had been a clerk from the day when his father's death and bankruptcy had ended his schooldays and put him into the care of an aunt. She was a most genteel kind of an aunt. She it was who had decided that both the sea and the colonies were far too "rough" for anything bearing the name of Sayce and had got her lawyer to find Owen a position in the Domestic Insurance corporation, a firm celebrated for the "tone" of its employés.

Owen was a good clerk; it was certain that at the age of fifty he would be at the head of quite a responsible department in the office. To Owen the prospect seemed like a form of slow death. Queer, that, for when his aunt heard of it through her lawyer she said she felt she could die happy.

It was an additional bitterness to Owen that he looked exactly what he was. He was tall and thin, he stooped a trifle, and he was pale. He was also very quiet and retiring because he was absurdedly sensitive. Because of all this he was passed over by his more robust fellow clerks, male and female, as a spiritless and bookish fellow. Owen Sayce rather agreed with them. His shyness made him feel that he was a creature without backbone. At the same time the feeling did not make him like his life better, nor cure him of his curious, glamorous longing for a larger, fuller and more dashing life. His directors would have been astonished and, indeed, perturbed to know of it, for they looked upon him as a model of what a steady and painstaking employé should be.

They would have been more than perturbed had they known that, after his aunt's death, he went straight to his lodgings each evening, put on old clothes and wandered off into neighborhoods full of aliens and the oaths of seamen, in the hope of satisfying the urgent craving within him. For three years he had done this, and every night of those years he had said, not perhaps in words, but certainly in his heart, "Perhaps tonight something may come along. Perhaps tonight will change my whole life."

But nothing had ever happened to him, nothing save this chance-heard tale of murder. And he'd rather that hadn't. It made him uneasy and wretched rather than thrilled him.

THUS did his great adventure take him.

It made him uneasy at first. . . . He came away from that little "pub" thoroughly upset. He had wanted something dashing, not this rather low mixing himself up in a police matter. He saw at once it would mean that, and it disturbed him. He had heard the true facts of a murder, and, since he was a decent and honorable man, and since another man—and more, a brave woman—were outcast and suffering because of this miscarriage of justice, there was nothing else to do but to go to the police, whether his sensitiveness loathed the idea or not.

That was the trouble, his sensitiveness. He hated the idea of being dragged in, of being mixed up with mere ugliness—of having his nightly prowlings made public, the whole mixup of it. It was this shyness that made him grasp at his excuse, that made him feel that there were overpowering reasons why he should not go to the police.

When he realized that, though he had heard much, he knew next to nothing at all about the murder, his diffident heart thought the thing heaven-sent. It was a fact. He knew nothing worth while. The crooks had talked guardedly, and he had listened, carelessly at first. He knew that their talk concerned a murder and a miscarriage of justice, but he did not know what murder it was, or the name of the man murdered, or even the place where the murder had happened. . . . beyond the word "manor," that is, and the country was full of manors.

All he had was a string of unrelated names, some of them merely nicknames. "Sandy," for instance, meant nothing at all, and "Cissy" was as vague, while the fact that they were in hiding in Santa Orca, South America, under the alias of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wild, didn't help a bit. Then the other names, "the old squire," "Slick Sam," the poacher, the cousin who had committed the murder, the man named Ben who had spoken of it. . . . what could they convey about a crime that may have happened twenty, perhaps thirty, years ago? It might be that if "Sandy" was over fifty now. The police, he thought, would make nothing of the story, might, in fact, laugh at him as a producer of mare's nests, especially when they found how he had got his information.

His reasoning was not sound, but it seemed sound enough to him to back his absolute distaste of mixing himself in such an affair. The more he thought it over the more he was able to decide that he would be a fool to carry the tale to the authorities. He satisfied himself on this head. He satisfied himself so completely that he lost his uneasiness.

IT was then he started to be wretched.

He had really been wretched all the time underneath. It was because of the girl Cissy. He knew that it was not a man's part to leave that girl Cissy in the lurch. He'd been touched by that girl from the first. What pluck she'd shown, what devotion, what a fineness and nobility of love. She'd given up an income, comfort, friends, all she loved in life to stand by her man. A great spirit like that deserved the highest reward . . . and it was he who stood between her and her reward. . . . He funked it, left her there, white haired and pinched, in the gutter of a South American town.

He couldn't escape that girl. His imagination and his sensitiveness played havoc with him. She was always in his thoughts. Working over his fire and burglary policies he would see a picture of her, pinched and weary, living out her dreary life in a mean and hot little South American town. He saw the courage in her eyes and the yearning for all those things she had left—and he felt a traitor. She became an obsession to him. She was always by his side in mute reproach and his sensitive nature writhed under her unspoken condemnation. He alone could give her comfort, her true position, her honorable name—and he had failed her.

He tried to convince himself that he could do nothing. He told himself that it was too late, he had left the thing too long. It was impossible to open it up now. . . . He never convinced himself. He had simply made matters worse. When he had had the chance he had failed this woman, Mrs. Wild, as she called herself. It simply made his responsibility greater.

It began to prey on his health. There came the time when his departmental chief said to him: "Aren't you well, Sayce? Your work isn't up to the mark. Do you think you ought to take your holiday earlier this year?"

A holiday—the word came to him as a revelation. A holiday! That might be the way to help her in the simplest and most discreet way. He had a few hundreds left to him by his aunt. He might go to South America, to Santa Orca and seek out the Wilds, tell them the story and leave it to them to get in touch with Slick Sam, who must be known to them, and thus clear themselves without bringing him in at all.

The more he thought of the idea the more he took fire at it. It was, indeed, more than a way out. Besides helping the woman he himself would satisfy a dream. He would travel, he would see something of the larger life he yearned for. It would be a break away from the humdrum and only a holiday, too. The last appealed to him, because, with the habit of years, he had become really desk-tied. He'd got into a groove and clung to a safe job and an assured future. But this way would not risk that. He could come back to the insurance company when his holiday was over.

He was taken aback when he looked up details of the journey. It would take at least three weeks to reach Santa Orca and rather a lot of money. The money he did not mind risking, for he had his regular salary and there was a superannuation due to him. His future would be safe, but a journey of six weeks out and back and, say, two weeks for search, was going to be difficult. Three weeks was the absolute maximum allowed for holidays by his office.

Still the glow of the idea had him powerfully by now. The way had been shown to him and he must play fair with that brave woman; and, after all, he had served his company steadfastly for eight years—they ought to stretch a point. He would make capital out of his ill health, too.

Nearer and nearer to Santa Orca . . .

His chief treated his demand for eight weeks' leave as a demand for the moon. Outside of really serious illness he had never heard of such a thing. The finality of his superior's manner was like a blow in Owen's face, but like a blow in the face it roused a certain fighting emotion. Who was this heavy, pompous person to lay down the law? Who was he to have the very ordering of a human being's life? Who was he to set his petty little office rules against a noble woman's right to happiness?

IT was unreasonable of Owen Sayce to think like this, since offices cannot be run without rules, but Owen was no longer quite reasonable. The power of this thing took hold of him in an astonishing manner, his hunger for a vivid experience had been fanned up to fever point. He must go. . . . His manhood and his honor demanded that. He heard himself, to his own astonishment, to his chief's amazement, arguing the point, saying flatly that he had to have those two months. . . . Had to. . . .

That "had to" was an outrage to his chief, but he was a little more reasonable than Owen. His instinct was to order his subordinate out of his room; his common sense suggested that if Owen was so insistent there might be a grave reason for his demand. He checked his anger and asked why Owen wanted those two months.

"I want to go to South America, sir," said Owen firmly.

"South America!" If Owen had said he wanted to go on an exploring expedition along the banks of the Styx his chief could not have been more astounded. "South America! You want to go to South America? What do you want with South America?"

Those "yous" made Owen see red. They were terms of contempt; they told him that it was considered an impertinence that he, a little clerk, should even think of going to South America. . . . He heard his voice say hardly: "I have to go there, that is all, sir. . . . And I'm going."

"Really, Sayce," bellowed his chief, "I can't have you talking like that. If you adopt that tone, you'll——"

"I'll have to resign," Owen startled even himself by saying. "Well, I resign, sir. I wish to leave the office at the first moment it is convenient——"

Owen Sayce was astounded at himself, afraid, and yet elated. He had smashed what little career the office stood for. He was out of a job, his superannuation was gone; to a clerk who had grown into the cautious habits of the groove all that looked very dangerous. . . . And yet he was free. He could live his dreams, he could seek out the woman—and the larger life.

And then, could he have done less? That woman had sacrificed everything, why shouldn't he? He started his Odyssey for her sake and he did not like it.

CAUTION, which was so strong in him, made him take the hardest road where he might have softened his beginnings. With only a few hundreds between himself and the world he decided to get to Santa Orca cheaply. He changed his money into a letter of credit and got a steward's job on a small meat and passenger boat sailing for the Argentine. Before they were abeam of Finisterre he had discovered that there was very little romance about the life of a deep sea steward on a small ship. After Lisbon he found there was less. Two of the stewards jumped the ship there and the rest had to carry on as best they could through a bad passage. As Owen was the newest and greenest of the men in the "glory hole" he was the one who did most of the carrying on.

He jumped the ship . . .

At Rio, where he meant to leave the ship, as it was the nearest port to Santa Orca, he found out why the other two had left at Lisbon. It was to get the fullest advantage of his letter of credit, which they had taken with them. After he had been tipped by landing passengers he found he had about cash enough to last a week. He was still cautious enough to hesitate about risking himself under such conditions in a strange land, and perhaps this mood made him clumsy in his getaway.

He fumbled the affair so badly that he ran straight into the head steward on the quay, and the head steward, made surly by Lisbon, was in no mood to argue with stewards who had landed when he had stopped all leave. He did not argue, he hit Owen twice; twice because Owen hit back after the first thump on the jaw. After the second he was glad to be helped back to the ship's boat. Thus he went on to Buenos Aires, which was more than a thousand miles from Santa Orca.

It was the first time Owen had been struck since his schooldays. Perhaps that started something in him, and the hazing the head steward gave him on the run south helped that new something along. When the man met him once more on the Buenos Aires quay and repeated his demand to know why Owen had disobeyed his order, it was Owen who did the hitting. He was tall and perhaps not quite so thin as he was and he had the reach. The fist that connected with the head steward's jaw had nothing clerkly about it. When the fellow sat up and took notice Owen was already looking for lodgings in the heart of the town and the ship had a steward less on her homeward trip.

Owen Sayce pottered about Buenos Aires for a while doing odd jobs, learning Spanish and accumulating a little spare cash.

Also he got the last of the stoop out of his shoulders, got rid of the pallor of his face for a good coat of tan and toughened his arms and himself generally. He was still sensitive and retiring, but no longer unhealthily so. He was still a trifle green, but he was learning.

When a liar needing deck hands told him that he was putting into port only fifty miles from Santa Orca he was still green enough to believe him. He was still green enough to allow the liar to goad him into fisticuffs when they reached Matamoros in Mexico—as far beyond Santa Orca as Buenos Aires had been the other way. The liar asked for nothing better. Deck hands were hard to get in Matamoros and by encouraging Owen to fight he made certain of having him aboard for the trip back to the Plate, for he clapped him in irons during their stay in port.

Definitely, however, Owen Sayce, who had been a clerk, was learning. He jumped the ship at Bahia Honda, Cuba, with the skill of an old shellback. It wasn't what he wanted, but he had discovered that men in his position must take any chance they could. He swam ashore and landed penniless, but that no longer seemed very important. He was working as engine driver on a narrow gauge cane railway on a sugar estate within a week.

IN four weeks he was in jail. A storekeeper had tried to cheat him and he was no longer meek under such things. Again, jail did not worry him very much as jail, but the dirt, the tedium and the permanent insectile inhabitants were trying; so trying that they brought on a savage spell of common sense. He looked at his hard and dirty hands with their broken nails, those hands that had moved with so sedate and well kept a gesture over comely ledgers; he looked at his scorched arms, his clumsy boots and his ragged clothes. He looked at the unpalatable food and called to mind the neat little restaurant near his office where meals were good and tasty. He glared at the hard and dirty corner of the public cell where he slept and thought of his comfortable and well appointed lodgings—and harshly he named himself for a fool.

He, a man of education, refinement and intelligence, had come to this, and all because of a chance tale he had heard in a low pub! His idiocy seemed almost gigantic. He registered a vow then and there to return home to his natural sphere and never on any account to break away from it. He registered a vow to get his comfy desk job back in the insurance company, even if he had to eat dirt. A sure job, a settled income and no fears for the future, that was the thing for a man of his type.

He furiously maintained this outlook until the day he was released. Unfortunately for his resolve he saw a tearful women waiting for another prisoner. He thought of Cissy Wild at once, and her husband. They must be down and out like that, he thought, only it was worse for them; they'd been brought up to something better. Instead of going to the consul to get a stranded seaman's passage home he shipped on a coaster that carried him through hot and golden days through the Leewards and the Windwards and ultimately gave him his chance of skipping to the mainland not more than four hundred miles from Santa Orca.

They were four hundred miles mainly jungle and many times more he told himself he was a fool, but he went on. . . . He went on with something steadily hardening within him.

A safe job at a desk lost its appeal. He got one with a big bill exchange company in a state capital, and could have held it, for he was more reliable than most of the native clerks. But the work seemed savorless, and the men about him seemed spineless. . . . He threw it up and joined a railway gang.

He took job after job with a growing unconcern for stability, his only aim being to work nearer and nearer to Santa Orca. He traveled with a mule train through the heats and fevers of the jungle. He served for a spell on a cattle estancia, which was better; he did a trip on a river rubber boat, which stank ferociously. But he drew nearer Santa Orca all the time.

A spell with some pyrite diggers set him back. There was an international row in the little town that was the company's headquarters. Owen never knew the ins and outs of the business, only that as an Anglo-Saxon he must side with Anglo-Saxons. Troops were called out at the height of the battle and he and many had to bolt. It took him one hundred and fifty miles out of his way, but again he accepted that calmly. As soon as things were settled and he had collected enough cash by work on a plantation to make him reasonably solvent, he joined up as a general handy man to a botanical party and went down river nearer his goal.

TWO years and five months after he had started from home to reach Santa Orca he arrived at his destination. The years had changed him—perhaps not for the worse. He was tall, but no longer thin. His stoop had gone as though it had never been. He had lost his rather finicky neatness—most emphatically. But where the shambling clerk would have passed unnoted, many quick eyes, feminine eyes, turned to glance at the tall, lean man whose shoulders suggested a box of some peculiarly tough wood, whose brown, high featured face suggested something alert, determined and yet sensitive and austere, too. He looked, as Miss Valentin Leicester told her brother, "An eagle of a man, a man with fire in him—like—like one of those large striding heroes of the legends."

Valentin Leicester was, perhaps, a little romantic. She was twenty-two and vital, and men of her own race and blood were few and far between in Santa Orca. It was good to see so fine a specimen after a lifetime of Latins and Anglo-Saxon deadbeats. And the fact that Valentin Leicester looked from the window of the best hotel in Santa Orca and failed to notice the degeneracy of Owen's clothes, though it showed up pitiably in the stark sunlight of the Plaza del Coliseo, showed how interested she was.

Owen found, as Valentin had found, that the members of his own race in and about Santa Orca were very few and that at first gave him a great deal of hope. Santa Orca was a small and undistinguished place. There were one or two coffee and general plantations, owned mainly by Italians, on the hills behind, but little else to attract foreigners. The search for the Wilds would be easy, Owen decided, and grew light hearted—until he found that the search for the Wilds was hopeless.

They were not to be found. There was no clew to them in the town itself or trace of them in the outlying districts. He searched, easily at first, but, as he realized facts, he became more concentrated and combed the place with the greatest labor and care. He paid particular attention to those Dago hotels the man with the husky voice had spoken of. There were not many of them, yet at none of them was the name of Henry Wild known. Nobody had heard the name, nor could anybody give a hint of even the type of man Owen vaguely described. As he came to realize this his mind became dismayed and his dismay passed to panic. He had come on a fool's errand, after all.

He was certain that the man with the husky voice had seen the Wilds when he was in Santa Orca. He saw now that where he had made his mistake was in thinking that the fugitives had chosen the little town as their permanent hiding place. . . . It was easy to understand how he had arrived at this conclusion, at the time his own mind was set on order and settled position in life. He saw now that a man flying from the law would not stay in any one place, that he would feel the need of constant movement, and that he was probably wandering the length and breadth of South America with the object of dodging the law. Henry Wild's presence in Santa Orca had been as accidental and as passing as that of the man with the husky voice. It was one of those things that happen so often in real life. And if this was so, and Owen felt it must be so, the Wilds must have come and gone some five or six years ago. To what part of the vast continent had they drifted in the years between?

ON the eighth day of his search of Santa Orca Owen recognized that he could fight against the certainty of his failure no longer. He sat in the beautiful but rather rank gardens that faced the river, confronted facts and knowing despair. His search had been a folly. He had been a fool to let his sensitiveness and his imagination carry him away—for nothing. He had gone through all he had gone through for nothing! He had given up a safe job, he had lost the little money he had, he had thrown away position and comfort. . . . for a mare's nest. He had thrown everything away and descended into the gutter for a mere folly. For a mere sentimental dream he had smashed his life to scrap. . . . He paused at that. Perhaps it was not quite that. He had seen things and done things that weren't so bad, and he wouldn't go back to clerking for all the money in the world. . . . Still, at the same time, here he was nearly thirty and a wastrel, all for a sentiment. . . .

It was just about then that the girl called to him. She called quietly, but with a clear urgency in her voice. He looked round quickly. She had been walking across one of the sandy patches that had been a lawn before southern neglect had let it revert to nature. She was standing in an attitude of tension. He recognized her at once. She was a very pretty girl, of his own race, he had seen in the town often. He knew her name was Leicester, Valentin Leicester, because she had come within the scope of his search. These things came to him in a flash, but it was her attitude which held his mind. He had seen it before. He rose quietly, saying: "What is it—snake?"

"Yes," she said evenly, her face white and her eyes fixed on the ground at

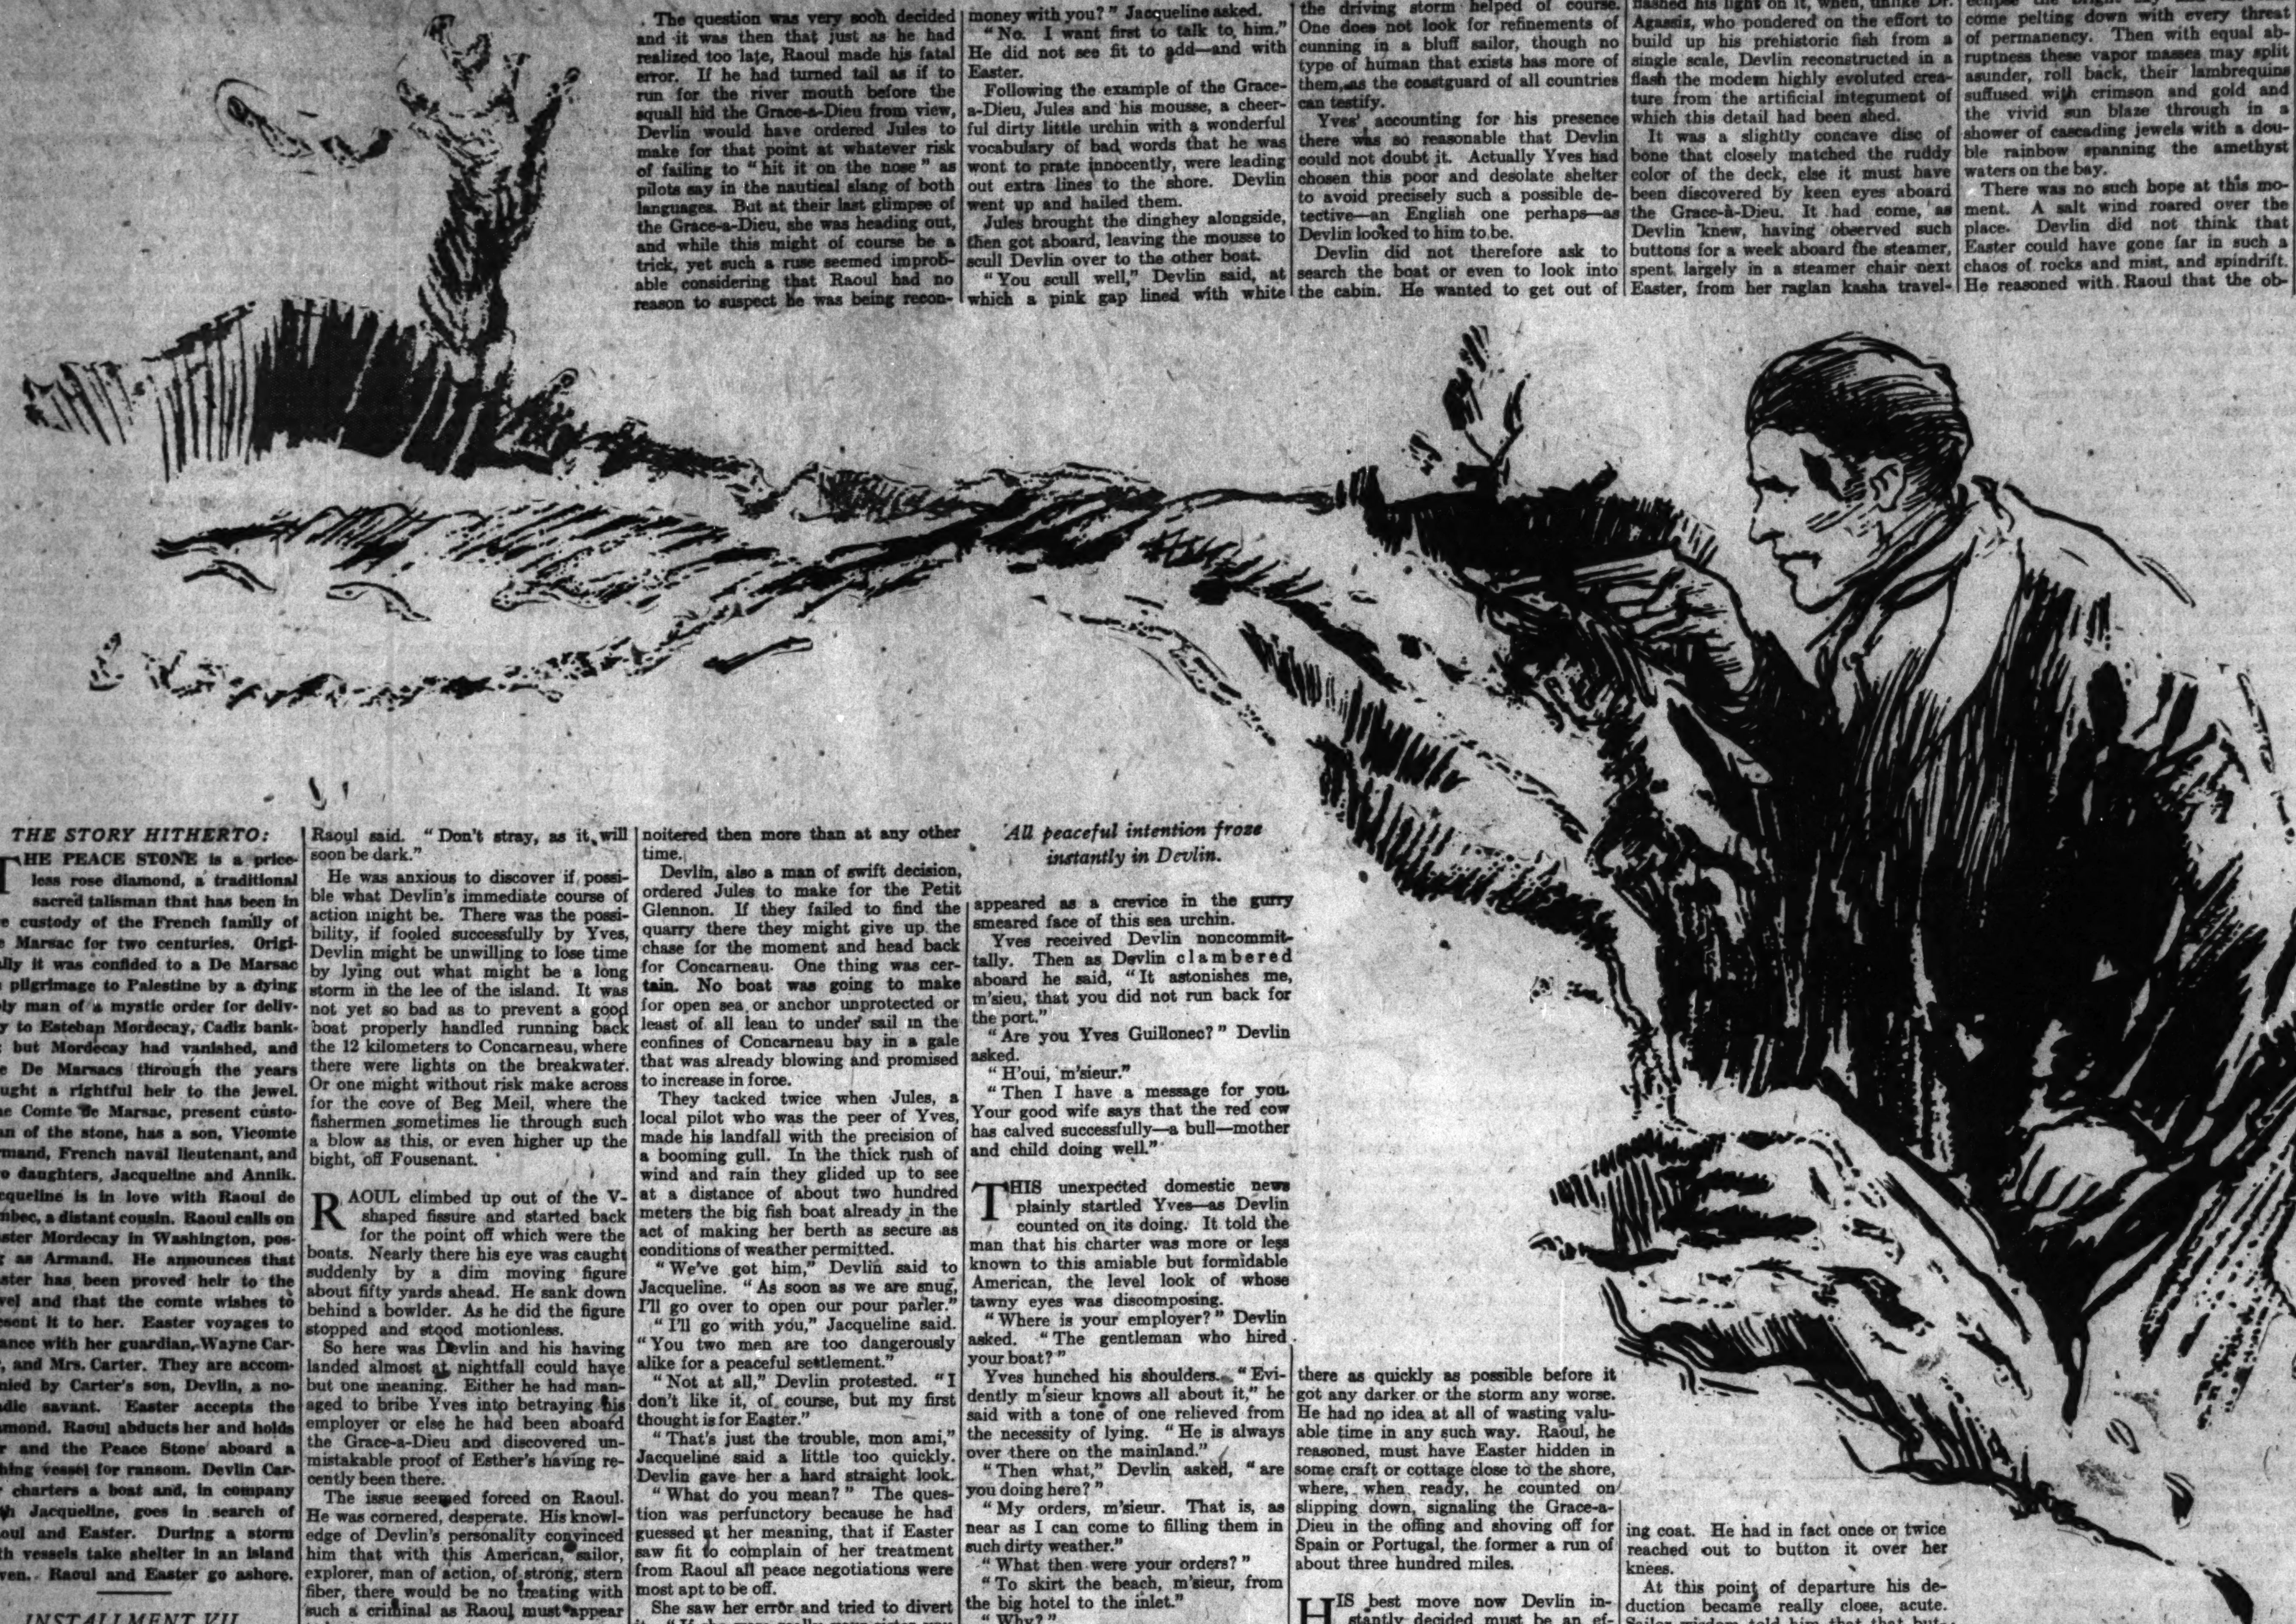
The PEACE STONE by HENRY C. ROWLAND



All peaceful intention froze instantly in Devlin.

THE STORY HITHERTO:

THE PEACE STONE is a priceless rose diamond, a traditional sacred talisman that has been in the custody of the French family of De Marsac for two centuries. Originally it was confided to a De Marsac on pilgrimage to Palestine by a dying holy man of a mystic order for delivery to Esteban Mordecay, Cadiz banker; but Mordecay had vanished, and the De Marsacs through the years sought a rightful heir to the jewel. The Comte de Marsac, present custodian of the stone, has a son, Vicomte Armand, French naval lieutenant, and two daughters, Jacqueline and Annik. Jacqueline is in love with Raoul de Kimbec, a distant cousin. Raoul calls on Easter Mordecay in Washington, posing as Armand. He announces that Easter has been proved heir to the jewel and that the comte wishes to present it to her. Easter voyages to France with her guardian, Wayne Carter, and Mrs. Carter. They are accompanied by Carter's son, Devlin, a nomadic savant. Easter accepts the diamond. Raoul abducts her and holds her and the Peace Stone aboard a fishing vessel for ransom. Devlin Carter charters a boat and, in company with Jacqueline, goes in search of Raoul and Easter. During a storm both vessels take shelter in an island haven. Raoul and Easter go ashore.

INSTALLMENT VII.

Shots in the Dark.

HERE on the higher ground the drive of wind and mist and rain was hard and swirling and masked all beyond the low cliff's edge, while from Easter's present position the sea would not in any case have been visible within a furlong.

Raoul set down his bulky burden. Easter glanced at it in surprise.

"Why that?" she asked.

"I think," said Raoul, "that you would be less uncomfortable to spend the night ashore than aboard the boat. She will soon be rolling heavily in the backwash where she lies. There is even some slight danger of her tearing loose from her moorings."

"You don't mean to leave me here alone, I hope?"

"No. I shall stow myself nearby. Yves and his two men are quite competent to take care of the boat. But if they should have to get under sail it would be horribly uncomfortable. Even a bit dangerous if the storm increases."

"Well," said Easter, "I suppose it can't be helped. At least we shan't drown here."

"No, nor starve nor die of thirst nor be marooned. I've got some food and the depressions in the rocks are full of water and as soon as the storm breaks it will quickly clear and the fishing fleet will be within signaling."

"It will soon be dark," Easter said. "Don't you think we might find a better place than this?"

The suggestion fell entirely within Raoul's wishes. Devlin might see fit to land at daylight next morning and he could scarcely miss them there. Raoul rose and picked up the sack.

"Yes," he said, "let's hunt for one."

He led the way over the rugged scrap, presently turning down to the shore again. Coming to a deep fissure not far from the end of the island he slipped down into it and found that here the shelter was complete, well above high water mark and with another tiny beach of fine sand below it. There was already an oblique surge crashing over the rocks that were just off this little cove and served admirably to unfit it for a landing place.

Here he spread his blankets. Both boats were invisible, would be so in fact even if the weather cleared as a little point thrust out between. The tide was still far out but had turned flood.

"We might try to find some sea food to help out our ration," Raoul suggested. "There are limpets and periwinkles and perhaps bigornots in the sand. Little clams the size of a jay's egg but sweet and palatable."

Easter welcomed the suggestion. She pulled off her shoes and stockings not to sleep with wet feet and went down on to the sand. They were sheltered from the rush of wind overhead and the rain had stopped. Instead there was now a brume which was not so dense as fog nor yet so wet as Scotch mist.

"While you are looking for supper I'll go see if the boat is all right," Raoul said. "Don't stray, as it will soon be dark."

He was anxious to discover if possible what Devlin's immediate course of action might be. There was the possibility, if fooled successfully by Yves, Devlin might be unwilling to lose time by lying out what might be a long storm in the lee of the island. It was not yet so bad as to prevent a good boat properly handled running back the 12 kilometers to Concarneau, where there were lights on the breakwater. Or one might without risk make across for the cove of Beg Meil, where the fishermen sometimes lie through such a blow as this, or even higher up the bight, off Fousenant.

RAOUL climbed up out of the V-shaped fissure and started back for the point off which were the boats. Nearly there his eye was caught suddenly by a dim moving figure about fifty yards ahead. He sank down behind a bowlder. As he did the figure stopped and stood motionless.

So here was Devlin and his having landed almost at nightfall could have but one meaning. Either he had managed to bribe Yves into betraying his employer or else he had been aboard the Grace-a-Dieu and discovered unmistakable proof of Esther's having recently been there.

The issue seemed forced on Raoul. He was cornered, desperate. His knowledge of Devlin's personality convinced him that with this American, sailor, explorer, man of action, of strong, stern fiber, there would be no treating with such a criminal as Raoul must appear to be.

In such a case no parley could be expected. What could a man hope for in the way of clemency who was now charged with betraying his close friend, possibly making way with him, enticing away a young girl like Easter, stealing a priceless diamond and now holding them both on this desolate heap of rock.

There was no alternative. Raoul, never afflicted with indecision nor lack of expedient, perceived himself driven to extremes. He reached inside his coat, drew out the automatic pistol, then raised himself carefully and took a rest on the top of the bowlder, sighting through the murk at the figure bulking up head and chest above a similar stone.

Then as he compressed his grip strongly and steadily the shape at which he was aiming dropped behind the rock so simultaneously with the report that it was impossible to decide whether in that mortal fraction of a second Devlin had discovered his adversary or the ball had found its mark. But from the sidelong lurch that accompanied his disappearance Raoul believed it to be due to both these factors; that Devlin had seen him as he fired, but also that this had been too late to save him.

DEVLIN'S boatman, Jules, had quickly picked out and identified the Grace-a-Dieu even before the fishing fleet with the synchronous accord of a school of the fish that was its objective started to scull in for shelter from the coming storm.

The little yacht was at this time well over on the southern side of Concarneau bay, the Grace-a-Dieu a couple of miles to the northwestward.

"C'y est, m'sieur," Jules said. "There is our bird. The fishermen are putting in and they are wise, because it is soon going to blow like the devil and to keep on blowing. What do you wish to do?"

They were nearly becalmed, though plainly this status would not long continue. Devlin looked over the situation with experienced eyes.

"Wait until we see what course they take," he said.

"I had better reef," Jules declared. "Often such a change of weather comes with a rafale, a squall."

He and the mousse proceeded to snug down. Jacqueline said to Devlin, "They will be forced back to the land. This is going to be a tempest. No boatman would try to stay out."

"I'm not so sure," Devlin said. "They might work up under the lee of the Glennons."

Jules, hauling in the reefing tackle at the end of the boom, heard the remark. "That would not be prudent, m'sieur. The wind might haul and force them to leave. Still," he amended, "in a short gale it is sometimes done."

"If they were going in," Devlin said, "they would get out their sweeps."

"They are too few, m'sieur, to gain much with a big tub like that. All the same, one would expect them to put about. They must still have steerage way."

The question was very soon decided and it was then that just as he had realized too late, Raoul made his fatal error. If he had turned tail as if to run for the river mouth before the squall hid the Grace-a-Dieu from view, Devlin would have ordered Jules to make for that point at whatever risk of failing to "hit it on the nose" as pilots say in the nautical slang of both languages. But at their last glimpse of the Grace-a-Dieu, she was heading out, and while this might of course be a trick, yet such a ruse seemed improbable considering that Raoul had no reason to suspect he was being reconnoitered then more than at any other time.

Devlin, also a man of swift decision, ordered Jules to make for the Petit Glennon. If they failed to find the quarry there they might give up the chase for the moment and head back for Concarneau. One thing was certain. No boat was going to make for open sea or anchor unprotected or least of all lean to under sail in the confines of Concarneau bay in a gale that was already blowing and promised to increase in force.

They tacked twice when Jules, a local pilot who was the peer of Yves, made his landfall with the precision of a booming gull. In the thick rush of wind and rain they glided up to see at a distance of about two hundred meters the big fish boat already in the act of making her berth as secure as conditions of weather permitted.

"We've got him," Devlin said to Jacqueline. "As soon as we are snug, I'll go over to open our pour parler."

"I'll go with you," Jacqueline said. "You two men are too dangerously alike for a peaceful settlement."

"Not at all," Devlin protested. "I don't like it, of course, but my first thought is for Easter."

"That's just the trouble, mon ami," Jacqueline said a little too quickly. Devlin gave her a hard straight look.

"What do you mean?" The question was perfunctory because he had guessed at her meaning, that if Easter saw fit to complain of her treatment from Raoul all peace negotiations were most apt to be off.

She saw her error and tried to divert it. "If she were really your sister you might not lose your head, but when a man is in love—it is different."

Devlin stared at her, then laughed. But it was not a convincing laugh even to himself.

"In love? You've got me all wrong, Madame. Easter is engaged to marry a friend of mine, an officer in our navy."

"That," Jacqueline said calmly, "makes no difference. Just the same you are in love with her."

THE assurance of this charge and the rush of emotion caused by it bewildered Devlin for the moment. But it was not the time to dwell on such considerations. The boat was in need of smart handling properly to make her berth. In his efforts thus directed, getting out the stern anchor, hauling in and securing the sail while Jules and the mousse got the dinghey alongside to take ashore their line before the boat should start to drift away, Devlin failed to discover Raoul's figure, practically invisible in fact over on the shore against a background of weed covered rock.

Not so Jacqueline. Unnoticed by Devlin she had picked up his strong binoculars recently in use and hanging from a hook just inside the cabin hatch, where, sheltered from the wind and rain, scarcely visible herself, she focused first on the Grace-a-Dieu, then on the shore. The strong lenses quickly picked out Raoul against the background for which his drab raincoat furnished a mimicry of nature blending with the festoons of old gold algae and their darker interstices.

Jacqueline kept the discovery to herself. Also she kept Raoul under observation, herself under cover hidden from Devlin, who might have asked for the glasses, as well as from Raoul, who did not discover her at all. Slipping into the cabin Jacqueline unscrewed one of the oval portholes and resting the glasses on its rim watched Raoul narrowly.

She was able to guess the nature of his brief orders to Yves and was certain of their purport when presently Yves went back aboard to return with the big sea bag. Jacqueline could barely follow Raoul's retreat as he shouldered it and slipped off into the gap between the rocks.

She was sitting on the bunk, the binoculars back on their hook, when presently Devlin came down into the cabin.

"Not much of a place to lie," he said. "But if we watch the weather closely it ought to be all right. I'll go over now and interview this gentleman of fortune."

"Gentleman of misfortune," Jacqueline said. "He must be desperate, poor fellow, to do a thing like this."

"I agree with you," Devlin said. "I'm glad now you came with me."

"If you'll promise to be discreet," Jacqueline said, "I shall not insist on going with you."

"No fear," Devlin assured her. "My object is not to punish Raoul, but the safe custody of Easter."

"Are you going to take the ransom money with you?" Jacqueline asked.

"No. I want first to talk to him." He did not see fit to add—and with Easter.

Following the example of the Grace-a-Dieu, Jules and his mousse, a cheerful dirty little urchin with a wonderful vocabulary of bad words that he was wont to prate innocently, were leading out extra lines to the shore. Devlin went up and hailed them.

Jules brought the dinghey alongside, then got aboard, leaving the mousse to scull Devlin over to the other boat.

"You scull well," Devlin said, at which a pink gap lined with white appeared as a crevice in the gurry smeared face of this sea urchin.

Yves received Devlin noncommittally. Then as Devlin clambered aboard he said, "It astonishes me, m'sieu, that you did not run back for the port."

"Are you Yves Guillonec?" Devlin asked.

"H'oui, m'sieur."

"Then I have a message for you. Your good wife says that the red cow has calved successfully—a bull—mother and child doing well."

THIS unexpected domestic news plainly startled Yves—as Devlin counted on its doing. It told the man that his charter was more or less known to this amiable but formidable American, the level look of whose tawny eyes was discomposing.

"Where is your employer?" Devlin asked. "The gentleman who hired your boat?"

Yves hunched his shoulders. "Evidently m'sieur knows all about it," he said with a tone of one relieved from the necessity of lying. "He is always over there on the mainland."

"Then what," Devlin asked, "are you doing here?"

"My orders, m'sieur. That is, as near as I can come to filling them in such dirty weather."

"What then were your orders?"

"To skirt the beach, m'sieur, from the big hotel to the inlet."

"Why?"

"To take monsieur aboard at any hour of the day or night?"

"Why could you not wait his pleasure in the river?"

Again Yves hunched his big shoulders, then shook his head.

"Such were his orders, m'sieur. His own affair, pardi. When a poor boatman is lucky enough to engage himself for a good price he does not ask too many questions."

"For an even bigger price," Devlin said, "I think that you might furnish me with your opinion about this affair."

"I cannot tell you what I do not know, m'sieur," Yves said stolidly.

Devlin was aware of the loyalty of this type of man to his first employer. It seemed scarcely worth his while to press the matter, at least not yet.

"All the same," he said, "since you could not hang on and off the beach in weather like this, nor put to sea for a run anywhere even if you managed to pick up your patron, why have you not run in for shelter until the storm was over?"

"My orders were to avoid the chance of such questions as you are asking, m'sieu. Folk are so curious. And there is always my wife. Actually it is easier to lie here. For a boat like this at least. But I would not answer for a little one like yours if the wind veers violently into the north."

"On the off chance?" Devlin asked. "Have you seen a young lady with your patron?"

Yves' weathered face registered surprise in the fashion of the untrained but natural actors which are the best offered on the screen."

"Young lady? Mais non, m'sieur. This is not an affair of young ladies."

"Of what then?" Devlin asked.

"Monsieur amuses himself with me," Yves said sullenly. "What would a poor bourge of a Breton boatman know of politics today?"

IT was here that Yves showed that cunning of the stoat possessed by many Bretons beneath their stolidity, which may account for that small mammal figuring in the Breton coat of arms. His answers had been good enough without too much and now he conveyed craftily the idea that his employer had hinted at political involvement that might necessitate his getting quickly off the coast. Nothing would rouse less partisanship in a Breton than politics, so that as Yves pretended to see it his complicity had no importance whatever, was not in fact worth considering even were his employer to be a second Fouguet.

Devlin was astute, accustomed to deal with wily Mexicans and Central Americans, with sly natives who tried to doublecross each other and the authorities, himself. He was trained in the study of facial expression, a false note in the voice, a shiftiness of gaze. He could in fact on most occasions sense a lie so that he had come to depend a great deal on this faculty.

But now so forthright appeared Yves that Devlin believed him to be telling the truth. Yves' manful sailorly appearance on the deck of his boat in the driving storm helped of course. One does not look for refinements of cunning in a bluff sailor, though no type of human that exists has more of them, as the coastguard of all countries can testify.

Yves' accounting for his presence there was so reasonable that Devlin could not doubt it. Actually Yves had chosen this poor and desolate shelter to avoid precisely such a possible detective—an English one perhaps—as Devlin looked to him to be.

Devlin did not therefore ask to search the boat or even to look into the cabin. He wanted to get out of there as quickly as possible before it got any darker or the storm any worse. He had no idea at all of wasting valuable time in any such way. Raoul, he reasoned, must have Easter hidden in some craft or cottage close to the shore, where, when ready, he counted on slipping down, signaling the Grace-a-Dieu in the offing and shoving off for Spain or Portugal, the former a run of about three hundred miles.

HIS best move now Devlin instantly decided must be an effort to make Yves think that he, Devlin, believed himself to have barked up the wrong tree, launched himself on a wild goose chase only to stalk a barnyard fowl who was innocently serving the needs of some conspirator with whom Devlin had no concern. Should Yves accept this idea Devlin could then run back to the mainland to continue his espionage along the beach, in a different boat or for that matter ashore with a patrol boat holding itself in readiness for pursuit.

Devlin said therefore with an air of frankness, "Well it appears that I have been mistaken about you. I am not a police agent at all but an American tourist and at this moment visiting at the Château de Marsac with my family. My sister, a young demoiselle, has disappeared. We have reason to think she has been kidnaped for a ransom and we are trying to pick up a clew to her disappearance."

"But that is very bad, m'sieu," Yves exclaimed. "However, it is not likely that any rascal would try to carry off a young lady in a fishing boat. He would be more apt to take an auto."

"I think that you are right," Devlin agreed.

"Besides," said Yves, "no Breton patron of a boat would engage himself for such a dirty job. He might for a price carry a refugee who wanted to get out of the country, but that is another catch of fish. Here in Finistérre we don't mix ourselves in politics."

"I believe you," Devlin said agreeably. He reached in his pocket. "Here is a little bill to pay my mistake, not a bribe but a pourboire."

"Merci, m'sieur."

They had been talking on the after deck sheltered by the break of the cabin house. It had grown suddenly dark, not yet full night, but, as the French say, "entre chien et loup"—between dog and wolf—from which expression the term dog watch may be in some obscure way derived. Most of such sayings are current in both languages, many of marine origin, and the period between light and darkness when the four hour sea watch is split so that port and starboard shall alternate each day. It is this time ashore when the watch dog is shut within the guarding walls and wolves are wont to roam outside them.

Devlin reached in the side pocket of his raincoat for his electric torch to light his way overside and down into his boat. He flashed it on the low bulwarks. The ray caught and was reflected from a small shining object in the angle of the sheerstrake almost in the scuppers. As he swung himself over the side Devlin picked up this smooth object curious as to its character. His quick mind trained to close observation as must be the mind of a field archæologist was alert for trifling clews. It told him now as his fingers closed on a button big as a two franc piece that normally no such buttons served the need of Breton fishermen's clothes.

Seating himself in the dinghey he cupped the button in his hand, then flashed his light on it, when, unlike Dr. Agassiz, who pondered on the effort to build up his prehistoric fish from a single scale, Devlin reconstructed in a flash the modern highly evoluted creature from the artificial integument of which this detail had been shed.

It was a slightly concave disc of bone that closely matched the ruddy color of the deck, else it must have been discovered by keen eyes aboard the Grace-à-Dieu. It had come, as Devlin knew, having observed such buttons for a week aboard the steamer, spent largely in a steamer chair next Easter, from her raglan kasha traveling coat. He had in fact once or twice reached out to button it over her knees.

At this point of departure his deduction became really close, acute. Sailor wisdom told him that that button had not been there almost in the scupper until the boat had made her berth. Beating up to the island, the craft's angular heel with the deluge of rain must surely have washed it out overboard. Moreover Easter was not of the slipshod type to wear her buttons ready to drop off. It had needed a tug, a scrape against the bulwarks as she slid over them to wrench it away.

Therefore his keen line of quick deduction told Devlin not only that Easter had been aboard the Grace-à-Dieu but that in all likelihood she was at this moment ashore with Raoul. Probably the little white yacht had been discovered working into the place when Raoul, anticipating search, had hauled the nacelle alongside and had Easter and himself sculled to the shore so close aboard, instructing that competent liar Yves what he was to say.

DEVLIN now acted with his usual promptness. Glancing at the yacht of which the name was the classic one Muette—gull—he could see but a single dark figure, that of Jules, crouched on the bow. The oval disks of light from the portholes were obscured for a moment, this eclipse announcing that Jacqueline moving about below had passed between them and the standing light.

"Softly," Devlin whispered to the mousse. "Go under the bow."

The little sea urchin obeyed. Devlin half rose and beckoned the silent watchful Jules to slip down into the boat. Jules did so. Devlin gestured the mousse to scull in to the shore. They were by now entirely invisible from the Grace-à-Dieu, of which merely the dark opacity bulked dimly through the wrack. The rain had stopped and now a thinning of the flying scud permitted a relightening, for the day is loath to leave and the twilight long in north latitude 48 in the early summer.

The dinghey's bow was shoved in between two flat kelp covered rocks when Devlin stepped out.

"I am going to look round a little," he said briefly to Jules. "Go back aboard and get supper for madame. My orders are that she is not to leave the yacht under any circumstances whatever."

"B'en, m'sieur."

"To save yourself embarrassment," Devlin said, "let the mousse set you aboard, then take the boat down the shore past the Grace-à-Dieu and wait for me wherever he can find a good place."

"B'en m'sieu."

Devlin clambered over the rocks and made his way up on to the higher ground. As he did so the light seemed actually to increase in vague, elusive waves, as if this long day mutinied at being put to bed untimely by the storm. Such effects are frequent on that coast of Brittany, where the weather is at all times refractory, rebelling at any fixed order disturbed by currents variant in course and temperature, so that even on the finest of days one is never sure at what moment great rolling clouds may not bank up partially or totally to eclipse the bright sky and the rain come pelting down with every threat of permanency. Then with equal abruptness these vapor masses may split asunder, roll back, their lambrequins suffused with crimson and gold and the vivid sun blaze through in a shower of cascading jewels with a double rainbow spanning the amethyst waters on the bay.

There was no such hope at this moment. A salt wind roared over the place. Devlin did not think that Easter could have gone far in such a chaos of rocks and mist, and spindrift. He reasoned with Raoul that the object of this debarkation from the snug shelter of the cabin to the damp one of a semi-cave or grotto must be in hope that himself would promptly visit the Grace-à-Dieu, fall for Yves' native genius in lying, then go back aboard the yacht, shove off and make for Concarneau before the conditions of the bay grew any worse.

In this case shelter on the shore was preferable, so Devlin paralleled it. He had gone some few hundred meters a little circuitously when a dim shape magnified by the mist loomed suddenly some fifty paces ahead.

Devlin stopped, uncertain whether or not he had been observed. He was on the verge of shouting when he caught the gesture of a raised arm. There was something in this movement to suggest a hostile act. Instinctively Devlin swung himself sideways and downward to the cover of a bowlder on his left. As he did so there came a pulsing report and the sensation of his right elbow plucked at violently.

Devlin knew what had happened, and that only for his quick swing the bullet would have scored a center hit instead of merely tearing through a bight in the puckered elbow of his coat sleeve.

But the vicious murderous attempt instantly altered the status of his quest. The cornered wolf had snapped, nearly fixed its teeth. All peaceful intention froze instantly in Devlin. If such were the game then he would play it out with similar cards. He had half anticipated something of the sort should the conditions of their meeting be of this character. More than that, it suggested to his mind that Raoul must feel himself hors concours for a peace parley to have made such an attempt. And the factor to determine this position more than any other as Devlin saw it would be a sense of guilt in regard to Raoul's treatment of Easter.

DEVLIN'S hand went under his coat and he hauled out his own well tested weapon. Raoul, he reflected, was fair game for killing on any one of several counts.

At the same time there seemed to echo through Devlin's brain Jacqueline's words when she had said so positively, "All the same, you are in love with her."

The big rock behind which Devlin had pitched sideways was one of the many strewn along that coast that leave one in doubt as to whether they are natural monoliths or at some remote period have been roughly shaped by hands of men.

Like the big upright stone on the shore this one looked to Devlin as if it might be a fallen menhir. Then discovering another, somewhat similar, that lay at an angle to it and a third behind him, the idea of a fallen dolman, two upright stones with one laid across their tops, suggested itself. Jules had told him that there was on the Grand Glennon by the lighthouse one of those huge rocking stones said to possess mystic qualities, nicely poised on a projection so that a push of the hand will cause its many tons to sway. This phenomenon Devlin held to be of glacial origin, a bowlder suspended in a glacier gradually turning under gravitation to the point of its exact balance, then deposited in such precise position by the melting of the supporting ice. Legend had it that under the hand of the seer such a bowlder would rock out answers to questions asked.

Devlin pulled off his cloth cap and peered round the edge of his sheltering rock through a V-shaped crevice in its corner. He got then synchronously the pulse of a report and a brush burn that wiped the skin just above the end of his left eyebrow. Devlin jerked back his head, doubly astonished at Raoul's having been able to see at all in that dim light so small a sector of his face, also that Raoul's pistol practice should be so exact. A moment of thought explained it. There must be a black seam across the face of his sheltering rock, this seam ending in an erosion of the stratum to leave a notch. Raoul anticipating that Devlin would try to reconnoiter him had sighted on the extremity of the seam.

Devlin's close shave, he perceived, was no more than the result of an expert with a weapon of precision aiming from a dead rest and a loophole. Devlin perceived himself to be engaged in about as deadly a duel as one could imagine, if he chose to fight it out. The pale lingering daylight would soon be quenched in the blackness of a stormy night. Raoul, like himself, was sure to be furnished with a pocket torch, probably a strong one, freshly charged, but in weather so thick the range of a torch would not be more than a few meters. On such broken ground either adversary would be able if he chose to keep under the cover of his rock while backing away from his position to the next cover, not far behind, and thus continuing his retreat, could soon lose his opponent in the rough contours of the ground.

BUT such tactics would not appeal to Raoul, now a desperate man, and, as Devlin believed, a fearless one. Devlin possessed that faculty of placing himself in the position of an enemy, then reasoning out that enemy's most probable procedure in such a situation. Raoul, no doubt, thought that Devlin had received his letter and chose to ignore his terms, trusting to his ability to track down Easter's kidnaper and to slap or capture him. Here now was Raoul trapped on this little island, unable to leave it on such a night even if he had been aboard the Grace-à-Dieu. Even if he chose to take such a chance and managed to avoid the rocks and ledges with which the bay was strewn and to scud up into the head of the bay by Fousenant it could not avail him greatly.

One thing was certain, that Raoul would never surrender. He would prefer death to utter ruin, very likely deportation to Cayenne, Devil's island.

If it had not been for Devlin's knowledge that Easter must be huddled deplorably in some nook or cranny of that dismal place more or less exposed to the elements and overborne with dread, Devlin would have withdrawn from his position as soon as total darkness came and gone back aboard the Grace-à-Dieu, there to wait for daylight with Raoul's retreat cut off.

But Raoul's determined effort to kill him had suggested to Devlin's mind that possibly something in Raoul's treatment of Easter might share the cause of it, that Raoul felt that he could expect no mercy whatever and considered his one chance of escape to lie in killing Devlin then and there. Also Devlin reasoned Raoul might now believe that he had actually accomplished this because Devlin had pitched himself down behind the rock almost simultaneously with Raoul's firing.

What little was left of the daylight now quickly faded as if in successive waves of diminishing visibility. The stormy darkness did not settle but flapped down over the place with wide black wings. It was the date for a new moon which must by this time have set. Even a full one could not have availed on such a night and no doubt the storm was due to this change of lunar phase.

Devlin would have welcomed the darkness had he been as determined to kill Raoul as Raoul evidently was to her feet. She had pluck, that girl. She was afraid, but she knew how to be sensible.

He approached cautiously and saw the serpent in the sand in front of her. It was a jararaca, a particularly dangerous and deadly brute which will fight rather than run when disturbed. It was coiled, on the alert, now, ready to strike. The girl was without even a parasol, and as she was clad in a light, short skirt, with a modern exposure of silk legs, she was in real danger. Owen was without a stick or a pistol and the old Owen, the adventure dreaming Owen, would have been helpless without a romantic weapon to save this girl's life. The new Owen did not bother about romance or weapons; he used his hat.

It was a big, heavy, floppy felt hat; he lifted it and with a powerful sweep brought it down over the head of the snake. While the snake was still fighting it he used his boots. They were heavy boots, ill made and of thick, clumsy leather, but they did the job. They also saved his life, for the snake struck his ankle as he got his foot on its neck. A moment later his hip knife sheared the head off and began prying the fangs from the leather.

"Did they penetrate?" asked the girl, breathlessly.

"It'd take an alligator to get through that leather," he smiled. "It's the first time I've really admired those boots."

The girl said impulsively, as shaken girls will, "I knew you were a gentleman—I mean——" She reddened.

"Not like my boots," he laughed. "You'd better come over to this seat and sit down for a moment, Miss Leicester. Shall I get you anything?"

SHE sat on the bench, panting a little, but her color coming back. She said, "No, I shall be all right in a minute. I'm used to snakes. It startled me, but I ought to have been careful; a rank place like this, after the floods, must be full of them. . . . But I've got to thank you, Mr. Sayce."

He laughed: "The beauty of a small town like this is that one knows everybody by name at least."

"And by sight," she smiled. She was thinking that his quiet, well bred, rather shy voice carried out the distinction she had noted in his face. "I've seen you about a great deal. . . . I was wondering what you were doing in a one-horse place like this."

"I'm beginning to wonder myself," he smiled. "In fact, the moment you called I was sitting on this bench wondering if it was not time I stopped making a fool of myself and started in on real work."

"Are you looking for work?" she said. "My father——" she blushed a little. She had already been guilty of thinking that it would be very attractive if this stranger became the mayordomo her brother was in Santa Orca to find.

"Yes," he answered and not uneagerly, for he, too, had admired her a good deal already and the hint in her voice suggested that there might be a chance of working on her father's estate and admiring her more intimately. "Yes, I'm looking for work from this moment on. . . . Up to now I've been looking for a dream——"

"That sounds enigmatical," she said. "What do you mean, a dream?"

"Some one whose existence in Santa Orca was a myth," he said. He looked at her quickly. "Your father has been in the district for twenty-six years, they tell me, Miss Leicester. Does he—have you ever heard of people called the Wilds, the Henry Wilds?"

She thought: "No, I've never heard the name. Were you looking for them? Are they friends?"

"I don't know them," he said. "I had word they were here five or six years ago. . . . I've got a message for them."

"I don't remember any such people five or six years ago," she said. "But what you say sounds vague——"

"It is vague," he laughed, a little bitterly, "I'm the vaguest idiot in two hemispheres. If you realize what I am, a little city clerk chasing a will-o'-the-wisp——"

He was full of his folly, and she was as pretty a girl as he had ever seen, and she was sympathetic as no girl of his own class had ever been. . . . He was in the mood to talk and he talked. He didn't tell her the facts—that would be treachery to "Sandy" and the woman Cissy, but he told her enough to show how he, a clerk, had thrown up everything in order to follow a rumor, and what he had gone through for this folly. He told it in a spirit of ironic mockery, but she listened with parted lips and her eyes grew rounder and rounder as he told his hard story, and at the end——

"But I've never heard anything like it," she breathed. "You are rather wonderful, Mr. Sayce. . . . To throw up everything to carry this message you mention to unknown people—why, it's—it's fine——"

"Fine!" he cried. "I've wasted my life for a dream."

"Not wasted," she cried. "It can't be that——" She blushed. "There must be something waiting at the end—and—and look here, Mr. Sayce, my brother came to Santa Orca to find a Mayordomo. He hasn't found one. If you—I mean it would be something to do while you look round. . . ."

WHEN she had gone he sat down, a new glow within him. After all, perhaps he would get something out of it. He could put the silly dream he had followed out of his mind and start fresh in a new land. He hated clerking anyhow, managing an estate was better than that. The Leicesters had a decent if not tremendous general estate up in the hills, he knew. No great fortune in it even for the owner, but a good life—a good life and Valentin Leicester was the nicest girl he had ever met. His lips straightened. He'd forget his folly. He'd begin again.

Jim Leicester took some of the glow out of him. Owen liked the boy, who must be about 24. He was ready to be friends, but Jim was rather cold, and, it seemed to him, wary. He asked a lot of questions, rather peculiar questions, Owen thought. His manner, indeed, was such that Owen's heart fell, for he thought that he would not get the job. But Jim Leicester engaged him, anyhow, on trial, and that was surprising, for Owen felt that the youngster did not like him. The feeling baffled him and half-inclined him to decline, but he, in his turn, seemed swayed by something outside himself. Valentin was not there; he heard she had gone up river to the estate. It was because he wanted to see her again that he accepted the post, though he felt more like punching the stiff young cub's head.

A poignant and unusual story of sister love by Elizabeth Jordan in these pages . . .

Next Sunday

Two days later they went up to the estate. Jim Leicester still maintained his curious attitude. He was chilly, aloof, even hostile unless he was asking questions, impertinent questions. Fortunately, the river journey was not long, for even the desire to see Valentin would not have prevented a quarrel. As it was he landed at the Leicester's estirao feeling very much at odds with the world and ready to fight at the slightest excuse.

And his reception was ghastly. He was ushered into a long comfortable room in which an oldish man and woman and Valentin sat. Valentin started up at the sight of him, looked at him in a queer way, frightened, disgusted, incredulous in one. He couldn't understand it. But he soon did. Jim Leicester pushed him forward and snapped: "This is the chap, father? This is the bounder who's been nosing round Santa Orca as Valentin told you."

To Owen's astonishment, Jim shut the door, locked it, and stood with his back to it—hand on pistol. The old man had risen grimly and faced him with a bitter look on his face. The women had risen and caught Valentin's arm as though to lead her out of the room by another door. The old man said harshly:

"No, stay, my dears. Better learn what it means to face blackmailing brutes—and how to tackle them."

"Blackmailing!" Owen was amazed as well as angry.

"Yes, blackmailing," said the old man in a grim voice. "I am the Henry Wild you looked for—now what have you to say to me?"

Owen could not believe his ears. "You're Henry Wild—that is 'Sandy,' and that is the girl 'Cissy'?" He looked at the white haired woman, who nodded her head, though her soft eyes questioned. "You're the people I want after all—but," he stared, puzzled, at Valentin, "you said you did not know the name."

"She didn't," said the old man curtly. "My son did, and when she told him your story he put two and two together and . . ."

Owen Sayce sat down in a chair and began to laugh. He laughed with an unrestraint and yet a bitterness that startled them. He jeered at them.

"And putting two and two together you thought you'd trap me here as a blackmailer! A blackmailer! I thought myself many things from a fool to a hero, but blackmailer—I wasn't brainy enough to think of that."

"What are you then if you are not that?" asked the old man, "you who seek me out in my hiding."

Owen Sayce suddenly sobered. He heard the agony of a lifetime in that old voice. He stood up, he looked not at the old man, not even at Valentin; he looked straight at the white haired woman with the soft and intrepid eyes. He said quietly: "Do you think I am a blackmailer, madam?"

For a moment their glances held, glances curiously akin, glances sensitive, brave, a little fanatical even. He felt the steady, clear strength of her gaze and his heart heat. She was the test, she was the one who would understand him—on her everything depended. She looked, said gently in her old, brave voice: "No, Mr. Sayce, I do not think you are a blackmailer."

He stiffened. She had understood. She had seen what her spirit had caused him to do. He turned to the old man. He said: "Your wife is right, sir, I am not a blackmailer."

Valentin's voice said: "I told you he had a message for us. I told you he wasn't bad." That was sweet, sweeter even than the older woman's trust.

The old man said quietly: "If I am mistaken I apologize, sir. But in the circumstance, I think you will understand my attitude. Perhaps you will give me your message."

"It is this," said Owen Sayce as evenly as he could. "I learned something—something that may, in fact should, free you from what you suffered in the past. I can give you facts that should prove your innocence, sir."

The old man took it very quietly. He looked level at Owen for a minute, then he said quietly:

"Perhaps you will explain—I take it that you refer to the murder of my father, Sir Arthur Halnaker of Beultor Manor."

"I think I do," said Owen, "But I don't know it by that name—or know any names." They showed emotion then, utter astonishment; he went on. "It may seem strange to you, it may seem utter folly, but this is the truth of it. . . ."

HE TOLD them his story plainly, keeping his voice even and his explanations as much in the background as possible. They listened at first a little bewildered, then with a steadily growing absorption, the woman Cissy leaving her daughter's side to draw near to him with a sort of intensity of attention. They made the fewest possible comments. The husky voiced man, the old man interjected, was called Jacob Dale. Ben was Ben Beneke, both of Halnaker village . . . . ne'er-do-wells. After Owen had spoken of the murderer as 'your cousin' twice, the old man said, 'His name is Halnaker, as mine is—Sir Jude Halnaker—officially, he has the manor now." Slick Sam was "Young Sam Honey, the preacher,"—all seemed to know of him. But on the whole they listened, listened with all their hearts, crowded round him listening. Astonishment, even incredulity, was in their eyes. At the end, when he had faltered to his lame ending, the old man was staring at him as though unable to believe his senses, and young Jim Leicester burst out: "By heavens, do you mean you did all that on a mere whim!"

But the woman, who had been called Cissy, understood. She stood in front of him, her countenance shining, her eyes streaming, and her old mouth was exquisitely tender. And she said in a broken voice: "You dear, you dear, you brave, fine thing——"

And she lifted his hands to her old lips and kissed them . . . . She understood, she believed. She was of his spirit and she knew what his spirit could do.

Owen Sayce was so glad at her appreciation, so uplifted by her recognition that the embarrassment and the unease of the others lost some of its sting. He saw that they were friendly now, Valentin more than friendly, and that their unease was for his sake. They valued what he had done, and hated hurting him. He looked round at them and saw their looks, and gradually he understood. He said with a half break in his voice——

"Have I been a darn fool all the time after all? Have I—I brought stale news——?"

"Not a fool, Sayce," said the old man coming to him, putting his hands on his shoulder, "by heavens not a fool, my boy. I've never met a grander act, but—but—well, you see, Slick Sam got religion."

"I SEE," said Owen in a flat voice. "And he confessed."

"Not exactly . . . the poor fellow's mind was troubled, as no doubt it should be. But he feared for his past, too. He communicated with the man he knew to be my best friend. That friend has always managed to keep in touch with me. He sent me the facts."

"But—I don't remember reading—"

"I took no action," said the other. "I am an old man. I have built up a new life here, an honorable name. Why should I be dragged back into it, why should the shame be reopened? Why should more blood be shed? Better let the pitiful murderer alone to his own conscience. I consulted my family. They agreed with me. What did the past matter to us who had already created a future of comfort and honor for ourselves? We he'd up our heads knowing that we were completely vindicated—we hold a confession of Slick Sam's—but beyond that we go on with our own life. Do you think we were wrong, Sayce?"

"No," he said. "Let the evil past bury the past. But why did you fear blackmailers? Why did you appear down and out when the husky voiced man saw you in Santa Orca?"

"One answers the other," smiled the old man. "Jacob Dale saw us before we had heard of Slick Sam's confession. We were still under threat. When we went into Santa Orca from this estate we adopted what poor disguises we could for fear of such men as Jacob Dale, Few if any of those who knew us of old are likely to come to such a place as this, but there was always the risk. I saw Jacob Dale, for instance, and I feared he might talk, not to the authorities, but to the underworld, as he did in your hearing. I saw it was on the boards that some one might come out here to find us and blackmail us, and after Slick Sam confessed we intended to confront any such with the truth and intimidate them into silence. Hence our churlish manner towards you."

"I don't blame you," cried Owen impulsively, "To have a fool butting in——"

"If there were only more such fools," cried the woman Cissy in her soft and ringing voice. "Stay with us Mr. Sayce, we'll show you how we appreciate such dear folly."

"Yes," said the old man, "stay with us, Sayce. I have work for you here, and I'd like to make up for the time you've wasted."

"Wasted?" cried Owen with bright eyes. He looked round at their smiling faces, at Valentin's eyes that cried: "Stay! Stay! O, my dear, I want you to stay!" And he laughed in sheer happiness. "I'll stay," he cried, "but you're wrong about the waste of my life. The thing I did was not waste. It was the thing I had to do, the thing I ought to have done to make a man of me—to make life for me."

He laughed into Valentin's eyes as he spoke and he knew she understood, knew she knew that he, and she, were only just entering upon life, real life.

The Peace Stone - By Henry C. Rowland

kill him. Devlin was expert in stalking and a finished marksman. In the jungles of Central America he had sometimes practiced on iguana as these arboreal lizards ran like squirrels along the branches.

It looked now to Devlin as if he might be in for a tiresome stalemate if he were to stick to his cover throughout the next eight or ten hours until daylight, which in that latitude and season came about three of the morning in clear weather, but must now be delayed an hour or two. Had Devlin urgently desired to kill Raoul he would have wormed out from his shelter, tried for a position to enfilade Raoul's, then with a flash of the torch and a quick shot have finished the affair—perhaps.

But with the situation now as Devlin felt strongly in his favor he could afford to wait in the hope of taking Raoul alive and forcing him to tell what he had done with Armand de Marsac. Devlin felt very sorry for the comte despite that nobleman's autocratic act in suppressing information that should have led to Easter's release. After all the comte had performed a noble gesture in restoring the Peace Stone to the person whom the comte felt most entitled to it, and the effort seemed to have cost him his only and dearly beloved son.

Here was the lamentable situation of two trained fighting men who not many years before had been engaged on this same coast in the same war service against a common enemy and one of them now gone entirely wrong, bringing the result of his belligerent experience to bear on the destruction of the other.

A drive of rain swept past in horizontal sheets. The wind's velocity increased, a squall tearing through the tempest. Such summer southwesterly gales Devlin knew from experience to be composed of violent successive bursts of wind and rain imposed on a gale that was heavy enough even in their lapses.

It occurred then to Devlin that under such conditions his only chance of capturing Raoul alive must be to put him hors de combat by a disabling shot and that the hope of doing this was very slight. It would be better to get back aboard the Grace-a-Dieu, take command of her and wait for daylight. Easter would have to weather out the night as best she could. Devlin did not believe that anybody aboard the boats had heard the pistol shots. The reports were muffled by the roaring of wind over the broken ledges, and over the cliffs of the low shore there was a continuous noise of waves from the backwash that swept round the island to strike the rocks explosively. Besides, the men were probably below, and in any case these Bretons would take no action. If their employers saw fit to shoot out a quarrel over in the pitch dark that was their own affair. At any rate the dueling ground would be no healthy place for honest boatmen. What Jacqueline might think about his prolonged absence was the least of his cares.

He was about to start a cautious retreat under cover to the shore and the Grace-a-Dieu before Raoul might possibly flank him when in a lull of the wind there came from the black swimming void beyond a faint syncopated cry. Devlin was too good an ornithologist, too well acquainted with the scream of wild fowl in all latitudes, to mistake this ululation. Moreover, he recognized it as the sort of call or summons that school girls are wont to make. The quavering call of a little girl outside a house to attract the attention of a playmate inside.

My Greatest Thrill

A Terrible Experience.

One day I had to put my baby to sleep in her little bed upstairs. I went to my basement kitchen to finish some work and soon heard some one come in the living room door on the first floor. On going up to see who it was, I was startled to find a man who had recently gone insane.

I started down the stairs at no slow gait and he, locking the door behind him, came right after me. I managed to get out the basement door and he was right behind me. He locked that door and I, realizing that my baby was upstairs with an insane man in the house, screamed loudly for help.

My cries were heard and men came from every direction, as the news that this man had escaped from the home where he was being watched before being taken away had soon spread.

The doors being locked, no one could get in, but he soon came through the basement window. It took eight men to overpower him. When a man went through the window and unlocked the door for me to go in, I went, with trembling knees and a heart that was sick with fear, to the room where my baby was.

My greatest thrill was to see her still asleep as though nothing had happened.

Two Scares.

One of the downtown department stores had a sale of bananas. I stood in line and bought a dozen, when it came my turn. When I got home I opened the bag and was terrified to find a big tarantula on them.

In my fright I opened the door and threw bananas, bag and all into the alley. I was so frightened I could not sleep for a couple of nights. The following morning I went into the pantry to prepare breakfast and was again horrified to see that same big tarantula in the middle of a pie plate.

It must have fallen out of the bag when I threw it into the alley, and landed on the kitchen floor instead. My screams brought my husband to the kitchen where he killed it.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Chicken Is One of the Favorite Dishes of the Summer Menu.

By Jane Eddington.

BROILED chicken [with butter or in cream, with mushrooms or bacon or corn fritters] has been a major dinner viand to choose for six weeks now. Fried chicken [often à la Maryland, with cream gravy and waffles or Graham toast] will be a major viand at dinners for six weeks to come. Curried chicken [with chutney and comfits] is most seasonable in hot weather. Roast capon [with endive salad or cress] is the big poultry roast when the turkey is least seasonable. Guinea fowl [try it pot roasted] is served in July as in February, and prepares the taste for enjoying pheasant, which is hardly so exclusive a viand in our United States as it was just a few years back.

But the chicken tribe does not wholly rule the roasting pan, the frying pan and broiler in providing our favorite hot weather meats. By July 1 comes roast gosling [with green apple sauce so spicy] for those who seek it. Roast duckling [with the most seasonable of green peas and sliced tomatoes] has before now made its début—weighing one pound to four—on cosmopolitan tables, while broiled duckling [with orange marmalade] seems to make some people's mouths water when merely mentioned. And there are squab, or squab pigeons, to be exceedingly specific [with cress or en cocotte with peas], and squab turkey, and other extensions of that word which we know has been used 200 years for pigeons.

Poultry Pies.

We should not fail to mention the poultry pies, which we have inherited from England, where they are such a popular cold viand in summer time. Chicken pie used to be in highest season with us at Thanksgiving time, but it lends itself well to summer dinners. Poultry "terrines" are much the same thing, and always we can make an excellent substitute for chicken pie by using pork.

Should we go to the menus prepared and served by hotel chefs we could find an astonishing list of summer poultry dishes. In fact, we might, from various sources, increase the number of ways of serving and cooking fowl, and even enlarge our vocabulary on the subject, for our entertainments and to advantages of other sorts.

As to that vocabulary, we might go to a 200 year old English cook book for some "pointers." It has some pages headed: "Instructions for Carving in the Newest, Best and Compleatest Manner." The directions are for cutting up a turkey, saucing a capon, unlacing a cony, displaying a crane, unbracing a duck or mallard, rearing a goose, dismembering a hern, winging a partridge, allaying a pheasant, lifting a swan, breaking a teal, thighing a woodcock. In this book are also listed meats with their accompaniments—different plans usually than we follow today—and while the cooking is mostly broiling and roasting, which latter was on the spit, a hare is "grigged" [mystery]. Anything like cooked liver was called an "intermess."

The broiler is for us what the partridge seems to be all through France, when it is "delicately and intelligently cooked." We see a good deal of broiled chicken that has not been cooked that way, nor even cleaned well. In the first place, go over the chicken and remove both beginnings and remnants of feathers. Then singe. If the grill is removed this can be done over the gas burner that will give the biggest flare.

After singeing, wipe well so that any bit of black will not be left on to get wet and stick. Then wash the chicken and wipe dry before commencing to cut it. Take off the head so as to save as much of the neck as possible, which is then to be cut off and cooked with other by-products. Also, cut off the feet and tips of the wings, and save.

Oven Broiled Chicken.

Split the chicken down the back and press the sides out so as to remove the viscera without breaking it. Use shears to cut around the outer attachment. Now press the bird out flat and, if you choose, remove the breast bone. It is common now to dip in melted butter a chicken to be broiled, and to broil it on a wire broiler, but there is an easier way to get it cooked like a broil, and to keep it more delicate.

This recipe is repeated here—somewhat abbreviated—because in its recent appearance it found favor and is timely now. Besides, I worked it out in what seemed to me to be helpful detail, with highly satisfactory results. After the chicken has been cleaned and flattened, put it into a large glass utility dish spread out and shaped symmetricaly, skin side up, folding the legs in and the wings up.

You can rub it over now with lemon juice to make it white, if you want to, but milk fed chickens do not need it, though if you have the idea that broiled chicken is insipid, use it. Sprinkle a teaspoon or a bit more of salt over the chicken and some shavings of butter. Put a nut of sweet butter in each corner of the pan, and with each a clove of garlic—do not be afraid, you will not taste it, yet it is a fine seasoner.

Now pour over all one-fourth cup of cream—a little more would be all right—and swiftly slide the dish into a 600 degree oven, and leave it at that heat for fifteen minutes. (A broiling heat may be more than that, and cannot be so well controlled.) At the end of that time it should have browned delicately, and probably sufficiently. Then cover with another glass dish and allow to steam for ten minutes. It really goes on cooking with the heat in it and in the pan.

Look for a glob of jelly under the breast bone as an indication that it has not been dried up, as it often is when cooked under the broiler. The bones will slip out, too, as proof that it is well cooked, but it will not be scorched, nor blackened, nor distorted, nor, we would emphasize, dried up. The cream has helped to prevent loss of the chicken juices and they should be preserved.

On Oven Frying of Chickens.

Maryland fried chicken is floured to prevent the loss of juices and the fat in which it is fried also prevents loss. It usually is finished in the oven, therefore the following description, to be found in Whitehead's book, "American Meat Cooking," interested me when I ran across it after having tried the oven broiling of chicken.

The title of the recipe under which this appears is "Spring Chicken, Maryland Style," and it begins: "These can be done in a skillet or frying pan over the fire, as they doubtless generally are for a family party, yet we have always found in southern hotels that even 'Old Aunty' herself was glad to slide the big pan containing three or four dozen into the range and be done with them all at once. And they seem just as good."

Variations in Cleaning.

Some people give the direction, "Wash and singe chicken." We think that is putting the cart before the horse. It is desirable to have a dry chicken—we hate those wet and soaked—and singe it dry, as the natural and surely the easiest thing. And if a chicken is made immaculately clean on the outside, and the outside taken away from the interior instead of the reverse, any further washing can be avoided.

The French go farther even, and use no water from first to last—I saw a highly accomplished French chef do this in Paris—but we could hardly think that right. However, wetting meat with water may be a sort of cold boiling of it, which makes for loss of flavor and other qualities. Besides, it is best not to have the pieces soppy when you are ready to dip them in flour. Fried chicken usually is given this treatment, only after being seasoned with salt and perhaps pepper.

Preparing a Baking Pan.

It is my own opinion, from experience, that it would be better to chop the salt pork fine and put it in the bottom of the pan, but Whitehead's directions are: "Cover the bottom of the baking pan with slices of dry salt pork, not smoked, cut very thin that it may not take much in weight, and bake light colored to extract the fat. Take out the slices and fill with the chickens laid close together, the skin down.

"Bake in a hot oven about one half hour, basting with the fat from the corner of the pan and it almost always needs some fresh butter added. When the upper side is light brown, turn the pieces over and brown the other side; raised on the shelf of the oven if necessary, as the pan should not be allowed to get brown.

"Take out the chickens, pour a dipperful of milk into the pan and let boil with the gravy and flour that is on the bottom and when done, strain it. Serve a slice of the crisp pork on each piece of chicken and gravy in the dish."

There is suggestion enough here to help one a good deal in frying chicken in the quantity greater than any frying pan will hold. With these suggestions we can go on and make this recipe more specific. If we use a 600 degree oven, as in the broiling, and glass baking dishes with milk and fat we can avoid the basting, and as the milk evaporates the pan will be hot enough to brown the chicken on the under side, so that we can avoid the trouble or hot job of turning the pieces. But perhaps we should not add the milk.

The fat gets so hot in a 600 degree oven that it will brown the chicken, but after fifteen minutes it should be given close attention. We think juicy fried chicken worth all the cream gravies ever made, and there are other ways of getting nice gravies and then there is bread sauce.

Hands Artists Rave About

Whenever New York artists or photographers want an exquisite pair of hands for "close up" reproduction they call in Annette Grandin. She has hands of rare beauty that can stand "close up" reproduction because they are so delicately white and smooth.

"The secret," Miss Grandin says, "lies not in any special care, or in the use of fancy lotions, but simply in a skin bleach of my own making. I get three ounces of Orchard White at the corner druggist and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a full quarter pint of a remarkable, and at the same time perfectly harmless bleach. I rub a little into my hands—also my neck and face—every night and this keeps my skin not only clear and white, but soft and smooth."

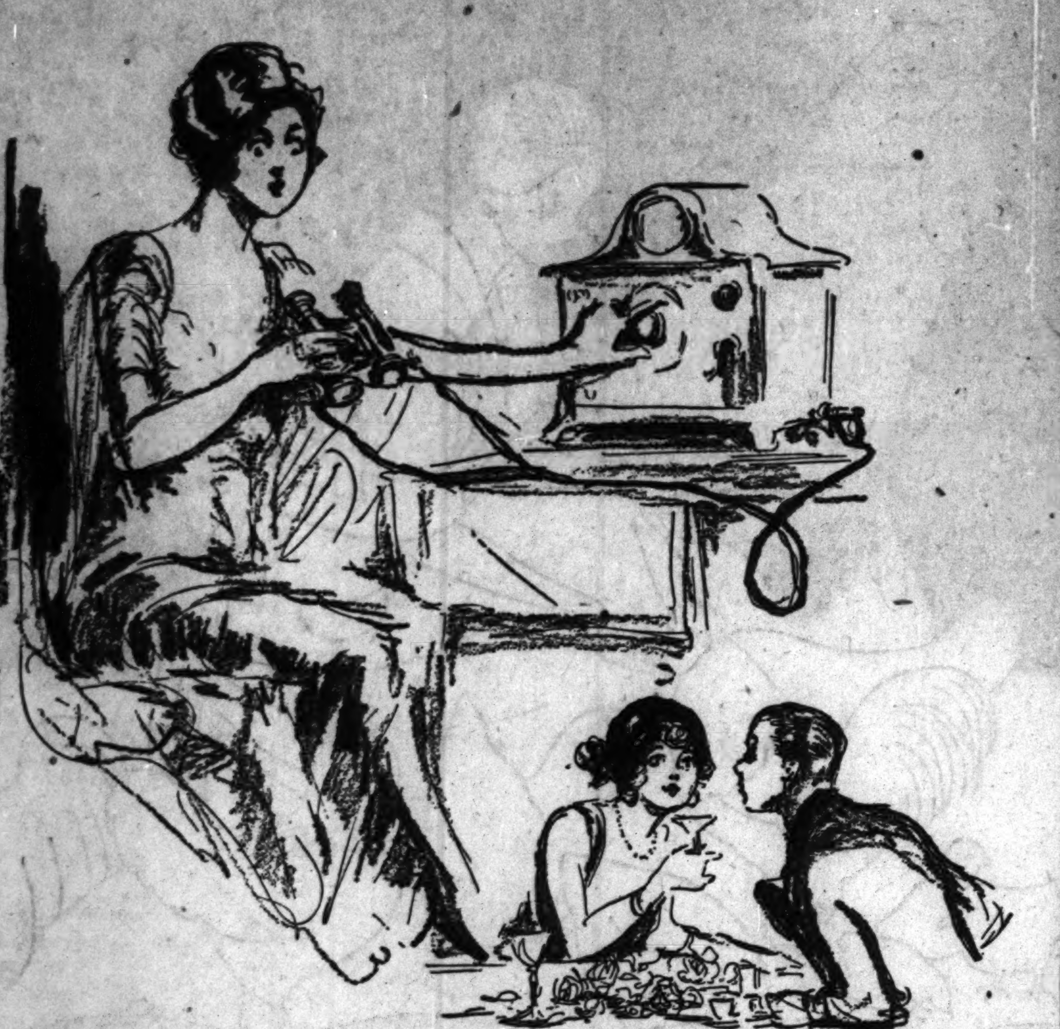
Keep Your Skin Young

DO you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS by Sara Moore

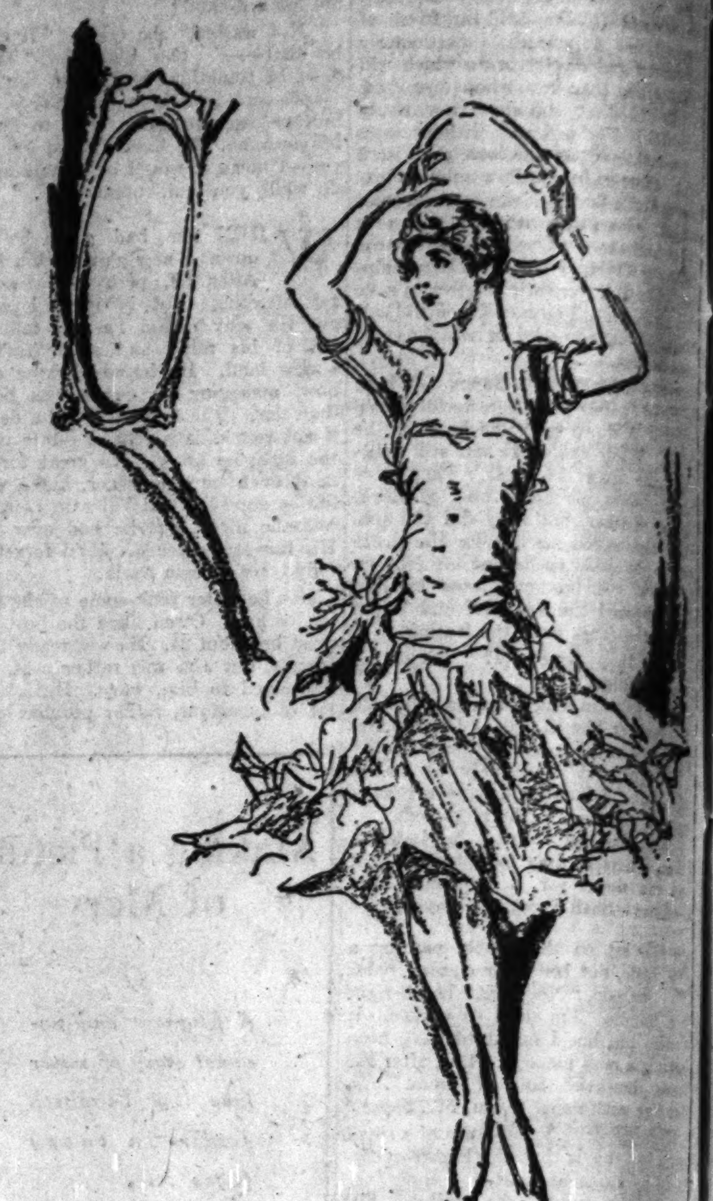


BROADCASTING TROUBLES. . . .

Both television and radio. . . Why, mixing them's absurd!
Now broadcast programs are scarce enough—or so, at least we've heard.
And where could husband dare dine a blonde in careless gayety,
If wife, home with the radio, might tune right in and SEE?

COUNTRY LIFE, 1928.
(Cook County Idyll.)

The highways flee harsh city strife.
On asphalt quests we fare
To seek the simple roadhouse life
And clovered country air.
To roadhouse cabarets away!
To nature art concedes,
And here a dancing girl may wear
Not more than seven beads.
Here Broadway, startled, well may blush;
Bucolics proudly grin
At costumes, triangles of silk,
Some grease paint and a pin.



SAFETY SECOND.

Life balances values maintaining a line
Where good matches evil in careful design.
Though Satan made motors for joyrides and larking
Quick angels got busy with signs of No Parking.

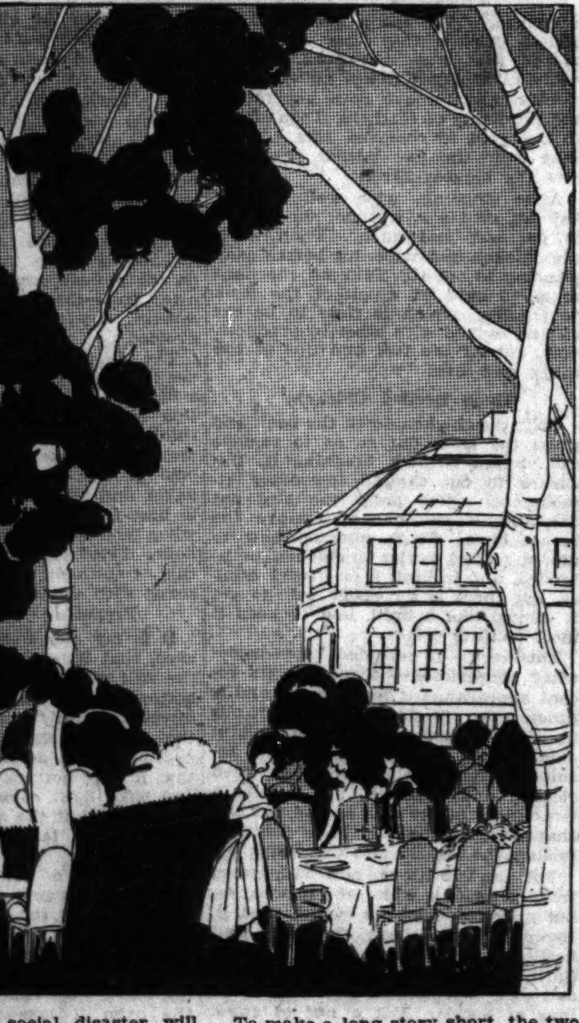
An Informal Entertainment

A Friend of Mrs. Harry's Invites Two Social Lions to a Large Party and They Proceed to Fight.

By Persis Standish.



A FRIEND of Mrs. Harry's was giving a party—a large and informal party — a combination which is hard to accomplish, because when a party becomes large a certain number of those who are invited are apt to be strangers to each other, and among strangers formality of one sort or another is always present. However, Mrs. Benson intended that her party should be both large and informal and as she lives in a country house she dared to undertake it.

She asked Mrs. Harry to help her with the arrangements and to come out early in the morning of the day of the party to cast her artistic eye over the decorations of the rooms. They had a lot of fun selecting things for the tables, as Mrs. Benson decided to buy a full equipment of dishes and glasses to be kept for such occasions.

They bought colors to harmonize in dozen lots of each. For instance, a dozen green glasses and dishes, a dozen pink glasses and dishes and a dozen blue glasses and dishes so that if Mrs. Benson had a party of twelve she could have a change of colors, and if she had parties of eighteen she could mix them up in various color schemes. All of the dishes were alike except for color, as was all of the glassware.

Long Table Proposed.

They selected an orchestra and several entertainers and they had a lot of fun seeing that the porch on the side of the house was waxed for dancing, and then Mr. Benson said he would have a long table put up on the lawn to accommodate the thirty-six guests.

Both Mrs. Benson and Mrs. Harry tried to dissuade him from the long table and persuade him that smaller tables were less formal and less apt to be lagging in conversation. But he said that the people he wanted to talk to were always put at the other table and that he thought it was more friendly and less discriminating to put all the guests together.

The women pounced on the discriminating and said, "Yes, indeed, it is far less discriminating."

But he would have none of their scorn. They pointed out that in case of rain the big table would be a great inconvenience, but he said he'd have it made in sections so it could be brought into the house, and placed L shaped in the dining and living rooms which were amply large to accommodate it.

Then Mrs. Harry said, "Even if persons you want to talk to are at the same table you can't talk to them thirty-six places away, and as you are host, just give your wife a hint of those you want at your own table and she'll see that you get them."

They Gave In.

Mr. Benson replied that he never knew until he was seated just who he wanted at his table and that then they were always as far away as possible. So they gave in.

Mrs. Benson said, "After all, he's paying for it!" and Mrs. Harry said, "Besides, it will be fun because so [illegible] have a table that big."

[illegible] he left the room they [illegible] each other in dismay. [illegible] said, "You know, I feel as though some social disaster will happen."

Mrs. Harry laughed, but she acknowledged to herself a like misgiving.

Then, a few mornings before the party, Harry came to his wife and said, "Will you ask Mrs. Benson for another invitation to her party, dear? Mr. Boss is entertaining Prof. Blank, the famous archaeologist, over the week-end and has asked us to take him on, as he and Mrs. Boss have to go east to Mrs. Boss' brother-in-law, who is desperately ill. Of course we can't miss the party and perhaps the prof would enjoy it, too."

Mrs. Harry almost wept. She thought of the thirty-six person table and quailed. She told Harry her predicament and said, "Perhaps we had best just tell Helene we can't come."

"Nothing of the sort," quoth he. "They'll be tickled to death to have a celebrity like Blank, even if they do have to stretch a point to get him in."

Mrs. Harry considered. There was that, of course—Prof. Blank was an international figure that any hostess would greet with joy, be she lion tamer or no. And his fame as a raconteur went before him.

So Mrs. Harry decided to call her, although she knew, what no man does, that there are times when celebrities are NOT welcome. However, she told Mrs. Benson about it simply and honestly and begged her to do as she thought best and dispense with the odd number by allowing Harry and Mrs. Harry to miss the party.

Mrs. Benson said, "Come, and really I'm delighted because it will make an even number because Mary Alden is bringing her uncle, the bishop, who comes to visit her that day and there will have to be room for him, so the professor really is a godsend, as he may entertain the bishop."

To make a long story short, the two lions were put opposite each other at the long table and before they got there a discussion had started between them. One is an atheist, the other a believer of the most orthodox type. The discussion was unfortunately religious. By the time they got to the table it had degenerated into an argument and soon thereafter into a verbal brawl.

A Lion Fight.

It was a perfect example of what started wars in the middle ages and what could start them again. It was amazing to see two civilized gentlemen literally flying down each other's throats, each trying to be cleverer than the other, each angry enough to be illogical, even irrational.

No tact on the part of the hostess or several other of her women guests was of any avail, no laughter from several of the younger generation. Nothing helped. Of course, the party was spoiled. It was as Mrs. Benson said afterwards, "informal in a way I did not expect." And poor Mr. Benson said to Mrs. Harry, "Of course you and Helene were right. If we had had small tables the brawl would have been private. Women should decide all these things."

"You are right about the women deciding," said she, "but it was up to me to decide that the professor was out of place here even more than the bishop. This was really a children's party—the celebration of a certain set—and celebrities are out of place in cliques. But it is unpardonable to talk religion in public, so, after all, we are all free of blame except the professor and the bishop. And he is doubly to blame because he was not only talking religion but SHOP. It is as bad form for a churchman to talk about God on a social occasion as for a surgeon to talk about operations."

Leap Year Proposals

Do you know of any girl who invited a man to leap into matrimony with her? Was her proposal met with eager acceptance or graceful refusal? If you'll send us a brief account of the affair we'll pay $1 if we print it. Address Leap Year Proposals, Chicago Tribune.

Reversing Things.

I had been going with a fellow for almost two years. His motto was: "I will never get married." I felt the same way for some time, but conditions at home made me change my mind and I thought I would be better off if I was married to him.

I waited and waited for him to pop the question, but in vain. He still held onto his motto. Finally, one day, I decided I would suggest it myself. Thinking of it made me so nervous that he noticed I had something on my mind. He insisted that I should tell him.

I did so, on the street car as we were going out. I put my handkerchief to my face and looking out of the window, I said: "If you knew you could support me, would marry me?" For a while he was struck dumb.

Coming out of his stupor about five minutes later, he said: "Sure, but seeing you are the one that proposed I think I have the privilege of naming the wedding day. It will take place sometime next year. The exact date I will tell you later."

Now I am wondering if I must also buy him an engagement ring. Maybe I will be the one who waits at the altar, while he will march up the aisle.

"A Maiden's Wish."

Anne and John had been seeing each other quite frequently. They were both much in each other's thoughts, but neither of them had the courage to even mention matrimony.

It was one of those nights when romance lurks in the very atmosphere that Anne had asked John to come for dinner. After the quiet meal was over Anne had played the piano for him, and with the soft, rippling music was mingled her mellow voice, which sounded in harmony with it.

She had sung the strains of "A Maiden's Wish," which ends with, "I want you only."

The song being ended, he drew nearer to her and asked: "Did you mean it?"

Blushingly, she answered, "Yes," and now his favorite song is "A Maiden's Wish."

$5 APIECE FOR BRIGHT SAYINGS

Ward was proud of being dressed in his best clothes and was exceedingly careful of them so as not to mar them, if he was going away from home.

One day he appeared at the next door neighbor's dressed in his best, and the kindly neighbor brought a chair forward, saying, "Here is a chair, Wardie. Come and sit down."

Ward, however, continued to stand and the lady then said, "Why don't you come and sit down? You will soon be tired."

Looking down shyly at the freshly pressed crease in his trousers he replied, "I'm afraid I'll break the cracks in my pants."

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

> I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.
> When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Offers a Piano.

"I have a piano I would like to give to some church mission home, or girls' club. Any organization of the kind willing to arrange for the cartage may have the piano. It is in good condition, but I have no more use for it.

"C. K."

Here, indeed, is a find for the institution which can make use of this piano. If you'd like to have it, write me about it; please do not telephone.

Attractive Offer.

"I have a large box full of new yarns in pretty, bright colors which I am sure some shut-in would like. I also have a complete china painting out-fit, I would like to give to some young girl who is tryin gto get a start.

"MRS. M. M."

Here's an attractive offer which someone working in yarns or paints should find useful. If you'd like one or the other of these, write me; please do not telephone.

Needs Baby Scale.

"Is there someone among your readers who has a baby scale no longer used? I am a young mother of four children, the oldest being 4 years old. I cannot get to the Welfare station with my baby and it is necessary that she be weighed. My husband earns only a small salary and we can't afford to buy a scale.

"MRS. W. F."

If you no longer need your baby scale, won't you give it to this young mother so she may carefully watch her small daughter's progress? At this age, baby's weight becomes one of the most interesting and important points of her existenc.

Valuable Gift.

"We have a set of the messages and papers of the Presidents of the United States, bound in leather and paper, eleven volumes, covering all of the Presidents from Washington to Roosevelt.

C. C."

A most interesting and comprehensive collection is contained in the volumes offered by C. O. and should form a most valuable part of some library. If you want this set write me; please do not telephone.

Wants Technical Books.

"I am a young man starting on a new job and I am in need of the information which I can obtain from 'Machinery Encyclopedia.' This is a set of six volumes which perhaps one of your readers would have to give away.

O. M."

Does your library boast the encyclopedia this young man needs? If you have no further use for it and will let him have it, I know he will find it most helpful.

Furnitures Needed.

"Can your readers donate a little furniture to a family of seven who has just moved from crowded furnished rooms to their own apartment? The father is dead and the mother supports her large brood by going out to clean and scrub when she can find work. They need a bed or two with mattresses, table and chairs, parlor furniture, bedding, curtains, rugs, dishes, and cooking utensils.

"MRS. H."

Here is a most deserving mother who has had a great deal of trouble and suffering during the last few years. Now if we can help her she will be able to establish her home again and live in comparative comfort. Even one of the much needed furnishings would help immensely.

Poultry Information Wanted.

"Have your readers any books on poultry raising? My husband's health is not good and we are planning to move to the country, where he can have a small poultry farm?

"MRS. E. E."

Can you give this man a few pointers about chickens and chicken raising? Or have you any literature on the subject which might help him? He'll be most grateful for any you may have.

Mother Cares for Five Children.

"Mrs. T. is the mother of five children. Her husband is in a hospital for the insane. The home is quite bare and needs a number of things to make it more comfortable for the children. She really needs a combination cook and gas range, a dresser or two, a flour can and some curtains for long windows. The children are also in need of clothing. The girls are 13 and 11 and the boys, 11, 9 and 7 years of age.

C. K."

Here's a poor mother whose burden is almost more than she can bear. Won't some of you housewives and mothers come to her assistance with the furnishings you may be discarding and the clothing your children have outgrown?

BEAUTY ANSWERS by Antoinette Donnelly

> What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

VIOLET: YOU CANNOT HASTEN the growth of your hair, but as healthy hair grows only on a clean, well nourished scalp you want to brush the hair for five minutes every morning and night to stimulate the roots. The brushing also removes the grime and dust.

M. L.: A GOOD SKIN IS AN INDICATION of good health. If one fails to get her daily supply of fresh air, exercise and proper food, the complexion shows it. Sleep in a well ventilated room all the year round, and walk very day. Begin with two miles and increase to three or four. In this way you get your exercise and fresh air at the same time. Avoid starchy foods, greasy meats, and rich desserts. Eat freely of vegetables and fruits.

A. N.: BITING THE NAILS IS A sign of some nervous disorder. Here is a nail varnish to help overcome the habit: Alcohol, 1¼ ounces; chinoidin, 1¼ ounces; gum mastic, ¼ ounce; gum myrrh, 1⅛ ounces. Mix, let stand for 48 hours, occasionally shaking. Apply with a camel's hair brush.

BEE R.: TO MAKE THE BUSTS firm, bathe them every day with cold salt water and support the tissues with a brassiere. It is well to wear a brassiere even during the night. At night massage gently for ten or fifteen minutes with a liberal amount of fattening cream. To be effective, this treatment must be given every day.

H. P.: BLEACHES THAT CONTAIN lead or mercury are injurious to the skin, and should never be used on the face. I have a formula for a bleach which is both harmless and effective. Send a stamped addressed envelope for it.

WORRIED READER: A LOTION for enlarged pores is one dram of boric acid and four ounces of distilled witch hazel. Mild cases of blackheads are cured by bathing the face with soap and warm water, using a complexion brush to scrub thoroughly the affected parts. Rinse with warm water, then cold water. Send a stamped addressed envelope for other suggestions on the care of the skin. You will find it helpful in your case.

I. B. H.: EACH CHILD SHOULD have his own wash cloth. After using it should be washed, rinsed and hung up to dry. At least once a week it should be boiled to destroy any possible germs lurking in the cloth. If any one of them has any kind of skin disease, great precaution should be exercised to avoid infecting the others.

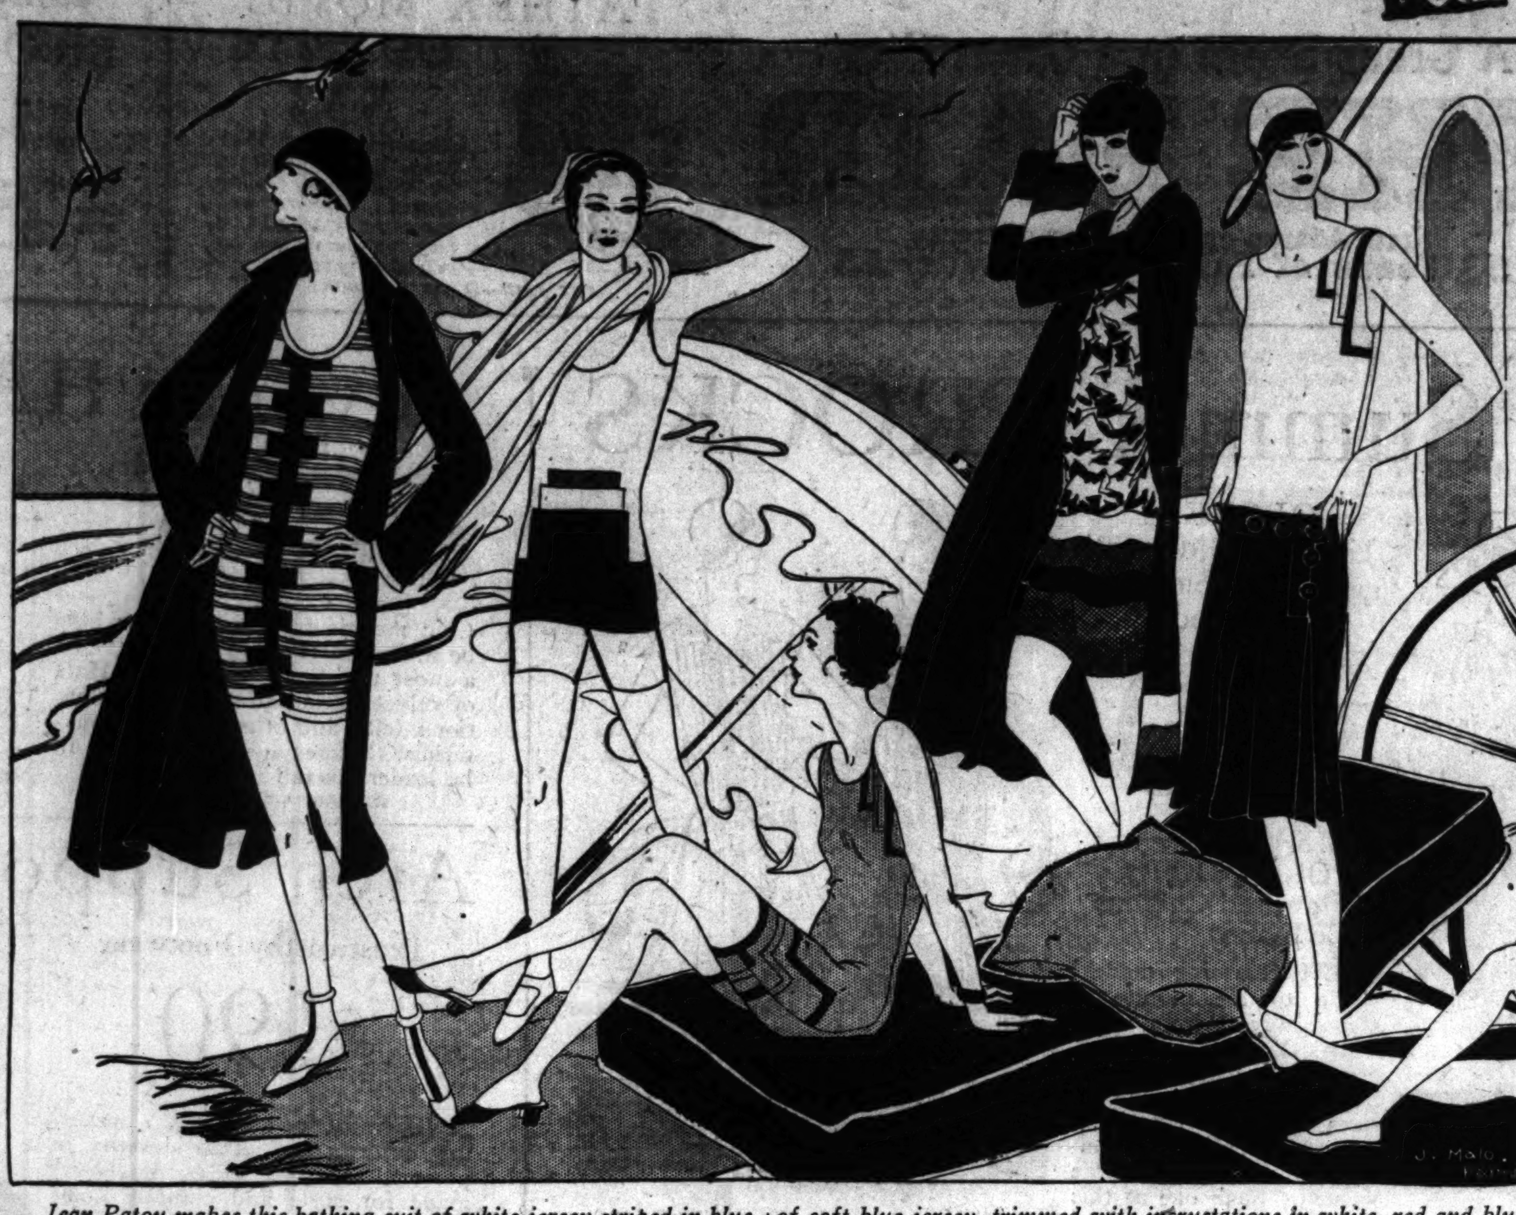
The Last Word in Paris Fashions



Jean Patou makes this bathing suit of white jersey striped in blue, shown at the extreme left, with a dark blue jersey band down the front. The coat is in dark blue jersey.

The two piece bathing suit from Jane Regny, sketched next, is made of white jersey. The sweater is incrusted with a very wide band of green jersey, topped by two short bands of lighter green.

The Chantal beach costume consists of a one piece bathing suit of soft blue jersey, trimmed with incrustations in white, red and blue, and a detachable skirt in navy blue crepe de chine. Shown in the center and at the extreme right.

The three piece ensemble is also from Chantal. Orange eponge material makes the long coat, which is trimmed with bands of beige, white and orange jersey. The knitted sweater is also in beige, white and orange. The short trunks are made of orange wool.

Fashion Designers Create Smart Costumes for the Wets and Drys at the Seashore

By Bettina Bedwell.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Lido first provided a special chic for women whose inclinations are all toward the "dry" side of fashion, and yet who want to be in the smart seaside picture. The seashore pajamas of this famous resort, however, have never spread their vogue to other bathing resorts. They were a bit too daring for such famous summer fashion centers as the plage at Deauville, at Dinard and at LeToquet.

Deauville, which sees, during this season, most of the famous ones, the infamous, and their satellites, produces also its own kind of sensational bathing chic. Beaded bathing suits, and suits of feathers are the type that produce so-called style headlines from this summer fashion center. Such essentially dry seaside costumes, however, are merely strays, which give to the sensation seeker something to talk about, while at the Lido the "dry" pajama is so universal as to be a kind of uniform.

As if in competition, Deauville is producing this season a dry as well as a wet fashion, both exclusively intended for the denizen of the sandy stretch at this plage, where more famous people may be seen at this time than at any other coast resort in the world.

The bathing suit which is actually seafaring is a distinct style, and the beach suit, which may be ever so near but not in the water, is another. There are also combinations of these two types—costumes that are both wet and dry, and both successfully.

In spirit the bathing costume and the beach costume may be divided, also, into two classes. There is the daring and there is the conservative. Both are smart and are extensively worn, but they are intended for widely different kinds of women.

The newer, and the more elegant, is the conservative costume, one which is quite as modest as the voluminous bathing suit of the famous nineties. It is not, however, so concealing. Many ladies who are fashion makers, so that what they wear is always closely watched by the rest of the world, are wearing conservative suits at the seaside this summer.

These costumes to the casual observer seem to be merely smart, rather short sports frocks. They are often a bit more brilliant in color than the sports suit which is worn on the golf links or in the tennis court, but they might easily appear there without causing even a ripple of excitement. The now celebrated red, white and blue tricolor scheme of the regular sports frock is one of the favored color schemes for the sports bathing dress.

For the swimmer, the brief, practical maillot, a one piece knitted costume, or short trunks and sleeveless sweater, are the preferred types. These costumes make up in fantasy patterns and in brilliant or clever color combinations what they lack in length and ponderousness. Numberless smart women wear the one piece bathing suit and cover it up with a smart beach coat while they are on the sands and out of the sea.

A favorite bathing ensemble of this type is shown on our first figure, and it is, incidentally, one of the most striking of the bathing outfits seen on the sands at Deauville. Jean Patou is the creator of this costume, which combines pastel and navy blue and white. The conservative colors are given brilliance by the striking pattern of the one piece jersey swimming suit.

This suit is white with pastel and navy blue stripes and down the center front is a vertical band of dark blue jersey, overlaid with short cross bands of the same material. The coat which is made to go with this suit is of navy blue waterproof crêpe de chine lined with jersey and banded with white. Very smart, indeed, are the waterproof crêpe de chine tamoshanter for the head and the high white rubber shoes, which are banded in navy.

Another fashionable bathing suit that belongs in the ranks of the wets is shown on our second figure. This suit, which comes from Jane Regny, has a sweater and trunks of white jersey, and the sweater is incrusted with a very wide band of bright green jersey, topped by two short bands of lighter green. A long scarf of light green jersey goes with this costume.

One of the reasons for the increase of conservatism among smart bathers at Deauville is illustrated on the figure shown at the extreme right of our sketch.

The base of this toilette is the one piece bathing suit shown on the center seated figure of our sketch. It is made of soft sea blue jersey and is incrusted with white, red, and flar blue bands, cunningly arranged around the legs and at the left side of the neck line. Over this practical swimming suit goes a skirt of navy blue rubberized crêpe de chine, which is cut circular in front, and which has a close fitting belt buttoned with three large blue buttons. Two buttons attach the skirt at the left side front.

This skirt may be easily slipped off when the impulse comes for a dip in the sea, or it may be worn when the costume serves for the beach.

The model immediately to the left of this one is also from Chantal and it is a three piece ensemble for beach and bathing. The long coat is made of orange eponge, with bands of beige, white and orange jersey on the sleeves, and with stitching in these shades around the body of the coat. The knitted sweater is in beige, white, and orange, edged at the bottom with three jersey bands, the upper in white, the second in beige and the lower in orange. The short knitted trunks are made of orange wool.

A skull cap of orange tricot is drawn up to the crown of the head and tied with loops of orange wool. This is one of the most Parisian bathing costumes seen this season.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

A SLENDER effect is achieved by using the hip yoke of this charming dress, pattern No. 3471, in a pointed treatment to correspond with the deep point in the front of the bodice, and placing the circular flare low. The surplice closing vestee and attractively shaped collar are style details.

This design is especially becoming to women with full figures, for it is smart, youthful and slenderizing. The waist and skirt are cut separately and joined at a low waistline, a narrow belt covering the joining. The waist in the front is cut in a deep point and prettily finished with a flat collar. One of the printed crêpes would make up effectively, using the ground color of the print in a plain color for the collar and vestee, and binding these as well as the deep V with the predominating color in the print.

The deep hip yoke aids greatly in giving an effect of slenderness, but it must be fitted with care. If it is too tight it will crease and not look well, and on the other hand it shouldn't be too loose. It will be a good idea to baste the seams of the yoke together on the right side, slip it on and see how it looks when you sit down as well as when you stand. When it is fitted to your satisfaction the seams can be finished.

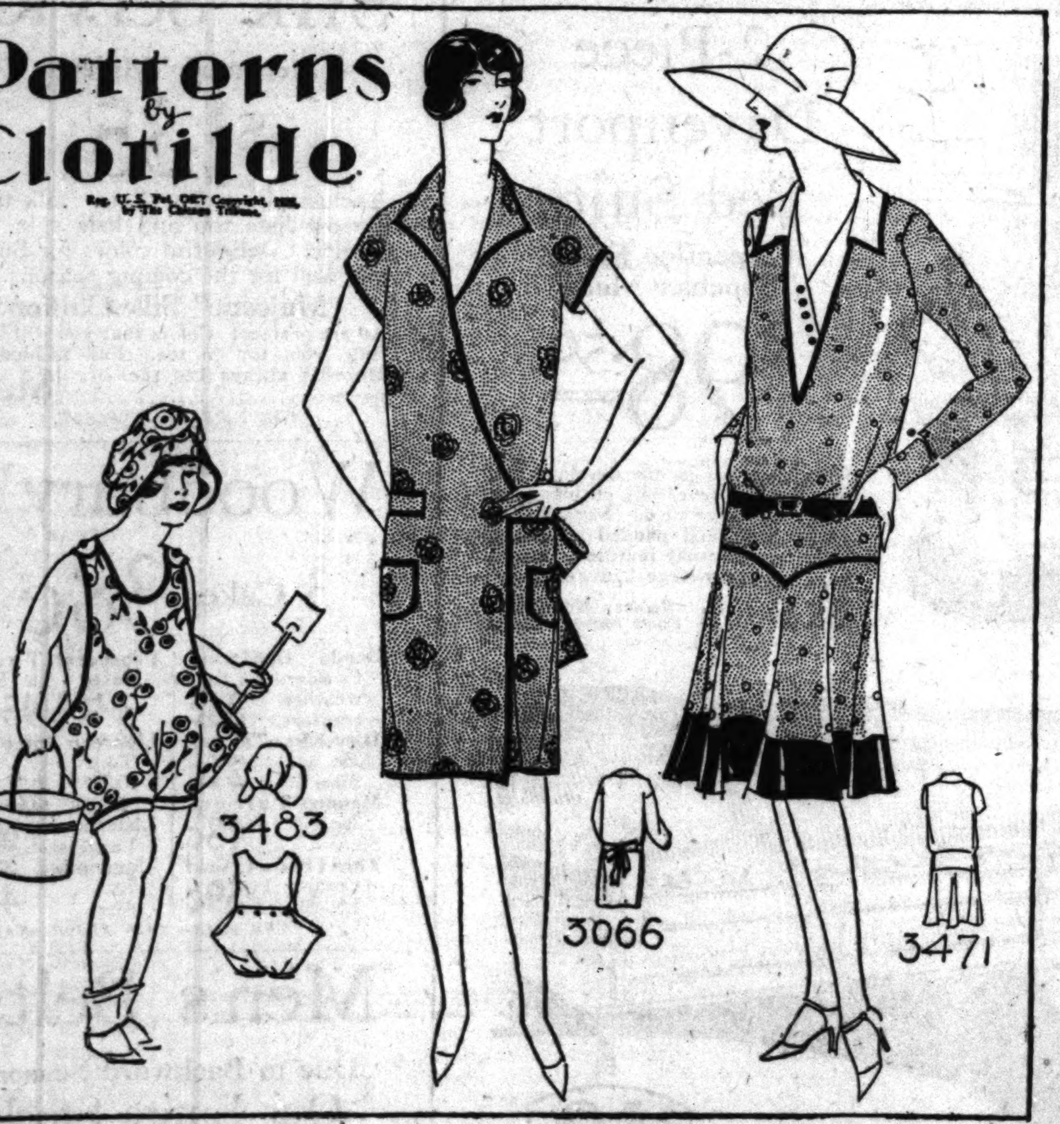
The skirt is very circular and will stretch some, and after the side seams have been finished it can be set on the yoke, either turning under the bottom of the yoke, basting it over the top of the skirt and stitching it twice, or first setting in a very narrow piping of the material used to bind the collar, etc., and then proceeding as just described. Still another way would be to prepare a bias strip, making it one half inch wide when both edges are turned in and pressed, and setting the yoke and skirt together with a right side seam, stitching the binding over the seam.

After the dress has hung several days, the length should be evened, and the bottom finished. The right side facing of the contrasting color, as shown in the sketch, will be very attractive and not difficult to handle. The sleeves may be long or short—the long ones being plain and close fitting.

Flat silk crêpe, crêpe satin, cashmere woven with metal threads, shantung, georgette crêpe and Canton-faille crêpe are fashionable fabrics and serviceable, too.

Patterns by Clotilde

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. Copyright, 1928, by The Chicago Tribune.



3483—Child's sun suit. Sizes 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 years. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 32 inch material with 5 yards of binding.

3066—Woman's and misses' morning dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 40 inch material with ½ yard of 20 inch contrasting.

3471—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 40 inch printed material with ⅝ yard of 32 inch white and 1⅛ yards of 32 inch black contrasting.

Pattern No. 3483 is designed especially as a sun suit for very small children. Sun baths are recommended by many authorities. Any small maiden would adore to wear this fetching garment, with its cute flared sides with deep pockets and with the legs neatly gathered into narrow knee bands.

The front is cut in one piece, and the back in two with a drop seat that fastens with small pearl buttons to the waist. It is ideally cool, cut very low at the neck and under the arms and allowing the sun to play over the small body freely. Gingham, poplin, chambray, sateen and percale are among the suitable materials, and if a printed pattern is chosen for the suit, and the binding is done with a plain color it will be both pretty and comfortable.

Pattern No. 3066 is an attractive design for a morning dress for busy housewives. The fronts have attached tie-strings that slip through slashed openings and tie in a youthful bow in the back. The dress is cut with drop shoulders that form short sleeves, and they are seamed on the shoulders. If you prefer, the sleeves may be made full length by setting on one piece sections that are gathered at the wrists and set into narrow bands. But doubtless the short sleeves will find more favor, for long ones are a nuisance when working about the house.

The dress will be attractive if you bind the collar, right front edge, belt, sleeves and pockets with a contrasting color. Or, if you are making a printed material, use the predominating color in the design for the bindings.

Printed sateen, cotton broadcloth in pastel shades, pongee silk and percale are effective materials. The bindings must be cut on a true bias; and to get this, fold the width exactly across the length of the material, so that the warp and woof threads are at an exact right angle. Cut on this line, and then cut inch wide strips, unless you like rather wide bindings, in which case one and one-half inches will be about right.

A Secret Revealed.

My sister had been in Colorado for three or four years and had written mother that she was coming home on a visit.

I went to bed happy, thinking how nice it would be to see her again, and just before waking, I dreamed she came home, and with a man whose face was youthful, but whose hair was snow white, and said she was to marry him. We were all so surprised, as she hadn't even mentioned his name in any of her letters.

I hurriedly dressed and after breakfast my oldest sister and I started for mother's house to see her. I told my dream, and she listened attentively, and arose and went into the next room.

She came back soon with a man's picture, and said: "Is that the face you saw?" and to my surprise, the face was the same, and she said, "We are to be married soon." G. W. G.

Heard Her Daughter Call.

One night I dreamed of my daughter who was married and lived about 60 miles from our home. I heard her calling "Mother!" so plainly that I woke up and sat up in bed. My husband said, "what is the matter?" I told him I had heard daughter calling me.

He said, "O, no, you must have been dreaming."

The next morning early I received a message to come at once as my daughter was very ill. When I reached her bedside they told me she had called for me the night before about the time of my dream. J. S. W.

Ravinia Opera Season Is Almost Half Over

By Edward Moore.

ONE more week and the Ravinia season will be half way over. It is strange how these pleasant things have a habit of disappearing so rapidly. The series out north has been gliding along in a most agreeable fashion, with plenty of work for the band of expert participants, it is true, but with great comfort for the attending public.

GIOVANNI MARTINELLI, whose tenor voice rings high and clear at Ravinia.

Next Saturday will complete a period of thirty-five nights of opera, and during that time twenty-one operas will have been given. None of them has had more than two performances, and several only one. It has meant lively times for all concerned. But that is the way they do things at Ravinia.

The artful aid of statistics discloses that the works receiving two performances, not up to today, but up to next Saturday, are "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," "Louise," "The Love of Three Kings," "La Boheme," "Samson and Delila," "Faust," "Aida," "Madame Butterfly," "The Masked Ball," "Lohengrin," "Manon," "La Juive," "Martha," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Fra Diavolo." Those which will have been given once only are "Andrea Chenier," "Il Trovatore," "La Chemineau," "Tosca," and "Fedora."

Two Operas from French Plays.

The last two named in this list are really future instead of past, since they are due to come to their first hearings during the coming week. They are rather interesting from the fact that in the beginning they were both plays before they were operas, and successful plays at that. Both were written by Victorien Sardou, in his time a famous French dramatist, and both had many performances in France and outside of it. "Tosca," or "La Tosca," as the play was named, became an important item in the repertoire of Bernhardt, and it may be that there are playgoers who will remember the emoting in "Fedora" that Fanny Davenport used to do in this country.

Successful operatic composers have had to be men of the theater as well as musicians, and the careers of both Giordano and Puccini show with what care they selected their librettos before beginning the work of composition. Sometimes they guessed wrong—"The Girl of the Golden West," so far as America is concerned, was a painful episode for Puccini—but in general they studied their dramatic situations with much care. Wherefore Giordano set music to "Fedora" and Puccini to "Tosca," with results that it is unnecessary to set out in this place.

In the coming performances "Tosca" is to have the superb voice and great good looks of Elisabeth Rethberg in the name part, with Edward Johnson as the young painter, Mario, Giuseppe Danise as the Roman chief of police, and Vittorio Trevisan in his unforgettable part of the sacristan. "Fedora" calls for a long cast. Florence Easton and Giovanni Martinelli will have the two leading parts, other characters being taken by Margery Maxwell, Philine Falco, Gladys Swarthout, Mr. Danise, Leon Rothier, Louis D'Angelo, and others. Gennaro Papi will conduct both works.

Another in the series of national concerts will be given this afternoon, with the music of France occupying the central position. Mr. DeLamarter has arranged a program of representative French music, during the course of which Alfred Wallenstein, the cellist, will be the soloist. In the second part of the program La Chorale Francaise de Chicago will sing three French groups and one English, under the direction of Charles Lagourgue, and as an added feature Leon Rothier, French basso, will sing the "Marseillaise." Count de Ferry de Fontnouvelle, French consul of Chicago, and Prof. Paul Hazard of the College de France, now lecturing at the University of Chicago, will attend.

Gotham Promised New Operas.

Taking time well by the forelock, Giulio Gatti-Casazza has been telling about the novelties to be heard at the Metropolitan this season. He promises performances of Richard Strauss' most recent work, "Die Ægyptische Helena," Ottorino Respighi's "La Campana Sommersa," Ernst Krenek's "Jonny Spielt Auf," Ildebrando Pizzetti's "Fra Gherardo," and some revivals that include Massenet's "Manon," Weber's "Der Freischuetz," and Verdi's "Ernani."

As far as the new works are concerned, they would seem to include the most interesting of recent European developments. All have been played abroad, and all apparently have stirred up quite a bit of excitement. The Krenek work—by the way, the second letter of this man's name has a mark over it, which makes it sound quite different from what it looks—has been a best seller in Europe for two seasons. Over thirty cities have had it, though when it was put on in Paris recently they disliked it with great enthusiasm.

Krenek is known here only through the Concerto Grosso that Mr. Stock played at the symphony concerts two seasons ago. Those who have heard "Jonny Spielt Auf" say that it is much less difficult to comprehend than the Concerto Grosso, and a look at the piano score, which has recently come to Chicago, would seem to confirm the opinion. At the same time it is interesting because Krenek has evidently tried to be as disrespectful as possible to all the conventions.

Modern Equipment Needed.

The piece needs, in addition to the customary orchestra and singers, a jazz band on the stage—"Jonny" is a Negro jazz leader—a radio loud speaker, a railroad station with moving trains, and at least in one place a change of scene through the medium of the movie camera. Its staging is enough to give pause to the average operatic equipment.

The story is ironic and satirical, full of theft, fist fights, and many other minor immoralities. Musically it is a strange compound. Krenek likes his polytonalities, which means that he piles one passage on the harmonic peak of another, each one comparatively harmless in itself, but in combination having a tendency to chill the spine of the hearer. But he also writes some pretty good tunes, and it is not much against them to discover, as some of the European reviewers have, that they lean in the direction of Puccini.

Also he has written jazz, and made it an integral part of his score. One hardly believes that the Krenek jazz will cause many sleepless nights to Paul Whiteman over the competition offered the American product, but at that it is a lot better than any other European composer has been able to evolve.

Altogether "Jonny Spielt Auf," which is best translated as "Johnny Plays Up," looks from a distance to be an entertaining specimen from a composer who is using the dramatic and musical means about him instead of looking at the past.

Sigmund Spaeth Writes on Jazz.

Speaking about jazz, Sigmund Spaeth delivers a judicial pronouncement in the Forum. He says that jazz is not a form of music, but a treatment applied to music, "a distortion of the conventional, a revolt against tradition, a deliberate twisting of established formulas. As such it is thoroughly characteristic of the civilization of today."

Wherefore, he demonstrates that most of the composers have done it, and if his demonstration appears to be slightly beside the point, it no doubt is not the fault of the composers. "Beethoven definitely jazzes the great choral melody of his Ninth Symphony when he breaks it up into a skipping rhythm and hands it over to a combination of trumpets,

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

The Majestic theater's photoplay picker chooses with his heart as well as his head. This is as it should be, for motion picture audiences—we can say optiences no longer—are largely composed of people who judge a film by its appeal to their emotions rather than by its shining technical excellence. If it gets them where they live, it is a good picture to them. I'm free to confess I'm pretty much that way myself. I always find it hard to be coldly analytical when I am greatly stirred.

JEAN HERSHOLT gives fine performance in newest rôle.

"Sailors' Wives," "Sally of the Scandals," "Stormy Waters," "A Ship Comes In"—all were heart-warmers—and well done, too. Now comes "Jazz Mad" to add its testimony that the Majestic's picker knows his human nature.

"Jazz Mad" isn't what the title leads you to think it is. There are jazz music and café scenes, etc., in it, but they are merely incidental. The main theme concerns itself with a German musician and composer, famous and beloved in his own part of the country, who comes to New York to sell a symphony he has written.

No Demand for Symphonies.

In Germany they could give him love and fame—but no money. He would not mind poverty for himself. For his motherless daughter he dreams great dreams that he hopes he may make come true in America.

But America is jazz mad. Nobody wants any symphonies. He visits the offices of the Metropolitan Opera company, only to be told that music by unknown composers is not accepted.

"Will they not even look at my work?" he asks the secretary, who, regretfully, shakes her head.

His pretty Elsa, who finds employment in a flower shop, supports them.

In the same building with the Hausmanns lives Sol Levy, who places vaudeville acts. A shrewd head and a kindly heart has Sol, and Hausmann and Hausmann's daughter—particularly the daughter—worry him. What Sol knows—or cares—about symphonies is nil, but he does have a chance to land Hausmann in an act at a night club leading a clown orchestra that, each evening, is pelted with vegetables, passed around by the management, for its pains. ("Pains" is good.)

When approached with the proposition, Hausmann recoils with anger and horror. Then—he hears Elsa refusing to marry a man she loves because "My father needs me. I am all he has, and his sole support."

He takes the loathed job.

With beaming face he tells his Elsa that the symphony has been accepted. He must rehearse each night. It will not be presented for many months—BUT—they will begin to pay him $100 a week right away!

If you don't get a kick out of Elsa's jubilation as portrayed by little Marian Nixon—why, I don't know what's the matter with you, I'm sure. She is as irresistible as a puppy dog that wags all over at sight of you.

A Tea for a "Lion."

Elsa is SO happy! Her Leopold Ostberg, son of wealthy parents, tells the folks about the good fortune that has befallen his fiancée's father—though they don't know yet that Elsa IS his fiancée—and Mrs. Ostberg, who loves good music and is fond of "lions," gives a tea in Hausmann's honor.

Here Ostberg senior beholds, sitting in high places, the man he had seen the night before—and other nights—being pelted with vegetables by a jeering crowd in a night club. AND—quite naturally—believes the guest and his daughter, impostors.

He says nothing then. He does a crueler thing.

He reserves a table at the club for the following night for his wife, his daughter, his son, and Elsa.

What happens is just heart breaking!

Hausmann, crushed, sinks into apathy from which nothing can rouse him. Doctors say that the only thing that could save his reason, and maybe his life, would be the music of his symphony. And nowhere, it seems, is there an orchestra to play it.

Which is where Sol Levy comes in again and, may I say "and how!"?

Production Is Excellent!

The picture as a whole is most excellently produced. Jean Hersholt is a great character actor and, as Franz Hausmann, he gives a great performance. Roscoe Karns does some surprisingly good work as Sol Levy, and Marian Nixon, as Elsa, cuddles right up into your sympathies at the beginning of the piece and stays there warm and secure till the end. The rest of the cast plays up splendidly.

Direction? Fine! Photography? Ditto.

Just see if you don't like "Jazz Mad!"

Bits aBOUTem.

HOOT GIBSON, accompanied by a cast of sixty and a couple of carloads of horses and "props," arrives here Thursday to make "King of the Rodeo," based on a novel written round the Chicago Rodeo by B. M. Bower, who attended the cowboy contests at Soldiers' field last year. There will be scenes made using the actual contests of the rodeo as a background. Also featured will be a taxicab chase down Michigan avenue and some doings around the Buckingham fountain. This will be the first feature picture staged in Chicago since "That Royle Girl."

RUDOLPH SCHILDKRAUT, whom you last saw in "A Ship Comes In," is going to Europe for an eight months' professional visit. He will return to the stage in a new Berlin production and also act in pictures.

RALPH SPENCE, king of subtitle writers, who is said to draw down $10,000 for every picture he titles, is now wisecracking in "Radiograms," a new novelty short reel subject distributed by Columbia Pictures corporation.

* *

CLAIRE WINDSOR, who has been hiding out on us lately, has been chosen for the leading rôle in the Tiffany-Stahl production, "Domestic Relations."

* *

LIONEL BARRYMORE has played many and varied rôles, but they tell me he had never been a detective until he was cast for the rôle of Doyle in William Haines' new starring vehicle, "Alias Jimmy Valentine."

See you tomorrow.

The Birth of a Civilization

By Clifford Raymond.

IT IS conceded that something new in the human way has been produced. It may be liked or disliked. It is disparaged and, rather savagely at times, shown to be wrong. It has created intelligent interest and it has had some intelligent criticism. It has been denied that it is good if new or new if good. It has been envied, damned, condoned, explained, apologized for and praised, but, like Old Man River, it just goes rolling along. It is America, the human phenomenon known as the United States.

Now, for explainable reasons, it is difficult and even embarrassing for an American to do anything with this subject. Old Fourth of July orations confront him. The habit of speaking very well and very much of itself was old American. The habit has the prestige of years. It had the justification of a youthful experiment talking confidence into itself and defying its detractors.

Nevertheless, the phenomenon is here. It is perceived and realized. It has grown, produced and flowered and even if it has the distrust of much of the world it has the intelligent recognition and curiosity of some of it.

America has produced the triumph of the average man and that is fairly well perceived by the average man the world over. Two things in that connection may prove to be consequential. The widest acquaintance with the American achievement comes at the time when it may be least generally enjoyed. As the moving picture spreads the veritable tale the world over, the United States, formerly open to any man discontented at home, virtually closes its doors by restricting immigration.

The American movies, exhibited from the Horn to the Aleutians, from Good Hope to Cairo, from Land's End to John O'Groat's, from the Bay of Biscay to the Black sea, have carried the strange message. It is of a barely credible being in the average reaching an incredible activity, productivity, energy, satisfaction in life, enjoyment of luxuries, of equality and of achievement on his own authority.

It has all been made so visible and unmistakable that even in regions where it would be least credible it is entirely substantiated. And at the time this is most fully demonstrated the average man or the under man elsewhere learns that if he wishes to share such a civilization he must make it at home. He has small chance of getting it by emigration. What this will stimulate and energize in other nations we don't know.

The accomplishment goes against many prevailing doctrines. It is based on democracy, on private judgment without superior authority, on war, on free spending, on equalitarianism, on the destruction of free trade, on the encouragement of private wealth.

It could have been maintained that if the doctrine of private judgment, which the United States, otherwise upholding, violates in prohibition, were spread out over a vast country with such a great population the product soon would be chaos.

It has been heretofore the top contention that nothing can be accomplished without authority. To the church the authority is obvious. It is divine. In that thesis the Roman Catholic church has the only unmodified position. It can explain kings and bishops. But elsewhere symbols or symptoms of authority persist. In Great Britain it is in the crown. So it was in Germany until the republic. But there when the crown went out the great stabilizing German tradition remained. It withstood the shock.

Authority can persist in tradition when all its functions have disappeared. Casts and forms remain. Models and conventions, stamps, labels, totems and tabus remain. Authority is best indicated by monarchy indorsed by episcopacy, next by monarchy assuming episcopal benediction and legitimacy. It can be translated into caste, social preference, ordained channels of life, fixed positions, a recognized order, ordained expectancies, immutable rules and limitations of habit.

It undoubtedly produces culture. It has solidity and fixedness. It is deep in its root growth and certain in its fruit. It will give forth the aristocrat, the substantial middle classes, the artists, scientists and philosophers and the sturdy, dependable people of the soil.

Authority will so become their rule that it can suffer such permutations as those imposed on modern France and yet the old France will keep the peasant in the wealth of his front door manure pile, continue the French politician in his opportunities of venality and sequester the old French nobility in old drawing rooms.

France cannot be changed by communes, the coup d'état, or switches from president to emperor. Substance is greater than form in the essential matter of government.

The United States has not had anything of this. Top authority? It has had none. It derives it entirely from itself. Stratification of society? If the advantages of opportunity and ephemeral privilege create it, yes. Otherwise not. The greatest wealth is in the plainest hands. There is no aristocracy in Ford or Rockefeller. Ten cent stores, chewing gum, subdivisions, oil, motors, soap, toilet articles, confectionery, etc., may make wealth. They do not make caste.

There's the American phenomenon, a society of the average man successful in an economic state of the highest known development without a government of authority above him. He has evolved into this stage of self-dependence and responsibility, with profit to himself, against all the known rules of the game.

The stages of the development are recognizable if the history of the country is skeletonized.

America was first settled by people who wanted to have their own way. They were not in their beginnings driven from home by economic necessities. If they had had privileges at home they would have remained at home. They were of the class which did not have privileges and they sought their fortunes abroad.

In seeking their own way they later refused to have home restrictions follow them across the sea. The war which gave them their independence followed. As a means then of molding and composing their society as they wanted it they forbade the further importation of Negroes. As a means of protecting themselves from the pressure of foreign governmental forms and ideas they declared the Monroe doctrine. As a wall against European economic pressure they erected the tariff. These were successive, related steps.

The time came when it had to be proved whether this could go further. Part of the country was not in line. The south was not in the stream of American evolution. It was headed toward dependence on Europe, particularly on Great Britain. Of its own free will and by its most intense desires it was insisting on the realities of colonialism. It desired to do precisely what Great Britain wanted colonies to do, provide the mother land with needed raw material and not to convert resources into finished products. The south would have produced cotton and have imported manufactories. The formula could not have produced the present day American. It not only required slavery but it required free trade. The conflict was between free labor and free goods.

With the determination against free goods and for free labor the nation had an interval of recovery and of expansion. Then it took another step. It restricted immigration. The preliminary processes for the offering to the world whatever the American civilization is to be were then completed. We now begin to see the product.

It is as distinct and different from the world at large as were the Egyptian, Greek, and Roman. Its critics deny that it is admirable and deny that it ever can show a culture comparable to that of societies better disciplined and unburdened by equalitarian nonsense. Americans earnestly profess to doubt that and rightly.

A new form of civilization has come out of new processes, a thing the human race has not been able to do twice in five thousand years.

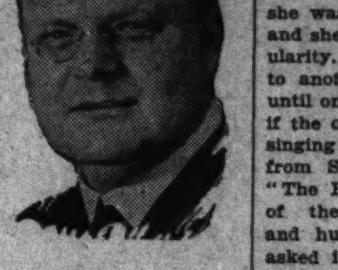
Costly Efforts to Make Success of "The Ladder"

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The play called "The Ladder" continues to make history in the New York theater. Not very important history, it is true, but still history.

After having been given free since last Thanksgiving; after having cost its producer, Edgar B. Davis, by his own confession, $1,100,000, the play has been rewritten and last week was again put upon a pay basis.



EDGAR B. DAVIS has sunk over a million dollars in a pet play.

Just twenty-two persons bought seats for this second hearing, putting $56 in the box office till. Downstairs there were fewer than fifty patrons and they mostly play reporters or friends of those having something to do with the play.

The day the new production was tried Mr. Davis gave a luncheon at the Plaza hotel for all those who have had anything to do with the play during the last two years, together with the attachés of the Cort theater, where it is now playing.

He wanted to include the porters and the maids, but found that the management of the Plaza was less broad minded than he. They doubted the wisdom of embarrassing the colored folk by including them as guests with the white folk.

Whatever "The Ladder" has done for others, it evidently is making a great humanitarian of Mr. Davis. His big heart bursts with a desire to be kind. The world is his country, as Tom Paine phrased it, and to do good his religion. Admitting that his doing good is motivated to some extent by his determination to turn another lost cause into a victory, as he did with the oil well that became the foundation of his current fortune, it is a sincere desire, none the less.

I was standing in front of the Cort theater between the acts of the rewritten "Ladder" the night of the second blooming. One of the minor actresses, playing a bit and through for the evening, came out of the stage door carrying a basket of flowers literally as tall as herself.

Seeing such things, and being habitually suspicious in the Broadway manner, I immediately assumed that this young woman must be some one's favorite child.

Roses for His Actresses.

I sought confirmation of the suspicion and discovered that each of the actresses in the company had received a similar basket of flowers. The stage was almost choked with them. They had come from Producer Davis, with his compliments and best wishes.

At the luncheon, too, he had told the company that seats were going on sale for "The Ladder" for the next ten weeks and none would be sold to the cut-rate brokers. The play may play to ghastly rows of empty pews, but play it will.

In the end Mr. Davis believes that it will prove a success. His faith is as boundless as it is seemingly ridiculous. How many millions he is willing to spend no one but Mr. Davis knows. And he, being a retiring type of philanthropist, refuses to say. Probably he does not himself know. He simply refuses to be beaten. Never has been, he says. Never will be. Boy, bring another check book!

There is something about even so wasted a courage that inspires admiration. Perhaps it is the immensity of the sums involved, the prodigal and continued support of failure or the faith that follows lost causes.

I think it may be the perfect good taste expended upon the gesture as much as anything else. The refusal of Mr. Davis to take advantage of the publicity gained; his benign assumption of the rôle of a sort of Santa Claus toward his players. Whenever he thinks they may be worried or in doubt as to their future in relation to the play, he gives them a luncheon and assures them the play will go on and that they will be paid.

Their salaries are standard salaries, too. They draw them whether they work or not. At least all during this last rehearsal period they were paid in full. Several of them, I have reason to believe, are getting even more money from this angel producer than they ever drew from any other, and for far less important work.

Aims to Teach a Lesson.

But the most interesting phase of this whole "Ladder" experience to me was developed at the production of the new version. You will remember that when the play was first done in October, 1926, the author being J. Frank Davis, a Texan bearing the same surname but of no blood relationship to the producer, it was said that the reason for the production was the belief of Producer Davis that the theory of a second chance at life, as embodied in the Theosophical philosophy of reincarnation, should be brought convincingly to the attention of the people.

In that play the heroine, disturbed by her interest in two men, one masterful and unscrupulous, the other honorable but unsuccessful, sat musing at the piano. Around her were tapestries into which had been woven some of the domestic history of her remoter ancestors. As she pondered these figures she dozed and in the twinkling of the lights she was shifted back to the days of her soul's conscious beginnings, when she was the Lady Margaret Percy, wedded to a vile lord and loved by a decent weakling.

Another shift and she came forward to the days of the restoration, when she was an earl's mistress and was sold to the king, while her unhappy but still impotent true love was killed in a duel.

Two hundred years farther down the ladder she found

ENGLISH WITHOUT A DON'T

Not So.

By Wallace Rice.

IN older days, when "nay" was still in common speech, the Century dictionary records that schoolmasters said of it that it should be used in reply to straight questions: "Will he come?—Nay," while the negative form took only "No": "Won't he come?—No."

This making a distinction of a negligible difference appears in our grammars in the form of permitting "as" only in positive comparison, while "so" must be used in negative: "As good as gold—not so good as gold." Says one of the handbooks: "Americans are not as disinterested now as they used to be. 'Not so' is the required form. ['So' is required after a negative.]."

The Concise Oxford dictionary contradicts this: "It is not so [or as] easy as you think." Long ago Goold Brown cited with approval a sentence from a fellow grammarian: "A teacher is confined—not more than a merchant and probably not as much." Whitney's Grammar knows no such distinction. And Prof. George Philip Krapp in his "Knowledge of English" [1927] states the actuality:

"A rule of the school room that bears only slight relation to the conditions of actual speech requires 'so' as the introductory word in the first term of a comparison after 'not,' as in 'The Greek soldiers were not so well trained as the Roman,' instead of 'not as well trained,' this latter being the universal custom in spoken English and the almost universal custom in written English."

The attempted distinction goes back to the 18th century, when the grammarians were trying to hammer out a literary language on the model of Latin, which was to rise superior to the speech of the commonalty ignorant of the classics. "But English literary style," as Prof. Krapp justly observes, "has always resisted this tendency."

Some Comic Chaps of the Years That Were

By Figaro McGee.

FIFTY DOLLARS is the sum in which I'm better off because, one recent evening, two young gentlemen of middle-age insisted that I should be a poor sport unless I wagered twenty-five dollars apiece with them in support of my prideless contention that they were wrong about a bit of theatrical data. A strain in the jazz'd dance-tune by the orchestra where we were dining recalled to one of them a ditty he had heard in the long-ago—"When Chloe Sings a Song": John Stromberg had written it for Lillian Russell when she was with Weber and Fields; and she had put it across to popularity. That reminiscence led to another, a third, and so on, until one of the little party asked if the others recalled Dan Daly's singing "It Is Fourteen Miles from Schenectady to Troy" in "The Belle of New-York." One of the others said he did, and hummed the tune. I was asked if I, too, did not remember Daly's singing it; and I replied—amiably enough, I thought—that I didn't, and that the probable reason I didn't was that the song wasn't in "The Belle of New-York," and that Daly had never sung it. That was how we came to go into money at stake. So, I bet with them; and I have taken their money.

JOSEPH COYNE

They were nice about it as they paid, one of them saying: "There must be others who need straightening out in such matters! Why don't you go round where fellows of our age are, start arguments such as we had the other night, make bets, and collect? We will back you on dates and names and things."

But the other chap thought it were better to write something about the old-time comedians, adding: "There was a letter the other day in THE TRIBUNE in which the writer, telling about the comedians who made him laugh in the 'Nineties, was all mixed up."

It may be that theater-going readers of THE TRIBUNE will agree with the latter.

Dan Daly.

When the adult theater-goers today speak of Daly, it is mostly in connection with "The Belle of New-York," although that dates back to 1897—a matter of all but thirty-one years. He was in London when I saw him as Ichabod Bronson, a professional reformer. Save when he went in for eccentric dancing—and he was sparing of his limbs and his joints as the years wore on—he was not especially comical in the piece. Indeed, the Londoners thought James E. Sullivan by far the cleverer man: Sullivan was the actor of the polite little German nut. Daly returned to the States soon after the London run began, and took up the rôle in a company that toured for some seasons. He appeared afterward in other pieces—in "The Rounders," "The New-Yorkers," and "The New Clown"; but his vogue dwindled rapidly as his personal sense of importance swelled. He had long been an invalid—a fact that accounted for his unwillingness to do much dancing. His idiom consisted of a long-drawn drawl in mock-basso tones; and this was popularly effective when he used it in reciting a comic song.

"The Belle of New-York" is still alive in Great Britain; and whoever is playing Dan Daly's rôle is playing it as nearly in Daly's way as the stage-director is able to make clear. The last time I saw the old piece in London, the actor of Bronson was using Daly's jests of 1896, and even singing "Sunny Jim," a joke-ditty which Daly had interpolated when "The Belle" was first shown over there.

Walter Jones.

All or nearly all writers about the American stage in the early 'Nineties were of the expressed opinion that Walter Jones was destined for a high place in the list of native comedians. I don't mean that William Winter or J. Rankin Towse or E. A. Dithmar said so: they were old-line critics who believed that the theater began with Shakspere and ended with Sheridan, and didn't believe that the singing-actors of operetta and extravaganza were worthy of consideration. But even in those days there were play-reporters who realized that a clever jester was of more importance than a bad tragedian; and these went into a mild frenzy over Jones when he put his specialty as a bewhiskered hobo into the extravaganza called "1492."

Jones' voice was a croak; he danced only so-so; his singing was merely pardonable; and he was funny as the tramp. Lillian Russell, then in one of her four or five heydays, took him up and set him down in the best Broadway set (for Broadway, too, had, if it haven't, its castes and its social strata); and it was thought for a time that she would become Mrs. Jones. George W. Lederer, then seeking to establish revue in the New-York Casino, had the gifted C. M. S. McLellan frame "In Gay New-York" with the comedian in view; and it must be said that the comedian made the task a grateful one for the librettist and the manager. 'Twas in that, in the guise of a down-and-out tragedian leading his troupe home on the railway-ties, he sang my fifty-dollar song, "It is Fourteen Miles from Schenectady to Troy." The show was a good one—a genuine revue, based on what was going on in the theaters, in politics, and in society; and Jones came through all the way in the sketches and the incidental burlesques that made up the bulk of the entertainment. So did David Warfield, who also was in it.

But Jones never happened after that. It may have been partly the fault of the playwrights in whose pieces he was cast; but some said that he was suffering from self-satisfaction. It is recalled that he flashed in one revue, "A Round of Pleasure," with a vivid imitation of John Philip Sousa. The make-up was perfect; and all but perfect was the mimicry of Sousa's casual, staccato beat. However, when the tale of "A Round of Pleasure" was told at the end of its season, it was that the Rogers Brothers, who had been hired for ten minutes' chatter "in one" while the workmen were putting up an elaborate setting, were engaged by the management as stars, and Jones went out to look for work. He at length found an angle of repose—acting middle-aged married men in rough-house farce.

And Joe Coyne.

Here was one of the natives who didn't take chances with destiny in his own country. Ask the next ten adult theater-goers you meet if they remember Coyne, and you'll probably be told by one that he saw him in a piece with the Rogers Brothers, acting a silly-ass Englishman, or in "The Toreador" with Francis Wilson, acting a silly-ass Englishman, or in "The Rollicking Girl" with Sam Bernard, acting a silly-ass Viennese. Coyne went to London in 1906, caught on there, and has remained. He came back for a season here as co-star with Miss Alexandra Carlisle in "The Mollusc." He has in recent weeks been acting the rôle Grant Mitchell had in Chicago in George M. Cohan's farce of "The Baby Cyclone."

Those of us who remember Coyne in this country have the memory of a blithe, easy, cheerful jester on whose every entrance on the scene the stage seemed palpably to brighten. He had instinct for speaking a line properly, for the right pause, for the right gesture, for the right crossing: he was a "natural." We lost a desirable comic when he made London his home.

Ravinia Opera Year Almost Half Over

By Edward Moore.

bassoons, triangle, and cymbals. In fact, the whole conception of that great last movement is jazzy in the extreme, with the kettledrums interrupting the repeated efforts of other instruments to start a satisfactory melody and the final entrance of soloists and chorus to put a stop to the orchestral bickering.

Syncopation in the Classics.

"Schumann was fond of slow syncopation and cross rhythms, as was his disciple, Brahms. Chopin delighted to ornament his melodies with all kinds of frills, and the tunes themselves have proved a treasure to eclectic popular composers. Incidentally, he ends one of his preludes with a distinct blue chord, unresolved. Debussy's whole-tone scale was a jazzing of the conventional progression, and the resultant harmonies (technically cords of the ninth) now figure prominently in our popular music, from 'Moonlight on the Ganges' to the 'Rhapsody in Blue.' The 'Golliwog's Cake Walk' is an honest attempt at jazzing melody and rhythm as well as harmony, apologetically included in a 'Children's Corner.' Richard Strauss cleverly makes use of the most outrageous distortions in order to emphasize, by contrast, his simple and often banal melodies. 'Till Eugenspiegel' is a classic of jazz treatment applied to one of the jazziest of characters in music."

No doubt by oversight, the Bach fugues seem to have been omitted.

Mostly About Music.

Three recitals on three successive afternoons will be given at the Central theater this week. Marian Nugent, violinist, will play on Tuesday the Brahms Sonata in D minor, Bruch's Second Concerto, and a group of briefer pieces. On Wednesday, Viola Cole-Audet, pianist, will play a varied program of MacDowell, Scriabine, Schumann, Otterstrom, herself, and Liszt. The Thursday event will be a joint recital by Troy Sanders, pianist, and Arch Bailey, baritone. Mr. Sanders will play a Bach Partita, a Debussy group, and another selected group. Mr. Bailey will sing two Berlioz arias and a group of songs.

William Phillips, baritone, and Alice Phillips, soprano, will give a joint recital of duets and solos at the Hotel Windermere West tonight.

Nathaniel C. Smith, tenor, having made professional appearances in the oratorio "Elijah," at Rochester, Minn., and shortly thereafter as Turiddu in "Cavaleria Rusticana" at South Bend, is now the winner of the Rosa Raisa scholarship in the Gunn School of Music and also the Oscar Saenger scholarship for tenor voice. Both are operatic in purpose.

Anne Roselle, the soprano who was last year at Ravinia, sailed for Italy a few days ago to appear in six performances of Puccini's "Turandot" at Verona, in company with the tenor, Lauri-Volpi. This would seem to be part of the annual series in the Verona amphitheater, where operatic performances now take place instead of the combats of wild beasts and gladiators of the ancient Roman times.

The Petite Ensemble of Chicago under the direction of William B. Carroll sends word of a series of summer Sunday evening concerts to be given in the Webster hotel concert room. The first will be given a week from tonight.

The present issue of the Musical Quarterly begins with an article, "The Relation of Music to Human Progress," by Edward J. Dent. Palestrina's music is treated somewhat rhapsodically by Leo P. Manzetti, there is an appreciation of Paul Dukas by Irving Schwerke and an account of Weber's operas in France by J. G. Prod'homme. The possibilities of musical criticism and the metaphysics of pure music contrast with music and chess, and there are detailed accounts of sailors' songs and Aztec music. At the end Carl Engel contributes what he calls "Die Wagnerdaemmerung." Its import may be gleaned by this:

"And Wagner, though receding into the background of time, still looms above his successors as a full sized master. Wagner's personality, under the scalpel of the biographer, has suffered the disfigurement of a thoroughgoing autopsy. The postmortem of the man's character reads like the report of a psychopath on a criminal or a degenerate. But there are pages—many pages—of this man's music which prove that human frailty was paired in him with superhuman strength of will and boundless creative energy. The combination produced a phenomenon the like of which we have yet to see."

The Week at Ravinia

This afternoon.—Chicago Symphony orchestra, Eric DeLamarter, conductor, program of French music and French composers; La Chorale Française, Charles Lagourgue, conductor, and Leon Rothier, basso, in special program.

Tonight.—"Martha," with Florence Macbeth, Gladys Swarthout, Mario Chamlee, Virgilio Lazzari, Louis D'Angelo, Vittorio Trevisan; conductor, Louis Hasselmans.

Monday.—"A Marked Ball," with Elisabeth Rethberg, Macbeth, Julia Claussen, Giovanni Martinelli, Giuseppe Danise, Lazzari, D'Angelo; conductor, Gennaro Papi.

Tuesday.—"Mme. Butterfly," with Florence Easton, Ina Bourskaya, Chamlee, Mario Basiola; conductor, Papi.

Wednesday.—"Tosca," with Rethberg, Edward Johnson, Danise, Trevisan; conductor, Papi.

Thursday afternoon.—Children's carnival and circus.

Thursday night.—"Fedora," with Easton, Margery Maxwell, Swarthout, Philine Falco, Martinelli, Danise, D'Angelo, Rothier; conductor, Papi.

Friday.—"Fra Diavolo," with Macbeth, Bourskaya, Chamlee, José Mojica, Lazzari, Paltrinieri, D'Ange'o; conductor, Papi.

Saturday.—"Samson and Delilah," with Claussen, Martinelli, Basiola, Rothier; Ruth Page and ballet; conductor, Hasselmans.

HER PART CALLS FOR DANCING

MISS DOROTHY MARTIN

SHE is performing in "Excess Baggage," in the Garrick, as fifty percent of the Ford Sisters, two small-time song-and-dance ladies who are, out of the theater, mother and daughter. This much has been said ere now as to the pretty Miss Martin's present employment; but the photograph is new. And it is to be added that she supplies delightfully the dancing called for by the playwright.

Spends Fortune on "The Ladder"

By Burns Mantle.

herself in old New York, an invalid, but gradually acquiring such humility and understanding that by the time she drifted back to the first scene and awoke at the piano she knew her mind respecting her lovers. She took the honest Roger and was content.

For weeks thereafter Broadway marveled that a man could become so enamored of a "bug" religion that he was willing to spend thousands to help spread it among the ignorant. Any of the eastern philosophies are linked in the Broadway mind with dark skinned gentlemen who wear turbanned head dresses and separate flighty widows from their inherited life insurance, usually with the assistance of incense and a crystal globe.

But now it appears, from this new version of "The Ladder," that Mr. Davis is not a reincarnationist at all. Nor more than mildly interested in the theory. The new play turns back to a belief in God as a supreme intelligence and preaches tolerance and trustfulness. God is the observer of the ages, and a smiling God. Wonder not at his mysterious way. Accept and trust and learn to be humble and understanding. Such is the new preachment.

New Heroine in the New Version.

The heroine now is a self-willed and fearfully spoiled young artist. Seeing the man she expects to marry in the arms of a French girl in Paris she refuses to believe him when he swears to her that he does not love the French girl nor ever has. He cannot tell her the story, but he demands that she trust him.

In reply to which the heroine returns to America and undertakes to support herself with her painting. She cannot, however, put soul in her work, with distrust and unhappiness in her heart and shortly she is beaten and about to be dispossessed.

To escape this disgrace she is prepared to kill herself. It is the gas fumes that set her dreaming this time. But now, in place of hopping back 600 years, she reverses the order and goes back by easy stages, as hypnotists are said to send their more sensitive subjects back to report on their more immediate pasts.

In her first vision she is a liar and a thief in 1850, New York. In her second she is a cheating king's favorite during the restoration. In the third she murders her uncle to get his gold and is murdered in turn by her cousin, after she has been cast off by her lover.

Then she comes back to her attic studio, is saved from the gas and, during her convalescence, comes to realize that God knows best. In a kind of epilogue, she steps to the footlights and begs the audience to believe that right will triumph and as they must have seen from her different lives, that tolerance and faith are the truer guides.

Fails to Inspire Gothamites.

Thus the Davis preachment switches from that of the spiritual progress of the soul through earthly lives to the simpler doctrines of orthodox Christianity. Like Omar, he and his rewriting playwrights now see humans as no more than "pawns in the game he plays on his checkerboard of nights and days, hither and thither moves and checks and slays, and one by one back in the closet lays."

I can see no future for "The Ladder" in New York. Without audiences to be either entertained or instructed its purpose is defeated and its spirit crushed. Actors must be seen and applauded if they are to live.

With millions for exploitation and the world's enlightenment for a purpose, the good angel of the theater would do better, it seems to me, either to try "The Ladder" under a different title in strange communities or deliver it free to the stock companies. It is a good play, as plays go, interesting, human and sincerely if not effectively purposeful.

BEST MOVIES

If you'll tell us what movie, in your opinion, rates above all the others you've seen, and why this particular movie is deserving of praise, we'll pay $1 for your letter if we print it. Address Best Movies, Chicago Tribune.

"A Connecticut Yankee."

The most entertaining movie I have ever seen was "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," from Mark Twain's novel of the same name.

The plot has to do with the adventures of an enterprising Yankee who dreamed himself back in 528 B. C. among King Arthur's knights, and who proceeded to modernize everything. Every scene and caption proved funnier than the one before it and we chuckled unrestrainedly at Sir Boss calling up over the telephone for sawed off shotguns to begin the duck season next day, and at the knights in armor shooting craps in the corridors of King Arthur's castle.

We thoroughly enjoyed the scene where, after the tournament in which the wild west cowboys lassoed their champion and dragged him off his horse, the knight's scrapped all their armor and built a tin lizzie with license plate number 1-528 B. C. Also, the hilarious eclipse episode which caused Merlin, the court magician, so much discomfiture, and most of all the dramatic rescue of the imprisoned maiden by means of a motorcycle brigade and underground telephones.

But it wasn't all nonsense. A current of seriousness through it all led up to the conclusion that not wealth but sterling qualities should be considered in choosing one's friends, and the Yankee's dream showed him just where his affections lay. Whereupon everything ended happily. M. C.

Two Great Ones.

When I go to see a picture I want to see something that will entertain me so well that I will actually live the story in my mind. Only two pictures that I have seen so far have succeeded in doing this. They are "Don Juan" and "Ben Hur."

From two entirely different viewpoints do I regard these two as the best films I ever had the good fortune to see. "Don Juan" was a picture of the world, and the world's joys and vices. "Ben Hur" was beautiful in its spiritual quality. It is difficult to say which was the better of the two foh they were so different in theme.

Those who saw "Don Juan" cannot forget the lavishness and beauty of costumes and scenes, or the wonderful acting of John Barrymore as Don Juan and Estelle Taylor as the Borgia.

And those who saw "Ben Hur" and pitied and admired the prosecuted prince of the house of Hur cannot forget how gloriously he came into his own at last and found Christ.

Two truly great pictures, that should live forever not only in our memories but in the archives of screenland, as well! C. G.

"My Best Girl."

The best movie I have ever seen was Mary Pickford in "My Best Girl." It was full of laughter, romance, and comedy. Mary Pickford certainly did her part well.

As I came out of the theater I couldn't help smiling at every one. I shall never forget this film. A. P.

Music Notes

Oskar Shumsky, 11 year old violinist, will play for the inmates of the Chicago State hospital next Wednesday afternoon. He played last summer at one of the Ravinia concerts, and is the winner for two successive seasons of the Leopold Auer fellowship in a country-wide competition. The Wednesday appearance is to further an experiment now being made on the value of music to mental patients, and is the sixteenth of a series for that purpose.

The Uptown theater will begin tomorrow a series of "orchestral productions" of the same order that have been presented at the Chicago theater for some time. Conductor Marcelli will direct an orchestra of from thirty-five to forty men, and vocal soloists and chorus will aid in the first production, to be known as "Impressions of the Opera."

Chicago Opera Stars Popular in Italy

"IT is now more than two months since the first season of the Royal opera in Rome closed, but the work of three Chicago Civic opera artists is still the most potent topic of conversation in Italian musical circles," writes Herbert M. Johnson, manager of the Chicago Civic opera, from Milan.

"The Royal opera was successful financially. Much of this was due to Claudia Muzio, Tito Schipa and Toti Dal Monte. Miss Muzio did not arrive in Rome until after the Chicago Civic opera tour had closed, and she was heard in only a few performances, but these were among the best attended of the entire season. Toti Dal Monte, who certainly has the finest coloratura voice in the world today, was also an outstanding success. The Italians love the coloratura rôles and they could find no one anywhere better equipped to sing them than our own Toti. As for Schipa, he is just as much a favorite in Rome and elsewhere in Italy as he is in Chicago—need we say more?

Reviews La Scala Season.

"From the financial standpoint, La Scala's season was not as good as usual, but musically it was of the usual high order. During the six-month season, thirty-five operas were produced—the same number that are produced in Chicago in one-half the time. 'The Ring' was given twice and all eight performances were heavily attended. The season brought little that was new—the outstanding novelty being Ildebrando Pizzetti's 'Fra Gherardo,' which was sold out for the first three performances.

"The first new production was Wolf Ferari's 'Sly,' which was followed by approximately three months of repetitions. 'Fior del Cielo,' by Bianchini, had one performance and created little interest. It was followed by 'Fra Gherardo.'

"A number of new operas had been announced for production but were canceled. Among them was Giordano's 'Il Re.' No reason was given for its withdrawal, but one might be found in the fact that Giordano is now at work on a ballet which would go with the opera.

"'Il Re' is a one-act piece in three scenes and the ballet, to be entitled 'The Magic Planet,' is in ten scenes. Several revivals which had been promised were not given, among them 'Orfeo.' The rather profuse use of the ballet 'Vecchio Milano,' which was put on thirty times—an average of five presentations a month, came in for considerable criticism. The ballet has certain outstanding merits but is not sufficiently brilliant to avoid an appearance of monotony when done so often.

Heavy Losses Felt.

"The smaller houses in Italy generally were conducted with heavy losses and most of them are faced with the probability of remaining closed next season unless the government comes to their rescue. The smaller cities are too poor to undertake a subsidy and of course no impresario could afford to take a chance.

"We saw Giacomo Rimini today and had a wire from Rosa Raisa saying she had completed her cure at Salsomaggiore on July 1. According to Rimini, she is in the best of health and will have a fine season this year.

"We are hearing voices daily and many are called, but few are chosen. Why the vast majority of the thirty-eight hundred American students in Milan come here to study, I do not know, unless it is to break loose from all restraint at home. So few have the requisites for success. Most of them have no personality, no musicianship, no stage sense, and very ordinary voices, yet at some time some misguided friends have told them they had voices and over to Italy they come, usually at painful sacrifices of parents. A few have too much money, squander it in riotous living and pay high prices for the privilege of a debut, making it extremely difficult for the comparatively few earnest, sincere, worthwhile students—but they will not be told!

"There are two resident opera companies in the United States and besides these there are the San Carlo and the American Opera company. These use comparatively few artists, yet probably all the thirty-eight hundred believe they will eventually land with one of the two major companies, and remember that there are thousands more in Italy, Germany and France.

Discovers Prospects.

"I feel well pleased with what has been accomplished thus far and we have discovered some good prospects for future seasons. Every one here is keenly interested in the new opera house and the project has created a deep impression. I have received several requests for photographs and press material.

"The other day we went through the printing and lithographing plant of Ricordi—the famous Milan music publisher. It is one of the lightest, cleanest, most orderly plants I have ever seen anywhere. They pay much attention to the welfare of their employés, just as we do in America, and provide a large athletic field for all outdoor sports, a gymnasium, reading room and a small theater for concerts, plays and cinemas. They also have shower baths and in order to encourage their frequent use a ticket is given with each bath and at the end of the year a prize is given to the employé holding the most tickets.

"The firm does a large business in all kinds of high grade printing and all color processes and receives orders from all over Europe. Many orders must be refused as they have more work than they can do.

Little Unrest in Italy.

"I believe Italy is considerably more quiet this year—there is little unrest industrially. The country seems to be again on the upgrade after the period of depression which followed the revaluation of the lira. The autostrada from Milano to Bergamo is now open and before long this fine hard road will extend from Paris to Trieste. The government has recognized the value of good roads by adopting a program of a minimum of a thousand miles per year. Eventually a concrete road will extend from Milan to the toe of Italy.

"So it goes in Italy."

A Real "Doughboy"

"Over there" I became one of the real doughboys, being at the American bakery camp near Dijon.

We had large, square, boxlike bins, perhaps four feet square and some larger. They stood about a yard high and we stooped over these bins to mix the dough, which was done in regular housewife style with our bare hands. The dough was kneaded and formed into four pound loaves and then baked right at the camp. Of course, the flour was dumped in by the sackful and several of them at once.

An airplane had been circling over the camp and dropping bombs, but they had caused little disturbance. Nevertheless we were on our guard whenever we would hear the droning of a plane.

The dry ingredients were in the bin and I plunged in to mix them. A deafening crash—bang, bang! I ducked [instinctively] just a little too far and went head first into the floury mixture, my legs waving in midair. For an eternity [it seemed to me] I floundered, trying to get out, until some one hauled me out by the legs.

Between floury [not flowery] language and splutterings I gazed around, expecting to see everything wrecked, but everything looked exactly the same. The joke was on me—some one had grabbed a mess kit and struck the heavy galvanized garbage can, timing the blow with the droning of the plane.

War is often cruel, always sinister, but even war can have a little touch of humor among all of its pathos.

Ten Years Ago in Chicago Theaters

SUBJOINED are news of and comment on the plays and the shows in the Chicago theaters of a decade ago, as printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of July 21, 1918—the date most nearly corresponding to today. The excerpts are verbatim, and not rewrites or summarizations.

Henry Miller, who for a time has had a habit of playing in California in the Summer, has overcome the practice. Hereafter Chicago will be the scene of his post-season performances, and he will begin on the first one at the Blackstone on July 29th. Miss Ruth Chatterton will be with him, as will Lowell Sherman, Frederick Lloyd, and Miss Frances Goodrich Ames. The initial bill will be "A Marriage of Convenience."

Mr. Miller's well-meant venture came a naught at the box-office. His style ten years ago was hardly suited to rococo pieces like the elder Dumas' comedy. The title used was a poor translation from the French: the original would translate as "A Marriage of Convention."

Lionel Braham, known here by godly playgoers for his fleshly impersonation of the carnal sea-dog in "The Wanderer," has been employed for the name-part of "Chu Chin Chow." This Elliott-Comstock-Gest musical spectacle will be a Winter visitant at the Auditorium. Mr. Braham succeeds Tyrone Power, the human bassoon.

Mr. Braham in the course of time appeared as Chu or as Chin or as Chow, and made a great noise. He had been a good actor, especially as the converted Roman soldier in Shaw's "Androcles."

"See You Later!" a musical comedy enterprise of Messrs. Elliott, Comstock, and Gest, will soon be produced with T. Roy Barnes in the principal rôle.

Mr. Barnes was persistently plugged as a comedian of consequence after he emerged from the varieties, where he was of Barnes and Crawford, to make a mild personal success here in a piece named "The Red Canary"; but he never quite caught the general public, and, being good-looking, went film.

Miss Liane Carrera, whose mother is Miss Anna Held, has been engaged for the rôle of a Belgian war-orphan in "Mother's Liberty-Bond," a drama impending in the east.

Miss Carrera made no mark as an actress: the public that was interested in Anna Held preferred to believe that she had no children. She—Miss Carrera—is occasionally heard of as a producer of plays that fail.

"Among Those Present" will be revived next month, with H. B. Warner and Miss Marie Doro's names in the electric lights—Miss Doro taking the part acted here by Mrs. Warner. A bright and tricky melodrama was "Among Those Present" at the Blackstone last year, but it languished for want of a little intelligent tinkering and stage-direction. Its authors are Larry Evans, Walter Percival, and George S. Kaufman, the dramatic editor of the New-York Times.

Miss Doro's being in it didn't save "Among Those Present" from repetition elsewhere of the popular indifference noted in Chicago. It is remembered as having contained Mr. Kaufman's first writing for the stage.

George Nash will impersonate a commissioner of police in a new Shubert play by Ann Crawford Flexner, called "The Blue Pearl."

"The Blue Pearl" is among the forgotten things of the American theater.

Twenty Years Ago

GOING back through the files twenty years, or to the corresponding Sunday of 1908, the interests of theatergoers were catered to in THE TRIBUNE of July 19 by the paragraphs of news and comment and the entries of current entertainment that follow. The excerpts are verbatim.

A new musical comedy will make its appearance at La Salle Theater Labor Day, September 7. It will be called "A Girl at the Helm," and will be by Robert E. Smith and Raymond Hubbell, authors of "A Knight for a Day." This will be the first musical comedy staged at the La Salle in three years that does not come from the workshop of Will Hough, Frank Adams, and Joseph Howard.

"A Girl at the Helm" was not among Mr. Singer's successful efforts in the seasons he operated the little La Salle, although the words and music bore the names of those who had written not only "A Knight for a Day," but "Fantana," also.

Gertrude Coghlan, who has been playing the rôle of Shirley Rossmore in "The Lion and the Mouse" for two seasons, and Frank J. McIntyre, last season a member of Robert Edeson's company, will play the leading rôles in James Forbes' new comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," next season.

Mr. McIntyre, recently here in "Sunny Days!" came through successfully in Mr. Forbes' second play after Thomas W. Ross had failed in it. Miss Coghlan, daughter of the famed Charles Coghlan, long since retired from the stage. She was the wife of Augustus Pitou (Jr.), who for a time was house-manager of the Blackstone and, later, the Illinois.

SUMMER SHOWS.

Chicago Opera-House—"The Wolf."

Grand—"Paid in Full."

Princess—"A Stubborn Cinderella."

Studebaker — "The Top o' th' World."

Garrick—"The Garden of Eden."

Enough has been printed in comment in recent weeks about four of the five offerings on view in July of 1908 in Chicago. The fifth, "The Garden of Eden," was a futile piece about the religious sect called the "Shakers," and didn't survive its tryout.

DANCING NOW IN THE G. V. F.

MISS EVELYN LAW

SHE'S due next Sunday night in the Four Cohans as one of the featured performers in the new issue of the Greenwich Village Follies, which, in this reincarnation, is a New-York Winter Garden show. Miss Law is readily recalled, doubtless, as one of the young women who took attention in the Ziegfeld Follies: she was in Chicago in three or four issues of that celebrated divertissement.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

For those who do their theatergoing in the armchair or who like to read the plays they see.

Victorien Sardou, author of "La Tosca" and "Fedora."

AT RAVINIA.

VICTORIEN SARDOU, one of the most popular of the French dramatists of his day, has two evenings at Ravinia Park this week, Wednesday and Thursday, when "La Tosca" and "Fedora" are to be sung. Both of the plays are spectacular tragedies and enjoyed popularity in true Gallic style before they became grand operas. Of them "La Tosca," produced in 1887, is the more famous. Almost every one who has ever heard opera at all has heard it, and most opera-goers made it a point to hear Geraldine Farrar and Scotti do Tosca and Scarpia and will long remember the absolute malevolence of Farrar's dagger thrust. You can well imagine the "fatness" of such a part for an emotional actress, and understand how the play as a play delighted its audiences as well as satisfied its actors. We have come so to associate it with the opera that we forget what an exciting play it made.

"Fedora," which was one of the great successes of the year in 1882, although it has not been seen or heard in America so often as "La Tosca," is also one of Sardou's most outstanding successes. The most famous of the Sardou plays to be given lately is "Divorcons," which had not long ago an all-star revival. For years Sardou was the most popular playwright in Paris. His vogue was contemporaneous with the enormous popularity of Sarah Bernhardt, and was tied up with it, for a number of his most successful plays were written for her. It is strange that in both cases French plays should have touched the fire of composition in the minds of Italian composers.

PUBLISHED.

It is difficult to tell from the published copy of "Four People," by Miles Malleson, whether or not the play has ever been produced or not, as the book was printed in Great Britain and has no program of a performance, but it is the type of drama which in the hands of gifted players would achieve a popular success, so it probably has been done in London. The four people in the play are an older woman who has been in love all her life with a man whose wife refuses to divorce him for religious reasons. She has steadfastly refused to live with him without marriage, and during the play he makes a final appeal to her, saying that if she will not go away with him he will take another woman who loves him and of whom he is fond. She is so angry with him that she refuses to listen while he tries to tell her more. She has had living with her for some time a young girl toward whom she has come to feel as she would towards a daughter. When the girl tells her of her passionate love for a man, and a personable young man presents himself and says that he wants to marry her, the older woman jumps to the conclusion that it is the young man whom the girl loves. Events whirl her into the knowledge that the man whom the girl loves is the man whom she has refused even to see for two years. Fired by jealousy and by a certainty that the man really does love her and is going away with the girl only because of the girl's infatuation for him, she surprises them just as they are about to leave. It was no surprise to the man, but the girl had no idea that her lover was her benefactress' love also. There is a lot of dashing around the stage, but everything ends as the audience would like to have it, with a fade-out kiss.

J. P. McEvoy, as you remember, wrote a play called "The Potters," which had a successful run. The comic stuff about the Potter family you read in the newspapers before it became a best selling play. Mr. McEvoy was before he became a member of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE staff in the greeting card business. I tell you all of these things because he has just written a book called "Show Girl," which is, besides being one of the funniest books you've ever read—just as gaudy as "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes"—a satire on (a) the show business, (b) the newspaper business, (c) the greeting card business, in all of which fields Mr. McEvoy knows his vegetables. If "Show Girl" doesn't make as many people laugh as got a pain in their sides over "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," it will be because the reading public has suddenly developed cataract of the eye and attending blindness. It is fuller of up to date slang than any book written since the American language has been spelled slanguage. It is a story with a plot in which something happens every time the tabloid newspapers go to press. And it razzes to death the three phases of American life and manners. There is no more amusing skit about a dress rehearsal preceding the opening in Atlantic City of a musical show than the chapter which gives the dialogue of that evening in "Show Girl." Read it aloud and weep for joy. Dixie Dugan is bound to be Lorelei Lee's friendly enemy among the best sellers. "Show Girl" was a serial in Liberty.

Thin Figures Take Toll of Movie Stars

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—News from higher-up that plumper figures are to be acceptable in films is eagerly awaited by the film colony. So far it has not come.

Mack Sennett alone has capitulated to the trend of the times and has selected a bevy of dangerously curved beauties for the coming year. Other studios still have the old weight scales with the danger line as before.

Choruses on Broadway and about the country doubtless show a return for the cuddly type but there is one thing about picture making that forbids any wholesale return to the plump pullet type. The camera, through some inscrutable arrangement of providence and lenses, enlarges an individual on the screen. Particularly as to the matter of plumpness is this true.

Hence a girl seeking the stellar heights is obliged to be not normal weight, but subnormal to take care of the enlarging of the camera.

Roughly, a girl whose normal weight is 125 pounds may be obliged to keep her weight down to 105 to be camera weight.

Can Afford to Be Generous.

Mack Sennett can be generous in the matter of symmetry, for his bathing beauties appear in frank costumes and it is well known a very slim woman is least attractive when somewhat unclothed. A plumper one, whose bones do not protrude, is a much better one in a bathing suit, but the slim sister has the edge when it comes to fitting into fashionable clothes.

Dieting has been the answer for many years to the matter of reducing. At present a tuberculosis specialist is said to be taking care of some five or six of the screen's best known younger actresses. Their dieting deprives them, doctors say, of essential body materials that maintain health. They are required to maintain measurements of girls of 16 when they have reached maturity which brings with it cessation of growth. Development means weight.

Another actress took thyroid extracts over a period of years. The result in her case was permanent disarrangement of the thyroid and other glands that make her the victim of an unsightly affliction which keeps her off the screen. Still another beautiful star, through prolonged diet has developed anemia, which causes spells of blindness.

Some Tragic Results.

Several of the older stars who have been obliged to submit to surgery to retain their youthful figures have come off so far with little of a bill in injured health to pay. Time may yet tell a sad sequel for them.

One of these who has already a case of arrested tuberculosis had such serious results after her plastic surgery, with hemorrhages, that her life was despaired of.

Incessant Turkish baths with accelearted violent perspiration to take off flesh have taken a toil, also. Several cases of heart trouble in the colony are said to be due to that method of reduction. Numerous cases of stomach trouble and nervous breakdowns have also occurred in the wake of excessive dieting. One local nerve specialist claims that the first part of the body to feel the lack of nutrition is the nervous system, which promptly rebels and sets the patient off into a breakdown.

As things stand, a film actress has little alternative. If she wishes to be in the front rank she must take her chances on what reducing will do to her. There is no repeal from the red danger lines on the scales, as yet.

Lots of Color in the Jungle.

There will be no need to make picture casts of colored people; the industry is seeing to it that the Octavus Roy Cohen sheik is given his due in native costume in Lon Chaney's new picture, "West of Zanzibar."

Fully fifty dark skinned stalwarts in jungle splendor of shaved and tufted head dress, colored beads and brass curtain rings, and bodies well anointed with oil, make vivid a scene of canebrakes, swamp, lake, and dark forest.

The types were picked with an eye to manly stature, some of the Negroes being well over six feet and formidably built. A group of dusky women, similarly attired in jungle costumes with more extensive wardrobe, looked with appreciative eyes at the strutting warriors, who seemed not unaware of their brawny charms and shining teeth.

A chimpanzee furnished amusement for the company with his antics, imitating the actors. The ape had an impulsive manner of leaping with all of his sixty odd pounds on to the neck of some unsuspecting bystander and bestowing a tender monkey kiss. Two small white monkeys eyed him from their cage. A crocodile is also being used in the film.

John Gilbert Busy.

Not far from Chaney's African jungle land, John Gilbert was discovered working with his company on a stage making "The Mask of the Devil." John seemed in frisky mood, and left Alma Rubens to emote before the camera while he chatted a little.

"We've just come from looking for the alligator in Lon Chaney's new picture," some one hazarded to start the conversation.

"What? Is Lon Chaney an alligator in this picture?" asked Gilbert.

"No, his nose wasn't long enough for that rôle."

"Please," said Gilbert, "I'm so sensitive about my own nose."

"Oh, no," he was assured, "the public knows noses."

"I won't have it said I won by a nose," expostulated the screen's greatest hero. Here his personal press agent came up and demanded to know, yes or no, if Mr. Gilbert would kindly consent or not to make a public appearance at the local theater where his "Cossacks" is showing.

John said yes coolly and retreated to the haven of the camera, where he continued to toy with the affections of Alma Rubens, in pink moire, who plays his discarded mistress in the biggest and better Gilbert film now being constructed. It is Alma's first work before the camera in a big league studio for some time.

SHE'S WITH ELMER NOW

MISS EDITH LUCKETT

SHE was in the run here of "The Baby Cyclone," acting the role of the wife who loved a Pekingese so passionately that she nearly broke up her home and at least one other. And now Miss Luckett has taken over the part of the reporter in "Elmer the Great."

The Voice of the Movie Fan

She No Like.

Dear Miss Tinée: One goes to the spoken films with the same curiosity with which one views the set of a film in the making. Both are disillusioning. Both leave a taste of salt and sugar. But this will not prevent producers from continuing, which is as it should be.

I think they will find the public will like those made on the type of "The Jazz Singer."

One objection to the spoken film is the injection of oratory into the spoken lines. It dispels the natural. It is the films that have made the audience forget the actors' names, which found the greatest favor. "The Big Parade" would have been discouraging had it been filmed otherwise.

One reason for the triumph of the film over the drama was its appeal to the masses; the clerk, the bookkeeper, the vamp, the flapper, do not want any great hysterical scene or dénouement when they drop into a movie. They can stand a simple movie three or four nights a week, but it would take a week to digest two hours of spoken film.

The small theater lives on its steady patrons who pay twenty or thirty cents. These theaters could not afford to install vitaphone. A good class of films will have to be supplied them or they will die. These are the life of the country.

Personally, I would prefer a good drama to a spoken film, because one is, the other ain't. Ann Tigerman.

He Votes for Voices.

Dear Madam: Good morning! Before I'm going to tell you what I think about the "talkies," I will tell you a little bit about myself. I'm still in the teens and am going to college in the fall. I never did care about the movies and that was one of my reasons why I did not go to see them. But now—

I am working as an usher in a large south side theater and the more I see of the movies the more I like to see. I like the atmosphere, music, beauty and the crowds that stream in. I like it because I carry a notebook with me and jot down all the ideas I get from the movies and put them in my autobiography. Writing the autobiography is my hobby, though nobody knows it except those I write to, and by those I write to I mean the successful persons in this world. They write to me to improve my life and autobiography.

In my autograph collection I have thirty-six autographed books, twice as many photographs and over a hundred letters from persons like President Coolidge, Cosgrave, Al Smith, Hoover, Mellon, authors and poets, cartoonists and others.

I am a reader of Clifford Raymond, and since your column is next to his I am going to read yours from now on and you will hear some of my ideas. I love the great and successful persons in this world because I love the great and I love them more when they write back to me, and the more I get in the more letters I send out.

Some day I hope to walk in my shoes in their places in life, but many wouldn't believe it because I am just an usher now. The way we are treated and bossed is a shame, but I take it all in by writing it all in my autobiography. They never would think I am doing such a thing.

I'm going to write about the talking pictures, because I think they are great. I am for them. They are a few steps forward. They give a change in music. Pictures seem to be full of pep. And some day they shall have famous bands play in Chicago when they are in Europe. People will not long for the band or miss it. It is all exciting to me. To see a movie with the stars talking is the same as to read a book of travel and then visit the places. But instead of reading, traveling, and trying to meet some person or hear him, we get it all for a few cents where else we would have to spend over a hundred dollars or more.

Remember how we saw some "movie news" with some person speaking and only a word or two on the screen, and now the whole speech and how we are eager to hear it all and applaud, the same as if we were present?

The dead movie is buried. It was like a fairy tale book. We have something real now—clashing of swords, shrieks, shots, songs and other things. Sometimes we forget it is a movie. If we don't we must admit it has life. I may be wrong, but put my vote for it. Bruno C. Kapustka.

Incongruity.

Dear Miss Tinée: I recently saw the picture, "The Devil's Mark," with Belle Bennett in it. Perhaps I am inclined to be too critical, but the greatest incongruity I ever saw was the fact that although for twenty years she was slaving to pay off a sum of money which represented jewelry she stole twenty years ago she had the most beautifully manicured and curved finger nails I ever saw. I wonder how she did it; would like the secret.

Respectfully, Mrs. S. F.

Music, Drama and Sport Keep Newport Residents Busy

By Nancy Randolph.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special Correspondence.]—Newport this last week has been experiencing the hitherto quite unusual sensation of simply gasping beneath the rays of the sun. Not in many a season has the weather provided such food for discussion as this present heated term. Week days since the beginning of the month have been too damp for even tears, with Bailey's deserted save for the hardy ancients who have their dip in spite of time, tide or Jupiter Pluvius.

However, with contrary grace, the week-ends have been sunny. In particular, all the Sundays have been worthy of their name. Some of the notables are inclined to think they have been too worthy, since the heat has been terrific and one has felt much cooler lingering about the casino, than under one of the umbrellas at Bailey's.

Nevertheless, what with debutantes, recitals and preparations for the horse show and the invitation tennis tournament, the queen resort is being kept busy.

Celebrity Entertained.

Newport is even a better place than Palm Beach in which to entertain a celebrity who has been imported, as it were, to entertain Newport. Monday night saw musical Newport doing honor to William Gustafson, the Metropolitan opera singer, who gave a recital at the Art association.

As the house guest of the Arthur Curtiss Jameses, a dinner preceding the recital was in the natural course of events at Beacon Hill house. Then too, the William Fahnestocks dined their recital guest at South Side while other pre-recital dinner hostesses included Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, Mrs. James Denison Sawyer, Mrs. Forsyth Wicks and Mrs. James Leroy Banks Jr.

More than 200 of Newport's colonists heard Mr. Gustafson's pleasing program. Among them were Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, his hostess, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. T. Shaw Safe, Mrs. Philip Rhinelander II., Mrs. Lewis A. Armistead, Mrs. Robert Potter, Mrs. J. Francis A. Clarke, Mrs. Elisha Dyer, Mrs. William P. Douglas, Mrs. Gibson Fahenstock, Mrs. Herbert C. Pell, Mrs. Marsden J. Perry, Mrs. Frederic Rhinelander, and Mrs. John Russell Pope.

Ina Claire Fêted.

Schuyler Livingston Parsons, who is visiting his sister, Mrs. Richard Wharton at Wyndhurst, is taking William Rhinelander Stewart Jr.'s place as the man who knows almost every one intimately. Schuyler, now listed as a perennial bachelor, since he shows no signs of remarrying, has a wide acquaintance with the notables of the theatrical world. His dark good looks are quite as noted west of the Avenue as on both Fifth and Park.

Thus, it was only to be expected that Schuyler would dash to the fore and make a gesture in welcome to Ina Claire, who opened in her famous rôle as the protagonist in "The Last of Mrs. Chyney" at the Casino theater on Thursday night and held Newport enthralled for the rest of the week.

Every one simply fell all over themselves to make the week a royal one for the beautiful actress and her supporting cast. Schuyler, however, was first with his offering, giving a jolly luncheon at his sister's home for Miss Claire. On Friday the Art association was filled with Newport's elect at a tea in honor of Miss Claire and Miss Grace George, while last night Mrs. Paul Fitzsimons gave a supper for the two stars and their supporting casts.

Horse Show Slated for August.

The thirty-second annual horse show will begin just a month from tomorrow on Aug. 23 to continue for three days. Everything is now assured that the lamented passing of the late Moses Taylor will not affect the plans for the show. It was Mr. Taylor's desire to have the show run as usual and Mrs. Taylor is busying herself with the erection of the grandstand on the county fair ground, to which the show is being shifted from its former home at the Casino.

Mrs. Taylor is carrying out her late husband's wishes in erecting a replica of the Casino grand stand, to seat more than a thousand people. At present the ring is finished and awaiting the opening of the fair. On the closing night of Aug. 25, there will be a ball for the horse show and tennis participants at Oakland farm.

An Approaching Debut.

The 25th of August will also mark the Newport debut of Louise Van Alen. Her brother, Jimmy, is to give a dinner for her at Wakehurst prior to the dance at Oakland farm. That, however, will not be the end of the entertaining, for Mrs. James Laurens Van Alen's daughter, for Louise will have a dance in her honor, presumably at the Clambake club, which, since it was rebuilt and enlarged, has become the center of Newport entertainments.

Speaking of debutantes reminds one that Cornelia Prime, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Prime, is to make her bow in town this fall. Cornelia comes of an ancient clan, first settled in Milford, Conn. She has been studying abroad in Paris for the last year or two, with such young lights as Diana Dodge, who is among the Newport buds this summer, and Cornelia Kip. Cornelia is to make her bow on the night of Nov. 17 at the Prime town house on Park avenue.

Southampton is getting quite fussed at the possibility that Gene Tunney, the boxing champion, may preside at the benefit bouts to be held at the Long Island colony on July 28.

Living in Hopes.

Kenneth O'Brien is in charge of the affair to be held at the Southampton high school, in aid of the Southampton hospital. Both Kenneth and his wife, the former Katherine Mackay, have been exceedingly nice to the champion boxer, and Southampton confidently expects he will be present to referee the matches.

As usual the boxing is in connection with a general fête, Southampton goes in strongly for fêtes. They have abandoned the treasure hunts in which there used to be such chasing up and down the main street, to the disgust of the police. But Tombolas, raffles for tin Lizzies, dolls and such, and dance competitions remain. Southampton prides itself on being truly rural, as one might say, and goes right ahead to prove its contention.

Mrs. H. H. Rogers heads the boxing committee, while Mrs. Joseph Dilworth heads the whole affair. Everybody has some part in the proceedings, including the sub-debs. Among the notables who will attend are Mrs. Charles Van Vleck, Mrs. Arthur B. Claflin, Mr. and Mrs. J. Couper Lord, Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson Simonds, Mr. and Mrs. Orson D. Munn, who are to sail for Europe on the first, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Merrill.

Notables Discuss Candidates Over the Tea Tables

By Mme. X.

THE proprietor of this pillar of polite piffle has seen many, many presidential campaigns pass across our national horizon, but never any that excited so much talk and argument as the one under way at the present time. It has the great advantage of lacking the personal bitterness and acrimony of many of its predecessors, while developing as an issue a question of the greatest possible moment to every American.

The admirable qualities of both candidates are evident to all. The principal issue is not the only one, but it is of a nature to affect the daily life of every one, though it threatens to assume an undue importance when the many requirements as to the abilities of the chief director of our national business are taken into consideration.

If this col. dwells for a moment on this topic it is because it is the prevailing one at dinners and even is the subject of many a luncheon party talk when the feminine element is in the saddle.

At a lively dinner party of men and women last Monday evening at the new Tavern club, at 333 North Michigan avenue, the discussion on the question of which was the most desirable candidate and whether prohibition was or was not the main issue waxed so vigorous and vociferous that the new forty mile searchlight on the corner of La Salle and Monroe streets, quivered and shook, while nearby towers vibrated and swayed to the resonant sound of the male and female debaters.

A Personal Slant.

One of the men there, the only one who knew the Republican candidate personally, having worked with him on one of our war work committees, gave an interesting glimpse of this mysterious and inscrutable personality. He said in the early days after our entry into the war, Mr. Hoover received committee after committee in his office and, without a good morning or other salutation, started on the immensely complicated questions under discussion, with every detail completely in mind, handling each one swiftly and with an amazing efficiency and then, without a good-by gesture, sped each body of men on its way and received the next delegation. It was, he said, the most remarkable exhibition of complete ability he had ever seen.

Club has Lofty Home.

The new Tavern club, up twenty-five stories above the street, is a wonderful setting for any lively table talk. It is now in the last stages of completion and is, I fancy, unique in the annals of clubdom. From its windows and terraces it commands a wide circular outlook over lake and city, a view to take away the visitor's breath, so spacious so splendid is it. To the east the lake stretches away to the horizon, with the picturesque towers of the Navy pier immediately below, reminding one of the red towers of San Giorgio at Venice as one looks seaward from the Piazza San Marco. Far to the northeast and southeast stretches Lake Michigan, a great and cool expanse. The impressive panorama of the city, the youngest, and fourth largest in the world today, spreads out to the horizon on the rest of the immense circle, its towers soaring joyously skyward in a really thrilling fashion, as if imbued with life and an understaning of their great part in our progress.

Looking down from the club's western terrace one sees the river rippling, green and gentle, below. Not so long ago, as time runs, Fort Dearborn stood where the London Guarantee and Accident building now shoots skyward. Near by, across that stretch of water now running under the boulevard link bridge, was a ferry which carried to and fro the Kinzies, Skinners, Ogdens, Isaac N. Arnolds, McCaggs, Ryersons, Wolcotts, Wentworths, and all the other residents of the north side in the era dating from 1820 on to 1865, landing them at what was from the beginning known as South Water street in contrast with North Water street. What a pity, by the way, to change the picturesque name of our oldest street even to that of so excellent a citizen as Charles Wacker! I do hope that the powers that be will let the nomenclature of our old thoroughfares alone after this. History is writ in street names. Think of Threadneedle street in London, and of Piccadilly circus and Trafalgar square! Fancy changing them to Lipton street or to Cecil's road (Cecil Rhodes). It is unthinkable!

Modern in Decoration.

The interior of the Tavern club is the latest example of imported modernism. Cubistic in design and vivid in colors, it startles the uninitiated and those who have not kept up with what is being done in the line of interior decoration in France and Germany. Cubes, angles, lines are everywhere, in designs on draperies, in woodwork, furniture and electric light fixtures, while the colors are for the most part strong and vigorous. There are no curves and no pastel tints. It is interesting and exciting to the callow provincial who has not had an opportunity to keep up with the experiments being carried on today in older, more sophisticated communities.

It is not always easy to understand the underlying forces animating the modern designer. Thinking it out a bit, the chronicler of this department sees in this new art language a desire to cast off the bondage of that older age of graceful lines and soft colors which prefaced civilization's greatest catastrophe, the world war. No more copying of Empire, Louis XIV., XV., and XVI. styles! Avaunt the modes set in the time of the Georges; down with the styles popular among the Medicis' Away with all references to tyrants, despots, and other oppressors, and let the effort be to express the new age of revolt and freedom from ancient tradition! And here is the thought expressed in the Tavern club. We must try to understand it.

The two well known local artists, John Norton and William Welch, are providing frescoes for the main rooms of the club which will still further carry to the world this new message. Mr. Norton's decoration, illustrating the effect on the mind of a series of bad cards, is perfect. The devil in all his incarnations, together with lightning and other evidences of stress and storm, is presented to the entire approval of the luckless whose emotions are here so understandingly depicted.

Satisfying Setting.

Carleton Hackett is president of the Tavern club, while Arthur Bissell is chairman of the house committee. Its membership ranges from the artistic and Bohemian through to the ranks of well known capitalists. I don't know just what the requirements for membership are, but fancy that to qualify one has to be interested in matters artistic and also must be a thoroughly good fellow and agreeable companion. Certainly those selected for the club's privileges have one of the most beautiful and satisfying settings that any such social organization ever had.

We of this era are making acquaintance with the skies, the aerial regions hitherto considered beyond mortal reach and dedicated only to our feathered friends. The point of view is bound to be affected by life in the upper spaces. We ought to get a broader view of life in general and a fresh perspective which should enable us to get a better understanding of the true relations of mankind to nature.

Onwentsia Nearing Completion.

This will be known as the era of fine clubhouses. The new Onwentsia home is nearing completion, though it will not be ready for use much before next spring. It is one of the most stunning structures that has been added recently to our long list of such hereabouts. In style it is Norman and its steep, sloping slate roofs, dark at the lower parts and fading to a delicious warm pink at the top, are the loveliest of their ilk that are to be seen this side of Normandy.

The building has many gables and is manifold in its shapes and sizes, giving the impression of a structure that has been added to for generations, with quaint stairways here and there connecting wings with pretty courts and terraces. Balconies with iron railings occur in unexpected places, and the whole effect is of some ancient and stately manor house sheltered by trees as old and historic as the building itself. This is especially true of the line of elms that shade the wide main terrace on the west side of the building.

This resting place for club members is one of the most enchanting features of the club as from it one looks out across a rolling, green landscape, where soft, velvety turf and luscious clumps of trees alternate stretching to the western sky line, behind which the sun drops in sunsets that are intoxicatingly beautiful.

The interior arrangement is most effective. Immediately opposite the front door is an inner open air court which will be set with shrubs and flowers. This is a feature that reminds those who have been there of the Piping Rock club at Glen Cove, Long Island. A roomy corridor goes around the club, encircling the court. There are well proportioned and spacious rooms for cards, reading, and lounging, all of them having wide outlooks over the golf course and distant countryside.

The dining room is a fine and commodious affair, also looking out at one end over the green and rolling fields and woods. There is a fine ballroom, with lofty, arched ceiling and long windows opening onto terraces.

Upstairs there are dressing rooms and card rooms. More of these are downstairs at the men's end for them. In fact, one end of the house is dedicated to the men, with their lockers, card rooms, café, baths, and other requirements, while the other is devoted to the women's dressing rooms, baths, and so forth. These different sections of the house have their own entrances, so that great independence is possible to both men and women in their comings and goings.

Large Swimming Pool.

At the south end of the structure is a mighty swimming pool, 75 feet long by 25 feet wide, and deep enough at one end for the most vigorous divers to plunge in without danger of touching bottom before the dive is ended. It is a mighty pile of buildings when you take it all in all, and will be exceedingly handsome when completed. The pleasantly rosy bricks are to be painted a creamy white which will intensify the beautiful tones of the roofs. Those roofs are a joy to the beholder in shape, colors, and texture.

Cyrus Adams, the club's president, and its board of governors have accomplished a great achievement in this stately and impressive pile of buildings. On the board are Keith Carpenter, William E. Clow Jr., A. B. Dick Jr., Robert A. Gardner, Uri B. Grannis, Noble B. Judah, William H. Mitchell, Austin H. Niblack, Earle H. Reynolds, Laurence B. Robbins, R. Douglas Stuart, Ezra J. Warner, and Farwell Winston, a representative group of chiefly young men, almost all of second or third generation Chicagoans.

Plague of Mosquitoes.

Apropos of the North Shore, there is at the moment in that choice and popular district a plague of mosquitoes such as has not visited this region for many years. Probably the same condition prevails to the west and south of Chicago. What has happened to the anti-mosquito war we were told the state was waging in this part of the country? I think local assessments were levied in many places in order to defray the expenses of this campaign.

I know that a while back I heard Winnetkans complaining about the annoyance caused by the violent explosions made by the mosquito fighters, concussions that in some cases knocked china off the shelves. I never heard of combatting the pesky creatures with gunpowder either on Long Island or in upper New Jersey where they have been most successful in exterminating them and ridding the land of their baleful presence.

The principal means employed in those localities are doing away with all reservoirs of water, stagnant pools, puddles, empty cans, and so forth, and where it was not possible to do this, covering the surface of all standing water with oil. This is a sure and inevitable way to exterminate mosquitoes. It takes them three weeks to germinate under the water, and in that period, in the last two of their three stages, they have to be able to breathe at the surface of the water. This a coating of kerosene oil makes impossible. That is all there is to a mosquito war.

It takes money and patience and a reasonable amount of intelligence to solve what it is not too much to call the summer's most important problem in the country. Of what use is it to spend time, attention, and money on gardens as is done up and down the length and breadth of the land if one cannot sit or stroll or spend any time in them after they are made lovely and full of blossoms?

Showing the Flight of Time.

Apropos of gardens and flowers, the head of the X family lately inquired of a local greenhouse man if he had any lemon verbena and rose geraniums to satisfy her desire to have some fragrance in her tiny garden. "Ach, ja!" said the Teutonic gardener [most gardeners hereabouts are German, you know]. "I haf a whole half greenhouse full of them. It is now only the old who want them. The young, they do not care for them. Mrs. So-and-So" [naming one of our renowned Roman matrons], "she always comes to me for them; but the young, what do they care for sweet smelling things that have no color?"

Perhaps the flight of time was even better illustrated by a recent party given for some Lake Forest children than in anything that one can say. The Hempstead Washburnes Jr. wanted to provide some special entertainment for their young son, aged some seven years, for whom they were giving a party, so they consulted him as to what would give him and his young friends the greatest pleasure. They thought that he might ask for a Punch and Judy show, or a performing dog or some other such special attraction. Instead, the youngster asked if they couldn't all have a ride in Mr. Hild's horse drawn wagon. Mr. Hild and his brother are among the florists of the town and are well known citizens. So they were asked if they would provide this entertainment for the young band. They were delighted to do so and came, bringing flags and horns for all the children, and took them in batches of ten or a dozen at a time for drives through the nearby wood roads.

Only one of that bevy of youngsters had ever before been drawn by a horse, and he was looked up to by the others as an experienced man of the world. They enjoyed this experience as we would could we take a ride behind a mastodon or one of the three toed horses that were the predecessors of the present equine. Doesn't it seem incredible that the horse as a means of every day locomotion has in this country so quickly gone into the limbo of outworn institutions?

News of the Sturms.

This department of the W. G. N. makes it a point to keep a sort of watch over those of our fellow citizens who leave here for other places, so here's news of that charming young couple, the Justin Sturms, who went east two years or so ago to settle down and grow up with Connecticut. Last winter they bought an old house in fifteen acres of lovely grounds and are now basking in the joy of being settled in their very own home, an abode parts of which are 150 years old, yet in which all modern equipment is installed. It is in or near Westport, and only an hour and eight minutes from New York. It has an ancient Dutch oven, hand carved beams, quaint old latches and hinges, and also has a spacious garage, plenty of bathrooms and other of today's necessities. There they are settled down to work, for Mrs. Sturm is as interested in her husband's career as a writer as he is.

She is a member of one of Chicago's well known old families, her mother having been a Miss Maude Warner, a daughter of the late Ezra J. Warner and a sister of the present bearer of the name. Mrs. Sturm's father was the late Alexander A. McCormick, long a prominent figure in our local politics, and one of finest citizens who ever took up this profession. He was a vigorous fighter for what he thought was for the benefit of the community, yet was, nevertheless, very popular with the aldermen and other city officials with whom he came in contact. Looking over the political arena today I can see no one quite like Alexander McCormick for gay courage and great ability.

Justin Sturm, who gave up business to devote himself to the pen, or typewriter, is now engaged in play writing, and as he is a man who up to now has always gained his goal, it is likely that before long his Chicago friends will be looking on at the presentation of a drama from his studio. Success in this form of literature is one of the most difficult to achieve, but when the goal has been won it is one of the most auriferous on the list of literary victories. So here's hoping!

An Unusual Entertainment.

An unusual and interesting form of entertainment is that to which Mrs. Tiffany Blake is inviting her Lake Forest friends next Thursday afternoon at her residence there. The program is to be given by Katherine Tift Jones, who is a "diseuse," and will give selections from southern poetry and folk lore. This is a form of literature not to be found north of Mason and Dixon's line, and as we know from Uncle Remus and Br'er Rabbit and other classics, it has a lure and charm that are irresistible.

Miss Jones is said to have a great gift for this sort of recitation. That famous artist, Yvette Guilbert, first set the fashion for this and today Miss Ruth Draper is our most celebrated exponent of it.

Academy of Fine Arts Deserves Praise

Spreads Cultural Delights Through the Entire State

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE executives of the Illinois Academy of Fine Arts may well feel pleased with themselves. Their work has made possible an immense distribution of cultural advantages throughout the state. Claiming Springfield for their headquarters, other towns are whipped into line as the year progresses and month after month sees the various parts of Illinois welcoming Illinois art with warm appreciation.

The program of the academy has been running but one year. During that year, however, a traveling exhibition consisting of over 400 originals in painting and sculpture and prints was taken to fifteen Illinois cities and towns. This was an enormous undertaking and is an immense achievement. The academy could rest on its laurels today. But it refuses rest.

Another exhibition of art by Illinois artists has been assembled by the indefatigable workers who head the Illinois Academy of Fine Arts and it was opened with great ceremony in Springfield late in April. The formal exhibition closed late in June, but a number of the paintings and prints and a few pieces of sculpture are to remain in Springfield as the nucleus of what is intended to be a really great collection of Illinois art.

Aims Are Several.

There are several definite objects toward which the academy is working. These are listed as: To effect coöperation in all the art interests of the state; to encourage all departments of state and civic bodies to give the artists of Illinois preference when granting commissions for works of art; to establish a permanent art gallery in the state museum of Springfield; to provide loan exhibitions for the state museum, state university, normal schools and colleges, until permanent collections can be secured; to make original works of art available in every section of the state; to encourage artists to depict the beauties of Illinois; and to provide the local art groups throughout the state with an organization in which all can be adequately and fairly represented.

The permanent art gallery in Springfield is a serious need. The thousands of visitors who walked through the exhibition galleries last summer prove that the idea of pictures as things to be enjoyed is not sentimental nor mythical. Pictures are an escape. They do appeal, and to the masses. One does not need to have a college degree or a bank account to appreciate a painting or a piece of sculpture. Witness the Sunday crowds at the Chicago Art institute, the women with shawls over their heads and the men with a garlic aura. In foreign countries art has always been very close to the peasant class and from that class many of the greatest artists have sprung.

Great Headway Made.

So, a museum of the people and by the people and for the people is a prime object of the academy. It has made a good start with its second exhibition. Miss Anna May Price, superintendent of the state library extension department, has announced the purchase of etchings from Alfred de Sauty, Eugenia Glamen, Beatrice Levy, Hubert Morley, Walter C. Yeomans, and C. Greggar Reid, and of wood blocks by Helen West Heller. It is a start and the prints will be added to the state library for loan to clubs and schools or individuals throughout the state.

Another start was made on the evening of June 23 when an art gallery in the state museum at Springfield was formally dedicated to the permanent housing of Illinois paintings and sculpture. Lorado Taft was one of the principal speakers. The "Friends of Illinois Art" came into being at the dedication. The name refers to those people who will purchase paintings outright or in the guise of prize awards to encourage Illinois artists. Each picture thus given to the museum will be marked with its name and that of the artist and of the donor. Several purchase prizes have already been secured by the patrons' committee consisting of Charles S. Peterson, chairman; George W. Woodruff, Elbert G. Drew, William H. Dangel, Jens Jensen, Christian Olsen, Eames MacVeagh and Dr. Otto L. Schmidt.

The committee is one of several under the able direction of Miss Caroline M. McIlvaine, chairman of historical art for the academy.

Purchase Fund Made Up.

Although the civil administrative code has provided for purchase from museum funds of works of art, nothing has been bought up to this year. This year the idea of the essential value of art to the people has been presented in such a compelling guise that $5,000 has been made available with which paintings and sculpture are to be purchased. These art works will be added to those secured as gifts made by friends of Illinois art.

The second exhibition is continued until the state purchases should be made. Meanwhile, purchase prizes were awarded to "Cast of Lincoln," by Lorado Taft; "Blossom Time," by Joseph Birren; "Flowery Bank," by Marie Blanke; "Lief Ericson Discovering America," by Karl Ouren (this purchase prize is from the Norwegian National league and amounts to the interesting sum of $1,000); "Windy Day," by Emil Grumieaux (the prize offered by Eames MacVeagh); "Mount Shasta," by Carl Hoerman (prize from Frank G. Logan); "Masque of Dionysos," a bronze by Oscar J. W. Hansen. J. F. Cornelius, president of the Illinois Academy of Fine Arts, sponsored this prize. The Native Daughters of Illinois stood back of the prizes which acquired Lorado Taft's fine "Lincoln" and Joseph Birren's beautiful "Blossom Time" for the museum.

Notes of Art and Artists.

This week will see the opening of the summer exhibits in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. John Spellman will bring the breath of vacation days to our doorstep with his paintings of northern woods and lakes; Paul Trebilcock will bring the sophistication of portraiture.

The twenty-seventh Carnegie international exhibition of paintings will open in Pittsburgh Oct. 18 and will close Dec. 9. Homer St. Gaudens, director of the Carnegie institute, has just returned from Europe where he selected some 275 paintings illustrative of the art of fourteen countries. A statement from him concerning the foreign art of today is that European artists are trying to show the age of machinery, of the radio, the airplane and the automobile.

Mrs. Emma Blanxius Hodge, a benefactor and honorary governing life member of the Art institute, died at her home in Chicago July 1, at the age of 66 years. She had been ill for some time. Her great interest in the Art institute was shown in her lifetime by the many interesting and important gifts she made to the museum. Her samplers will never be forgotten. Her early American quilts are extremely valuable as historical data. With her sister, Jene E. Bell, she presented to the museum the very fine Amelia Blanxius collection of English and American ceramics.

In the children's museum at the Art institute is a gay little farce, a baseball game—the players all modeled in clay and painted in gay colors. The game is complete with umpire and audience and a cheer leader aroused to frenzy. There are also clay animals and Esquimaux, Indians and ships, Pegasus and jewelry boxes—a great array of material testifying to the powers of the youthful members of the Saturday classes in the Art institute school.

Karl Plath, who is noted for his colorful paintings of exotic birds, is to enjoy the pleasure of seeing one of his pictures reproduced in color for the front page of the August Country Life. Mr. Plath has a fascinating aviary in the yard of his Chicago home and he paints his beautiful subjects from life.

Miss Marion F. Williams, formerly assistant to the archives department of the Art institute, has been appointed research assistant in the new Chicago Institute of Industrial Progress (the Rosenwald museum) in Jackson park.

Some remarkable and extremely artistic bamboo blinds, made exclusively for the palace of the Manchu emperors in Peking, China, and believed to be the only ones ever brought out of that country, are now on exhibition at the Field museum. They are regarded as priceless by the museum authorities because of their rarity and for the fact that they could not be duplicated.

Part of the color and design of the pictures is formed by the natural grain of the wood itself, which is a spotted variety of bamboo, and is left bare in such places as the design requires. Great skill was necessary for the exquisite matching of the tiny strips of wood. One of the pictures reveals a lotus pond with cranes in the water and clouds and bats above. They are all very lovely. They were secured by Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology, and are about 150 years old.

An exhibition of the paintings of Spain and other countries by William J. Potter will be shown throughout the summer at the Hotel Bossert, Brooklyn, N. Y.

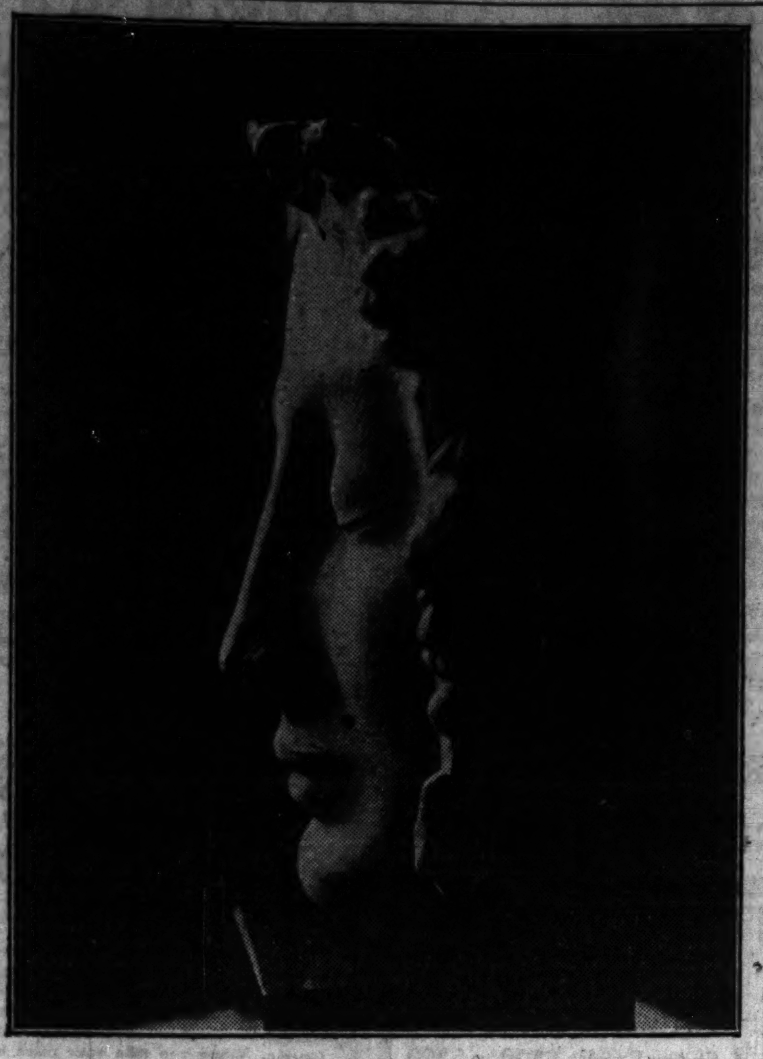
"Art, it won't bite" is the topic on which Murdock Pemberton will talk throughout the country. Mr. Pemberton is the art critic of the New Yorker, and his lecture tour will be managed by Emilie Sarter. The title sounds as though the critic were out for anything—the blood of the conservative included.



"MASQUE OF DIONYSOS," by Oskar J. W. Hansen. This dignified piece of sculpture was part of the sculpture division in the second art exhibition by members of the Illinois Academy of Fine Arts in the galleries of the Illinois State Museum at Springfield.

The exhibition is now considered an annual event, and from Springfield the various paintings and sculpture groups go out in smaller groups through the state, affording Illinois traveling exhibits of contemporary art. Mr. Hansen's work will remain in the new permanent collection recently established in Springfield.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

A Frank Opinion.

I had been attending my class reunion at the university. The evening I left I went to the station a little early and, while waiting for the train, got to talking to a fine looking man whom I did not know but who was also a former student.

Our conversation drifted to smoking. I said, "Well, I thoroughly dislike to see the girls smoke. For instance," [and I pointed to a young lady who was talking to a young man and puffing away at a cigaret], "that girl looks anything but charming to me," and I added, "I told my son if he should marry a girl that smoked I'd disown him."

Just then a train pulled in and the pretty young girl came running over to us and said, "Come on, Daddy, this is our train." L. W.

Confounded.

The day of the Kentucky Derby, a friend of mine, who is exceedingly religious, paid me a visit. I was enjoying the broadcast of the races and she expressed the desire that I get rid of such vile entertainment.

I reluctantly obliged her and agreed that she was right in not permitting her husband to gamble, further affirming that my husband would never think of doing such a thing.

Shortly after, my husband bounded into the house, threw his hat in the air, and shouted, "Hurrah, we're rich! I just won a hundred bucks on Reigh Count." MRS. B. K.

Mad Endeavor to Please.

About a month ago, while visiting in a small town in Minnesota I met a young woman friend of mine. She invited me to her home for dinner that night.

I had never met this girl's father and he proved hard to become acquainted with. We were all rather quiet during the meal but while waiting for our dessert he asked me several questions concerning Chicago. I was eager to start a conversation and kept right on talking. I suddenly noticed the other members of the family were laughing.

Imagine my consternation when I looked down and found I had taken the dish of butter which was by my plate and had started eating that instead of my dessert! C. H. S.

Looked Familiar.

While going downtown on the train the other day I noticed a man sitting across the aisle whom I knew but could not place. I went over and sat down with him as he seemed to know me; we soon were having a conversation.

Wanting to find out who he was, I said, "Well, are you still with the firm?"

He looked rather offended and then said, "Yes, of course."

It then dawned on me that I had not been to church for so long I did not even recognize the minister! F. P.

What Makes Tragedians Weep? They Tell You Here

WHEN newspaper reporters questioned celebrated emotional actors and actresses of the mauve decade as to their personal reactions to tragedy, in the hope of divining through their answers the secret of their power of calling forth tears from their audiences, they received for reply some sad, mysterious smiles and knowing shakes of the head. With eyelids duly damp and fluttering, tragedians of yore intimated that all life was catastrophe and that they unfailingly sobbed through private life at poetically secret sorrows.

Times have changed in the theater. Frankness has crept into the attitude of actors toward the public. Now we are to learn that no more cheerful person than the professional tragedian exists and that the pose of eternal lachrymosia went out of fashion with attacks of the vapors.

"If you want to portray tragedy on the stage," counsels Helen Hayes, whose poignant performances have been causing Broadway hearts to break in profusion, "you will find it a great help never to have been touched by tragedy in your own life. The recollection of personal tragedy hinders your imagination, because you will be tempted in your stage rôle only to reenact your own behavior as it was at the time of your sorrow. That wouldn't do at all, you know, for it wouldn't be dramatic enough. Really, people under stress of actual sorrow don't act dramatically a bit. On the stage, of course, they do and must, else there would be a call for 'money back' from the audiences pretty promptly."

Easily Affected.

Of all the tragediennes of today, perhaps no one is more sensitive to pathos than Pauline Lord. Unlike her contemporaries, too, she finds this sensitivity of benefit to her artistically.

"I remember once I saw some one cruelly abusing a horse just before I entered the theater for a matinée," says Miss Lord. "I could not get the poor beast out of my mind all afternoon. As a result I gave the best performance I had given in a long while. I suppose it would really be to my advantage to witness painful scenes frequently, but I'd rather forego that.

"I'm awfully consistent and easily affected. I make a tremendously good audience, weeping freely in the theater and especially at plays about old men. There is nothing so tragic as an old man to me. He is so totally helpless. An old woman can always look out for herself—even though she be over 90 she can dust a room and fry herself an egg. I am not depressed at recollections out of my own experience, for I won't let myself be. I have a natural sadness of nature to fight."

In the Presence of Beauty.

"I never shed a tear over anything tragic. Between being light hearted by nature and working hard I don't manage to find a place for sadness in my life," declares Judith Anderson, an actress who went, sickened, and died nightly in a recent stage rôle of ineffable pathos. "I often cry in the presence of beauty, and—I am afraid—of foolishment. For example, my tears fall profusely at the sight of people marching behind a flag of some sort. Any flag will do, but preferably one with which I am familiar. When the parade is accompanied by a band the situation is intensified and I could sob my heart out. Even the sight of children on the street marching along behind a piece of newspaper thrust on a stick is sad to me."

Alfred Lunt hopes that whatever personal depression he may feel at times does not reflect itself in his work in the theater. For that would mean a bad performance and an audience divided between hostile "walkouts" and sympathetic interpreters, who might inundate his dressing room between acts with pathological suggestions.

"I say that," he admits naively, "because the one thing which depresses me more than anything else is indigestion. I don't have it often, so I manage to preserve a cheerful outlook upon life. But when I am beset by that most unspiritual of tribulations everything bears a heavy mauve tinge for me. Discouragement possesses me and I could burst into tears at my very reflection in the mirror.

"There is one other thing which makes me downcast," he adds. "That is to see small children mistreated. To observe a husky adult heedlessly jerking the arm of some tiny child as though it were a pump handle is one of the saddest things I can think of."

Women the World Over

A theater owned by and operated for the people of Detroit is projected by a group of women residents of the automobile city.

Mlle. Camuset, the first woman in France to attempt to gain admission to the diplomatic service, failed in the oral test.

A cooking school to teach American and other foreign women residents how to prepare Chinese dishes has been opened in Tientsin.

Three women have succeeded their husbands in the British house of commons.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Vacation Schools Drawing to a Close

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE closing exercises of the Daily Vacation Church schools which have been in session for five weeks will be held at the end of this week. For the most part the exercises will take place on Friday and in some cases on Saturday. Six supervisors have been visiting all the schools, numbering about 250, and report that the character of the work done this year has been superior to that of any previous year. One innovation has been the publication of "The Vacation School Booster," published weekly at the Chicago Council of Religious Education, 77 West Washington street, a branch of the Chicago Church federation. The editorial staff consists of the following: Catherine Logan, Norwood Park Presbyterian church; Carl Vickers, Lincoln Street Methodist Episcopal church; Robert Lucas, Michigan Avenue Congregational church; Max Woodworth, Auburn Park Federated church. Two reporters from each school were appointed.

Several schools have been conducted in public school buildings. In one community the manual training equipment of the local public school was loaned to the churches. In another community eight churches coöperated in four schools, all of which were conducted in public school buildings. Churches, which have recently erected new buildings or new additions, are the First Presbyterian of Woodlawn, the Austin Congregational, the North Shore, and the Hyde Park Baptist churches, have provided facilities for educational work among the best in the country. The leading churches of Oak Park united in one school, conducted in the new building of the Presbyterian church.

A feature of the work which has been greatly emphasized this season and will be characteristic of most of the closing programs is the participation of the children themselves, in telling stories and carrying on discussions of character problems concerning honesty, kindness, unselfishness, sharing with others, team work, reverence, coöperation in church and community enterprises. There will be pageants, dramas and other demonstrations.

The Moody Memorial church has maintained a school numbering 350 and the Moody Bible institute school, 125. Their graduating exercises will be held at the institute, Chicago avenue and North La Salle street, on Saturday. Each child will display his handiwork and appear in the exercises.

The Rev. Francis B. Casilly, S. J., will celebrate today the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the holy priesthood. The observance will take place at St. Ignatius church, near Loyola university. The jubilee mass will be celebrated at 11 a. m. Father Casilly holds a high place in the esteem of Chicago Catholics, because he was instrumental in acquiring the site for the original St. Ignatius church on Sheridan road and the lake front property of Loyola university. From 1896 to 1908 Father Casilly was dean of St. Ignatius college on West 12th street.

It was seen that a new location was necessary and in this quest Father Casilly took the initiative and it was finally due chiefly to his foresight and persistent efforts that the Jesuits secured the property which is now known as the Loyola Campus. In recognition of this splendid service the president of Loyola university, the Rev. Robert M. Kelly, S. J., and the pastor of St. Ignatius church, the Rev. F. G. Dinneen, S. J., have invited Father Casilly to return here for his golden jubilee celebration. Father Casilly recognizes Father Dumbach, then the rector of St. Ignatius college, as co-founder with him of the new foundation.

In a few weeks bids for the construction of the new building for the Baptist Old People's home in Maywood on the block bounded by Randolph street, 3d avenue, Pine street and 4th avenue, will be received. The plans have been accepted and call for a building designed in late Tudor English, using stone, brick, half timber and plaster. It will increase the capacity of the home to 150 where the authorities have been able to care for only about 40 for over twenty years. The new addition will give the atmosphere and appearance of a real home rather than of an institution.

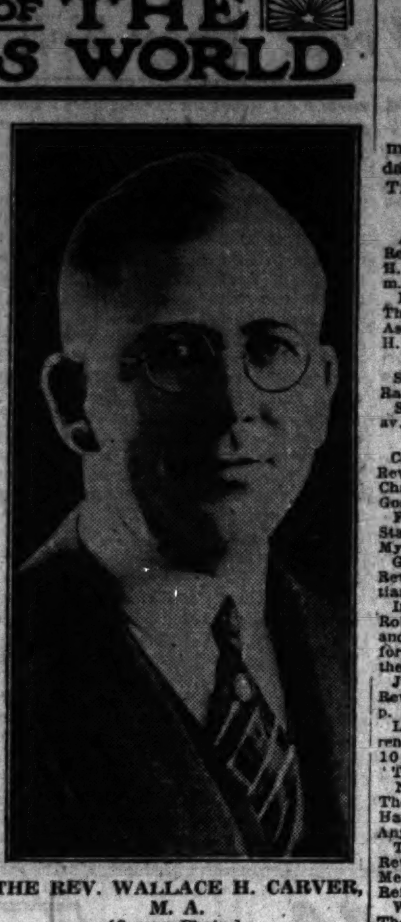
The home was organized in 1907 without any money or property but today has an endowment of nearly $125,000 and another $125,000 in the building fund. The new building project will cost $250,000 and plans are completed for obtaining the balance of $125,000 necessary. George A. Chritton, Chicago lawyer, president of the board of directors, says: "Giving toward providing a home and care for dependent, worthy old people is pure benevolence, without any expectation or possibility of return. Giving toward orphanages and children's homes is an investment, which may and ought to bring forth many fold hundreds and even thousands when the young cared for shall have become productive."

There is a long waiting list and it is also greatly desired to reduce the age of admission from 70 years to 65 years.

On July 29 at 2:30 p. m., within the octave of the feast of St. Christopher, the patron saint of the traveler, the solemn blessing of automobiles will be had at the St. Christopher parish, 147th street and Crawford avenue, Midlothian, Ill. The best route to Midlothian is south on Western avenue to 147th street and thence west to the church grounds.

Changes in Catholic clergy appointments announced by the chancery office are: the Rev. F. A. McLaughlin, assistant at St. Bartholomew's church, transferred from Corpus Christi church; the Rev. F. J. Shea, professor at the Quigley Preparatory seminary, transferred from Little Flower church to assist at Corpus Christi church.

All the plans for the forty-ninth triennial general convention of the Episcopal church, which will begin its session Oct. 10 in Washington, D. C., have been placed actively in charge of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., general chairman of the committee of which Hugh T. Nelson, a business man of Washington, is executive secretary.



THE REV. WALLACE H. CARVER, M. A.
[Sarony Photo.]

The Rev. Wallace H. Carver is the pastor of the Northminster Presbyterian church, Evanston, which has raised a subscription of $90,000 and made plans for a new stone Gothic church costing $150,000. The congregation is now worshiping in the Lincolnwood school, Colfax street and McDaniel avenue. The new church will be built at Central Park avenue and Harrison street.

The Northminster church was organized in January, 1923, with fifty-seven charter members. The Rev. Robert Lee Sawyier was installed as pastor in March of the same year. In 1926 the above lot was purchased for the site of the new church building and that summer the Rev. Mr. Sawyier accepted the presidency of the Presbyterian Training school and thus Northminster was left without a pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Carver was installed as pastor in February, 1927. He is a graduate of Princeton university with B. A. and M. A. degrees and of Princeton Theological seminary three year course. He served the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church at Beacon, N. Y., for five years and the Second Presbyterian church of Rahway, N. J., for ten years. He was moderator of the presbytery of Elizabeth, N. J., and afterward permanent clerk.

In Rahway the Rev. Mr. Carver was president of the Federation of Churches and one of the organizers of the Rotary club, of which he was vice president and director at the time of his leaving. At present the Rev. Mr. Carver is a member of the department of Christian education of the presbytery of Chicago, serving on the committee of young people's work.

In February the church celebrated its fifth birthday and the first anniversary of the Rev. Mr. Carver's pastorate by clearing off the balance of indebtedness on the site, thus making way for the loyalty campaign of May, 1928, which has resulted in the plans for the new church. The work on the church building will begin this fall.

The Holy Name and Altar and Rosary societies are sponsors for the carnival and lawn fête which begins on Friday and continues for ten days for the benefit of the St. Justin Martyr Catholic parish, 71st and Wood streets. Father Joseph N. Morrison is the pastor.

Amelia Earhart's father and mother were married by Dr. John Henry Hopkins while he was rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Atchison, Kan., and in recognition of this fact, Dr. Hopkins has invited the noted aviatrix to attend service at his present church, the Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue, today, while she is in Chicago.

This afternoon from 2:30 to 5:30 the promotion committee of the Evangelical churches of the Chicago area will hold open air services and an open air concert on the Elmhurst college campus, Elmhurst, Ill. Arthur C. Lueder, postmaster of Chicago, will preside at the meeting. The concert program consists of selections from operas, oratorios, interspersed with lieder and dramatic songs and will be rendered by the Ballmann concert band of 40 musicians, directed by Martin Ballmann, and Laura Vanderlocht, soprano soloist, with several numbers by the joint chorus of children from the Uhlich and the Bensenville Orphan homes.

The invocation with words of greeting will be given by the Rev. T. Lehmann, president of Elmhurst college, the address of the day by Postmaster Lueder, and a final word by the Rev. Jacob Pister, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical church, Chicago.

The Rock River Bible conference, Dixon, Ill., will close its third annual session today. Bishop Frederick B. Fisher of Calcutta, India, will speak at 3 and at 7:30 p. m. From 2 to 3 p. m. the program is entitled "War Against the Saloon." S. D. Gordon, author of a widely known series of books, will be the speaker in the morning service. July 29-Aug. 5 an interdenominational Bible conference under the same auspices, with Dr. Parley E. Zartman as director, will be held at Cedar Falls, Ia. Among the speakers will be Dr. J. C. Massee, pastor Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass.; Dr. J. T. Wardle Stafford, London, England; S. D. Gordon, New York City; the Rev. John Greenfield, Winona Lake, Ind.; the Rev. Wilford Ernst Mann, rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Richmond, Va.; Dr. S. S. Lappin, Cincinnati, O.; Mrs. H. Olin Cady, Evanston, Ill. Homer Rodeheaver will have charge of the music.

At Camp Gray, Saugatuck, Mich., the Presbyterian summer conference began its annual meeting yesterday. The program of classes for leadership training will continue until Friday evening, interspersed with study, recreation and rest periods. The Rev. Ralph W. Owens, D.D., of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian church, conference director, will be assisted among others by Mrs. E. W. McNair and Miss R. Marie Preston, both of Chicago, the Rev. Wallace H. Carver, Evanston, and the Rev. A. O. Hjerpe, Chicago.

Sister Stanisia, the artist nun of Longwood academy, is now completing a painting, "The Adoration of St. Joseph," which, when finished, will be hung over the altar of the magnificent new St. Luke's Catholic church in St. Paul, Minn. Sister Stanisia has previously painted "St. Therese, the Little Flower," famous prelates, priests and scripture characters. She has been commissioned to paint "Christ, the Shepherd." This is expected to be the nun's greatest work and will be reproduced thousands of times and will be distributed all over Europe.

Mrs. Lenora Z. Meder, national advocate of the Catholic Daughters of America, has been elected president of the Illinois Educational league. Mrs. Meder is a well known woman attorney and was the first commissioner of public welfare in Chicago.

Celebrated Paris Mansion to Pass Under the Hammer

By La Dauphine.

THE old Latin saying that books have their destinies might well be applied to houses. The ancient Hotel de Lauzun, one of the most celebrated mansions of Paris, is to be sold under the hammer. Thus the ownership passes from the Baron Pichon. To his patient and intelligent restoration is due the revelation of splendor which makes the Hotel de Lauzun one of the finest examples to be found in Paris of a 17th century interior. Even if it passes to another Frenchman, or to a citizen of another country, it will still be classed as an historic monument, whose story during three centuries vies in interest with its superb decoration.

Under Louis XIII, a part of the Ile Saint Louis was offered for building lots, just as they are now to be had in the outlying suburbs of Paris. One of the leading magistrates, Ribaudon, with a flair for several kinds of speculation—he already had a beautiful wife—took another chance and bought one of these vacant lots on the Quai d'Anjou. Some fifteen years later Gruyn des Bordes, son of the man who owned the famous cabaret known as the Pomme de Pin, frequented by Molière and Racine, had made enough money in army contracts to commission the greatest architects and painters of that lavish time to build and adorn what at once became one of the most magnificent show places of Paris.

Every room was sculptured with unequaled richness, every ceiling and panel was painted by such artists as Le Brun, Le Sueur, Patel, Monnoyer, and Mignard, each doing his specialty of flowers, portraits, landscapes, and mythology. When the day of reckoning came and, under the unrelenting eye of Colbert and the anger of Louis XIV., such great army contractors as Gruyn and Fouquet were forced to disgorge, this supreme marvel of 17th century decoration, the acme of a great art at its most perfect period, had to be relinquished by its owner.

Married King's Cousin.

Some twenty years later it passed into the hands of the Duc de Lauzun. In the meantime, during his ten years of imprisonment, he had become rich through his secret marriage to the Grande Mademoiselle, the king's cousin. Lauzun, whose name clings to this princely residence of the Quai d'Anjou, himself lived there only three years. But his strange personality and still stranger career would, if imagined by a writer of romance, be dismissed as too extravagant.

The third son of Comte de Lauzun of Guyenne, he managed while still young to make a reputation for valor, and worried Louis XIV. enough to be thrown into the bastille. Indeed, like others at this monarch's court, his fascination for women was in a way his undoing. More than one of Louis XIV.'s feminine favorites had regarded Lauzun with an indulgent eye. Like Sir Willoughby Paterne, in "The Egoist," he had a well turned leg.

In 1660, when at Saint-Jean-de-Luz for the wedding of Louis XIV. and Marie Thérèse, Lauzun first met the Grande Mademoiselle, one of the richest women in France, who had already refused to marry the prince, who later became Charles II. of England. For years she made advances to Lauzun at the court, then in Saint Germain, but he pretended to ignore her meaning. Finally, the king's consent to a marriage was obtained, but withdrawn three days later; as a result, it is now known, of the intervention of Madame de Montespan. Insults by Lauzun to the latter caused him to be incarcerated for ten years at Pignerol, near Turin.

When La Grande Mademoiselle gave a large fraction of her property to Madame de Montespan for the latter's son by Louis XIV., the Duc du Maine, Lauzun got his freedom. He appears to have married La Grande Mademoiselle secretly in 1682, but was unable to reinstate himself in Louis XIV.'s good graces until he took part with James II.'s forces in 1690 at the battle of the Boyne and helped the English sovereigns to escape to France. These exploits again made him a leading courtier, with a dukedom.

In the meantime La Grande Mademoiselle had thrust him from her life in 1684, after scenes of jealousy which were not innocent of blows. Shortly after her death in 1693, Lauzun, who had bought with her money the magnificent structure which bears his name, again married, at the age of 62, the daughter of Maréchal de Loges, she being then 15. He moved to a house which is now occupied by the Ecole des Beaux Arts, where he died in 1723, at the age of 91.

Bought by Marquis.

In 1685, this famous residence was bought by the Marquis de Richelieu; in 1709, by the financier Ogier, and after a succession of proprietors, came in 1842 into the hands of Baron Pichon, collector and book lover, who sublet a part of it to Théophile Gautier and to Baudelaire, who used to split wood and absorb hashish in what was left of this once triumphant interior. In 1896 the city of Paris bought it with the intention of turning it into a museum, but continued neglect almost caused it to fall into ruins.

Fortunately, the present Baron Louis Pichon bought it in 1905 and began to restore it, stone by stone and room by room, with the utmost patience and intelligence. He had the later coats of paint carefully washed off. Under them was found eventually the work of the original artists. The restoration is now so complete that the Hotel Lauzun, or Hotel Pichon, is entirely and consistently 17th century in all its pristine splendor.

This Duc de Lauzun who married La Grande Mademoiselle is not to be confused with another duc of the same name who, nearly a century later, crossed the ocean to fight for American independence. That is another story.

Fashion right in every way are the frocks in the popular Boulevard Frocks Section, where style is of vital importance.

Parisian in cut, in trimming and in every correct detail. For these styles are copies of high priced models.

You must see these frocks to really appreciate the beauty of the materials, the exquisite touches of trimming and correctness of finish; these are even greater values than we have offered in the past for $15. Brown and Red in all the new shades offer a decided change from the prosaic winter color schemes of the last few years. Color on every hand with navy and black still running a close second.

THE STYLES AND TRIMMINGS

The flared silhouette is new, but in such a modified form it still retains its straight effect. The tight hipline, the circular skirt, necklines pointed, round and one sided in the new versions. Pleats are introduced in all around and group effects, tucks, tiers, bows and drapes, wrapped around effect and the well liked uneven hemline. Velvet is used as a trimming in both the transparent and chiffon weaves.

FALL SHADES:
Independence Blue, Cinnamon Brown, Tan, Wood Brown, English Violet, Gretna Green, Marron Glace, Navy Blue Heaven, Black, Wild Honey and Cocoa.

THE MATERIALS:
Georgette, Flat Crepe, Crepe Back Satin, Crepe Romare, Canton Crepe, and combinations of materials. The Satin Back Crepe is shown in contrast with the reverse side.

Summer Social Loss of Chicago Is Resorts' Gain

SOCIALLY speaking, the off season for Chicago is very much the "on" season for various resorts that have been gathering places for colonies of Chicagoans during every July and August for some years past. Bar Harbor, Me., Watch Hill, R. I., and Berkshire hills, the Massachusetts north shore, and Cape Cod are the favored spots in the east, and the nearer spas include Lake Geneva, which is more of a suburb than a resort; Charlevoix, Harbor Point, and Roaring Brook, which are so close together that they make virtually one community; Mackinac island and the nearby "Snows," and fashionable Desbarats, in Canada, where each resorter has an island of his own.

The spacious grounds of the Chicago club at Charlevoix have been a summer retreat for a faithful band of Chicagoans for many years. The opening in late June this year was quiet because many of the customary sojourners postponed their arrival to attend the wedding of Miss Isabel Scott and Albert Keep on June 30, and the earlier nuptials of Miss Romayne Warren and John P. Wilson Jr., on June 23. The respective families of the brides and bridegrooms, the Benjamin S. Warrens of Detroit, Mich., the Frederick H. Scotts of Hubbard Woods, and the John P. Wilsons of 1516 State parkway, have been prominent among the cottage owners at the Chicago club for many years, and Mr. Wilson is president of the club.

Among Those Present.

There are twenty-eight "cottages," and the Chicago owners include Cyrus H. Adams, Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham and her son, Daniel H. Burnham; Mrs. Edward B. Butler, Oscar W. Johnson, Joseph H. King, William R. Linn, John B. Lord, William B. McIlvaine, Mrs. Charles Ingals Pierce, Edward D. Shumway, Solomon A. Smith, Harold C. Smith, John Stuart, R. Douglas Stuart, Dr. Eugene S. Talbot, Edward C. Waller, and Mrs. Adele H. Whiting. Among prominent non-Chicagoans in the cottage colony are E. D. Babst of New York City, A. C. Cassat of Cincinnati, O., William R. Dickinson of Santa Barbara, Cal., Mrs. George B. Douglas of Cedar Rapids, Ia., Mrs. C. D. Gregg of St. Louis, Mo., and George A. Macdonald of Peterborough, Ont.

The clubhouse, containing suites and rooms for members and guests, a large dining room seating 400, a ballroom, library writing room, and foyer, stands high on the club grounds.

Chicagoans in East.

At Bar Harbor, the Potter Palmers, who have an estate, "Hare Forest"; the Harold A. Howards, Miss Mildred McCormick, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. William Prescott Hunt and her sister, Miss Marie Rozet, the Robert Hall McCormicks and their children, and the Walter Ayers are a few of the customary summer sojourners.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, who usually go to their place, "Tee Pee," at Watch Hill, R. I., every summer, are arriving late this year, as they are now motoring abroad. Dr. Frank Billings, his daughter, Mrs. George R. Nichols Jr., Mrs. Louise De Koven Phelps (who usually takes many of the golf honors among the women), the Gustavus F. Swifts, the C. Bai Lihmes (who own "Norman Hall"), Mr. and Mrs. Clive Runnells, and the Frank Hibbards are representative of the Chicago colony there.

Carcassonne Is Mecca of Tourists

By May Birkhead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—For many reasons this month shows less in the well filled drift of American notabilities traveling in Europe than it has for several years.

To begin with, the weather has been too warm to go long distances either by motor or train. For week ends, however, many of them have gone to the well known beaches, such as Deauville, for a breath of sea air, and some few have disregarded the heat and have gone south. At this moment lovers of monumental architecture are visiting Carcassonne. This marvel city of France and Europe may, indeed, be visited at any time, but there is a special incentive for the trip now, as the town is full of festivities celebrating its two thousandth anniversary.

Two Weeks' Celebration.

For two whole weeks, from July 15 to 29, at the ramparts the ancient city is staging a continuous fête. In the setting of majestic walls and towers, the great festival tournament will be created as in the time of Catherine de Medici. This particular performance will be given in honor of President Doumergue's visit.

The great cavalry schools at Fontainebleau, Saumur, Saint-Cyr, and Versailles have sent their most brilliant horsemen to take part in this unique reconstitution of the past, which will also be produced by film and shown throughout Europe.

Among the other medieval reconstitutions are courts of love, which entered so deeply into the literature of southern France.

Each night the ramparts will be ablaze with fireworks, while during the day leading archeologists will explain the endless relics and treasures to be found in the ancient cathedral, museum, and chateau. No American tourist feels that he has done the essential parts of France without seeing Notre Dame, the chateau on the Loire, Mont Saint-Michel, and Carcassonne. To many, Carcassonne is the final enchantment of the emblems of her day rounded, glittering and perfect, in a frame work to which time has only added her arrangement of patina.

Back to Ancient Times.

The very name Carcassonne calls up the thought that the city is formed into a circle by its ramparts, whose restoration was carried on by Viollet le Duc on the basis of the northern architecture of the thirteenth century. But the tide of trade war surged around this natural fortress spot from the days of the Phœnicians. Some long believed that its first settlers were the Trojan band led by Æneas; others attributed the city to Carcas of Queen Esther's days.

HARRY C. MOIR
PRES. & GEN. MGR.

THERE is no hotel in the world, except the Morrison, in which you can travel in a single elevator trip from the midsummer heat of a metropolis into the bracing air of a mountain top.

A 300-Ton Refrigerating Plant

The clear, cool atmosphere surrounding the 46-story tower is not the only protection against the warmth of July days. There is a total of 1200 horsepower in the motors used for the ventilating fans alone, and a 300-ton refrigerating plant supplies chilled air for the dining rooms and the Terrace Garden.

1944 Rooms, $2.50 Up

The singularly low room rates at the Morrison are due to the central location, which makes subrentals so valuable that they pay all the ground rent, and rooms are therefore rented at $2.50 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 elsewhere.

Every Room with Bath

All rooms are outside, with bath, running ice water, bed-head lamp, telephone and Servidor. Every floor has its housekeeper, and all guests enjoy garage privileges.

GOLF AT MURRAY BAY

LONG straight drives down excellent fairways . . . greens that are the ideal of every golfer . . . sporty holes that make each round a delight and give opportunity for your favorite shots . . . and all set among scenery which is world-famous.

The breeze from the Saint Lawrence which gleams below the course blends with the scent of the balsam from the pines and spruce which blanket the guardian hills around the Manoir Richelieu. It is not surprising that the Manoir Richelieu course is considered one of the finest on the continent.

And after your record round you may swim in the salt water pool, play bridge, dance, or—with your foursome—enjoy the luxury and hospitality of the Manoir.

You will want to play this course frequently this season. It is ideal for a week-end because it is only overnight from Montreal on one of the luxurious steamers of Canada Steamship Lines.

Make your plans and reservations early.

You Are Invited to Inspect The Original "House Party" Special Trains

Union Station—Sunday Mornings
10:45 to 11:30 o'clock (Chicago Daylight Saving Time)

Carrying a happy group of care-free vacationists, one of these magnificent "House Party" trains leaves Chicago each Sunday morning over the Milwaukee Road for a two weeks' "House Party Tour" through the Wonderland of the West. Equipped with luxurious sleeping cars, compartment cars and dining cars, each train carries a special recreation car for dancing, bridge and movies. Passengers on these trains are members of Guild House Party Tours, traveling in escorted parties conducted by experienced couriers. Sightseeing trips are made by motor in the resort regions of the Pacific Northwest and the Canadian Rockies. Eastbound, the train travels over the Canadian Pacific route. Passengers have no tickets to buy—no reservations to make—no sightseeing to arrange—no baggage worries! Everything is handled by the Guild's travel experts. These tours set a new standard for care-free vacation travel in the United States and Canada—visiting the Pacific Northwest, Canadian Rockies, Yellowstone, Alaska, Colorado, Salt Lake City and California. All-expense tours from $142 upward.

The Greatest Two-Week Vacation Trip Ever Offered Down East

Thru the Switzerland of America

In America's finest Motor Coaches—equipped with washroom and lavatory, high back deep-cushioned seats and ice water containers. The most comfortable and easy riding cars ever built.

If you are fed up on the "usual" tour offerings, here's a two week's vacation trip that will thrill you—it has that romantic "something" we call adventure, it has scenic beauty, real natural scenery, points of historical interest and many other things that no other vacation suggestion has to offer.

Next Tour July 22nd and Weekly Thereafter

Every minute will be an interesting one. You'll enjoy the picturesque Irish Hills, the trip across romantic Canada, and your visit to that never-to-be-forgotten wonder Niagara Falls. You'll love the Thousand Islands, the forested ranges of Adirondacks, beautiful Lake Placid and you'll be thrilled with your visit to Ausable Chasm and your trip across Lake Champlain. Your journey thru the Green and White Mountains, over the Mohawk Trail, thru the Berkshires, along the Hudson River on the Storm King Highway, over the Poconos, thru the Delaware Water Gap and Watkins Glen, will provide scenes you'll never forget and things to talk about, for rest of your life.

Then there's a day in Boston—two full days and three glorious nights in New York—with a heavenly night and an enchanted day at Alexandria Bay, and the grand climax—a trip across Lake Erie.

All of these scenic thrills are packed into the greatest vacation trip ever offered, the result of five years' of successful operation and experience.

An illustrated folder will be mailed you upon receipt of your request to

The Butler Broadcasts: Domestic Service Drives Him Wild

Woman Banker Tells of Her Upward Climb

Loyalty and Knowledge of Job Rewarded.

By Helen Dare

ANY woman can succeed as well as any man in banking if—

The if, of course, is everything. In this instance it is if she has the requisites of Lily M. Hansen, who, is perhaps the only woman bank vice president in Chicago. In a field traditionally considered as belonging exclusively to men, she has won her way in fair and open competition, with no favors sought and no quarter asked or given.

Without previous training, a young girl just out of high school, Miss Hansen started as a sort of cleric, typist, and general factotum. In that respect her story is the same as thousands of others, but the similarity abruptly ceases.

* *

Stuck with Her Job.

No. 1. She never married.

No. 2. She stuck with her job.

No. 3. She mastered not only every detail of it, but voluntarily assumed added responsibilities and familiarized herself with all departments of the institution.

No. 4. She made herself indispensable to her employer.

No. 5. She was always loyal.

Now, as vice president of the Kimbell Trust and Savings bank at 3600 Fullerton avenue, she is in charge of real estate loans and mortgages.

It was a small private bank when she started, a little down the street from the imposing building which now houses it. The employés were few and their duties varied. This enabled her to gain a background of knowledge about all forms of their business.

"In a large bank," she said, "one's work is of necessity highly specialized and narrowed to a particular branch. But if it is small one does a little of everything."

Happy in Her Work.

The bank expanded and became national in 1919. In the meantime Miss Hansen, working through several smaller jobs, became assistant cashier, and later head cashier.

Although this last position was an unusual one for a woman, particularly in a bank as large as this one had grown to be, she did not stop there. In January of 1927 she gained the position which she now holds.

Perhaps even more noteworthy than her title as vice president is the department she heads. It is generally believed that women allow their sympathies to rule them. Although artists have always depicted Justice as feminine, they are careful to blindfold her. And there are few fields where the personal equation can enter more

UNUSUAL

Miss Lily M. Hansen began working in a bank as a typist and by degrees has risen until she now is vice president of the institution.

OUR TOWN

Warm Weather Doings of the Populace Hereabout

SOMETHING will have to be done about the Sunday airplane traffic, which is fast becoming an unmitigated nuisance. Because of the constant noise of the motors one cannot keep one's mind on the golf ball, let alone the lawn mower, and it is next to impossible any longer to listen in on the neighbors' back porch conversations.

* *

There is another and more intimate aspect. Frequently, after candle light, ye ed has mistaken the hum of a sky taxi for that of one of the winged carnivora abounding in Wilmette, and has thus been misled into slapping at his handsome anatomy in eke the futile fashion of Don Quixote fighting windmills. If the north shore abatement league does not abate the mosquitoes soon, the mosquitoes will abate the north shore.

* *

Our Town's platform, as was to be expected, is noteworthy for its strong domestic plank, which pledges it unqualifiedly to home rule and the better interests of Friend Husband. It therefore deems it a privilege to publish next to pure reading matter the following communication from HRH, regarding the Widow Bedott's tribute to her Hezekiah:

He never jawed in all his life;
He neb was onkind;
And (tho' I say it that was his wife)
Such men you seldom find.

"Let Hezekiah serve as an exemplar for us all," comments HRH.

Louis Cohen, the forward looking haberdasher of 1543 East 53d street, motored to Detroit, thence across the Volstead Jordan to Windsor, Canada, where he sampled the latest styles in high, wide and fancy collars.

* *

Englewood's business men don't mind the weather thermometer these torrid days. They are occupied with the prosperity barometer of their ten banks, which show combined savings deposits of $21,990,948.

JAMES B. WESCOTT.

JIM'S place of business is the handsome stone front at 12 South Michigan avenue, yclept the Chicage Athletic association. If you don't find him in there, try 231 South La Salle street, where he pursues his avocation of practicing law. A man must eat and keep up his club dues, says Jim. Our portrait shows the subject of this sketch at the age of 6, when he was quite some social lion in the gay whirl at Lacon, Ill. As a boy Jim seemed entirely normal. He had the measles and his vaccination took. But when he hied away to the city it happened—he became a Democrat. And if there's anybody that has a grudge against Jim the information is herewith conveyed that he has also become an editor—of the Cherry Circle, the C. A. A.'s family magazine. The "I Knew Him When" club will now call it a day and adjourn to the icebox.

"Valley's" Past Shines Through Cloud of Today

Famous District Boasts Honored Record.

By John Kelley.

MAXWELL STREET police district has given more priests to the Roman Catholic church, who either were born or reared within its original boundary lines, than any similar district in the world. It is a source of pride to many former residents that they attended the Holy Family, or Brothers' school, with this or that boy who became a worker in God's vineyard.

Nearly 100 youths whose lives have been consecrated to the priesthood received their early religious training in parochial schools of the district. Several others who were natives of the district joined the Society of Jesus as Brothers, and a goodly number became members of the Christian Brothers Community.

For reasons not necessary to mention here, the district has fallen into disrepute of late years, but when it was peopled by Irish, German and Bohemian Catholics, there was no more orderly region in Chicago, nor was there a better citizenry than the "old timers" whose homes dotted the prairie.

John Masterson First.

With the assistance of the Rev. Thomas J. Mulkerins, S. J., I am able to present a list of "native born soggarths." The priests herein named, with a few exceptions, became members of the Jesuit Order, which was only natural as they wished to emulate the example of Father Arnold Damen, organizer of the Holy Family parish and founder of St. Ignatius college. Several of those whoe names are included have entered eternal rest, but their memory is still kept green by a loving people.

It is generally conceded that John Masterson was the first young man born and educated in Holy Family parish to join the Jesuit Order. He was one of the first altar boys in the little frame church erected in 1857 on the south side of Eleventh street, east of May street, which in 1860 was superseded by the present edifice in Roosevelt road. Both before and after his ordination, Father Masterson was a professor at St. Ignatius college, and later was assistant pastor of the parish.

Although antedating Father Master-

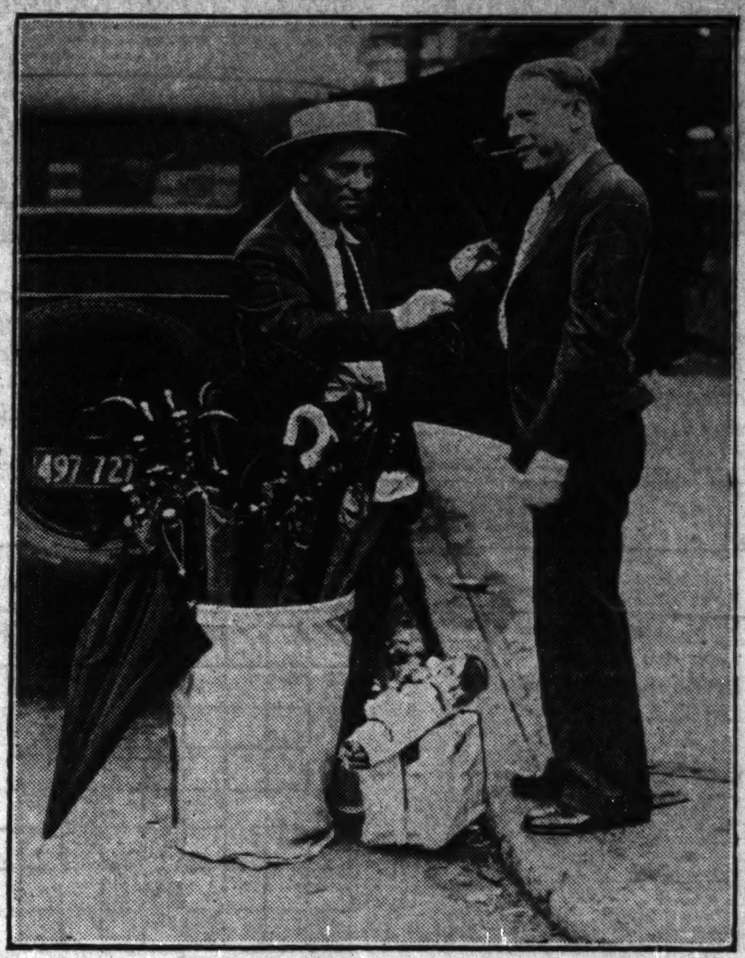
LIKES RAINY WEATHER



MORRIS SCHLOGER of Maxwell street is not one of those individuals who proclaim that "It ain't gonna rain no more." Morris sells umbrellas and, although the sun is shining just now, he is informing a passerby that there's nothing like preparing against the day when clouds gather. Morris' favorite verse is "Into each life some rain must fall; some days must be dark and dreary."

Grows Weary of Wining and Dining the Rich

He'd Much Prefer to Dig Ditches; but—

[This is the final story of "The Butler Broadcasts," revealing the inside of the condition of servitude in and around Chicago.]

By Kathleen McLaughlin.

FOR thrift—try the butlering business.

That, at least, is the advice of one of the profession, butler to another of Chicago's first families, at present resident in Lake Forest. It is, he maintains, the chief attraction and greatest asset of his calling, nor did he mix terms in so expressing himself.

"I would rather," he affirmed, "do any other kind of work. I would sooner dig ditches, if it would pay me the same salary."

This was both vehement and staggering, and I glanced at him hastily to see whether he was grinning as he said it. He wasn't. Quite evidently he meant what he said, and I wondered audibly at such an attitude.

"People in domestic service," he dilated, "are looked down upon. They are not considered anything. Sometimes that is very hard to bear, and that is why I would rather do any other sort of work, whatever it might be, if I could get the same wages. But I can't, and that is why I continue at it."

He's His Own Recommendation.

He is a clean cut fellow, this Meyers. Youngish, impeccably groomed, of medium height. He has somewhat the look of an athlete, together with an air of complete self-reliance and implicit confidence in the soundness of his own judgment. It is possibly these characteristics that recommend him to the family he serves, a branch of one of the great merchandising families of the city.

His employer is typically the man of large affairs, impatient with details

AN EXCITING ROUND

MUCH comment is heard from the ringside as "Daisy" Mac Levin, 4401 Magnolia avenue, puts on the gloves with "Cyclone" Epstein, 1836 Byron street, at Camp North Woods. The camp is conducted by the Wilson avenue department of the Y. M. C. A. at the Lac du Flambeau Indian reservation. E. R. Sunley, athletic director, is acting as referee.

[Burke & Koretke Photo.]

THE HAPPY ARRIVAL

THE old camp flivver is well-nigh smothered with eager boyhood as it pulls into Camp Duncan with a new batch of arrivals. The boys have come from Chicago to fight mosquitoes and catch a ton of fish at Fish lake, where a summer camp is being conducted by the west side department of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. near Volo, Ill.

THE TWILIGHT SPLASH

A PLUNGE and then splash into the cool waters of Crooked lake. The scene is at Camp Nawakwa in the Lac du Flambeau Indian reservation where the Chicago Y. M. C. A. is conducting its fifth summer session for business and professional men. Many athletic contests are conducted between the city "palefaces" and the Indians of the northern Wisconsin forest.

[Photo by A. G. Falk.]

AQUATIC CAGE BALL

THIS is one of the most popular sports among the boys at Hastings lake camps conducted by the Chicago Y. M. C. A. near Lake Villa, Ill. One of its advantages over baseball is that the ball can never be lost. These youngsters taking part in the exciting contest are among the 4,000 boys enjoying an outing at Y. M. C. A. camps this summer.

and employing men who will assume responsibility. It is natural that his butler feel himself capable of managing the routine of the household without disturbing its head to act as mediator or judge when others of the help become obstreperous or lax in their duties.

Meyers and I had never met before, and it is quite possible that we never shall again, for, in company with many thousands more of Chicagoans, my name is not on the preferred list of callers at the town or country residence of the Sterlings. Neither have I as yet glimpsed either mansion, for our talk took place amid the hubbub of THE TRIBUNE local room, whither Meyers had found his way when he learned that I, who wanted to know about butlers, would like to talk with him, who knew about butlers.

The Moneyed Class.

He was a bit suspicious at first, picking his conversational way with such caution that I sensed he was fearful of lending himself to any Town Tattle tactics in the ensuing article. Once convinced that such journalistic depravity was not contemplated, he relaxed and talked about himself and his work.

"I will wager," he told me, "that, man for man, the average butler can lay more money on the table than the ordinary man in any other line of work. Plenty of them have put away fortunes."

This was an interesting angle, though I refused to accept the wager, having no particular desire to make a donation to Meyers. There wouldn't even be a sporting element about that bet.

"For instance," he went on, "I know of one butler, here in Chicago, who had a horse entered in the Kentucky Derby."

"Correct," I acknowledged, "I've been hearing a little bit about butlers, and I've heard that one before. I know the one you mean."

"And," pursued Meyers, "there is one maid I know of, who has worked a long time here in this city and who is worth $40,000. And there are plenty of others I could name if I would—both maids and butlers—who have big bank accounts. That happens because they receive good wages; the average pay for a really good butler is anywhere between $150 and $200 a month. Then, of course, they haven't many expenses; their board and rent is paid, they do not go about much to spend their salary, and so they manage to accumulate money.

Playing the Tips.

"That's why I say that it is a good line of work if one wants to save and get ahead. I haven't yet found anything I could work at that would pay me so well.

"There are other ways of making money, too, you know. In these big houses you often get a tip about the market, and I know of plenty that have played and won."

"You mean their employers give them the tips?"

"Give them!" scoffed Meyers. "They give them nothing like that—you may overhear conversations, say nothing, and play the thing yourself. It only happens once in a while.

"Why, Mr. Sterling, for all his money, never plays the market himself. And he would not think of telling even his own friends if he suspects it will go a certain way. He doesn't go in for gambling in any form."

Meyers had a slight accent, for all his excellent English, that led to the inquiry as to how long he has been in this country. It proved to be only a matter of several years. He has lived in Chicago less than five years.

* *

His Lowly Beginning.

"What did you do before you took this place?" I asked him. "And how did you get your training for the job?"

He smiled a slow, reminiscent smile. "I was a salesman, but I couldn't sell," he confessed. "I spent a month at it and didn't make a cent. I'd been traveling in New York state, and I managed to get back to New York, completely broke. So—I took a job as dishwasher in one of the biggest of the hotels. And, just to show you what can be done in this country, in eighteen months I had become assistant to the head waiter. I didn't say so when I went to work, but I had done that sort of work in Europe, and I knew how.

"Then I thought I'd get into a home somewhere, and I did, working as butler for a family in the east for a little more than a year. After that I got a chance to come west, but I didn't like the place after I arrived, so I came to Chicago and tried a couple of others. Finally I got this one."

"And you like this position very much?"

His Period of Rest.

It was then that Meyers astonished me with the assertion he would prefer digging ditches. The sentiment, I feel confident, was individual and reflects only his own reaction to his work because of previous circumstances. He was not inclined to divulge much about his former life, but I gathered that his parents had enjoyed a comfortable living in Europe and that he had had advantages somewhat beyond other boys. He served with the allies during the war, and it was his experiences at that time, it seemed, that decided him to come to America.

"But the work can't be very hard," I hazarded, groping for the right kind of response to his unequivocal statement about his job. That proved to be wrong, too.

"Not hard? Why, I'm busy every minute," he retorted, more than half offended. "How could any one think a butler hasn't much to do There's a thousand things to keep you busy. Some people think all the work a butler does is in the dining room. That's nothing—nothing. I consider serving a meal an absolute relaxation. That's about the only time I get a chance to rest."

Apparently it was another case of the other fellow's job looking easy.

Going into Details.

"It's like this," Meyers went into detail for me. "You get the breakfast served and out of the way. You get into the butler's pantry and perhaps you take off your coat and have a big apron wrapped around you, to start cleaning the silver. Then the telephone rings. The telephone—it may be a convenience to other people, but it's just a nuisance to me!

"You answer the ring. Somebody wants to speak to somebody upstairs. All right! You take off the apron and put on your coat and go upstairs and tell the one that's wanted. You come back and get into the apron again. Then the telephone rings again, and it's all to be done over again. And it goes on that way one day after another.

"Then, of course, there's valeting to be done for any guests that may be staying in the house, and sometimes that is a big job. You can spend lots of time putting clothes in order and pressing them.

"You have the liquor to take care of, and to be sure the cigar and cigaret stock doesn't get low. If any is needed you make a note of it and see that it is bought.

"Another thing is the table linens and decorations. They must be changed every day. It would be simply unthinkable for the Sterling family to sit down to a dinner table with the same decorative scheme—flowers and linen—as was used the day before. And it keeps one going to achieve variety there.

No Time for Society.

"One good thing—of course, all these large estates are plentifully supplied with table service. There are closets packed with china, and tablecloths and napkins, and glassware, more than you would think one household could possibly use.

"Then, in addition to the things I mentioned, there is the usual routine of preparing relishes and salads and cocktails for the meals, and serving, and answering the bell, and carrying messages. No, you don't have any time for your own social life, I can tell you."

"Is the family much given to entertaining?"

"No, they're rather quiet. Once in a while a dinner party, but they prefer to have their friends to dinner a few at a time, which makes it easy for me. Unless it's a party of, say, fourteen persons or more, there is no extra help required.

"When we do need help, I phone around to my friends and borrow a footman or two for the evening. Most butlers do that, and practically all of us in this neighborhood know plenty of others. We hardly ever think of calling up an employment agency in such cases. It is only for the dinner they are needed, of course, and we get along very well.

Wining and Dining 'Em.

"Now, over in England the butler does no serving at all. He simply stands and directs the footmen. Only in rare cases does he place a dish of food, and then probably only before the master of the house. Under no condition would he touch a soiled dish. This is one reason why English butlers are so popular. They are well trained and know how to carry out elaborate service."

"You spoke of the liquor supply—I suppose you are, like most good butlers, a connoisseur of wines?"

"Well, I know a lot about them, and about mixing drinks. It's seldom you'll find a butler who doesn't drink, but the thing is to find one who doesn't get drunk. I don't."

"And I've heard that some of the north shore families are generous with bonuses at Christmas time."

"Yes, the Sterlings are, too. After one of the help has been there a certain time, they get bonuses of $100 every six months."

"Most of the positions on these estates are secured through employment agencies?"

"O, I don't know. There are about three of those agencies, all on the north side, that handle the bulk of that business. But a great many butlers get places by phoning around to their friends, who may know of some place. It isn't hard for a good butler to get a position."

There Isn't Any More.

Which checked precisely with what Meyers' colleagues, Judkins and Bush, previously had told me. It seemed suddenly to recall to Meyers that he had better be getting back on his own job. It terminated the interview and, there being no other tenant of a butler's pantry who appears willing to unburden his mind through the medium of this column,

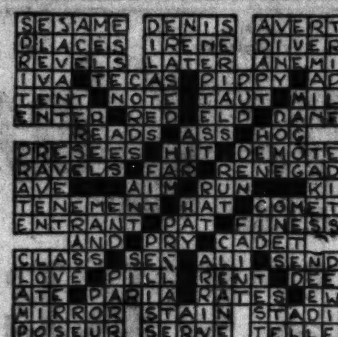
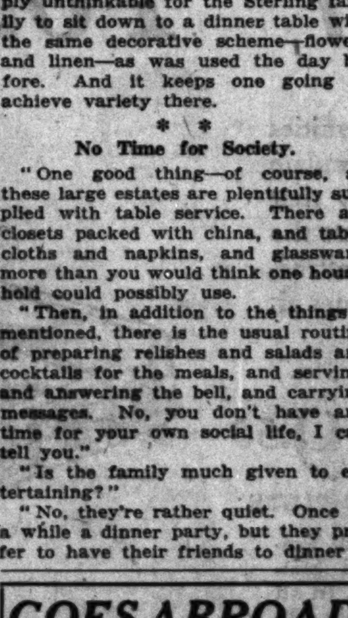
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE



GOES ABROAD



Miss Helen M. Bennett, originator and managing director of the Woman's World's Fair, which was given for the fourth successive year in May, will sail for Europe next Saturday to attend the Swiss national exhibition of feminine work, which has taken its inspiration from the Chicago woman's fair. The Berne fair will be held from Aug. 26 to Sept. 30.

ruinously than in the granting of loans.

"It is hard, sometimes," Miss Hansen admitted, "to have to refuse a loan to a person you feel needs it. But the bank comes first. You cannot jeopardize it to assuage your own feelings."

However, it is the personal element that has made her happy in her work.

"I have enjoyed it all the way," she said. "It is dealing not so much with money as with people."

* *

Gardening Her Hobby.

Her only regret is that she did not attend a university.

"If I had it to do over again, I would go to college," she said. "If you glean nothing else of later value to you from it, you learn how to think straight. We have a great many university graduates here, and on the whole they progress more rapidly than those who have not had their advantages."

But Miss Hansen does not believe that education alone will turn the trick.

"Women in banking," she said, "or men, for that matter, must have, primarily, good judgment and just plain common sense. They must be willing to work and work hard, along with other people.

"Because a bank's stated hours are short, people are inclined to think working in one is somewhat of a sinecure. But nearly everyone here comes early and works late."

She has found little time for things outside of business. It is not only her job, but her chief hobby. Just now she has taken up gardening. Her evenings are spent in the yard of the home she maintains with her mother and two sisters at 5846 North Kenton avenue. She raises no special variety of flower, but a little of everything.

"You know," she said, "I had the prettiest rosebush. It came into full bloom and then while it was blooming it suddenly died. I have never been able to figure out what was wrong."

Knows Her Neighborhood.

Miss Hanson has always lived on the northwest side. Since her duties are concerned with loans on real estate, a good deal of it located in that section her knowledge of the community stands her in good stead.

Three or four years ago she helped to organize a tiny group of women bank executives, tiny because there were only a few such in Chicago at the time.

"Now," she said, "we have thirty or forty members. I think that indicates that more and more women are going into banking and making a success of it."

She has none of the inaccessibility associated with the usual bank executive. She has not eschewed femininity to realize a man's success. The sympathetic virtues, however carefully checked by her undoubted good judgment, make her a person easy to talk with and happy to deal with.

I was shopping in a large department store and had the main part of my purchase charged on my mother's account, since at that time I did not have one of my own there. The last article which I bought, a sweater, for $9.75, I paid for with a $20 check of my own. I was in a hurry to get through with my shopping and went away, forgetting to wait for my change.

Imagine my surprise when, two days later, before I had checked up on the contents of my purse, I received a letter from the shopping service bureau of that store. This letter explained what I had done, contained my change, $10.25, and expressed the hope that my forgetfulness had not caused me any inconvenience or worry. My address had been obtained from my check and the reparation for my carelessness was made possible by the honesty of the saleswoman and the aid of the shopping service bureau.

I scarcely need say how grateful I have always felt toward that store; it now has my utmost confidence and my patronage. M. W. M.

Clerk Was Friendly.

Being a working girl, I am compelled to do my shopping after 5 o'clock. One day I walked into the shoe department of one of the large department stores. It was almost closing time. I noticed that several of the clerks attempted to dodge me, but one of them strode up to me and acted, as though it were a pleasure to wait upon me.

Before I had selected the shoes I desired the bell rang, which meant it was quitting time. The clerk seemed oblivious of the bell and gave me the same courteous service I would have received had I entered the department an hour earlier. In fact, he took great pains trying to please me.

I finally selected a pair of shoes. It is needless to say that this clerk has won my patronage. And I try to get in the store earlier so as not to keep him after hours.

Soldiers Joust in the Armor of Olden Days

STOCKHOLM. — (AP) — Jousting matches of the middle ages required brawn as well as brain to win, it has been proved at a reconstructed tournament staged in Stockholm, at which authentic armor and weapons were used by the combatants.

The swords, coats of mail and shields were copied from historic relics in the Stockholm museums and executed under the supervision of Dr. Ernst Klein.

Coats of mail reproduced from originals of the fourteenth century covered the entire bodies of the jousting "knights," and on their heads were placed helmets with visors. Broad swords, heavy shields and unwieldy lances completed the equipment. It took some two hours to enclose each fighter in his armor, which weighed about 110 pounds. The horses were clothed in gorgeous saddle cloths.

The participants were young officers of the Stockholm garrison.

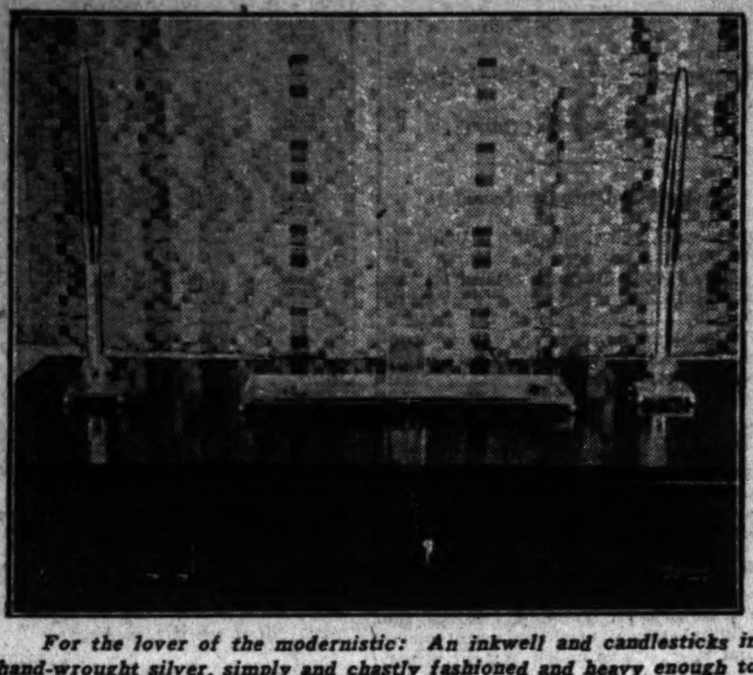
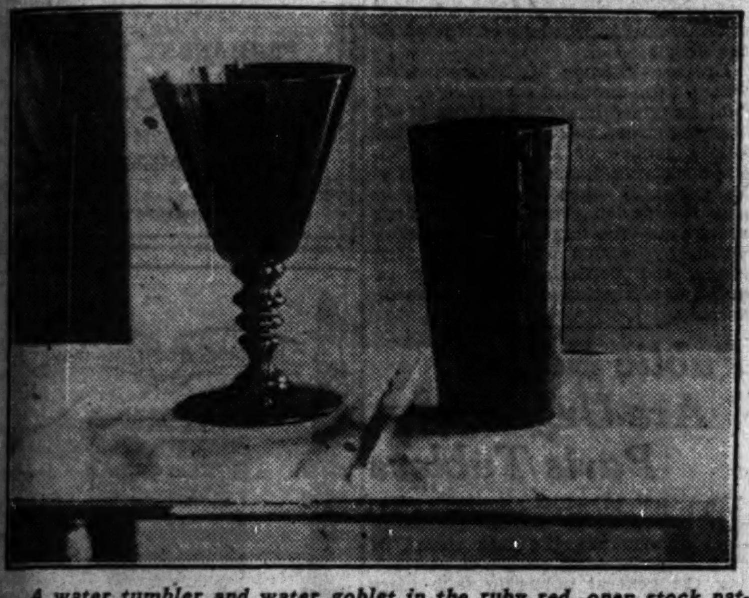
For Lovers of the Modernistic

Objects of Charm Fashioned in Silver, Pewter and Glass

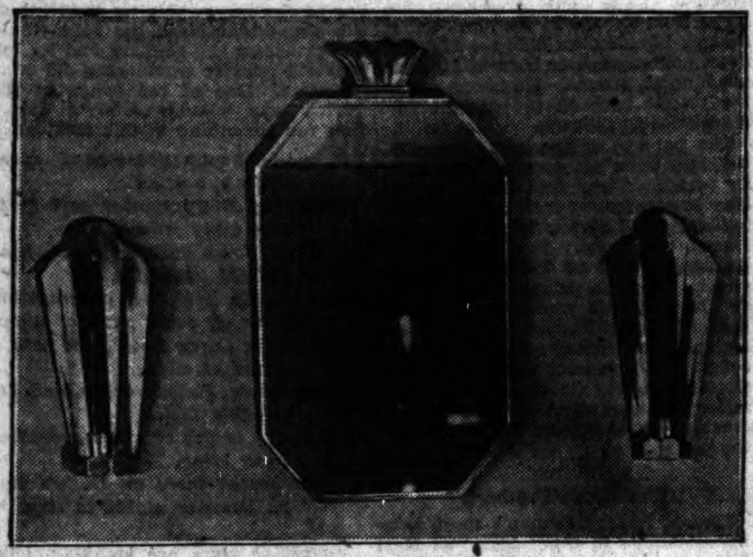
Glass from Sweden in a rare shade, almost black like black chiffon and as delicate in texture as old Venetian. The two beverage glasses are part of a complete set, but may be had separately.



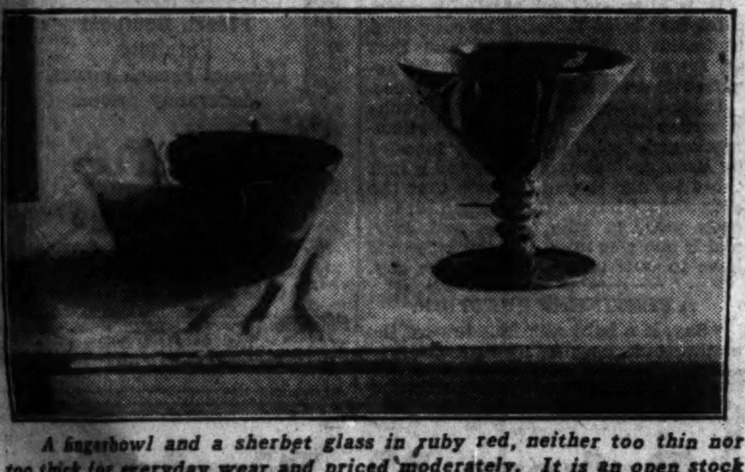
For the lover of the modernistic: An inkwell and candlesticks in hand-wrought silver, simply and chastly fashioned and heavy enough to be an heirloom of the future.



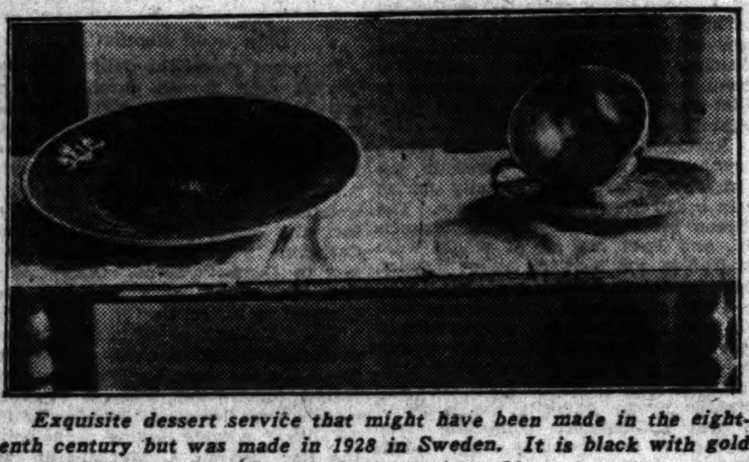
A water tumbler and water goblet in the ruby red, open stock pattern. This glass is exceptional for the price, as its quality as well as its color is excellent and its form beautiful.



A pewter mirror and candlesticks in modernistic manner. The design is so perfect that they would look well intermingled with the most beautiful of antique furniture.



A fingerbowl and a sherbet glass in ruby red, neither too thin nor too thick for everyday wear and priced moderately. It is an open stock pattern, most beautiful in color.

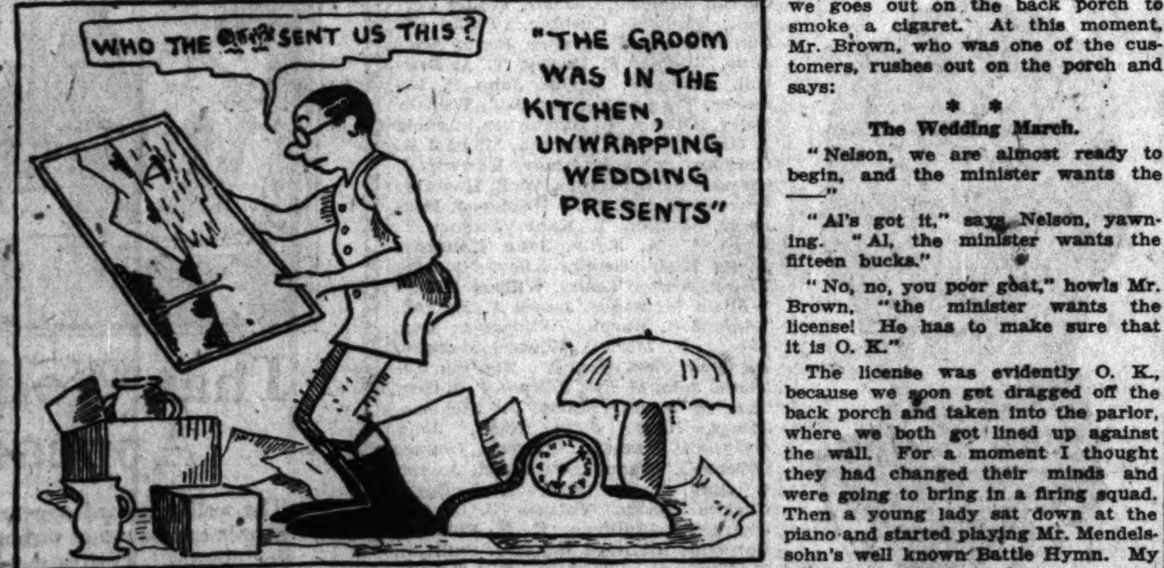


Exquisite dessert service that might have been made in the eighteenth century but was made in 1928 in Sweden. It is black with gold incrustations, and the coffee cup is lined with gold.

Al Watches the Handcuff Trick

Survives Two Wedding Ceremonies in One Day

By Snowshoe Al.



WHO THE @!#% SENT US THIS?
"THE GROOM WAS IN THE KITCHEN, UNWRAPPING WEDDING PRESENTS"

WELL, folks, yesterday was a very heavy day for me and the wife, because we attended two weddings. The first one was a church wedding and took place at 10 o'clock in the morning. The combatants were Miss Evelyn Burke versus Mr. C. L. McConnell, the big sash and door peddler. The second wedding was a quiet "home affair" and took place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This bout was between Miss Gisela Ostheimer and my friend, Mr. Iver Nelson.

We got up early in the morning and headed for the Burke-McConnell Skirmish. This battle had been widely advertised for several weeks—by Mr. McConnell, who must have spent about twelve dollars in nickels calling all his friends on the phone and offering suggestions as to acceptable wedding presents. He is one of them hombres what says:

"Now please don't go to any bother or expense on our behalf because, really, there ain't a thing we need—except a bedroom suite and an electric refrigerator an' a grand piano, and I would feel very embarrassed if any friend of mine should give us any of the above, as I don't think anybody should sink that much money into a mere wedding present. However, you will find the grand pianos advertised on page five of this morning's newspaper, an' page seven mentions a sale on electric refrigerators, etc."

Groom Was a Howl.

We arrived at the church a couple minutes past ten, and I have this much to say about the encounter: The church, the ceremony, and the bride were all very pretty, but the groom was positively a Howl of Anguish! He wore a claw hammer coat, gray striped panties, undertaker's gloves, a strangle collar and a look of anxiety. He reminded me of the guy what stands in front of the hotel entrance and opens the taxicab doors.

After the Handcuff Trick had been performed the happy couple paraded out of the church and stood on the sidewalk, where everybody rushed to congratulate them. Several people threw rice at them and I thought it was a good idea, so I says to my wife:

"Dearie, do you mind if I rush over to that Chinese restaurant across the street and buy some rice to slam at the groom?"

"Why go to all that trouble?" asks her; "why don't you ask one of these people to lend you a handful—they seem to have lots of it."

"They ain't throwing the kind I want," says I, galloping towards the restaurant; "I want to throw some boiled rice—in a heavy bowl!"

I am sorry to say, however, that the groom escaped in a taxi before I returned with the Mongolian Breakfast Food, so me and my Sparring Partner went home and made preparations to attend the Ostheimer-Nelson Quarrel.

"Don't forget," says the wife, "that we are going to stand up for the bridal couple, so please wash your face."

"My face is perfectly clean," howls me, "because I washed it this morning! What do you think I've been doing since then—rolling around on the sidewalk?"

"O, golly, I'm so thrilled!" chirps her. "I'm to be the matron of honor."

"Yeh?" snorts me. "What am I—the Monkey of Misfortune?"

"You always were," says my Sparring Partner; "however, kindly behave like a gentleman during the ceremony. Remember, you stand on the groom's right side an' the bride stands on his left side."

"Who stands on his other sides?" says me.

"How many sides do you think he's got, yuh poor simp?" says her.

"He's got two more sides," says me, "an inside and an outside! Har, har, we might as well surround the guy an' make a complete job of it. By the way, let's get over there early, so I can sit in a corner an' look dejected."

"What's the idea?" says she.

"Well," says I, "how could the bride's father gaze upon my sad features an' resist the temptation to offer me a drink—if he's got it?"

Opening the Presents.

We reaches the Ostheimer residence about four o'clock and I get handed a rather strange job. It seems as how the bridal couple have already furnished a nice little four room apartment only two blocks away, and the groom is over there taking a bath and changing clothes, etc., and it is my duty to go there and stay with him until almost five o'clock, at which time I drag him back to Ostheimer's and surrender him to the minister, or the sheriff, or whoever wants him. So I breezes over to the cute little apartment and greets the groom. He is wearing a scowl and a suit of underwear and is standing in the kitchen opening packages which contain wedding presents. Every time he lamps an article which don't appeal to him he uses abusive language.

"Your wife will kill you for opening those presents," says I; "it's her privilege to open them. You better keep your paws off the rest of 'em."

Figures Up Cost.

"I'm only going to open one more," says he; "I want to see what's in this large flat package," so he opened it and dragged forth a painting which was about five feet long and two feet wide.

"$@$@$@$@$@!!" says he. "Who the hell sent us that piece of junk?"

"I did," says me.

"O," says he, turning red; "ah, yes. It's real pretty, and I like it very much! We shall always cherish it."

"$@$@$@$@$@$@$@!" says I. "Go put some clothes on—I'm supposed to deliver your carcass at five o'clock sharp. Give me the ring! Hurry up aand get shaved!

"How much money for the minister?" says Nelson.

"He's entitled to at least fifteen dollars," says I, "because all ministers are underpaid."

Whereupon the groom grabbed a pencil and started to figure how much the wedding was costing him. Then he added up the estimated value of the wedding presents and compared the two totals.

"$@$@$@$@$@!!" howls he; "we ain't even making 6 per cent profit!"

Well, at exactly five o'clock I drags this hombre into the Ostheimer home and, believe me, his knees was rattling; in fact, he sounded like somebody exercising a pair of dice. There were about two dozen customers present, including the minister, so we shook hands with all of 'em. Then we goes out on the back porch to smoke a cigaret. At this moment, Mr. Brown, who was one of the customers, rushes out on the porch and says:

* *

The Wedding March.

"Nelson, we are almost ready to begin, and the minister wants the ——"

"Al's got it," says Nelson, yawning. "Al, the minister wants the fifteen bucks."

"No, no, you poor goat," howls Mr. Brown, "the minister wants the license! He has to make sure that it is O. K."

The license was evidently O. K., because we soon got dragged off the back porch and taken into the parlor, where we both got lined up against the wall. For a moment I thought they had changed their minds and were going to bring in a firing squad. Then a young lady sat down at the piano and started playing Mr. Mendelssohn's well known Battle Hymn. My wife soon arrived on the scene carrying about eighteen dollars' worth of roses. [I don't know yet who paid for them—she didn't get 'em from me.] The bride now enters the room leaning on the arm of her father. There's a real guy! He can give a daughter away with more grace and dignity than any one else I've ever seen. [Advertisement.]

The ceremony lasted about twenty minutes, which is much longer than the poor groom's knees lasted; in fact, I was supporting him during the final five minutes.

My wife is still wondering how I did it on my income!

Dr. Beck Gives Impression of Soviet Russia

Finds Effort to Display Regime at Best.

In his letter last week Dr. Beck told of conditions as he found them in wartorn China and of his trip toward Moscow. Herewith he continues the account of his travels abroad.

By Dr. Carl Beck.

DR. CARL BECK.

MOSCOW itself affords a very interesting study. We gained a special permit to stay a week, a very unusual grant, which we appreciated very much. We were everywhere treated with the most appreciated courtesy. It seemed to me that from the highest official down to the ordinary servant everybody was interested in showing soviet Russia in good light.

Everything from the little store to the large department store, from the little inn to the most palatial hotel, is under government control and conducted by the government. There is hardly any private enterprise.

The tourist agency which is selling us our tickets and provides for us the hotel space is a government institution. A government official takes charge of us as a guide from the moment we arrive until the moment we leave. He goes with us to the theater and to dinner. He shows us the museums and he goes with us on an excursion in the country. He answers willingly all our questions and explains to us truthfully and frankly all matters of interest.

Everybody, it seems, is in the government's pay, and although the salary is very low, they must get along on it.

Salesmen Indifferent.

In the stores they had goods to sell, but the salesman did not care very much whether we bought or not. He did not seem to be inspired by any desire to sell his goods. He was a government employé.

The hotel was also run by the government. The servants of the hotel were rather independent, but they did their work, and it seemed to me that they were very glad to take tips, although I was told that tipping had been abolished by the government.

Everything seemed to me very expensive, comparing the prices with our own. An apple was twenty cents, an orange thirty cents. A dinner, which would cost at one of our best hotels a couple of dollars, was about three dollars and more, and a theater ticket on the ground floor of the large opera house was $3.50.

Sees Marvelous Opera.

By the way, the opera was marvelous. The theater was grand, its staging gorgeous, there were most fascinating costumes and a wonderful ballet. One feature surprised me—the continuous tendency to implant soviet propaganda into every line of endeavor. We witnessed a lovely ballet performance at the opera which had as a theme of its libretto the freeing of the Chinese coolies from the fetters of their oppressors by joining the red flag.

Likewise, there was an immense market in dozens of book stalls and tents in which soviet and kindred books were sold at very low prices to the public. They were eagerly bought by crowds of young people. Nobody else is allowed to print but the government.

Fine Art Galleries.

Although the largest collections of art and particularly paintings in Russia are in Leningrad, Moscow has quite a number of the most comprehensive and rich art galleries and museums. They are conducted in an excellent manner—real show places for the tourists of whom however there seem to be very few in the city. But their own people, especially the children and peasants, attended in large numbers and they had guides and teachers who explained and answered questions.

I inquired from one of the directors whether these collections dated back to the imperial times, and I was told that a nucleus had really been formed then, but that most of the pieces had been brought together lately after being confiscated from the rich people's homes following the revolution.

This was exemplified to me particularly in one case which seemed to me so remarkable and so pathetic that I wish to relate it in detail.

Courteously Received.

I was introduced to one of the highest officials of the government, and was received in a most courteous manner by him. Although he could not speak English and our conversation had to be carried on through an interpreter, he seemed a most intellectual and extremely well posted gentleman. His office was a model of organization.

This gentleman called one of his adjutants, a woman physician, whose department was dealing with the information about foreign affairs of science and the contact with foreign guests and their treatment. Both were very well posted regarding the matter which I discussed with them, namely the possibility of a visit of American physicians and surgeons for the purpose of studying the progress which the country had made in the last few years in those lines.

Both seemed very favorable to a project of that kind and expressed the desire to invite especially those who would be designated for such a purpose and who are the representative men of their profession. They offered to assure free entrance and visa and facilities.

A Pathetic Incident.

After discussing medicine in general she insisted that I must see particularly two places in Moscow; one of general interest, a porcelain gallery and ceramic collection, such as no other city can boast of, and another unique institution, something that would interest me as a doctor, a government institution of welfare, taking care of mother and child.

It was the porcelain gallery which evoked in me the sentiment of pity and sympathy. The woman doctor told me she would have the director of the gallery show me the porcelain exhibit and she made such an appointment. At the precise hour we drove up in front of a most magnificent building, evidently a former palace.

We walked up a beautiful marble staircase, and I was met by an old gentleman who was very shabbily dressed but very refined looking and with exquisite manners and who addressed me in an elegant French and told me he was the guide who was ordered to interpret to me the art exhibit.

He showed it with a great deal of expert knowledge and pointed out the most important porcelain pieces, among the thousands of precious specimens of the rarest kind, arranged in cases by periods of production and origin.

The Prince Himself.

It was a collection of such beauty and magnitude as I have never seen before, and which I think has no equal. I asked who had brought these pieces together. The man immediately became silent, looked about to see if anybody listened, and, with a good deal of emotion which showed me that he did not like to answer, finally said that it was a man by the name of Morosoff.

"Ah," I said, "I heard the name Morosoff mentioned several times. He was a prince and was one of the richest men in old Russia. No wonder that he had such a marvelous collection."

The gentleman looked away, then scrutinized my face and suddenly said he would like to show me one of Morosoff's finest private apartments, his library. It was a most remarkable room built like a gothic chapel with most artistic carvings and precious wood ornaments, fresco paintings of Goethe's Faust in different phases of the poem with figures of Mephistopheles, Gretchen and others. I had a suspicion now, and it was confirmed by the official guide, that our informant was Prince Morosoff himself who was now a pauper and was living in the cellar of his former palace and acting as a guide of his collection. What a sad commentary on the vicissitudes of life!

But we hurry away to another picture, to the institution of welfare for mother and child to which the soviet can point with a great deal of pride. It is located in a large complex of buildings erected by Catherine II., two hundred years ago, and which were used during the invasion of Napoleon I. as a French hospital.

It is a colossal square of structures built around a park, each building equipped for a department of study and investigation and for the care of normal and sick children, normal and sick mothers.

By appointment I was met by the chiefs of the departments, and each one explained to me his particular work of research and study. One was studying physiology, another pharmacology, another biology, another clinical symptoms or rare diseases of children from birth to the age of fourteen, still another one radiology, and so on through all the branches of medicine.

They all receive a very small remuneration from the government, and every one asked me whether it would not be possible to come to the United States, at least for a time to study the advancement and progress in our country.

Worthy of Imitation.

They had one feature which interested me particularly. It was the exhibit of models and pictures so practical and so well designed for popular enlightenment that it ought to be imitated in America. It showed the origin of children's diseases, their propagation and their prevention, and I wish that some of our pediatric confrères would come here and study this in detail and bring the ideas home for improvement and progress.

I was told that this institution, which must cost an enormous amount of money, is being kept up by raising the funds from the sale of antiques and art pieces and jewelry in the stores of Moscow—objects which have been confiscated from former rich people.

Meets With Surgeons.

I had the pleasure and honor to be invited to the Congress of Surgeons of Russia which was held at the time I was in Moscow. I met some of the older gentlemen whom I had seen and met years before the war at different congresses. The scientific meeting was interrupted when I came, and the chairman presented me to the attending surgeons as coming from America.

There was a tremendous applause and I was asked to take a seat near the president. I appreciated the fact that this enthusiasm and distinction was not for me personally but for the surgery of the country which I was representing, and I thanked the president in the name of American surgery.

From these doctors I learned authoritatively and truthfully some things which may interest our public at large. First of all that we had a wrong impression about the frivolity and easy contract of marriage in Russia. It is not easily contracted, but easily dissolved, much easier than in our country.

The couple desiring to be married must bring witnesses to the magistrate, proving that they are unattached, and if this statement is proven false the parties and their witnesses are severely punished. But it is the easiest thing, I was told, for a man to leave his wife, much easier than to get rid of a servant.

In case of divorce the man is obliged to take care of the children as long as they are minors, and since he is on the pay roll of the government it is easy for the court to take the adequate amount out of his salary for the maintenance of the children. The state takes care of the children born out of wedlock.

Sanitary conditions are very well taken care of. All the people are offered free medical treatment, if they wish to have it. The doctors are in government employ, but I was told that those who wish to be treated well nevertheless pay the doctors for their services.

At Tomb of Lenin.

The old Kremlin is now occupied by the government could not be mfw visited. In front of it is the celebrated and highly interesting tomb of Lenin. We were inspired when we saw the throng of thousands of people who lined up at eight o'clock in the evening four abreast, to pass through the mausoleum in order to get a glimpse of the man who was responsible for such stupendous changes in Russia.

Our government official guide stepped up to the soldier guarding the entrance, whispered something into his ear and this man, by a motion of his hand, stopped the procession and allowed our party to step in ahead of others. This was a courtesy which I had not expected.

The sight one beholds in that small glass enclosure below is a most impressive and solemn one. Here he lies, almost living, almost talking, that little man, in color so natural, with a strong electric illumination of his features, so that it seems he would rise any moment and address the crowd. I could hardly believe that this was the real dead Lenin, so natural did he look.

Although I should like to have stayed a little longer and studied the conditions of Moscow a little more in detail, we were obliged to leave for Warsaw, the metropolis of the new Polish republic. On the border line we were once more inspected thoroughly. We were relieved of every penny of Russian money and were given a receipt for it which we could cash when we returned to Russia. Exchange of Russian money into Polish or other currency was not permitted.

Warsaw is beautiful and full of interest. Its palaces, its churches, its public and private buildings are in great contrast to what we saw in Russia. Private business is flourishing and everything breathes an air of progress. Warsaw has good schools of learning, a university and great hospitals, and the surgeons who received me were all anxious to welcome our American men next year when the International congress meets there.

I left Warsaw for Vienna. Delightful Vienna! It looks like a paradise after our long trip. At last we live in harmony and with harmonies. Music everywhere. Beautiful spring time. After a few days on the Semering and in Vienna we take up a rest of a few weeks in Bad-Gastein in order to return refreshed to Chicago which, after all, is the best of the cities I have found in the whole circle of the globe.

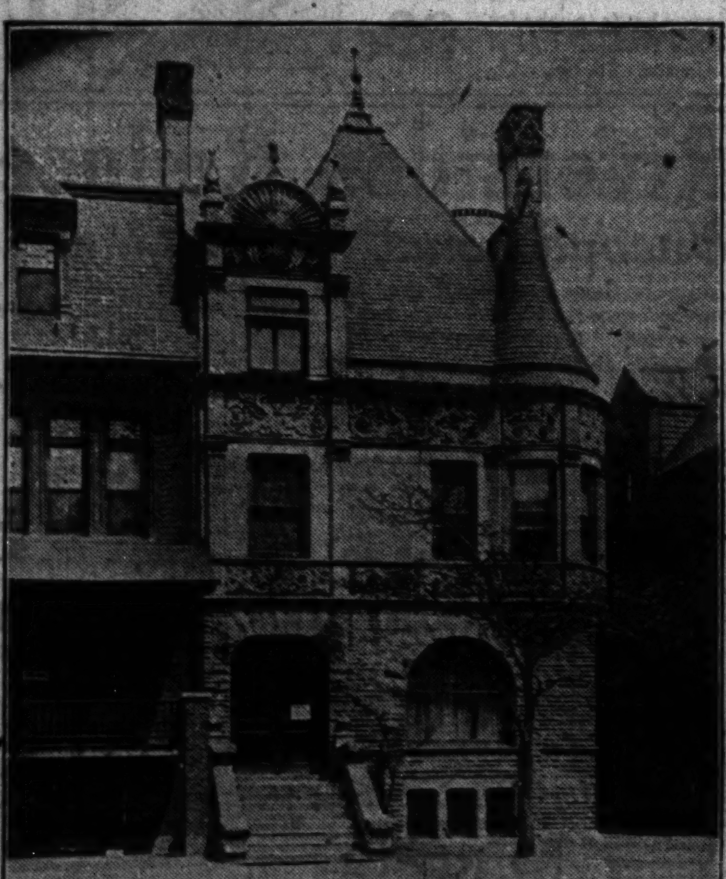
FAMOUS HOMES



THIS residence at 2919 Prairie avenue was filled with rare pictures and precious books when the family of Frank G. Logan made it their home. The prominent broker, who retired from the Board of Trade after twenty-five years' toying with bulls and bears, desired that others should share his enjoyment in art treasures and remains active in the encouragement of enterprises at the Art institute. The Logans now live at 1150 Lake Shore drive.

"Valley's" Past Shines Through Cloud of Today

Famous District Boasts Honored Record.

son several years, the Rev. Patrick A. Murphy was not born in Chicago. His father, Daniel Murphy, settled on the prairie before the coming of Father Damen, and was one of the latter's most ardent supporters. Father Murphy was one of the assistant pastors before the fire of '71.

* *

Remember "Father Jim."

Without attempting to set down in chronological form the entrance of young men of Holy Family parish upon a career dedicated to God's service, the list is continued.

The Rev. William P. Whelan and his brother, the Rev. John Whelan, were born at Fourteenth place and Racine avenue. Henry street was the original name of Fourteenth place and later it was called Wright street. Thomas and Joseph Egan, both of whom became Jesuit priests, were born at Fourteenth place and Morgan street.

The Rev. George P. Shanley, son of Thomas Shanley, an old-time Maxwell street policeman, was born at Maxwell and Morgan streets. He is one of the few priests born in the district who is assigned to Chicago.

The parents of the Rev. James L. McGeary were pioneers of Holy Family parish. Their first home was on May street, from which they removed to Taylor and Sholto, where their son, James, was born. The family made its final hegira to Taylor and Lytle streets, in which neighborhood "Father Jim" is still remembered. After his ordination Father McGeary was assigned as professor in St. Ignatius college. Besides his other duties he directed the Boy Choristers, an organization that earned an enviable name in musical circles beyond the confines of the parish.

The Breen Brothers.

One of Father Damen's most helpful assistants in early days was Matt Donoher, whose son John J. entered the priesthood. The Donoher family lived on 12th street, east of Canal, before the fire.

The Rev. John S. Ragor was a son of Andrew Ragor, who before the era of horse cars operated a bus line. Ragor omnibuses ran from Clark and Madison streets to Lincoln park; Wabash avenue and Madison street to 31st street, and on 12th street from State to Ashland avenue.

Rarely does it happen that three brothers dedicate their lives to the priesthood, but Holy Family parish can boast of such a triumvirate. The Breen brothers, Aloysius A., Francis X. and Paul M., all of whom were reared in the Maxwell street district, became Jesuit fathers.

Lytle street was a favorite gathering place in the days for the youth of the neighborhood. Charles Comiskey, owner of the White Sox ball club, lived on this street between 12th and Taylor nearly opposite the home of "Karl" Gardiner, comedian, who wrote the once popular song, "Little Bunch of Lilacs."

* *

"Paddy Duffy's Cart."

Several young men who became priests were reared on Lytle street and were boyhood companions of Comiskey and Gardiner. It is recalled by one of the few remaining residents of the street that often the boys would foregather in the evening and an improvised quartet would sing old time favorites. One of the songs of the period was "Paddy Duffy's Cart" that ran something in this fashion:

"O, many happy evenings I spent
when but a lad
On Paddy Duff's lumber cart quite
safe away from dad:
It stood down on the corner, near
the old lamplight,
You should see the congregation
there on every summer night.
There was Larry Dooley, he was a friend of mine,
Fatty Green, Jimmie Creen, and little Abie Klein.
All merry boyish comrades, recollec-
tions bring,
While seated there on Duffy's cart
on summer nights to sing.

Twinkling stars are laughing, love,
laughing at you and me—
While you, bright eyes, looking, love, twinkling stars they seemed to be."

Bore Good Reputation.

In recent years, the daily press has teemed with stories chronicling the activities of certain individuals who, incorrectly, were described as being natives of the "Valley." According to these newspaper accounts the "Valley" comprised half of the Maxwell street district. As a matter of fact the original "Valley" was old Catherine street, from Stewart avenue to Center avenue. Many years ago the name of the street was changed to Fifteenth.

The "Valley" of olden days bore a good reputation, for the people who dwelt therein were hardworking, God-fearing men and women. Several priests were born on the edge of the "Valley," notably among them being the Rev. Joseph A. McLaughlin, the Rev. James G. Dellhant, the Egan brothers and the Whelan brothers.

Grew Up in District.

Space does not permit a detailed account of other Jesuit or secular priests who were born or reared in the district, but some of the names follow:

R. J. Brown, S. A. Blackmore, William Corboy, Andrew Carr, Joseph Curran, James J. Corbley, Walter Cornell, Michael Cushing, Philip C. Dunne, Joseph Donnellan, Joseph Donahue, William F. Dooley, T. A. Driscoll, James V. Devlin, John P. Esmaker, Thomas S. Fitzgerald, William Foley, Gilbert J. Garraghan, Arnold J. Garvy, Joseph Georgen, Michael H. Gorman, John I. Grace, Edward J. Gleason, James Hynes, W. S. Hagerty, Ignatius Hamill, J. M. Heeney, J. Hennessy, William T. Kane, Terence T. Kane, T. A. Kelly, John Kennedy, James Kiely, George Kiley, Nicholas Liston, George Leahy, William Millay, William M. Magee, James A. Meskell, Edmund S. Murphy, William A. Murphy, J. F. Mortell, Edward Maguire, Aloysius McCormick, Thomas J. Moore, John Morris, Edward F. Maher, Thomas Neate, Simon J. Nicholas, James Nash, John Nash, John O'Byran, Francis O'Bryan, James O'Connell, Edmund O'Connell, Joseph C. Quill, A. G. Quill, M. J. Ryan, Charles Smith, Thomas J. Smith, Charles P. Sullivan, E. P. Sullivan, Cornelius Sullivan, James J. Sullivan, William D. Tierney, T. Tracey, Thomas F. Wallace, and William J. Wallace.

Served as Altar Boys.

All of the foregoing served as altar boys at Holy Family church, and many of them returned to celebrate their first mass amidst boyhood scenes before being assigned to scholastic or missionary work.

Besides those listed, several young men who were born in the district are now studying for the priesthood in ecclesiastical institutions conducted by the Jesuit order.

Brother Thomas M. Mulkerins, to whom I am indebted for much of the data contained in these memoirs of old Maxwell street, recently celebrated the golden jubilee of his affiliation with the Society of Jesus. As sacristan of Holy Family church since 1883, he saw the parish grow to 25,000 communicants—the largest in the world—which by exodus of the Irish, Germans, and Bohemians has been reduced to a fraction of its former membership.

HONORED

The Rev. Thomas M. Mulkerins, S. J., who supplied much of the data in the memoirs of old Maxwell street contained in the accompanying article, recently celebrated the golden jubilee of his affiliation with the Society of Jesus.

THE SONG IS ENDED

THE hand organ man, having reached Howard street in his wanderings, has decided that, with the evening shadows beginning to fall, he will call it a day. He has covered his cart with canvas and the tunes which have enlivened the city streets are stilled until tomorrow.

Public Baths Are Urged for Paris Tubless

PARIS.—(AP)—Plans for wider distribution of public baths in France are the last resort of those seeking means of persuading the general public to take more baths. A majority of French houses of the poor and lower middle classes are built without tubs and there is little hope of installing them.

It is suggested by bath tub advocates that large factories be compelled to install bathing facilities and that all towns of 8,000 population be required to erect a municipal bathhouse.

In discussing the lack of bath tubs a writer recalls that at the aristocratic girls' school at St. Cyr founded by Mme. de Maintenon two and a half centuries ago it was the rule that the girls should have "three great baths" each year, in May, June, and July, and if one was missed the pupil would have to wait until the next bath day.

French Barber Wins World Waving Title

PARIS.—(AP)—M. Paul Gonty, ladies' hairdresser of the Rue Jouffroy, won the world title for permanent waving with a record of 18 minutes and 25 seconds.

Gonty was a former titleholder with a record of 23 minutes until Guglielmi of Moyeuvre-Grande waved a young lady in 20 minutes and 5 seconds. Gonty achieved his great feat by manipulating 25 irons at once.

Despite the superior results the price is most reasonable.

240 U. S. Radio Stations Giving Aid to Farmers

Introducing Up to Date Methods.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—During the fiscal year just closed more than one-third of the radio stations of the United States lent their facilities to the department of agriculture for the dissemination of timely information for farmers and housewives, according to Moose Salesbury, chief of the radio service of the department. Daily or more frequent weather forecasts were transmitted by 181 stations; 107 stations carried schedules of farm market news broadcasts, running in some instances to 12 periods daily; and 149 stations sent to their listeners one or more of the 10 educational features supplied by the Radio Service. Excluding duplications, 240 of the 700 American stations broadcast one or more of the department of agriculture services.

"Spot news" of weather and markets and general educational broadcasts all were used by farmers who go the radio way. One listener wrote: "Radio has helped me put up better hay by giving weather forecasts. Also by the feed prices whereby one can buy feed accordingly. I had a litter of ailing pigs this winter and got the lesson in question and answer form and it happened to be a case like mine, resulting in a complete cure at a big gain as I got them on the market in good shape."

Effective Educational Means.

A significant feature of the radio relation to farming during the last year was that the agricultural statisticians began to take measure of the newcomer's place in the broad field of introducing better farming and homemaking practices. One extension survey in Kansas is typical of the findings of the figure hounds.

Federal and state extension workers talked with 532 farm families in two typical Kansas counties. They found that 188 of the families had radio receiving sets. Radio broadcasts received on these sets had caused directly the adoption of 156 different improved farming and homemaking practices—19 per cent of all improved practices adopted on the 532 farms in the 9 years since extension work began in the two counties. Another way of gauging radio's effectiveness in this instance is to compute the percentage of farmers having a chance to hear radio broadcasts who got something of practical application from them. This calculation shows that 34.8 per cent of the farmer listeners put radio information to work—or one in each three "exposed to radio education."

Considering the fact that radio has been at work in these communities not more than 5 years, and to any extent—as measured by number of farm owned receivers—for much less than that period, these figures indicate that radio is now and will increasingly be a most effective means of agricultural education.

Crystallizes Thought.

The rapid development of chain broadcasting is bringing further opportunities of unifying rural thought and action. One of the most striking demonstrations of what may be done along this line took place last month. Arranged by the Radio Service and extension service of the department of agriculture and the National Broadcasting company, a national radio night for 4-H clubs—an organization of 600,000 farm boys and girls—was broadcast from Washington on Saturday evening, June 23. Twenty-three stations affiliated with the National Broadcasting company sent this one hour program to some 300,000 club members and leaders as well as the usual audience of broadcast listeners. Each club group, meeting locally, heard music by the Navy band, and an address by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and the story of her club work told by a club girl. At the conclusion of the hour, the 300,000 rose along with the 150 national club champions in Washington, and repeated the club pledge, sang the club song, and stood at attention while the Navy band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

This new accomplishment of the radio art holds promise of similar spectacular events for the future. Meanwhile the information programs of the federal department and of the state extension services go on through the coöperation of broadcasting stations. The radio service schedule for 1928-29 includes, as in the past, program features for homemakers, for farmers, for farm boys and girls, and for city dwellers who do their farming in the back yard.

Broadcast of Dem Convention Set at $1.15 Per Second

Spending $1.15 a second to broadcast the Democratic national convention, the National Broadcasting company and associated stations are believed to have set a new high record in radio public service, according to M. H. Aylesworth, president of NBC.

The Democratic convention was on the air for a total of 25 hours and the total cost of the broadcast over the coast to coast network of 43 radio stations was $104,000, or $27,000 more than the cost of the Republican convention broadcast.

"While it is true that a few shorter programs have cost more per second than the Democratic convention report, these broadcasts have been commercially sponsored," Aylesworth said. "The convention broadcasts, on the other hand, were paid for by NBC and associated radio stations and were not revenue producing.

"We believe that the broadcasts of the Republican and Democratic conventions are outstanding examples of the service radio can render the nation as a whole."

The cost of $1.15 per second is arrived at by reducing the 25 hours to 90,000 seconds of time on the air at a total cost of $104,000.

The cost of broadcasting both conventions, shared by NBC and associated stations, was $181,000.

BIRD IMITATOR.

Bird imitations by Walter Bayley over the radio in England have been so accurate and amazing that more than one critic has accused him of concealing some instrument in his mouth.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN A. RYAN.

THE movie industry is all agog over the bewildering popularity of the talking pictures. And at the same time the news comes daily that moving pictures by radio are near in the offing. Gosh, what is it all coming to?

When the talking movies are broadcast over the radio and when football games can bee seen as well as heard in the radio horn, what will we announcers do then, poor things? A phonograph record can be inserted every half hour to announce what radio station it is—and then there will be no use for announcers at all.

How the public loves tricks and novelties! A few preliminary skits prior to a feature picture—Will Hays making a speech, Elsie Janis crooning a song, Martinelli gesticulating and singing Vesti la Guibba — and there is a great whoopie from the audience. That was the program of the first talking movie we saw. Later, we understand, a few scenes of some of the big films were made vocal, with well known movie actors speaking lines. Now, Mae Tinee says, the big boys of the industry are calling back new releases to add a few audible effects to them, by means of the records, such as the shouts of the baseball crowd and similar incidental sounds. It is predicted that very soon all films will be speakeasies—and even now "doubles" are speaking the lines of a rôle when the movie actor is lacking a good voice.

THIS IS STATION B.L.A.H. BROADCASTING FROM THE WHOZIS HOTEL

We remember seeing and hearing the talking pictures in Chicago about fifteen years ago, and we wonder what has occasioned their sudden vogue at present and what has kept them hidden all these years, except the slow work on the synchronization of tone and image on the same record-film, or film-record.

Audible movies are with us at last, but we suspect that it will be fifteen years more before movies will be broadcast, save in spectacular experiments. Despite the current stories and rumors, we feel that their widespread commercialization is a long way off.

It would seem that the lively arts are becoming strictly mechanical. First came the phonograph, in which the artist's voice and his instrumental music were delivered in reproduction and by which the artist drew farther away from the actual presence of his audience. Then came the mechanical piano, in which the artist's piano roll played for him by proxy. Later came the radio, by means of which the artist's auditors sit in their homes thousands of miles from his concert hall or platform and rarely, if ever, see him in the flesh.

The movies, once a mechanical contrivance serving only one of the five senses, now develop a further mechanical appeal to another of the senses. In turn, the radio proposes to broadcast moving pictures of events simultaneously with their occurrence or shortly following. Then will come, as a labor saving device for the artist, the broadcasting of the audible movies, perhaps; listeners at home will see and hear the great violinist in the recital he offered a week previous, a thousand miles away. It's a fascinating and bewildering cycle. The next evening the audience can hear and see him again, in the same recital, while the artist grows fat and inept from lack of practise and activity.

Follow the course of thought farther, if you will. We will not need to go to Louisville to enjoy the Kentucky Derby. We have it now in our theaters in picture and in sound. Some day these same pictures and sounds will be transmitted into our homes simultaneously with the running of the Derby, just as the story and the noises are broadcast at present. We will not have to move from our firesides to see and hear the world series, or the Olympic games or the senate in action, if any.

The Niagara Falls can be enjoyed at home by radio, in flashing movies and roaring sound. Why travel abroad, when the Alps and the pyramids can be broadcast to us? The inventions in transportation and communication have banished distances and barriers, but when that day comes, probably the inventors will have gone too far; when we can see and hear any one and any place in the world without moving from our homes, there will no longer be need of traveling. The world will be only as large as Hop o' My Thumb, and all things will be transparent. When we can see and hear over oceans and through mountains, woe to the people who live in glass houses!

But mostly, it looks bad for the artists. Will there be mechanical or orchestral accompaniments to the movies? Will the radio programs be canned material, broadcast over and over again? Will there be any attendance at baseball games, or theaters or concert halls?

The world will be brought plop! into the homes and we may become more sedentary than ever.

The musical artists will become hermits. They will be seen and heard, but never met. What is now called a lively art—music and dancing, for instance, which require a repetition every time they are enjoyed by their patrons, as contrasted to painting and sculpture—the lively arts will be no longer lively. A singer need sing his song only once or a violinist need play his theme on only one record, and his audience may listen to him and watch him the rest of his lifetime.

The audible movies are with us, and the audible movies over the radio are somewhere in the future. But, as one of the Black Crows used to say, why bring that up?

Lessons in Auction Bridge

BY R. M. ROGERS.

ARTICLE XVIII.

From Wisconsin we received a rare hand with this request: "Please tell me how this hand should be bid and what would be the probable score." When we gave the answer we asked how it had been handled and the interesting reply was, "The hand was played at a duplicate bridge club—going out north bid up to three diamonds and made 3 odd. On the return play the north hand bid one N. T., east bids hearts and the bidding continued until 5 hearts had been bid and doubled—and when played resulted in a loss of seven hundred points on tricks alone." How this was done was not explained. The hands were as follows; north being the dealer:

S—A, K, 10, 7.
H—10, 8, 4.
D—A, J, 10, 4, 2.
C—A.

S—8.
H—K, Q, 7, 5.
D—9, 8, 7, 3.
C—J, 9, 4, 2.

N.
W. E.
S.

S—J, 6, 3.
H—A,J,9,6,3,2.
D—5.
C—Q, 8, 7.

S—Q, 9, 5, 4, 2.
H—None.
D—K, Q, 6.
C—K, 10, 6, 5, 3.

The first play started with a bid of one diamond, which is the most practical bid of the north hand, and with the hope that south will bid hearts and permit a no trump bid on the second round, but west defensively is entitled to bid one heart and does so. South assisted the diamond bid and west probably passed, not having the necessary number of tricks to support the heart bid. North goes to 3 diamonds and east passes, having no assistance from partner.

This was sensible bidding, but poor play followed if north and south only took nine tricks as reported.

If east opens with the ace of hearts, how north and south can play the hand and make only three diamonds is a mystery.

The second time the hand was played, east would bid hearts over either a no trump or diamond bid by north, and west must have supported on the supposition that his singleton spade and four diamonds would enable him to trump but his hand does not contain the four tricks required to support partner on the first round, and he can support east but once on any subsequent round.

The bidding by north and south with diamonds as trumps was sound up to five without showing the spades—and there is a grand slam for north and south with either diamonds or spades as trump. The bidding to show the full strength of north and south should have been one of the following:

N.	E.	S.	W.
1 D.	1 H.	1 S.	P.
2 S.	P.	P.	P.
1 D.	1 H.	2 D.	P.
P.	2 H.	3 D.	P.
P.	P.
1 N.T.	2 H.	2 S.	P.
P.	P.

The fact that cards lie so that a slam can be made cannot be known by the bidders but north can count 10 tricks on his diamond bid by merely crediting his partner with the four tricks that were shown by his support on the first round. The play of the hand given today makes a grand slam easy to accomplish at either spades or diamonds.

If north started with a no trump bid although this is not as sound as the diamond bid, south would bid spades over a heart bid by east and he would also bid spades if east passed, as the rule is that being void of a suit, or with a singleton, a no trump bid should be taken out. If west or east entered the bidding after south's bid of spades, north would support the spades up to four on account of the tricks shown in the bidding.

The mental operations of the various players of the above hand should be practically about as follows:

North—Well, I have the four tricks, three of them quick, three suits protected and no worthless singleton, which entitles me to bid a no trump. If I bid it and partner don't take me out and opponents open hearts I could lose five or six tricks before I got started. Even if they open clubs I'll not be able to set my diamonds without letting them in again to pursue the club suit.

On the whole, I think I had better bid a diamond and see if partner has a bid. He knows that it takes a lot of tricks to go game in diamonds and he will bid spades or hearts or no trump if he has even as good as a defensive bid. If he bids hearts I will go no trump myself, if he bids spades I will support him; if he bids clubs I'll take him off with a no trump.

East—I haven't a bid, but if north bids I have more than the requirements for a defensive bid, namely a six card suit headed by the ace, with a possible trick in clubs. If north bids and I bid the heart I will not be strong enough to rebid it, but will have to depend on partner to continue bidding if he can.

South—If no one bids, I won't. [Then he hears his partner bid a no trump and east two hearts.] That makes it easy, for if partner bids no trump and adversary shows strength in hearts, partner's hand must fit any of the other suits I bid and I'll bid two spades. If partner don't like that bid I will bid clubs if he takes me off with two no trump.

Of course, when south mentions spades, north will carry the bidding up to four and double the adversaries on any bid they may make.

West—No bid here and not enough to even support on the first round any bid from my partner; unless he bids hearts or clubs in which event—owing to my singleton in spades—I'll assist him once if necessary.

There is no method of calculation by which east and west can consider that their hands are worth more than a bid of two in hearts and anything further would be done on the expectation of going down which is something that wouldn't be looked for in a duplicate game.

We are always ready to give the correct bidding and play of any unique hand sent in without any expense other than a stamped envelope if you wish a reply. Address Bridge Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Hannibal's Trek to Rome Goes on Air Over W-G-N

Iatlian Street Songs to Be Featured.

Absence of scenic limitation to radio drama has made possible the varied scope of action and scene presented in a dramatization of "Hannibal," to be broadcast tomorrow night over W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, in the family party series. The musical background will be provided by Joseph Green's orchestra and the Cibelli trio.

The Italian singers and instrumentalists comprising the trio are authorities on old Italian street songs. They will sing "Luna Nuova" [New Moon], "N'Gui N'Gui" [Yes, Yes], and other folk songs, lending atmospheric effect, to which the orchestra will contribute "Angela Mia" and Italian airs.

Priests Open Sketch.

Priests of the roofless temple of Baal open the sketch, chanting in the glaring heat of a tropical African sun. Before the altar the nine year old Hannibal, at the dictate of his father, Hamilcar, takes the oath of undying hatred to Rome. That was 238 B. C. In less than twenty years Hannibal's army had entered Italy.

Hannibal led his army through the snow packed passes of the Alps, on forced marches, one of the picturesquely dramtic events in history. Because of landslides he had to cut new roads through the rock, which he is said to have softened with fire and vinegar. The snow and ice sent men and horses and elephants over precipices.

26,000 Reach Italy.

An army variously estimated as high as 100,000 infantry and 20,000 cavalry numbered but 20,000 foot and 6,000 horse upon arrival in Italy.

Despite hardships, Hannibal's army of Africans, Spaniards, and Gauls never mutinied. His continued failure in the face of victories, however, convinced him of the disadvantage of an army of mercenaries when pitted against a defending citizen soldiery. And with the voluntary surrender to conditions the sketch closes.

McQuhae, Simmons to Share Honors in Kent Hour Tonight

Allen McQuhae, tenor, and Willian Simmons, baritone, will share honors in the Kent Radio hour tonight over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, vying with one another in selecting songs of popular appeal.

The program opens with a duet by the famous French composer, Jean Baptiste Faure, and closes with "Passage Birds' Farewell," by the noted German baritone and composer, Eugen Hildach. "The Crucifix" was selected from the forty-five published songs by Faure, who was noted as one of the most cultured Paris artists, the past century.

In addition the program includes "Rose of My Heart," "Love, I Have Won You," and "Tommy Lad," by Mr. Simmons, and "The Bard of Amagh," "Brown Bird Singing, and "The Tumbled Down Shack in Athlone," by Mr. McQuhae.

It is pleasant this sultry weather to motor through our front yard—Jackson, Grant and Lincoln parks—and on north to Evanston and observe the joy with which the little shavers from tenement town and other sections hemmed in by brick and stone walls, frolic on the greensward and the sands. A bit undernourished, many of them, with an unhealthy pallor, yet they kick up their heels and cavort like young colts. It is gratifying, too, to note the expressions of relief on the faces of their tired mothers. Chicago gives every child a place in the sun and on the beach.

Some kind hearted Samaritan should whisper to Mr. Faherty, the well known Mike of Big Bill's broadcasting ballyhoo, that if our so-called mayor really wishes to do a job of political fence patching he can start in patching the chuckholes in the city's pavements.

CHICAGO NIGHT LIFE IN SUMMER DRESS

FOUR SEASONS FAVORED ON NORTH SHORE

Delightful country scenery is the exquisite setting for patrons of the Four Seasons, the north shore's exclusive roadside resort. Here are located typical farm settings to soothe the wearied citizenry of the city and luscious rural foodstuffs to tempt even the most jaded appetite. An exceptional feature is the special Dollar Dinner of six courses with a varied menu consisting of Roast Chicken, Roast Sirloin of Beef, Roast Loin of Pork, and many others. Also there are assorted luncheons and dinners on sale at a dollar and a half, two dollars, etc. Music is furnished each evening by Jules Novit and his orchestra and a galaxy of all-star performers are included in the combination. Extra entertainment is also provided from time to time, with many headliners from vaudeville and stage to amuse the wearied motorists. Roadside barbecue stands dot the highway approaching the Four Seasons and service is provided from noon throughout the afternoon, evening, and night. The Four Seasons is conveniently located on Waukegan Road about three miles north of the intersection of Waukegan and Dempster Roads.

Unique at the Four Seasons are the provisions for both outdoor and indoor dancing, with spacious pavilions provided for both. One may spend a most delightful evening reveling in the cooling breezes that sweep up from the valley, and all may be entertained by soft dance music. Delicious tasties are available in the interim and crooning voices furnish accompaniment to the chirping of the crickets. This joy-haven is well worth any one's visit, and a single visit will be an invitation to return often.

MERRY GARDEN TWO HOT BANDS

Ethel Kendall and Jack Lund, pioneers of Chicago dance enterprises, are featuring two sizzling hot orchestras at their popular North Side ballroom, Merry Garden, every Saturday and Sunday evening.

Their Merry Garden All Stars, recognized by dancers the city over as the peer of ballroom orchestras, are alternating with Walter Barnes and his Royal Creolians. The two bands furnish a widely different brand of music—lending a world of variety to the evening's program of dancing. The Royal Creolians were recently engaged for one night at Merry Garden, and created such a sensational success that it was decided to feature them every week-end for an indefinite period.

In addition to the hot music, a new cooling system sweeps the floor with delightfully cool and refreshing breezes, which makes dancing at Merry Garden a pleasure even in the hottest weather. Consequently a good crowd is always on hand regardless of the heat, in fact, dance fans the city over seek refuge from the well known humidity by dancing at this cozy and cool North Side spot.

Another feature which has caught the fancy of the dance fans are the Dance Races which are being held at Merry Garden every Thursday Nite. Patrons are presented with tickets which are the equivalent of bets on the racing couples, cash prizes being awarded to the holders of the winning tickets. The races have been a regular Thursday Nite feature there for the past month, and have proven to be one of the most thrilling and exciting parties ever offered at Merry Garden, which is famous for its many clever and entertaining dance parties.

VILLA VENICE ATTRACTS THE ELITE

Imagine a little garden set apart, with streams winding among the flowers and trees, and real Italian gondolas floating noiselessly on the water—then you have a picture of Villa Venice. Mr. Bouche, so well known among Chicago's smarter set, has accomplished wonders in his effort to bring a bit of sunny Italy to America. It lies just outside Chicago on the Milwaukee road, but when once you enter the gate you will feel many miles away! True to his past reputation, Mr. Bouche provides his patrons with the finest that money can buy. He has a staff of assistants and waiters and entertainers who give all their time to making Villa Venice a perfect pleasure retreat; the guest is accorded every privilege and every consideration, and naturally Mr. Bouche gathers the very best of Chicago's younger set about him. Al Copeland's great orchestra provides the music for the program and the dancing. There is also a musical comedy, "Vagaries of 1928," which includes a brilliant cast of principals and ten beautiful dancing girls. To seek out and find Villa Venice is to discover a marvelous summer pastime.

COON SANDERS AT THE DELLS

"The Dells" is a magic word to the lover of dancing and of pleasure out-of-doors. For here wide verandas and spacious lawns invite you to come away from the city's congestion and heat, and enjoy the evening hours in comfort and relaxation. Coon-Sanders and his Original Nighthawks are the main feature of the entertainment. Seldom if ever does a dance orchestra reach such heights of perfection. Then there's Eddie Clifford as master of ceremonies. The dancing team, Suzette & Jose, and two lovely prima donnas, Colleen Adams and Elsie Cole, supply entertaining diversion. The entire program is so popular that it is broadcast nightly over WBBM. Furthermore, to mention the Dells without mentioning the excellent cuisine, would be like leaving the title off of a picture. For that's what the Dells is really all about—wonderful food!

FRED HAMM, W-G-N FAVORITE, AT GARDEN OF ALLAH

Go five miles directly west from Sheridan road on Lake avenue and you come to The Garden of Allah in Glenview. It has long been one of the most popular rendezvous for dance lovers, and this season all previous records have been broken due to the advent of Fred Hamm and his Radio Band. Not long ago Fred Hamm was a W-G-N favorite, and since that time he has been a vaudeville headliner, a maker of famous Victor records, and a nation-renowned leader of a peerless dance orchestra. Here he is—ready to serve you—with a variety of novelties, songs and divertissements that are unrivaled in originality and beauty and tunefulness. You're lucky to be alive with The Garden of Allah and Fred Hamm in such close proximity!

SAMOVAR—A BIT OF RUSSIA—ON "BOUL MICH"

The Samovar has long held an enviable reputation among Chicagoans and out-of-town guests as an ideal place to come when you're tired of the usual and want something truly different to thrill you. There are Russian decorations, Russian manners and Russian customs, all delightfully vieing with delicious food—for the cuisine is of the best. Moreover, you'll find the temperature wonderfully refreshing; a new cooling plant makes midsummer dancing a joy! Come any time, from 11:30 a. m. until closing time and you will be royally received, for there's luncheon, tea, dinner and after-theater suppers. If you come before 9 p. m. there's no cover charge. Drive up in your car—plenty of parking space is always available. Dance in a pleasant environment and listen to a sparkling entertainment: the famous Campus Trio; Bobby & Mary, a dancing team direct from Hollywood, and the inimitable Samovar orchestra, directed by George Jan Chico, the golden voiced violinist, and many others.

Uptown Village Cool

Harry Chan, who has an established reputation for the excellence of his Chinese dishes at the Uptown Village as well as the Lakeview Village, has installed an elaborate cooling system to make dancing a pleasure at the Uptown Village even on the warmest evenings. You may dance as long as you like to the torrid syncopation of Jimmy Carrigan and his orchestra. This is one of Cope Harvey's organizations of aces—a treat for dance lovers. A special Sunday dinner is offered at $1.50. Remember—there is no cover charge.

Nicholas Boila Produces Stars

Talented dancers who have ambition and would like to become successful on the stage will find it worth while to investigate the Nicholas Boila Studio of the Dance. Mr. Boila directed and produced the present floor show at the Oriental Room, Hotel Davis. Most of the stars of this show and the entire ballet are graduates of his school.

CHARLEY STRAIGHT AT LINCOLN TAVERN

Continuing with unabated popularity, Jack Huff's newly embellished Lincoln Tavern, Dempster Road just four miles west of Evanston, has become the noted dining rendezvous of the smart set, and for those seeking something novel on their motor jaunts. The courteous handling of capacity crowds, the palatable chicken and steak dinners, the lavish program of all star entertainment, and the genial personality of that celebrated boniface, Mr. Huff, reflecting itself in the entire Lincoln Tavern personnel, tends in no small way to make this roadhouse one that is internationally renowned. . . . One may dine, dance and be entertained at the Lincoln Tavern, where the country air is fresher and the breezes cooler.

CHEZ PIERRE

Chicago's most beautiful and artistic restaurant has a particularly attractive bill this week. A well trained and good-looking chorus that actually sings and dances supports the able cast of principals. Earl Hoffman's well known orchestra supplies the soft, rhythmical dance music. An excellent dinner is served for $2.00 and dinner guests who arrive before 8:30 P. M. can remain for the rest of the night without paying cover charge except on Saturday. This, combined with the fact that Chez Pierre is located near the lake, proves a great attraction to people who are seeking a cool spot to dine and spend an evening.

Villa Venice

Milwaukee Road at Des Plaines River

NEVER in the annals of Chicago's pleasure-world has there been known a place more unique and beautiful than Villa Venice, just outside Chicago on the Milwaukee Road, two miles south of Wheeling.

Go where you will; travel East, West, North, or South, you will never find another Villa Venice. Albert Bouche, well-known for over fifteen years among discriminating social sets, has reached the height of his genius in Villa Venice; it has all the charm of an old-world rendezvous set in a background of natural beauty. Even the food has continental "flavor," prepared as it is by a famous European chef.

Fred Hamm and His Radio Band Playing at Garden of Allah Coming back to Chicago direct from a solid year as headliners on Keith-Albee vaudeville circuit, FRED HAMM and his Collegians are now featured at the Garden of Allah, Glenview, Illinois.

FRED HAMM is one of Chicago's original dance and radio favorites, having broadcast several years ago from Stations WLIB and W-G-N. The orchestra was also well known through its many Victor records. Following its Chicago run, the HAMM orchestra journeyed eastward and became so successful in vaudeville that the Keith-Albee Circuit built up an entire unit show around this sparkling jazz band.

Primarily a dance orchestra, specializing in sweeping rhythms and melodies, the HAMM Orchestra enlivens its programs with a speedy succession of novelties, singing and diversified entertainment. They will be a welcome addition to Chicago's night life.

The Garden of Allah is one of the most picturesque of Chicago's summer dance places and is located on Waukegan Road at Lake Avenue, five miles directly west of Lake Michigan. The dance floor has been enlarged to twice the original size and other extensive improvements have been made.

The Butler Broadcasts: Domestic Service Drives Him Wild

Woman Banker Tells of Her Upward Climb

Loyalty and Knowledge of Job Rewarded.

By Helen Dare

ANY woman can succeed as well as any man in banking if—

The if, of course, is everything. In this instance it is if she has the requisites of Lily M. Hansen, who, is perhaps the only woman bank vice president in Chicago. In a field traditionally considered as belonging exclusively to men, she has won her way in fair and open competition, with no favors sought and no quarter asked or given.

Without previous training, a young girl just out of high school, Miss Hansen started as a sort of cleric, typist, and general factotum. In that respect her story is the same as thousands of others, but the similarity abruptly ceases.

* *

Stuck with Her Job.

No. 1. She never married.

No. 2. She stuck with her job.

No. 3. She mastered not only every detail of it, but voluntarily assumed added responsibilities and familiarized herself with all departments of the institution.

No. 4. She made herself indispensable to her employer.

No. 5. She was always loyal.

Now, as vice president of the Kimbell Trust and Savings bank at 3600 Fullerton avenue, she is in charge of real estate loans and mortgages.

It was a small private bank when she started, a little down the street from the imposing building which now houses it. The employés were few and their duties varied. This enabled her to gain a background of knowledge about all forms of their business.

"In a large bank," she said, "one's work is of necessity highly specialized and narrowed to a particular branch. But if it is small one does a little of everything."

Happy in Her Work.

The bank expanded and became national in 1919. In the meantime Miss Hansen, working through several smaller jobs, became assistant cashier, and later head cashier.

Although this last position was an unusual one for a woman, particularly in a bank as large as this one had grown to be, she did not stop there. In January of 1927 she gained the position which she now holds.

Perhaps even more noteworthy than her title as vice president is the department she heads. It is generally believed that women allow their sympathies to rule them. Although artists have always depicted Justice as feminine, they are careful to blindfold her. And there are few fields where the personal equation can enter more

Miss Lily M. Hansen began working in a bank as a typist and by degrees has risen until she now is vice president of the institution.

OUR TOWN

Warm Weather Doings of the Populace Hereabout

SOMETHING will have to be done about the Sunday airplane traffic, which is fast becoming an unmitigated nuisance. Because of the constant noise of the motors one cannot keep one's mind on the golf ball, let alone the lawn mower, and it is next to impossible any longer to listen in on the neighbors' back porch conversations.

* *

There is another and more intimate aspect. Frequently, after candle light, ye ed has mistaken the hum of a sky taxi for that of one of the winged carnivora abounding in Wilmette, and has thus been misled into slapping at his handsome anatomy in eke the futile fashion of Don Quixote fighting windmills. If the north shore abatement league does not abate the mosquitoes soon, the mosquitoes will abate the north shore.

* *

Our Town's platform, as was to be expected, is noteworthy for its strong domestic plank, which pledges it unqualifiedly to home rule and the better interests of Friend Husband. It therefore deems it a privilege to publish next to pure reading matter the following communication from HRH, regarding the Widow Bedott's tribute to her Hezekiah:

He never jawed in all his life;
He new was onkind;
And (tho' I say it that was his wife)
Such men you seldom find.

"Let Hezekiah serve as an exemplar for us all," comments HRH.

JIM'S place of business is the handsome stone front at 12 South Michigan avenue, yclept the Chicage Athletic association. If you don't find him in there, try 231 South La Salle street, where he pursues his avocation of practicing law. A man must eat and keep up his club dues, says Jim. Our portrait shows the subject of this sketch at the age of 6, when he was quite some social lion in the gay whirl at Lacon, Ill. As a boy Jim seemed entirely normal. He had the measles and his vaccination took. But when he hied away to the city it happened—he became a Democrat. And if there's anybody that has a grudge against Jim the information is herewith conveyed that he has also become an editor—of the Cherry Circle, the C. A. A.'s family magazine. The "I Knew Him When" club will now call it a day and adjourn to the icebox.

"Valley's" Past Shines Through Cloud of Today

Famous District Boasts Honored Record.

By John Kelley.

MAXWELL STREET police district has given more priests to the Roman Catholic church, who either were born or reared within its original boundary lines, than any similar district in the world. It is a source of pride to many former residents that they attended the Holy Family, or Brothers' school, with this or that boy who became a worker in God's vineyard.

Nearly 100 youths whose lives have been consecrated to the priesthood received their early religious training in parochial schools of the district. Several others who were natives of the district joined the Society of Jesus as Brothers, and a goodly number became members of the Christion Brothers Community.

For reasons not necessary to mention here, the district has fallen into disrepute of late years, but when it was peopled by Irish, German and Bohemian Catholics, there was no more orderly region in Chicago, nor was there a better citizenry than the "old timers" whose homes dotted the prairie.

John Masterson First.

With the assistance of the Rev. Thomas J. Mulkerins, S. J., I am able to present a list of "native born soggarths." The priests herein named, with a few exceptions, became members of the Jesuit Order, which was only natural as they wished to emulate the example of Father Arnold Damen, organizer of the Holy Family parish and founder of St. Ignatius college. Several of those whoe names are included have entered eternal rest, but their memory is still kept green by a loving people.

It is generally conceded that John Masterson was the first young man born and educated in Holy Family parish to join the Jesuit Order. He was one of the first altar boys in the little frame church erected in 1857 on the south side of Eleventh street, east of May street, which in 1860 was superseded by the present edifice in Roosevelt road. Both before and after his ordination, Father Masterson was a professor at St. Ignatius college, and later was assistant pastor of the parish.

Although antedating Father Master-

LIKES RAINY WEATHER

MORRIS SCHLOGER of Maxwell street is not one of those individuals who proclaim that "It ain't gonna rain no more." Morris sells umbrellas and, although the sun is shining just now, he is informing a passerby that there's nothing like preparing against the day when clouds gather. Morris' favorite verse is "Into each life some rain must fall; some days must be dark and dreary."

Grows Weary of Wining and Dining the Rich

He'd Much Prefer to Dig Ditches; but—

[This is the final story of "The Butler Broadcasts," revealing the inside of the condition of servitude in and around Chicago.]

By Kathleen McLaughlin.

FOR thrift—try the butlering business.

That, at least, is the advice of one of the profession, butler to another of Chicago's first families, at present resident in Lake Forest. It is, he maintains, the chief attraction and greatest asset of his calling, nor did he mix terms in so expressing himself.

"I would rather," he affirmed, "do any other kind of work. I would sooner dig ditches, if it would pay me the same salary."

This was both vehement and staggering, and I glanced at him hastily to see whether he was grinning as he said it. He wasn't. Quite evidently he meant what he said, and I wondered audibly at such an attitude.

"People in domestic service," he dilated, "are looked down upon. They are not considered anything. Sometimes that is very hard to bear, and that is why I would rather do any other sort of work, whatever it might be, if I could get the same wages. But I can't, and that is why I continue at it."

He's His Own Recommendation.

He is a clean cut fellow, this Meyers. Youngish, impeccably groomed, of medium height. He has somewhat the look of an athlete, together with an air of complete self-reliance and implicit confidence in the soundness of his own judgment. It is possibly these characteristics that recommend him to the family he serves, a branch of one of the great merchandising families of the city.

His employer is typically the man of large affairs, impatient with details

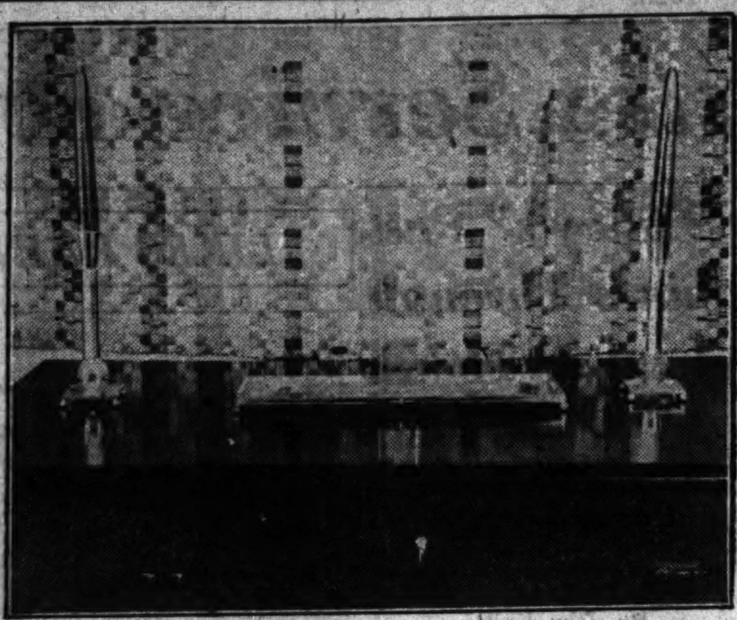
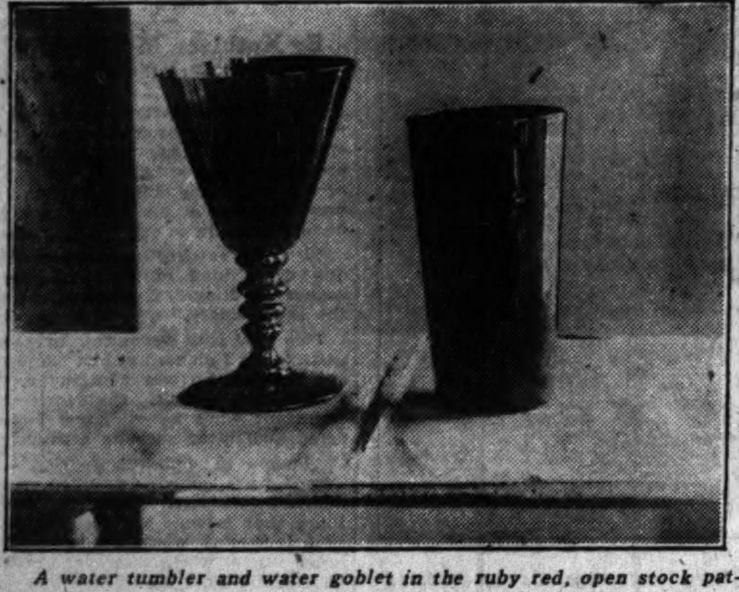
For Lovers of the Modernistic

Objects of Charm Fashioned in Silver, Pewter and Glass

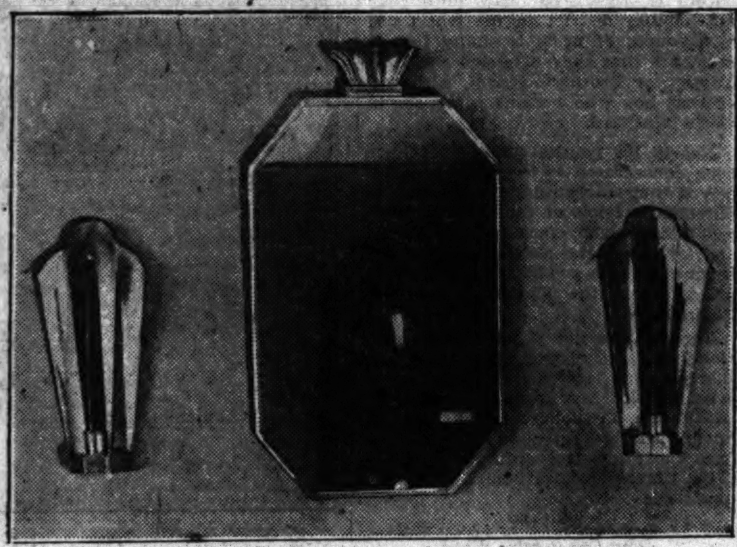
Glass from Sweden in a rare shade, almost black like black chiffon and as delicate in texture as old Venetian. The two beverage glasses are part of a complete set, but may be had separately.



For the lover of the modernistic: An inkwell and candlesticks in hand-wrought silver, simply and chastly fashioned and heavy enough to be an heirloom of the future.

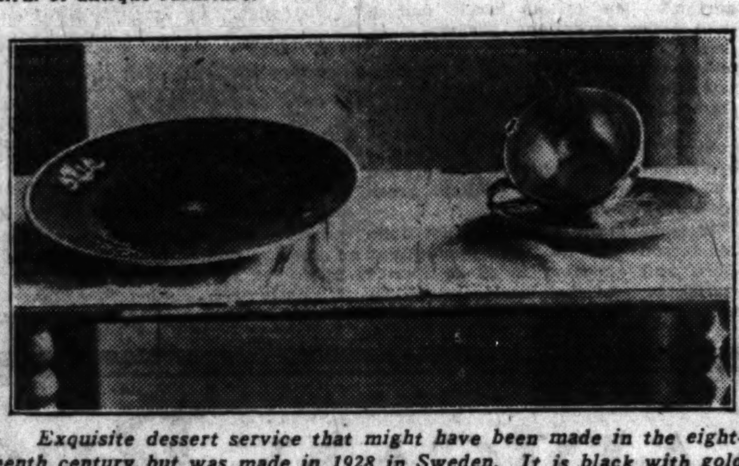


A water tumbler and water goblet in the ruby red, open stock pattern. This glass is exceptional for the price, as its quality as well as its color is excellent and its form beautiful.



A pewter mirror and candlesticks in modernistic manner. The design is so perfect that they would look well intermingled with the most beautiful of antique furniture.

A fingerbowl and a sherbet glass in ruby red, neither too thin nor too thick for everyday wear and priced moderately. It is an open stock pattern, most beautiful in color.



Exquisite dessert service that might have been made in the eighteenth century, but was made in 1928 in Sweden. It is black with gold incrustations, and the coffee cup is lined with gold.

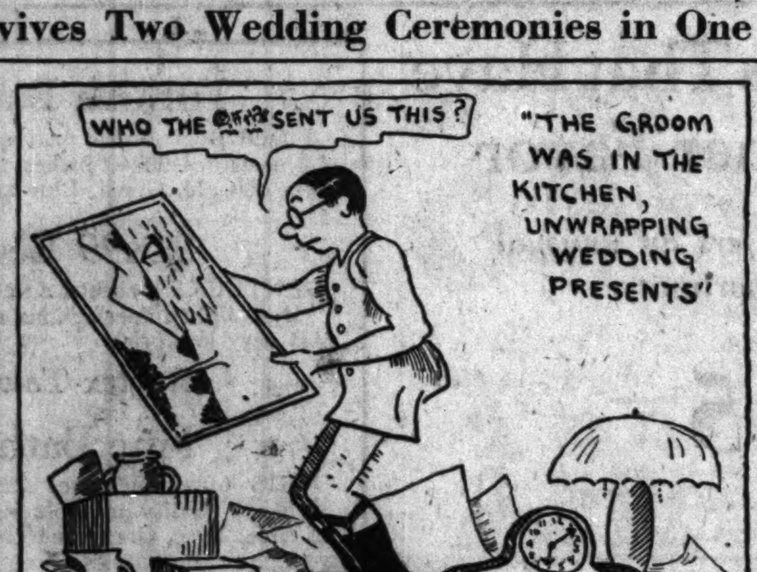
Survives Two Wedding Ceremonies in One Day

By Snowshoe Al.



WHO THE @#!% SENT US THIS?
"THE GROOM WAS IN THE KITCHEN, UNWRAPPING WEDDING PRESENTS"

WELL, folks, yesterday was a very heavy day for me and the wife, because we attended two weddings. The first one was a church wedding and took place at 10 o'clock in the morning. The combatants were Miss Evelyn Burke versus Mr. C. L. McConnell, the big sash and door peddler. The second wedding was a quiet "home affair" and took place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This bout was between Miss Gisela Ostheimer and my friend, Mr. Iver Nelson.

We got up early in the morning and headed for the Burke-McConnell Skirmish. This battle had been widely advertised for several weeks—by Mr. McConnell, who must have spent about twelve dollars in nickels calling all his friends on the phone and offering suggestions as to acceptable wedding presents. He is one of them hombres what says:

"Now please don't go to any bother or expense on our behalf because, really, there ain't a thing we need—except a bedroom suite and an electric refrigerator an' a grand piano, and I would feel very embarrassed if any friend of mine should give us any of the above, as I don't think anybody should sink that much money into a mere wedding present. However, you will find the grand pianos advertised on page five of this morning's newspaper, an' page seven mentions a sale on electric refrigerators, etc."

Groom Was a Howl.

We arrived at the church a couple minutes past ten, and I have this much to say about the encounter: The church, the ceremony, and the bride were all very pretty, but the groom was positively a Howl of Anguish! He wore a claw hammer coat, gray striped panties, undertaker's gloves, a strangle collar and a look of anxiety. He reminded me of the guy what stands in front of the hotel entrance and opens the taxicab doors.

After the Handcuff Trick had been performed the happy couple paraded out of the church and stood on the sidewalk, where everybody rushed to congratulate them. Several people threw rice at them and I thought it was a good idea, so I says to my wife:

"Dearie, do you mind if I rush over to that Chinese restaurant across the street and buy some rice to slam at the groom?"

"Why go to all that trouble?" asks her; "why don't you ask one of these people to lend you a handful—they seem to have lots of it."

"They ain't throwing the kind I want," says I, galloping towards the restaurant; "I want to throw some boiled rice—in a heavy bowl!"

I am sorry to say, however, that the groom escaped in a taxi before I returned with the Mongolian Breakfast Food, so me and my Sparring Partner went home and made preparations to attend the Ostheimer-Nelson Quarrel.

"Don't forget," says the wife, "that we are going to stand up for the bridal couple, so please wash your face."

"My face is perfectly clean," howls me, "because I washed it this morning! What do you think I've been doing since then—rolling around on the sidewalk?"

"O, gelly, I'm so thrilled!" chirps her. "I'm to be the matron of honor."

"Yeh?" snorts me. "What am I—the Monkey of Misfortune?"

"You always were," says my Sparring Partner; "however, kindly behave like a gentleman during the ceremony. Remember, you stand on the groom's right side an' the bride stands on his left side."

"Who stands on his other sides?" says me.

"How many sides do you think he's got, yuh poor simp?" says her.

"He's got two more sides," says me, "an inside and an outside! Har, har, we might as well surround the guy an' make a complete job of it. By the way, let's get over there early, so I can sit in a corner an' look dejected."

"What's the idea?" says she.

"Well," says I, "how could the bride's father gaze upon my sad features an' resist the temptation to offer me a drink—if he's got it?"

Opening the Presents.

We reaches the Ostheimer residence about four o'clock and I get handed a rather strange job. It seems as how the bridal couple have already furnished a nice little four room apartment only two blocks away, and the groom is over there taking a bath and changing clothes, etc., and it is my duty to go there and stay with him until almost five o'clock, at which time I drag him back to Ostheimer's and surrender him to the minister, or the sheriff, or whoever wants him. So I breezes over to the cute little apartment and greets the groom. He is wearing a scowl and a suit of underwear and is standing in the kitchen opening packages which contain wedding presents. Every time he lamps an article which don't appeal to him he uses abusive language.

"Your wife will kill you for opening those presents," says I; "it's her privilege to open them. You better keep your paws off the rest of 'em."

Figures Up Cost.

"I'm only going to open one more," says he; "I want to see what's in this large flat package," so he opened it and dragged forth a painting which was about five feet long and two feet wide.

"$@$@$@$@!!" says he. "Who the hell sent us that piece of junk?"

"I did," says me.

"O," says he, turning red; "ah, yes. It's real pretty, and I like it very much! We shall always cherish it."

"$@$@$@$@$@$@!" says I. "Go put some clothes on—I'm supposed to deliver your carcass at five o'clock sharp. Give me the ring! Hurry up aand get shaved!"

"How much money for the minister?" says Nelson.

"He's entitled to at least fifteen dollars," says I, "because all ministers are underpaid."

Whereupon the groom grabbed a pencil and started to figure how much the wedding was costing him. Then he added up the estimated value of the wedding presents and compared the two totals.

"$@$@$@$@!!" howls he; "we ain't even making 6 per cent profit!"

Well, at exactly five o'clock I drags this hombre into the Ostheimer home and, believe me, his knees was rattling; in fact, he sounded like somebody exercising a pair of dice. There were about two dozen customers present, including the minister, so we shook hands with all of 'em. Then we goes out on the back porch to smoke a cigaret. At this moment, Mr. Brown, who was one of the customers, rushes out on the porch and says:

* *

The Wedding March.

"Nelson, we are almost ready to begin, and the minister wants the ——"

"Al's got it," says Nelson, yawning. "Al, the minister wants the fifteen bucks."

"No, no, you poor goat," howls Mr. Brown, "the minister wants the license! He has to make sure that it is O. K."

The license was evidently O. K., because we soon got dragged off the back porch and taken into the parlor, where we both got lined up against the wall. For a moment I thought they had changed their minds and were going to bring in a firing squad. Then a young lady sat down at the piano and started playing Mr. Mendelssohn's well known Battle Hymn. My wife soon arrived on the scene carrying about eighteen dollars' worth of roses. [I don't know yet who paid for them—she didn't get 'em from me.] The bride now enters the room leaning on the arm of her father. There's a real guy! He can give a daughter away with more grace and dignity than any one else I've ever seen. [Advertisement.]

The ceremony lasted about twenty minutes, which is much longer than the poor groom's knees lasted; in fact, I was supporting him during the final five minutes.

My wife is still wondering how I did it on my income!

Bargain Board and Lodging.

A couple of years ago while I was soldiering in the Philippines, a friend of mine and myself decided to go up the Bataan peninsula hunting for wild pigs.

The first night out we hit a small barrio about dusk and inquired at the only tienda [store] there where we might get some supper and a place to sleep for the night. It happened that the dato [head man] of the village owned the store. He offered to have his wife fix us some food and also to put us up for the night.

Within an hour we sat down to a meal that included baked fish, fresh vegetables and fruits, with many trimmings. Afterwards he called his three daughters in and had them play their stringed instruments and sing for us. Later he took us upstairs [this was the only two storied building in the barrio] and gave us a room, unrolling two bed mats for us. The next morning he furnished us a breakfast of fruit, fresh eggs, American ham and coffee.

Before we left we asked the dato how much we owed him. You can imagine our surprise when he apologetically inquired if we thought three pesos [$1.50] was exorbitant.

Shoes Lasted 5 Years.

This is the best shoe bargain I ever heard of. Five years ago, I bought a pair of dark brown oxfords for $2.95. The first two winters I had not much occasion to wear them, but during the last three winters those shoes have done constant and heavy service. The original soles are still whole, the leather is still in perfect condition, not a crack, scarcely a scuff, even.

In addition to being good looking and wear resisting, they are also comfortable. I expect them to see me through next winter's cold weather. Some clerk surely put a high priced pair of shes on to the bargain table by mistake and I, fortunately, reaped the benefit.

Domestic Work Drives Him Wild, Butler Asserts

He's Weary of Wining and Dining the Rich.

and employing men who will assume responsibility. It is natural that his butler feel himself capable of managing the routine of the household without disturbing its head to act as mediator or judge when others of the help become obstreperous or lax in their duties.

Meyers and I had never met before, and it is quite possible that we never shall again, for, in company with many thousands more of Chicagoans, my name is not on the preferred list of callers at the town or country residence of the Sterlings. Neither have I as yet glimpsed either mansion, for our talk took place amid the hubbub of THE TRIBUNE local room, whither Meyers had found his way when he learned that I, who wanted to know about butlers, would like to talk with him, who knew about butlers.

The Moneyed Class.

He was a bit suspicious at first, picking his conversational way with such caution that I sensed he was fearful of lending himself to any Town Tattle tactics in the ensuing article. Once convinced that such journalistic depravity was not contemplated, he relaxed and talked about himself and his work.

"I will wager," he told me, "that, man for man, the average butler can lay more money on the table than the ordinary man in any other line of work. Plenty of them have put away fortunes."

This was an interesting angle, though I refused to accept the wager, having no particular desire to make a donation to Meyers. There wouldn't even be a sporting element about that bet.

"For instance," he went on, "I know of one butler, here in Chicago, who had a horse entered in the Kentucky Derby."

"Correct," I acknowledged, "I've been hearing a little bit about butlers, and I've heard that one before. I know the one you mean."

"And," pursued Meyers, "there is one maid I know of, who has worked a long time here in this city and who is worth $40,000. And there are plenty of others I could name if I would—both maids and butlers—who have big bank accounts. That happens because they receive good wages; the average pay for a really good butler is anywhere between $150 and $200 a month. Then, of course, they haven't many expenses; their board and rent is paid, they do not go about much to spend their salary, and so they manage to accumulate money.

Playing the Tips.

"That's why I say that it is a good line of work if one wants to save and get ahead. I haven't yet found anything I could work at that would pay me so well.

"There are other ways of making money, too, you know. In these big houses you often get a tip about the market, and I know of plenty that have played and won."

"You mean their employers give them the tips?"

"Give them!" scoffed Meyers. "They give them nothing like that—you may overhear conversations, say nothing, and play the thing yourself. It only happens once in a while.

"Why, Mr. Sterling, for all his money, never plays the market himself. And he would not think of telling even his own friends if he suspects it will go a certain way. He doesn't go in for gambling in any form."

Meyers had a slight accent, for all his excellent English, that led to the inquiry as to how long he has been in this country. It proved to be only a matter of several years. He has lived in Chicago less than five years.

* *

His Lowly Beginning.

"What did you do before you took this place?" I asked him. "And how did you get your training for the job?"

He smiled a slow, reminiscent smile.

"I was a salesman, but I couldn't sell," he confessed. "I spent a month at it and didn't make a cent. I'd been traveling in New York state, and I managed to get back to New York, completely broke. So—I took a job as dishwasher in one of the biggest of the hotels. And, just to show you what can be done in this country, in eighteen months I had become assistant to the head waiter. I didn't say so when I went to work, but I had done that sort of work in Europe, and I knew how.

"Then I thought I'd get into a home somewhere, and I did, working as butler for a family in the east for a little more than a year. After that I got a chance to come west, but I didn't like the place after I arrived, so I came to Chicago and tried a couple of others. Finally I got this one."

"And you like this position very much?"

His Period of Rest.

It was then that Meyers astonished me with the assertion he would prefer digging ditches. The sentiment, I feel confident, was individual and reflects only his own reaction to his work because of previous circumstances. He was not inclined to divulge much about his former life, but I gathered that his parents had enjoyed a comfortable living in Europe and that he had had advantages somewhat beyond other boys. He served with the allies during the war, and it was his experiences at that time, it seemed, that decided him to come to America.

"But the work can't be very hard," I hazarded, groping for the right kind of response to his unequivocal statement about his job. That proved to be wrong, too.

"Not hard? Why, I'm busy every minute," he retorted, more than half offended. "How could any one think a butler hasn't much to do. There's a thousand things to keep you busy. Some people think all the work a butler does is in the dining room. That's nothing—nothing. I consider serving a meal an absolute relaxation. That's about the only time I get a chance to rest."

Apparently it was another case of the other fellow's job looking easy.

Going Into Details.

"It's like this," Meyers went into detail for me. "You get the breakfast served and out of the way. You get into the butler's pantry and perhaps you take off your coat and have a big apron wrapped around you, to start cleaning the silver. Then the telephone rings. The telephone—it may be a convenience to other people, but it's just a nuisance to me!

"You answer the ring. Somebody wants to speak to somebody upstairs. All right! You take off the apron and put on your coat and go upstairs and tell the one that's wanted. You come back and get into the apron again. Then the telephone rings again, and it's all to be done over again. And it goes on that way one day after another.

"Then, of course, there's valeting to be done for any guests that may be staying in the house, and sometimes that is a big job. You can spend lots of time putting clothes in order and pressing them.

"You have the liquor to take care of, and to be sure the cigar and cigaret stock doesn't get low. If any is needed you make a note of it and see that it is bought.

"Another thing is the table linens and decorations. They must be changed every day. It would be simply unthinkable for the Sterling family to sit down to a dinner table with the same decorative scheme—flowers and linen—as was used the day before. And it keeps one going to achieve variety there.

No Time for Society.

"One good thing—of course, all these large estates are plentifully supplied with table service. There are closets packed with china, and tablecloths and napkins, and glassware, more than you would think one household could possibly use.

"Then, in addition to the things I mentioned, there is the usual routine of preparing relishes and salads and cocktails for the meals, and serving, and answering the bell, and carrying messages. No, you don't have any time for your own social life, I can tell you."

"Is the family much given to entertaining?"

"No, they're rather quiet. Once in a while a dinner party, but they prefer to have their friends to dinner a few at a time, which makes it easy for me. Unless it's a party of, say, fourteen persons or more, there is no extra help required.

"When we do need help, I phone around to my friends and borrow a footman or two for the evening. Most butlers do that, and practically all of us in this neighborhood know plenty of others. We hardly ever think of calling up an employment agency in such cases. It is only for the dinner they are needed, of course, and we get along very well.

Wining and Dining 'Em.

"Now, over in England the butler does no serving at all. He simply stands and directs the footmen. Only in rare cases does he place a dish of food, and then probably only before the master of the house. Under no condition would he touch a soiled dish. This is one reason why English butlers are so popular. They are well trained and know how to carry out elaborate service."

"You spoke of the liquor supply—I suppose you are, like most good butlers, a connoisseur of wines?"

"Well, I know a lot about them, and about mixing drinks. It's seldom you'll find a butler who doesn't drink, but the thing is to find one who doesn't get drunk. I don't."

"And I've heard that some of the north shore families are generous with bonuses at Christmas time."

"Yes, the Sterlings are, too. After one of the help has been there a certain time, they get bonuses of $100 every six months."

"Most of the positions on these estates are secured through employment agencies?"

"O, I don't know. There are about three of those agencies, all on the north side, that handle the bulk of that business. But a great many butlers get places by phoning around to their friends, who may know of some place. It isn't hard for a good butler to get a position."

There Isn't Any More.

Which checked precisely with what Meyers' colleagues, Judkins and Bush, previously had told me. It seemed suddenly to recall to Meyers that he had better be getting back on his own job. It terminated the interview and, there being no other tenant of a butler's pantry who appears willing to unburden his mind through the medium of this column,

This, ladies and gentlemen, concludes our program. Station B-U-T-L-E-R—signing off.

Woman Banker Tells of Her Upward Climb

Loyalty and Knowledge of Job Rewarded.

ruinously than in the granting of loans.

"It is hard, sometimes," Miss Hansen admitted, "to have to refuse a loan to a person you feel needs it. But the bank comes first. You cannot jeopardize it to assuage your own feelings."

However, it is the personal element that has made her happy in her work.

"I have enjoyed it all the way," she said. "It is dealing not so much with money as with people."

* *

Gardening Her Hobby.

Her only regret is that she did not attend a university.

"If I had it to do over again, I would go to college," she said. "If you glean nothing else of later value to you from it, you learn how to think straight. We have a great many university graduates here, and on the whole they progress more rapidly than those who have not had their advantages."

But Miss Hansen does not believe that education alone will turn the trick.

"Women in banking," she said, "or men, for that matter, must have, primarily, good judgment and just plain common sense. They must be willing to work and work hard, along with other people.

"Because a bank's stated hours are short, people are inclined to think working in one is somewhat of a sinecure. But nearly everyone here comes early and works late."

She has found little time for things outside of business. It is not only her job, but her chief hobby. Just now she has taken up gardening. Her evenings are spent in the yard of the home she maintains with her mother and two sisters at 5846 North Kenton avenue. She raises no special variety of flower, but a little of everything.

"You know," she said, "I had the prettiest rosebush. It came into full bloom and then while it was blooming it suddenly died. I have never been able to figure out what was wrong."

Knows Her Neighborhood.

Miss Hanson has always lived on the northwest side. Since her duties are concerned with loans on real estate, a good deal of it located in that section her knowledge of the community stands her in good stead.

Three or four years ago she helped to organize a tiny group of women bank executives, tiny because there were only a few such in Chicago at the time.

"Now," she said, "we have thirty or forty members. I think that indicates that more and more women are going into banking and making a success of it."

She has none of the inaccessibility associated with the usual bank executive. She has not eschewed femininity to realize a man's success. The sympathetic virtues, however carefully checked by her undoubted good judgment, make her a person easy to talk with and happy to deal with.

"Valley's" Past Shines Through Cloud of Today

Famous District Boasts Honored Record.

son several years, the Rev. Patrick A. Murphy was not born in Chicago. His father, Daniel Murphy, settled on the prairie before the coming of Father Damen, and was one of the latter's most ardent supporters. Father Murphy was one of the assistant pastors before the fire of '71.

* *

Remember "Father Jim."

Without attempting to set down in chronological form the entrance of young men of Holy Family parish upon a career dedicated to God's service, the list is continued.

The Rev. William P. Whelan and his brother, the Rev. John Whelan, were born at Fourteenth place and Racine avenue. Henry street was the original name of Fourteenth place and later it was called Wright street. Thomas and Joseph Egan, both of whom became Jesuit priests, were born at Fourteenth place and Morgan street.

The Rev. George P. Shanley, son of Thomas Shanley, an old-time Maxwell street policeman, was born at Maxwell and Morgan streets. He is one of the few priests born in the district who is assigned to Chicago.

The parents of the Rev. James L. McGeary were pioneers of Holy Family parish. Their first home was on May street, from which they removed to Taylor and Sholto, where their son, James, was born. The family made its final hegira to Taylor and Lytle streets, in which neighborhood "Father Jim" is still remembered. After his ordination Father McGeary was assigned as professor in St. Ignatius college. Besides his other duties he directed the Boy Choristers, an organization that earned an enviable name in musical circles beyond the confines of the parish.

The Breen Brothers.

One of Father Damen's most helpful assistants in early days was Matt Donoher, whose son John J. entered the priesthood. The Donoher family lived on 12th street, east of Canal, before the fire.

The Rev. John S. Ragor was a son of Andrew Ragor, who before the era of horse cars operated a bus line. Ragor omnibuses ran from Clark and Madison streets to Lincoln park; Wabash avenue and Madison street to 31st street, and on 12th street from State to Ashland avenue.

Rarely does it happen that three brothers dedicate their lives to the priesthood, but Holy Family parish can boast of such a triumvirate. The Breen brothers, Aloysius A., Francis X. and Paul M., all of whom were reared in the Maxwell street district, became Jesuit fathers.

Lytle street was a favorite gathering place in the days for the youth of the neighborhood. Charles Comiskey, owner of the White Sox ball club, lived on this street between 12th and Taylor nearly opposite the home of "Karl" Gardiner, comedian, who wrote the once popular song, "Little Bunch of Lilacs."

* *

"Paddy Duffy's Cart."

Several young men who became priests were reared on Lytle street and were boyhood companions of Comiskey and Gardiner. It is recalled by one of the few remaining residents of the street that often the boys would foregather in the evening and an improvised quartet would sing old time favorites. One of the songs of the period was "Paddy Duffy's Cart" that ran something in this fashion:

"O, many happy evenings I spent when but a lad
On Paddy Duff's lumber cart quite safe away from dad:
It stood down on the corner, near the old lamplight;
You should see the congregation there on every summer night.
There was Larry Dooley, he was a friend of mine,
Fatty Green, Jimmie Green, and little Abie Klein.
All merry boyish comrades, recollections bring,
While seated there on Duffy's cart on summer nights to sing.

Twinkling stars are laughing, love, laughing at you and me—
While you, bright eyes, looking, love, twinkling stars they seemed to be."

Bore Good Reputation.

In recent years, the daily press has teemed with stories chronicling the activities of certain individuals who, incorrectly, were described as being natives of the "Valley." According to these newspaper accounts the "Valley" comprised half of the Maxwell street district. As a matter of fact the original "Valley" was old Catherine street, from Stewart avenue to Center avenue. Many years ago the name of the street was changed to Fifteenth.

The "Valley" of olden days bore a good reputation, for the people who dwelt therein were hardworking, God-fearing men and women. Several priests were born on the edge of the "Valley," notably among them being the Rev. Joseph A. McLaughlin, the Rev. James G. Dellhant, the Egan brothers and the Whelan brothers.

Grew Up in District.

Space does not permit a detailed account of other Jesuit or secular priests who were born or reared in the district, but some of the names follow:

R. J. Brown, S. A. Blackmore, William Corboy, Andrew Carr, Joseph Curran, James J. Corbley, Walter Cornell, Michael Cushing, Philip C. Dunne, Joseph Donnellan, Joseph Donahue, William F. Dooley, T. A. Driscoll, James V. Devlin, John P. Esmaker, Thomas S. Fitzgerald, William Foley, Gilbert J. Garraghan, Arnold J. Garvy, Joseph Georgen, Michael H. Gorman, John I. Grace, Edward J. Gleason, James Hynes, W. S. Hagerty, Ignatius Hamill, J. M. Heeney, J. Hennessy, William T. Kane, Terence T. Kane, T. A. Kelly, John Kennedy, James Kiely, George Kiley, Nicholas Liston, George Leahy, William Millay, William M. Magee, James A. Meskell, Edmund S. Murphy, William A. Murphy, J. F. Mortell, Edward Maguire, Aloysius McCormick, Thomas J. Moore, John Morris, Edward F. Maher, Thomas Neate, Simon J. Nicholas, James Nash, John Nash, John O'Byran, Francis O'Bryan, James O'Connell, Edmund O'Connell, Joseph C. Quill, A. G. Quill, M. J. Ryan, Charles Smith, Thomas J. Smith, Charles P. Sullivan, E. P. Sullivan, Cornelius Sullivan, James J. Sullivan, William D. Tierney, T. Tracey, Thomas F. Wallace, and William J. Wallace.

Served as Altar Boys.

All of the foregoing served as altar boys at Holy Family church, and many of them returned to celebrate their first mass amidst boyhood scenes before being assigned to scholastic or missionary work.

Besides those listed, several young men who were born in the district are now studying for the priesthood in ecclesiastical institutions conducted by the Jesuit order.

Brother Thomas M. Mulkerins, to whom I am indebted for much of the data contained in these memoirs of old Maxwell street, recently celebrated the golden jubilee of his affiliation with the Society of Jesus. As sacristan of Holy Family church since 1883, he saw the parish grow to 25,000 communicants—the largest in the world—which by exodus of the Irish, Germans, and Bohemians has been reduced to a fraction of its former membership.

HONORED

The Rev. Thomas M. Mulkerins, S. J., who supplied much of the data in the memoirs of old Maxwell street contained in the accompanying article, recently celebrated the golden jubilee of his affiliation with the Society of Jesus.

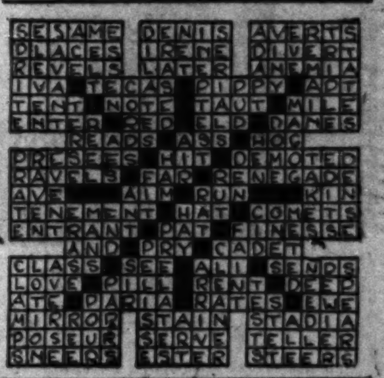
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE



GOES ABROAD

Miss Helen M. Bennett, originator and managing director of the Woman's World's Fair, which was given for the fourth successive year in May, will sail for Europe next Saturday to attend the Swiss national exhibition of feminine work, which has taken its inspiration from the Chicago woman's fair. The Berne fair will be held from Aug. 26 to Sept. 30.

Bank of France Now Has Gold Bars for Sale

PARIS.—(AP)—Bars of gold are on the market in Paris for the first time since the start of the war, 14 years ago.

All the gold any one could want is in the Bank of France, but the rule is one bar to a customer and the price of a small one is $4,000. That is all the stabilization of the franc has done for the average Parisian for the present at least.

Under the law paper money is convertible into gold, but temporary regulations limit such transactions to large amounts. Coins have not yet been minted, and the gold must be sold by the pound. The $4,000 bar measures 2 by 2 by 4 inches.

Shoppers' Service Tales

Write us a brief note telling what kindly deed in store or shop won your patronage. The Tribune will pay $2 for every story published. Address Shoppers' Service contest, Chicago Tribune.

Change Forwarded.

I was shopping in a large department store and had the main part of my purchase charged on my mother's account, since at that time I did not have one of my own there. The last article which I bought, a sweater, for $9.75, I paid for with a $20 check of my own. I was in a hurry to get through with my shopping and went away, forgetting to wait for my change.

Imagine my surprise when, two days later, before I had checked up on the contents of my purse, I received a letter from the shopping service bureau of that store. This letter explained what I had done, contained my change, $10.25, and expressed the hope that my forgetfulness had not caused me any inconvenience or worry. My address had been obtained from my check and the reparation for my carelessness was made possible by the honesty of the saleswoman and the aid of the shopping service bureau.

I scarcely need say how grateful I have always felt toward that store; it now has my utmost confidence and my patronage. M. W. M.

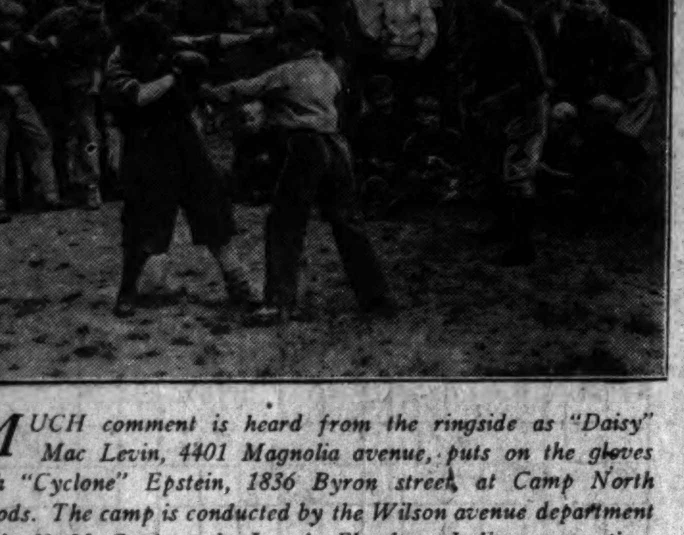
AN EXCITING ROUND



MUCH comment is heard from the ringside as "Daisy" Mac Levin, 4401 Magnolia avenue, puts on the gloves with "Cyclone" Epstein, 1836 Byron street, at Camp North Woods. The camp is conducted by the Wilson avenue department of the Y. M. C. A. at the Lac du Flambeau Indian reservation. E. R. Sunley, athletic director, is acting as referee.

THE HAPPY ARRIVAL

THE old camp flivver is well-nigh smothered with eager boyhood as it pulls into Camp Duncan with a new batch of arrivals. The boys have come from Chicago to fight mosquitoes and catch a ton of fish at Fish lake, where a summer camp is being conducted by the west side department of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. near Volo, Ill.

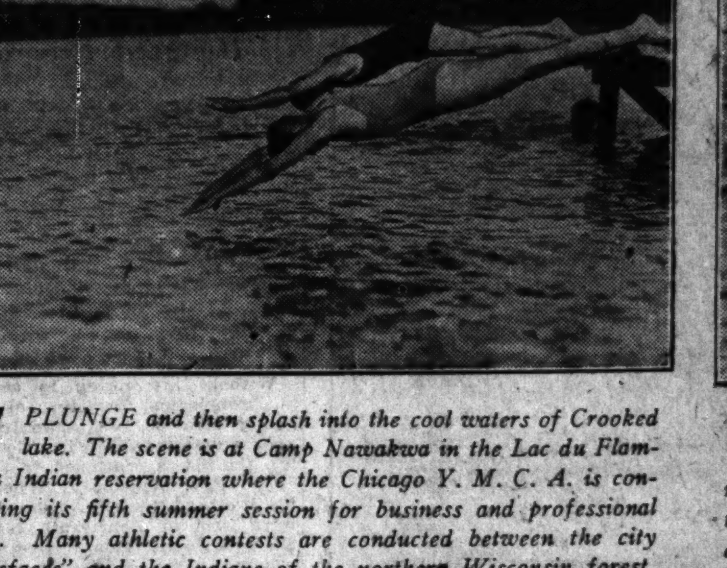
THE TWILIGHT SPLASH



A PLUNGE and then splash into the cool waters of Crooked lake. The scene is at Camp Nawakwa in the Lac du Flambeau Indian reservation where the Chicago Y. M. C. A. is conducting its fifth summer session for business and professional men. Many athletic contests are conducted between the city "palefaces" and the Indians of the northern Wisconsin forest.

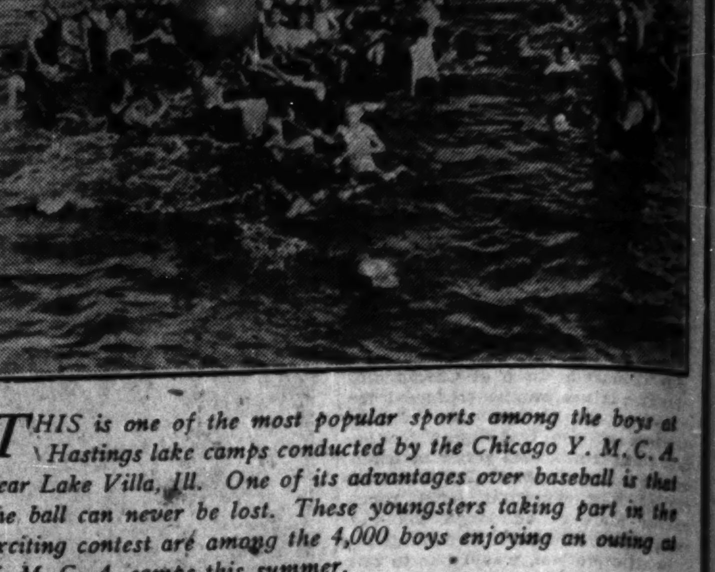
AQUATIC CAGE BALL



THIS is one of the most popular sports among the boys at Hastings lake camps conducted by the Chicago Y. M. C. A. near Lake Villa, Ill. One of its advantages over baseball is that the ball can never be lost. These youngsters taking part in the exciting contest are among the 4,000 boys enjoying an outing at Y. M. C. A. camps this summer.

Dr. Beck Gives Impression of Soviet Russia

Finds Effort to Display Regime at Best.

In his letter last week Dr. Beck told of conditions as he found them in wartorn China and of his trip toward Moscow. Herewith he continues the account of his travels abroad.

By Dr. Carl Beck.

MOSCOW itself affords a very interesting study. We gained a special permit to stay a week, a very unusual grant, which we appreciated very much. We were everywhere treated with the most appreciated courtesy. It seemed to me that from the highest official down to the ordinary servant everybody was interested in showing soviet Russia in good light.

DR. CARL BECK.

Everything from the little store to the large department store, from the little inn to the most palatial hotel, is under government control and conducted by the government. There is hardly any private enterprise.

The tourist agency which is selling us our tickets and provides for us the hotel space is a government institution. A government official takes charge of us as a guide from the moment we arrive until the moment we leave. He goes with us to the theater and to dinner. He shows us the museums and he goes with us on an excursion in the country. He answers willingly all our questions and explains to us truthfully and frankly all matters of interest.

Everybody, it seems, is in the government's pay, and although the salary is very low, they must get along on it.

Salesmen Indifferent.

In the stores they had goods to sell, but the salesman did not care very much whether we bought or not. He did not seem to be inspired by any desire to sell his goods. He was a government employé.

The hotel was also run by the government. The servants of the hotel were rather independent, but they did their work, and it seemed to me that they were very glad to take tips, although I was told that tipping had been abolished by the government.

Everything seemed to me very expensive, comparing the prices with our own. An apple was twenty cents, an orange thirty cents. A dinner, which would cost at one of our best hotels a couple of dollars, was about three dollars and more, and a theater ticket on the ground floor of the large opera house was $3.50.

Sees Marvelous Opera.

By the way, the opera was marvelous. The theater was grand, its staging gorgeous, there were most fascinating costumes and a wonderful ballet. One feature surprised me—the continuous tendency to implant soviet propaganda into every line of endeavor. We witnessed a lovely ballet performance at the opera which had as a theme of its libretto the freeing of the Chinese coolies from the fetters of their oppressors by joining the red flag.

Likewise, there was an immense market in dozens of book stalls and tents in which soviet and kindred books were sold at very low prices to the public. They were eagerly bought by crowds of young people. Nobody else is allowed to print but the government.

Fine Art Galleries.

Although the largest collections of art and particularly paintings in Russia are in Leningrad, Moscow has quite a number of the most comprehensive and rich art galleries and museums. They are conducted in an excellent manner—real show places for the tourists of whom however there seem to be very few in the city. But their own people, especially the children and peasants, attended in large numbers and they had guides and teachers who explained and answered questions.

I inquired from one of the directors whether these collections dated back to the imperial times, and I was told that a nucleus had really been formed then, but that most of the pieces had been brought together lately after being confiscated from the rich people's homes following the revolution.

This was exemplified to me particularly in one case which seemed to me so remarkable and so pathetic that I wish to relate it in detail.

Courteously Received.

I was introduced to one of the highest officials of the government, and was received in a most courteous manner by him. Although he could not speak English and our conversation had to be carried on through an interpreter, he seemed a most intellectual and extremely well posted gentleman. His office was a model of organization.

This gentleman called one of his adjutants, a woman physician, whose department was dealing with the information about foreign affairs of science and the contact with foreign guests and their treatment. Both were very well posted regarding the matter which I discussed with them, namely the possibility of a visit of American physicians and surgeons for the purpose of studying the progress which the country had made in the last few years in those lines.

Both seemed very favorable to a project of that kind and expressed the desire to invite especially those who would be designated for such a purpose and who are the representative men of their profession. They offered to assure free entrance and visa and facilities.

A Pathetic Incident.

After discussing medicine in general she insisted that I must see particularly two places in Moscow; one of general interest, a porcelain gallery and ceramic collection, such as no other city can boast of, and another unique institution, something that would interest me as a doctor, a government institution of welfare, taking care of mother and child.

It was the porcelain gallery which evoked in me the sentiment of pity and sympathy. The woman doctor told me she would have the director of the gallery show me the porcelain exhibit and she made such an appointment. At the precise hour we drove up in front of a most magnificent building, evidently a former palace.

We walked up a beautiful marble staircase, and I was met by an old gentleman who was very shabbily dressed but very refined looking and with exquisite manners and who addressed me in an elegant French and told me he was the guide who was ordered to interpret to me the art exhibit.

He showed it with a great deal of expert knowledge and pointed out the most important porcelain pieces, among the thousands of precious specimens of the rarest kind, arranged in cases by periods of production and origin.

The Prince Himself.

It was a collection of such beauty and magnitude as I have never seen before, and which I think has no equal. I asked who had brought these pieces together. The man immediately became silent, looked about to see if anybody listened, and, with a good deal of emotion which showed me that he did not like to answer, finally said that it was a man by the name of Morosoff.

"Ah," I said, "I heard the name Morosoff mentioned several times. He was a prince and was one of the richest men in old Russia. No wonder that he had such a marvelous collection."

The gentleman looked away, then scrutinized my face and suddenly said he would like to show me one of Morosoff's finest private apartments, his library. It was a most remarkable room built like a gothic chapel with most artistic carvings and precious wood ornaments, fresco paintings of Goethe's Faust in different phases of the poem with figures of Mephistopheles, Gretchen and others. I had a suspicion now, and it was confirmed by the official guide, that our informant was Prince Morosoff himself who was now a pauper and was living in the cellar of his former palace and acting as a guide of his collection. What a sad commentary on the vicissitudes of life!

But we hurry away to another picture, to the institution of welfare for mother and child to which the soviet can point with a great deal of pride. It is located in a large complex of buildings erected by Catherine II., two hundred years ago, and which were used during the invasion of Napoleon I. as a French hospital.

It is a colossal square of structures built around a park, each building equipped for a department of study and investigation and for the care of normal and sick children, normal and sick mothers.

By appointment I was met by the chiefs of the departments, and each one explained to me his particular work of research and study. One was studying physiology, another pharmacology, another biology, another clinical symptoms or rare diseases of children from birth to the age of fourteen, still another one radiology, and so on through all the branches of medicine.

They all receive a very small remuneration from the government, and every one asked me whether it would not be possible to come to the United States, at least for a time to study the advancement and progress in our country.

Worthy of Imitation.

They had one feature which interested me particularly. It was the exhibit of models and pictures so practical and so well designed for popular enlightenment that it ought to be imitated in America. It showed the origin of children's diseases, their propagation and their prevention, and I wish that some of our pediatric confrères would come here and study this in detail and bring the ideas home for improvement and progress.

I was told that this institution, which must cost an enormous amount of money, is being kept up by raising the funds from the sale of antiques and art pieces and jewelry in the stores of Moscow—objects which have been confiscated from former rich people.

Meets With Surgeons.

I had the pleasure and honor to be invited to the Congress of Surgeons of Russia which was held at the time I was in Moscow. I met some of the older gentlemen whom I had seen and met years before the war at different congresses. The scientific meeting was interrupted when I came, and the chairman presented me to the attending surgeons as coming from America.

There was a tremendous applause and I was asked to take a seat near the president. I appreciated the fact that this enthusiasm and distinction was not for me personally but for the surgery of the country which I was representing, and I thanked the president in the hame of American surgery.

Do You Know Nicknames of the Famous?

Can you identify these nicknames by which famous people were known, or live in subsequent history?

All you've got to do is get 30 in this quiz, and thereby your name is instantly inscribed on the honor roll. Not that 30 is impossible, but actually not more than one in fifty can do better than 15. However, if you can call a dozen of the hundred sobriquets in this list, you will have accomplished some very creditable work. Remember then, 40 correct answers is wonderful; 50 is marvelous; 60 is extraordinary; 70 is astonishing; 80 is prodigious; 90 is miraculous; and 100 is positively supernatural.

Soldiers Joust in the Armor of Olden Days

STOCKHOLM. — (AP) — Jousting matches of the middle ages required brawn as well as brain to win, it has been proved at a reconstructed tournament staged in Stockholm, at which authentic armor and weapons were used by the combatants.

The swords, coats of mail and shields were copied from historic relics in the Stockholm museums and executed under the supervision of Dr. Ernst Klein.

Coats of mail reproduced from originals of the fourteenth century covered the entire bodies of the jousting "knights," and on their heads were placed helmets with visors. Broad swords, heavy shields and unwieldy lances completed the equipment. It took some two hours to enclose each fighter in his armor, which weighed about 110 pounds. The horses were clothed in gorgeous saddle cloths.

The participants were young officers of the Stockholm garrison.

Oldest Car Is Not What It Used to Be

PARIS.—(AP)—The oldest automobile in France, born in 1889, but still full of ginger and able to click along at 11 miles per hour, is now chugging toward Berlin on a good will tour.

Rechristened "Locarno," the old bus was given a send-off from the Place de l'Opera by city officials and the president of the chamber of deputies.

A Frenchman, Pierre Yrondy, and a German, Dr. Duisberg, are alternating at the steering wheel. There is also a mechanic who will fix wheezes as they develop.

Bread of All Lands Seen at Exhibition

PARIS.—(AP)—Bread, that humble staff of life, is gaining prestige. Novels are named for it in America, but in France a salon is given over to it.

A bread salon is in sway in Horticulture hall, displaying more kinds of loaves than any but an epicure would recognize. French bread, English cakes, Spanish rolls, Dutch biscuits, and Belgian cookies give the exhibition an international flavor.

And attachés explain that style is as important in the designing of loaves as in the fashioning of garments.

240 U. S. Radio Stations Giving Aid to Farmers

Introducing Up to Date Methods.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—During the fiscal year just closed more than one-third of the radio stations of the United States lent their facilities to the department of agriculture for the dissemination of timely information for farmers and housewives, according to Moose Salesbury, chief of the radio service of the department. Daily or more frequent weather forecasts were transmitted by 181 stations; 107 stations carried schedules of farm market news broadcasts, running in some instances to 12 periods daily; and 149 stations sent to their listeners one or more of the 10 educational features supplied by the Radio Service. Excluding duplications, 240 of the 700 American stations broadcast one or more of the department of agriculture services.

"Spot news" of weather and markets and general educational broadcasts all were used by farmers who go the radio way. One listener wrote: "Radio has helped me put up better hay by giving weather forecasts. Also by the feed prices whereby one can buy feed accordingly. I had a litter of ailing pigs this winter and got the cause in question and answer form and it happened to be a case like mine, resulting in a complete cure at a big gain as I got them on the market in good shape."

Effective Educational Means.

A significant feature of the radio relation to farming during the last year was that the agricultural statisticians began to take measure of the newcomer's place in the broad field of introducing better farming and homemaking practices. One extension survey in Kansas is typical of the findings of the figure hounds.

Federal and state extension workers talked with 532 farm families in two typical Kansas counties. They found that 188 of the families had radio receiving sets. Radio broadcasts received on these sets had caused directly the adoption of 156 different improved farming and homemaking practices—13 per cent of all improved practices adopted on the 532 farms in the 9 years since extension work began in the two counties. Another way of gauging radio's effectiveness in this instance is to compute the percentage of farmers having a chance to hear radio broadcasts who got something of practical application from them. This calculation shows that 34.8 per cent of the farmer listeners put radio information to work—or one in each three "exposed to radio education."

Considering the fact that radio has been at work in these communities not more than 5 years, and to any extent—as measured by number of farm owned receivers—for much less than that period, these figures indicate that radio is now and will increasingly be a most effective means of agricultural education.

Crystallizes Thought.

The rapid development of chain broadcasting is bringing further opportunities of unifying rural thought and action. One of the most striking demonstrations of what may be done along this line took place last month. Arranged by the Radio Service and extension service of the department of agriculture and the National Broadcasting company, a national radio night for 4-H clubs—an organization of 620,000 farm boys and girls—was broadcast from Washington on Saturday evening, June 23. Twenty-three stations affiliated with the National Broadcasting company sent this one hour program to some 300,000 club members and leaders as well as the usual audience of broadcast listeners. Each club group, meeting locally, heard music by the Navy band, and an address by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and the story of her club work told by a club girl. At the conclusion of the hour, the 300,000 rose along with the 150 national club champions in Washington, and repeated the club pledge, sang the club song, and stood at attention while the Navy band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

This new accomplishment of the radio art holds promise of similar spectacular events for the future. Meanwhile the information programs of the federal department and of the state extension services go on through the coöperation of broadcasting stations. The radio service schedule for 1928-29 includes, as in the past, program features for homemakers, for farmers, for farm boys and girls, and the city dwellers who do their farming in the back yard.

Broadcast of Dem Convention Set at $1.15 Per Second

Spending $1.15 a second to broadcast the Democratic national convention, the National Broadcasting company and associated stations are believed to have set a new high record in radio public service, according to M. H. Aylesworth, president of NBC.

The Democratic convention was on the air for a total of 25 hours and the total cost of the broadcast over the coast to coast network of 43 radio stations was $104,000, or $27,000 more than the cost of the Republican convention broadcast.

"While it is true that a few shorter programs have cost more per second than the Democratic convention report, these broadcasts have been commercially sponsored," Aylesworth said. "The convention broadcasts, on the other hand, were paid for by NBC and associated radio stations and were not revenue producing.

"We believe that the broadcasts of the Republican and Democratic conventions are outstanding examples of the service radio can render the nation as a whole."

The cost of $1.15 per second is arrived at by reducing the 25 hours to 90,000 seconds of time on the air at a total cost of $104,000.

The cost of broadcasting both conventions, shared by NBC and associated stations, was $181,000.

BIRD IMITATOR.

Bird imitations by Walter Bayley over the radio in England have been so accurate and amazing that more than one critic has accused him of concealing some instrument in his mouth.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN A. RYAN.

THE movie industry is all agog over the bewildering popularity of the talking pictures. And at the same time the news comes daily that moving pictures by radio are near in the offing. Gosh, what is it all coming to?

When the talking movies are broadcast over the radio and when football games can bee seen as well as heard in the radio horn, what will we announcers do then, poor things? A phonograph record can be inserted every half hour to announce what radio station it is—and then there will be no use for announcers at all.

How the public loves tricks and novelties! A few preliminary skits prior to a feature picture—Will Hays making a speech, Elsie Janis crooning a song, Martinelli gesticulating and singing Vesti la Guibba — and there is a great whoopie from the audience. That was the program of the first talking movie we saw. Later, we understand, a few scenes of some of the big films were made vocal, with well known movie actors speaking lines. Now, Mae Tinee says, the big boys of the industry are calling back new releases to add a few audible effects to them, by means of the records, such as the shouts of the baseball crowd and similar incidental sounds. It is predicted that very soon all films will be speakeasies—and even now "doubles" are speaking the lines of a rôle when the movie actor is lacking a good voice.

We remember seeing and hearing the talking pictures in Chicago about fifteen years ago, and we wonder what has occasioned their sudden vogue at present and what has kept them hidden all these years, except the slow work on the synchronization of tone and image on the same record-film, or film-record.

Audible movies are with us at last, but we suspect that it will be fifteen years more before movies will be broadcast, save in spectacular experiments. Despite the current stories and rumors, we feel that their widespread commercialization is a long way off.

It would seem that the lively arts are becoming strictly mechanical. First came the phonograph, in which the artist's voice and his instrumental music were delivered in reproduction and by which the artist drew farther away from the actual presence of his audience. Then came the mechanical piano, in which the artist's piano roll played for him by proxy. Later came the radio, by means of which the artist's auditors sit in their homes thousands of miles from his concert hall or platform and rarely, if ever, see him in the flesh.

The movies, once a mechanical contrivance serving only one of the five senses, now develop a further mechanical appeal to another of the senses. In turn, the radio proposes to broadcast moving pictures of events simultaneously with their occurrence or shortly following. Then will come, as a labor saving device for the artist, the broadcasting of the audible movies, perhaps; listeners at home will see and hear the great violinist in the recital he offered a week previous, a thousand miles away. It's a fascinating and bewildering cycle. The next evening the audience can hear and see him again, in the same recital, while the artist grows fat and inept from lack of practise and activity.

Follow the course of thought farther, if you will. We will not need to go to Louisville to enjoy the Kentucky Derby. We have it now in our theaters in picture and in sound. Some day these same pictures and sounds will be transmitted into our homes simultaneously with the running of the Derby, just as the story and the noises are broadcast at present. We will not have to move from our firesides to see and hear the world series, or the Olympic games or the senate in action, if any.

The Niagara Falls can be enjoyed at home by radio, in flashing movies and roaring sound. Why travel abroad, when the Alps and the pyramids can be broadcast to us? The inventions in transportation and communication have banished distances and barriers, but when that day comes, probably the inventors will have gone too far; when we can see and hear any one and any place in the world without moving from our homes, there will no longer be need of traveling. The world will be only as large as Hop o' My Thumb, and all things will be transparent. When we can see and hear over oceans and through mountains, woe to the people who live in glass houses!

But mostly, it looks bad for the artists. Will there be mechanical or chestral accompaniments to the movies? Will the radio programs be canned material, broadcast over and over again? Will there be any attendance at baseball games, or theaters or concert halls?

The world will be brought plop! into the homes and we may become more sedentary than ever.

The musical artists will become hermits. They will be seen and heard, but never met. What is now called a lively art—music and dancing, for instance, which require a repetition every time they are enjoyed by their patrons, as contrasted to painting and sculpture—the lively arts will be no longer lively. A singer need sing his song only once or a violinist need play his theme on only one record, and his audience may listen to him and watch him the rest of his lifetime.

The audible movies are with us, and the audible movies over the radio are somewhere in the future. But, as one of the Black Crows used to say, why bring that up?

Lessons in Auction Bridge

BY R. M. ROGERS.

ARTICLE XVIII.

From Wisconsin we received a rare hand with this request: "Please tell me how this hand should be bid and what would be the probable score." When we gave the answer we asked how it had been handled and the interesting reply was, "The hand was played at a duplicate bridge club—going out north bid up to three diamonds and made 3 odd. On the return play the north hand bid one N. T., east bids hearts and the bidding continued until 5 hearts had been bid and doubled—and when played resulted in a loss of seven hundred points on tricks alone." How this was done was not explained. The hands were as follows; north being the dealer:

S—A, K, 10, 7.
H—10, 8, 4.
D—A, J, 10, 4, 2.
C—A.

S—8.
H—K, Q, 7, 5.
D—9, 8, 7, 3.
C—J, 9, 4, 2.

N.
W. E.
S.

S—J, 6, 3.
H—A,J,9,6,3,2.
D—5.
C—Q, 8, 7.

S—Q, 9, 5, 4, 2.
H—None.
D—K, Q, 6.
C—K, 10, 6, 5, 3.

The first play started with a bid of one diamond, which is the most practical bid of the north hand, and with the hope that south will bid hearts and permit a no trump bid on the second round, but west defensively is entitled to bid one heart and does so. South assisted the diamond bid and west probably passed, not having the necessary number of tricks to support the heart bid. North goes to 3 diamonds and east passes, having no assistance from partner.

This was sensible bidding, but poor play followed if north and south only took nine tricks as reported.

If east opens with the ace of hearts, how north and south can play the hand and make only three diamonds is a mystery.

The second time the hand was played, east would bid hearts over either a no trump or diamond bid by north, and west must have supported on the supposition that his singleton spade and four diamonds would enable him to trump but his hand does not contain the four tricks required to support partner on the first round, and he can support east but once on any subsequent round.

The bidding by north and south with diamonds as trumps was sound up to five without showing the spades—and there is a grand slam for north and south with either diamonds or spades as trump. The bidding to show the full strength of north and south should have been one of the following:

N.	E.	S.	W.
1 D.	1 H.	1 S.	P.
2 S.	P.	P.	P.
1 D.	1 H.	2 D.	P.
P.	2 H.	3 D.	P.
P.	P.
1 N.T.	2 H.	2 S.	P.
P.	P.

The fact that cards lie so that a slam can be made cannot be known by the bidders but north can count 10 tricks on his diamond bid by merely crediting his partner with the four tricks that were shown by his support on the first round. The play of the hand given today makes a grand slam easy to accomplish at either spades or diamonds.

If north started with a no trump bid although this is not as sound as the diamond bid, south would bid spades over a heart bid by east and he would also bid spades if east passed, as the rule is that being void of a suit, or with a singleton, a no trump bid should be taken out. If west or east entered the bidding after south's bid of spades, north would support the spades up to four on account of the tricks shown in the bidding.

The mental operations of the various players of the above hand should be practically about as follows:

North—Well, I have the four tricks, three of them quick, three suits protected and no worthless singleton, which entitles me to bid a no trump. If I bid it and partner don't take me out and opponents open hearts I could lose five or six tricks before I got started. Even if they open clubs I'll not be able to set my diamonds without letting them in again to pursue the club suit.

On the whole, I think I had better bid a diamond and see if partner has a bid. He knows that it takes a lot of tricks to go game in diamonds and he will bid spades or hearts or no trump if he has even as good as a defensive bid. If he bids hearts I will go no trump myself, if he bids spades I will support him; if he bids clubs I'll take him off with a no trump.

East—I haven't a bid, but if north bids I have more than the requirements for a defensive bid, namely a six card suit headed by the ace, with a possible trick in clubs. If north bids and I bid the heart I will not be strong enough to rebid it, but will have to depend on partner to continue bidding if he can.

South—If no one bids, I won't. [Then he hears his partner bid a no trump and east two hearts.] That makes it easy, for if partner bids no trump and adversary shows strength in hearts, partner's hand must fit any of the other suits I bid and I'll bid two spades. If partner don't like that bid I will bid clubs if he takes me off with two no trump.

Of course, when south mentions spades, north will carry the bidding up to four and double the adversaries on any bid they may make.

West—No bid here and not enough to even support on the first round any bid from my partner; unless he bids hearts or clubs in which event—owing to my singleton in spades—I'll assist him once if necessary.

There is no method of calculation by which east and west can consider that their hands are worth more than a bid of two in hearts and anything further would be done on the expectation of going down which is something that wouldn't be looked for in a duplicate game.

We are always ready to give the correct bidding and play of any unique hand sent in without any expense other than a stamped envelope if you wish a reply. Address Bridge Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Hannibal's Trek to Rome Goes on Air Over W-G-N

Iatlian Street Songs to Be Featured.

Absence of scenic limitation to radio drama has made possible the varied scope of action and scene presented in a dramatization of "Hannibal," to be broadcast tomorrow night over W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, in the family party series. The musical background will be provided by Joseph Green's orchestra and the Cibelli trio.

The Italian singers and instrumentalists comprising the trio are authorities on old Italian street songs. They will sing "Luna Nuova" [New Moon], "N'Gui N'Gui" [Yes, Yes], and other folk songs, lending atmospheric effect, to which the orchestra will contribute "Angela Mia" and Italian airs.

Priests Open Sketch.

Priests of the roofless temple of Baal open the sketch, chanting in the glaring heat of a tropical African sun. Before the altar the nine year old Hannibal, at the dictate of his father, Hamilcar, takes the oath of undying hatred to Rome. That was 238 B. C. In less than twenty years Hannibal's army had entered Italy.

Hannibal led his army through the snow packed passes of the Alps, on forced marches, one of the picturesquely dramtic events in history. Because of landslides he had to cut new roads through the rock, which he is said to have softened with fire and vinegar. The snow and ice sent men and horses and elephants over precipices.

26,000 Reach Italy.

An army variously estimated as high as 100,000 infantry and 20,000 cavalry numbered but 20,000 foot and 6,000 horse upon arrival in Italy.

Despite hardships, Hannibal's army of Africans, Spaniards, and Gauls never mutinied. His continued failure in the face of victories, however, convinced him of the disadvantage of an army of mercenaries when pitted against a defending citizen soldiery. And with the voluntary surrender to conditions the sketch closes.

McQuhae, Simmons to Share Honors in Kent Hour Tonight

Allen McQuhae, tenor, and Willian Simmons, baritone, will share honors in the Kent Radio hour tonight over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, vying with one another in selecting songs of popular appeal.

The program opens with a duet by the famous French composer, Jean Baptiste Faure, and closes with "Passage Birds' Farewell," by the noted German baritone and composer, Eugen Hildach. "The Crucifix" was selected from the forty-five published songs by Faure, who was noted as one of the most cultured Paris artists, the past century.

In addition the program includes "Rose of My Heart," "Love, I Have Won You," and "Tommy Lad," by Mr. Simmons, and "The Bard of Amagh," "Brown Bird Singing, and "The Tumbled Down Shack in Athlone," by Mr. McQuhae.

Jean St. Anne

THIS young French baritone has probably one of the most promising of baritone voices singing today. Aside from the natural gift of a sweet voice with graceful range, Mr. St. Anne is inherently a musician. A glance at the St. Anne family tree reveals capable musicians in each generation. Among them numbers that great pioneer in the modern movement in music, Debussy. Jean St. Anne has prepared for his program this evening a pleasant group of lighter songs for a pleasant Sunday evening. 7:30.

A collector for the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company sought reinforcements from the police last week to enter the basement of a home in Ravenswood. He had been commissioned to collect a three month bill or turn off the gas. Every time he tried to enter he was stopped by a big dog, while the tenants stood in the window and laughed at him, he said. With the aid of two husky cops he was able to execute his commission.

Miss Jane Ayerhart of 1103 South boulevard, Oak Park, ventured into Chicago for a swimming party at Calvary beach. She was tripping across Sheridan road, at Howard street, with the green light, when she suddenly halted. The red light flashed, traffic started, but still she stood. It being a warm day, her French heels had sunk into the asphalt and stuck. She was rescued eventually by a thoughtful citizen who untied her slippers and lifted her out of them.

Discussing the natural history of Wide Acres, ye ed's summer and winter home in fair Ouilmette, Bro. Morton, a visitor from the big city, remarked that he had lately added to his library a bird guide and gleaned therein that the brown headed nuthatch voices itself thusly, "Nya-nya." On the other hand, the call of the white breasted nuthatch is "Yank-yank," and a reiterated "Ya-ya." Then there is the black-billed cuckoo, "Cow-uh, cow-uh," while all, of course, are familiar with the brown creeper's "Tseep, tseep," which scientists believe is the origin of Miss Emily Schmaltz's "Tsk, tsk." We should like to hear from other natural history lovers at our next open forum.

It is pleasant this sultry weather to motor through our front yard—Jackson, Grant and Lincoln parks—and on north to Evanston and observe the joy with which the little shavers from tenement town and other sections hemmed in by brick and stone walls, frolic on the greensward and the sands. A bit undernourished, many of them, with an unhealthy pallor, yet they kick up their heels and cavort like young colts. It is gratifying, too, to note the expressions of relief on the faces of their tired mothers. Chicago gives every child a place in the sun and on the beach.

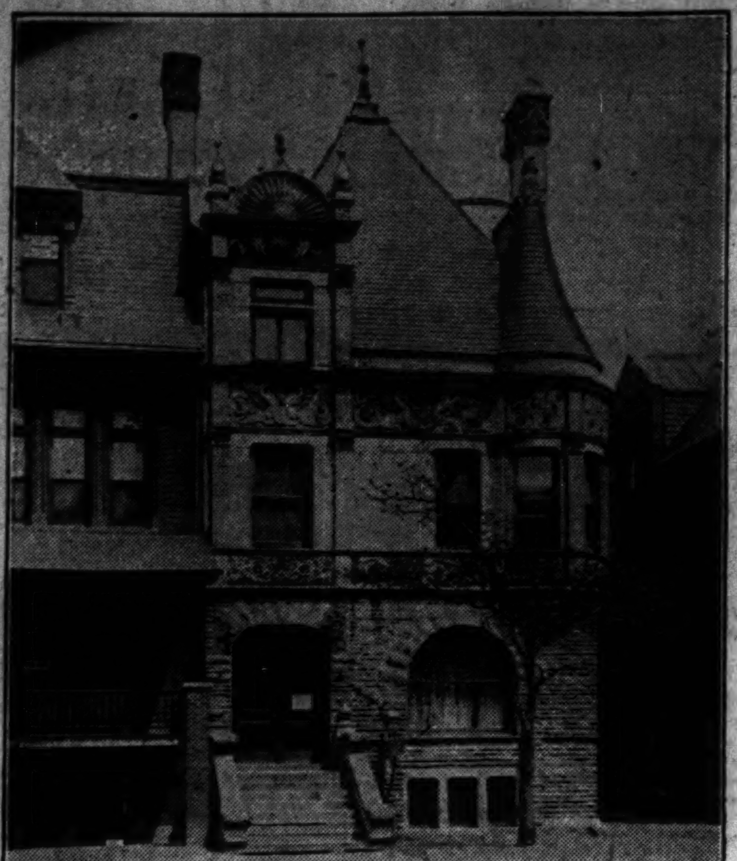
August is commonly deemed the month of dog days—vernacular for the doldrums. It may be in less fortunate cities, but certainly not in Chicago. On the shores of this inland sea, the world's greatest summer resort is mecca for the nation's buyers as well as pleasure seekers in this period of general quiescence. It hangs out its sign regardless, "Business as Usual." Consider a few of the attractions for August: The Interstate Merchants' council convention, comprising 4,000 retail merchants, Aug. 7, 8, 9; the Gifts, Artwares and Novelties association's annual show, Aug. 6-11; the Jewelry and Allied Art Trades' show; the Chicago Style show, Aug. 5-12; the Fur Fashion exhibit, July 28-Aug. 11; the Chicago Merchandise fair, July 31-Aug. 11. All of which mean thousands of buyers and millions of dollars.

FAMOUS HOMES



THIS residence at 2919 Prairie avenue was filled with rare pictures and precious books when the family of Frank G. Logan made it their home. The prominent broker, who retired from the Board of Trade after twenty-five years' toying with bulls and bears, desired that others should share his enjoyment in art treasures and remains active in the encouragement of enterprises at the Art institute. The Logans now live at 1150 Lake Shore drive.

Confidence

As a village, Rogers Park had no bank, but Peter Phillips had a safe in his grain and feed store, and neighbors brought their valuables to him for safekeeping. After the village became part of Chicago, in 1893, Mr. Phillips started a bank, building on the confidence which he had established in previous years. This picture was taken of him in front of the Phillips State Bank building that has recently been erected.

The Butler Broadcasts: Domestic Service Drives Him Wild

Woman Banker Tells of Her Upward Climb

Loyalty and Knowledge of Job Rewarded.

By Helen Dare

ANY woman can succeed as well as any man in banking if—

The if, of course, is everything. In this instance it is if she has the requisites of Lily M. Hansen, who, is perhaps the only woman bank vice president in Chicago. In a field traditionally considered as belonging exclusively to men, she has won her way in fair and open competition, with no favors sought and no quarter asked or given.

Without previous training, a young girl just out of high school, Miss Hansen started as a sort of cleric, typist, and general factotum. In that respect her story is the same as thousands of others, but the similarity abruptly ceases.

* *

Stuck with Her Job.

No. 1. She never married.

No. 2. She stuck with her job.

No. 3. She mastered not only every detail of it, but voluntarily assumed added responsibilities and familiarized herself with all departments of the institution.

No. 4. She made herself indispensable to her employer.

No. 5. She was always loyal.

Now, as vice president of the Kimball Trust and Savings bank at 3600 Fullerton avenue, she is in charge of real estate loans and mortgages.

It was a small private bank when she started, a little down the street from the imposing building which now houses it. The employés were few and their duties varied. This enabled her to gain a background of knowledge about all forms of their business.

"In a large bank," she said, "one's work is of necessity highly specialized and narrowed to a particular branch. But if it is small one does a little of everything."

Happy in Her Work.

The bank expanded and became national in 1919. In the meantime Miss Hansen, working through several smaller jobs, became assistant cashier, and later head cashier.

Although this last position was an unusual one for a woman, particularly in a bank as large as this one had grown to be, she did not stop there. In January of 1927 she gained the position which she now holds.

Perhaps even more noteworthy than her title as vice president is the department she heads. It is generally believed that women allow their sympathies to rule them. Although artists have always depicted Justice as feminine, they are careful to blindfold her. And there are few fields where the personal equation can enter more

Miss Lily M. Hansen began working in a bank as a typist and by degrees has risen until she now is vice president of the institution.

OUR TOWN

Warm Weather Doings of the Populace Hereabout

SOMETHING will have to be done about the Sunday airplane traffic, which is fast becoming an unmitigated nuisance. Because of the constant noise of the motors one cannot keep one's mind on the golf ball, let alone the lawn mower, and it is next to impossible any longer to listen in on the neighbors' back porch conversations.

There is another and more intimate aspect. Frequently, after candle light, ye ed has mistaken the hum of a sky taxi for that of one of the winged carnivora abounding in Wilmette, and has thus been misled into slapping at his handsome anatomy in eke the futile fashion of Don Quixote fighting windmills. If the north shore abatement league does not abate the mosquitoes soon, the mosquitoes will abate the north shore.

Our Town's platform, as was to be expected, is noteworthy for its strong domestic plank, which pledges it unqualifiedly to home rule and the better interests of Friend Husband. It therefore deems it a privilege to publish next to pure reading matter the following communication from HRH, regarding the Widow Bedott's tribute to her Hezekiah:

He never jawed in all his life;
He new was onkind;
And (tho' I say it that was his wife)
Such men you seldom find.

"Let Hezekiah serve as an exemplar for us all," comments HRH.

JAMES B. WESCOTT.

JIM'S place of business is the handsome stone front at 12 South Michigan avenue, yclept the Chicage Athletic association. If you don't find him in there, try 231 South La Salle street, where he pursues his avocation of practicing law. A man must eat and keep up his club dues, says Jim. Our portrait shows the subject of this sketch at the age of 6, when he was quite some social lion in the gay whirl at Lacon, Ill. As a boy Jim seemed entirely normal. He had the measles and his vaccination took. But when he hied away to the city it happened—he became a Democrat. And if there's anybody that has a grudge against Jim the information is herewith conveyed that he has also become an editor—of the Cherry Circle, the C. A. A.'s family magazine. The "I Knew Him When" club will now call it a day and adjourn to the icebox.

"Valley's" Past Shines Through Cloud of Today

Famous District Boasts Honored Record.

By John Kelley.

MAXWELL STREET police district has given more priests to the Roman Catholic church, who either were born or reared within its original boundary lines, than any similar district in the world. It is a source of pride to many former residents that they attended the Holy Family, or Brothers' school, with this or that boy who became a worker in God's vineyard.

Nearly 100 youths whose lives have been consecrated to the priesthood received their early religious training in parochial schools of the district. Several others who were natives of the district joined the Society of Jesus as Brothers, and a goodly number became members of the Christion Brothers Community.

For reasons not necessary to mention here, the district has fallen into disrepute of late years, but when it was peopled by Irish, German and Bohemian Catholics, there was no more orderly region in Chicago, nor was there a better citizenry than the "old timers" whose homes dotted the prairie.

John Masterson First.

With the assistance of the Rev. Thomas J. Mulkerins, S. J., I am able to present a list of "native born soggarths." The priests herein named, with a few exceptions, became members of the Jesuit Order, which was only natural as they wished to emulate the example of Father Arnold Damen, organizer of the Holy Family parish and founder of St. Ignatius college. Several of those whoe names are included have entered eternal rest, but their memory is still kept green by a loving people.

It is generally conceded that John Masterson was the first young man born and educated in Holy Family parish to join the Jesuit Order. He was one of the first altar boys in the little frame church erected in 1857 on the south side of Eleventh street, east of May street, which in 1860 was superseded by the present edifice in Roosevelt road. Both before and after his ordination, Father Masterson was a professor at St. Ignatius college, and later was assistant pastor of the parish.

Although antedating Father Master-

LIKES RAINY WEATHER

MORRIS SCHLOGER of Maxwell street is not one of those individuals who proclaim that "It ain't gonna rain no more." Morris sells umbrellas and, although the sun is shining just now, he is informing a passerby that there's nothing like preparing against the day when clouds gather. Morris' favorite verse is "Into each life some rain must fall; some days must be dark and dreary."

Grows Weary of Wining and Dining the Rich

He'd Much Prefer to Dig Ditches; but—

[This is the final story of "The Butler Broadcasts," revealing the inside of the condition of servitude in and around Chicago.]

By Kathleen McLaughlin.

FOR thrift—try the butlering business.

That, at least, is the advice of one of the profession, butler to another of Chicago's first families, at present resident in Lake Forest. It is, he maintains, the chief attraction and greatest asset of his calling, nor did he mix terms in so expressing himself.

"I would rather," he affirmed, "do any other kind of work. I would sooner dig ditches, if it would pay me the same salary."

This was both vehement and staggering, and I glanced at him hastily to see whether he was grinning as he said it. He wasn't. Quite evidently he meant what he said, and I wondered audibly at such an attitude.

"People in domestic service," he dilated, "are looked down upon. They are not considered anything. Sometimes that is very hard to bear, and that is why I would rather do any other sort of work, whatever it might be, if I could get the same wages. But I can't, and that is why I continue at it."

He's His Own Recommendation.

He is a clean cut fellow, this Meyers. Youngish, impeccably groomed, of medium height. He has somewhat the look of an athlete, together with an air of complete self-reliance and implicit confidence in the soundness of his own judgment. It is possibly these characteristics that recommend him to the family he serves, a branch of one of the great merchandising families of the city.

His employer is typically the man of large affairs, impatient with details

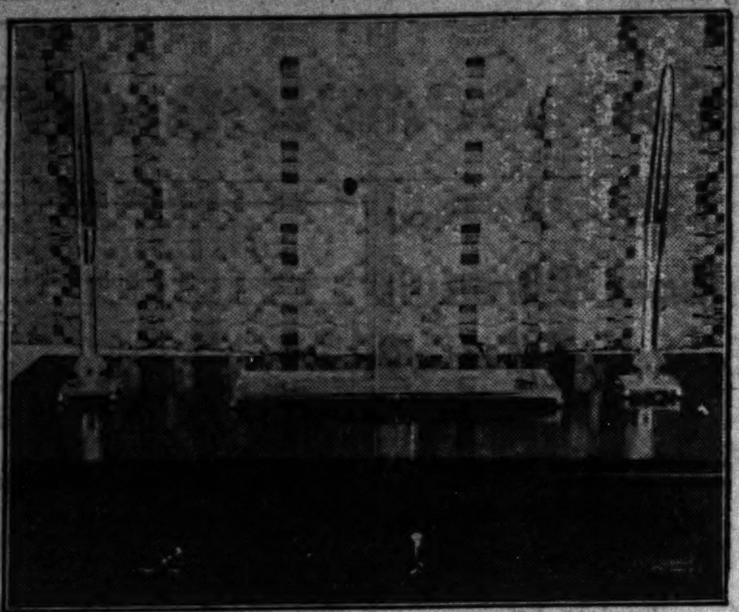
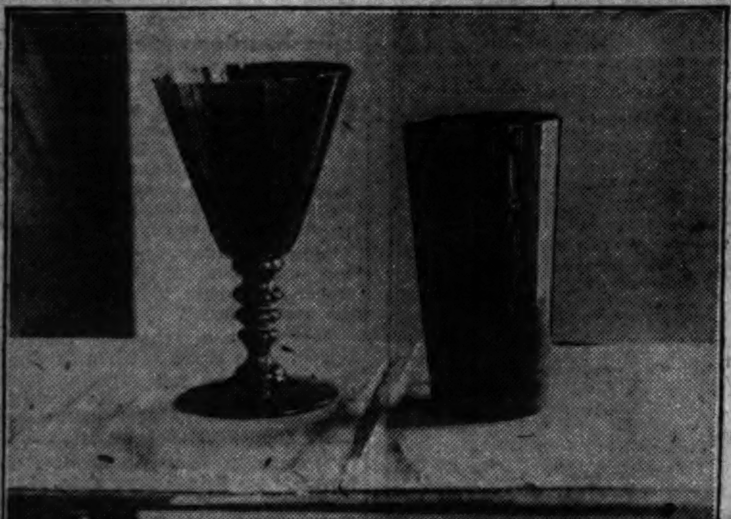
For Lovers of the Modernistic

Objects of Charm Fashioned in Silver, Pewter and Glass

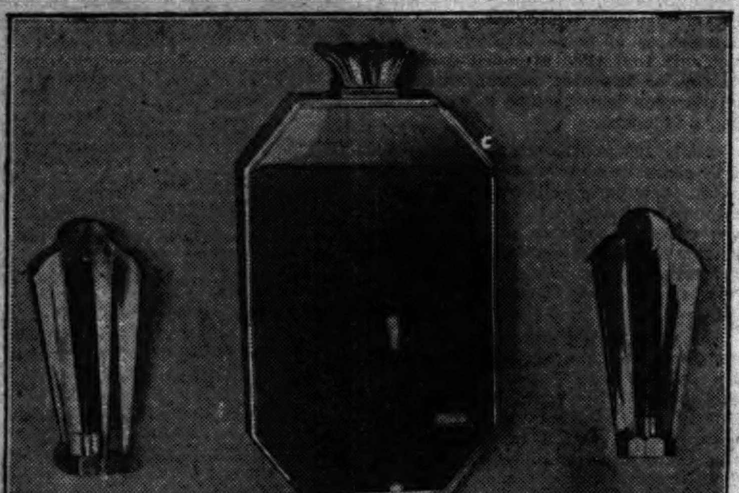
Glass from Sweden in a rare shade, almost black like black chiffon and as delicate in texture as old Venetian. The two beverage glasses are part of a complete set, but may be had separately.



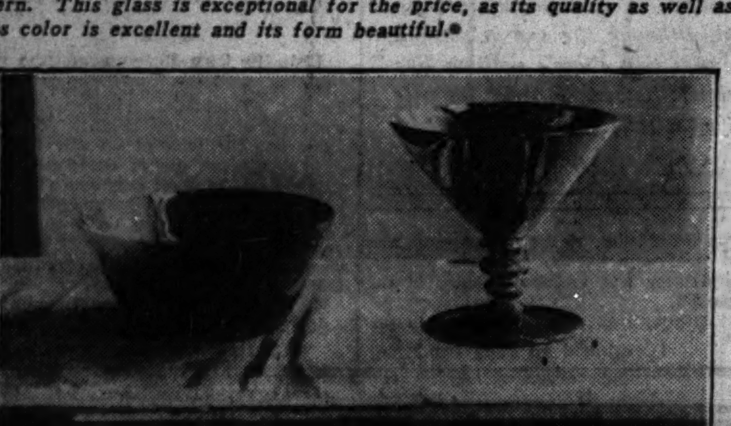
For the lover of the modernistic: An inkwell and candlesticks in hand-wrought silver, simply and chastly fashioned and heavy enough to be an heirloom of the future.



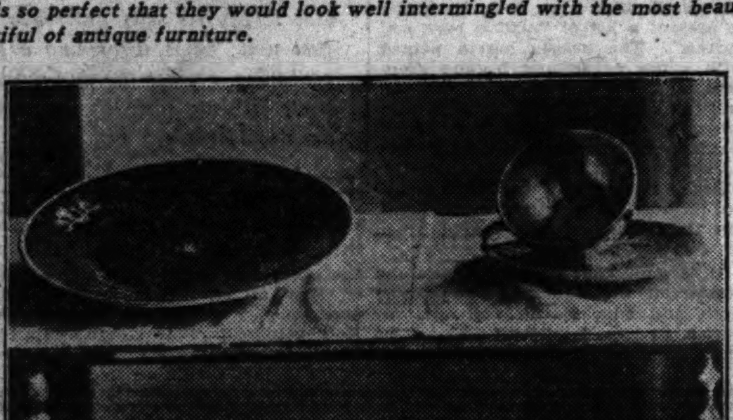
A water tumbler and water goblet in the ruby red, open stock pattern. This glass is exceptional for the price, as its quality as well as its color is excellent and its form beautiful.



A pewter mirror and candlesticks in modernistic manner. The design is so perfect that they would look well intermingled with the most beautiful of antique furniture.



A fingerbowl and a sherbet glass in ruby red, neither too thin nor too thick for everyday wear and priced moderately. It is an open stock pattern, most beautiful in color.



Exquisite dessert service that might have been made in the eighteenth century but was made in 1928 in Sweden. It is black with gold incrustations, and the coffee cup is lined with gold.

Al Watches the Handcuff Trick

Survives Two Wedding Ceremonies in One Day

By Snowshoe Al.

WELL, folks, yesterday was a very heavy day for me and the wife, because we attended two weddings. The first one was a church wedding and took place at 10 o'clock in the morning. The combatants were Miss Evelyn Burke versus Mr. C. L. McConnell, the big sash and door peddler. The second wedding was a quiet "home affair" and took place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This bout was between Miss Gisela Ostheimer and my friend, Mr. Iver Nelson.

We got up early in the morning and headed for the Burke-McConnell Skirmish. This battle had been widely advertised for several weeks—by Mr. McConnell, who must have spent about twelve dollars in nickels calling all his friends on the phone and offering suggestions as to acceptable wedding presents. He is one of them hombres what says:

"Now please don't go to any bother or expense on our behalf, because, really, there ain't a thing we need—except a bedroom suite and an electric refrigerator an' a grand piano, and I would feel very embarrassed if any friend of mine should give us any of the above, as I don't think anybody should sink that much money into a mere wedding present. However, you will find the grand pianos advertised on page five of this morning's newspaper, an' page seven mentions a sale on electric refrigerators, etc."

Groom Was a Howl.

We arrived at the church a couple minutes past ten, and I have this much to say about the encounter: The church, the ceremony, and the bride were all very pretty, but the groom was positively a Howl of Anguish! He wore a claw hammer coat, gray striped panties, undertaker's gloves, a strangle collar and a look of anxiety. He reminded me of the guy what stands in front of the hotel entrance and opens the taxicab doors.

After the Handcuff Trick had been performed the happy couple paraded out of the church and stood on the sidewalk, where everybody rushed to congratulate them. Several people threw rice at them and I thought it was a good idea, so I says to my wife:

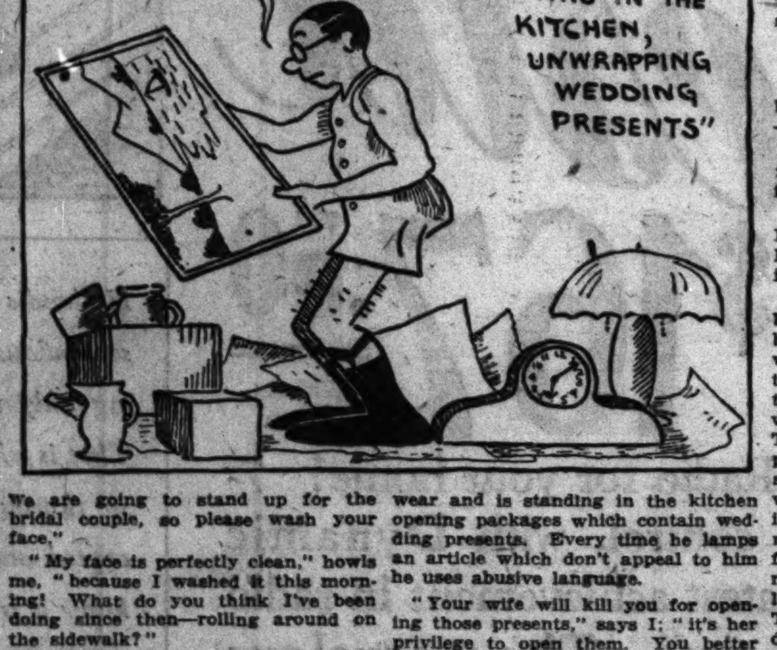
"Dearie, do you mind if I rush over to that Chinese restaurant across the street and buy some rice to slam at the groom?"

"Why go to all that trouble?" asks her; "why don't you ask one of these people to lend you a handful—they seem to have lots of it."

"They ain't throwing the kind I want," says I, galloping towards the restaurant; "I want to throw some boiled rice—in a heavy bowl!"

I am sorry to say, however, that the groom escaped in a taxi before I returned with the Mongolian Breakfast Food, so me and my Sparring Partner went home and made preparations to attend the Ostheimer-Nelson Quarrel.

"Don't forget," says the wife, "that we are going to stand up for the bridal couple, so please wash your face."



WHO THE ✱✱ SENT US THIS?
"THE GROOM WAS IN THE KITCHEN, UNWRAPPING WEDDING PRESENTS"

"My face is perfectly clean," howls me, "because I washed it this morning! What do you think I've been doing since then—rolling around on the sidewalk?"

"O, golly, I'm so thrilled!" chirps her. "I'm to be the matron of honor."

"Yeh?" snorts me. "What am I—the Monkey of Misfortune?"

"You always were," says my Sparring Partner; "however, kindly behave like a gentleman during the ceremony. Remember, you stand on the groom's right side an' the bride stands on his left side."

"Who stands on his other sides?" says me.

"How many sides do you think he's got, yuh poor simp?" says her.

"He's got two more sides," says me, "an inside and an outside! Har, har, we might as well surround the guy an' make a complete job of it. By the way, let's get over there early, so I can sit in a corner an' look dejected."

"What's the idea?" says she.

"Well," says I, "how could the bride's father gaze upon my sad features an' resist the temptation to offer me a drink—if he's got it?"

Opening the Presents.

We reaches the Ostheimer residence about four o'clock and I get handed a rather strange job. It seems as how the bridal couple have already furnished a nice little four room apartment only two blocks away, and the groom is over there taking a bath and changing clothes, etc., and it is my duty to go there and stay with him until almost five o'clock, at which time I drag him back to Ostheimer's and surrender him to the minister, or the sheriff, or whoever wants him. So I breezes over to the cute little apartment and greets the groom. He is wearing a scowl and a suit of underwear and is standing in the kitchen opening packages which contain wedding presents. Every time he lamps an article which don't appeal to him he uses abusive language.

"Your wife will kill you for opening those presents," says I; "it's her privilege to open them. You better keep your paws off the rest of 'em."

Figures Up Cost.

"I'm only going to open one more," says he; "I want to see what's in this large flat package," so he opened it and dragged forth a painting which was about five feet long and two feet wide.

"$@$@$@$@$@!!" says he. "Who the hell sent us that piece of junk?"

"I did," says me.

"O," says he, turning red; "ah, yes. It's real pretty, and I like it very much! We shall always cherish it."

"$@$@$@$@$@$@$@!" says I. "Go put some clothes on—I'm supposed to deliver your carcass at five o'clock sharp. Give me the ring! Hurry up aand get shaved!

"How much money for the minister?" says Nelson.

"He's entitled to at least fifteen dollars," says I, "because all ministers are underpaid."

Whereupon the groom grabbed a pencil and started to figure how much the wedding was costing him. Then he added up the estimated value of the wedding presents and compared the two totals.

"$@$@$@$@$@!!" howls he; "we ain't even making 6 per cent profit!"

Well, at exactly five o'clock I drags this hombre into the Ostheimer home and, believe me, his knees was rattling; in fact, he sounded like somebody exercising a pair of dice. There were about two dozen customers present, including the minister, so we shook hands with all of 'em. Then we goes out on the back porch to smoke a cigaret. At this moment, Mr. Brown, who was one of the customers, rushes out on the porch and says:

* *

The Wedding March.

"Nelson, we are almost ready to begin, and the minister wants the ——"

"Al's got it," says Nelson, yawning. "Al, the minister wants the fifteen bucks."

"No, no, you poor goat," howls Mr. Brown, "the minister wants the license! He has to make sure that it is O. K."

The license was evidently O. K., because we soon got dragged off the back porch and taken into the parlor, where we both got lined up against the wall. For a moment I thought they had changed their minds and were going to bring in a firing squad. Then a young lady sat down at the piano and started playing Mr. Mendelssohn's well known Battle Hymn. My wife soon arrived on the scene carrying about eighteen dollars' worth of roses. [I don't know yet who paid for them—she didn't get 'em from me.] The bride now enters the room leaning on the arm of her father. There's a real guy! He can give a daughter away with more grace and dignity than any one else I've ever seen. [Advertisement.]

The ceremony lasted about twenty minutes, which is much longer than the poor groom's knees lasted; in fact, I was supporting him during the final five minutes.

My wife is still wondering how I did it on my income!

son several years, the Rev. Patrick A. Murphy was not born in Chicago. His father, Daniel Murphy, settled on the prairie before the coming of Father Damen, and was one of the latter's most ardent supporters. Father Murphy was one of the assistant pastors before the fire of '71.

* *

Remember "Father Jim."

Without attempting to set down in chronological form the entrance of young men of Holy Family parish upon a career dedicated to God's service, the list is continued.

The Rev. William P. Whelan and his brother, the Rev. John Whelan, were born at Fourteenth place and Racine avenue. Henry street was the original name of Fourteenth place, and later it was called Wright street. Thomas and Joseph Egan, both of whom became Jesuit priests, were born at Fourteenth place and Morgan street.

The Rev. George P. Shanley, son of Thomas Shanley, an old-time Maxwell street policeman, was born at Maxwell and Morgan streets. He is one of the few priests born in the district who is assigned to Chicago.

The parents of the Rev. James L. McGeary were pioneers of Holy Family parish. Their first home was on May street, from which they removed to Taylor and Sholto, where their son, James, was born. The family made its final hegira to Taylor and Lytle streets, in which neighborhood "Father Jim" is still remembered. After his ordination Father McGeary was assigned as professor in St. Ignatius college. Besides his other duties he directed the Boy Choristers, an organization that earned an enviable name in musical circles beyond the confines of the parish.

The Breen Brothers.

One of Father Damen's most helpful assistants in early days was Matt Donoher, whose son John J. entered the priesthood. The Donoher family lived on 12th street, east of Canal, before the fire.

The Rev. John S. Ragor was a son of Andrew Ragor, who before the era of horse cars operated a bus line. Ragor omnibuses ran from Clark and Madison streets to Lincoln park; Wabash avenue and Madison street to 31st street, and on 12th street from State to Ashland avenue.

Rarely does it happen that three brothers dedicate their lives to the priesthood, but Holy Family parish can boast of such a triumvirate. The Breen brothers, Aloysius A., Francis X. and Paul M., all of whom were reared in the Maxwell street district, became Jesuit fathers.

Lytle street was a favorite gathering place in the days for the youth of the neighborhood. Charles Comiskey, owner of the White Sox ball club, lived on this street between 12th and Taylor nearly opposite the home of "Karl" Gardiner, comedian, who wrote the once popular song, "Little Bunch of Lilacs."

* *

"Paddy Duffy's Cart."

Several young men who became priests were reared on Lytle street and were boyhood companions of Comiskey and Gardiner. It is recalled by one of the few remaining residents of the street that often the boys would foregather in the evening and an improvised quartet would sing old time favorites. One of the songs of the period was "Paddy Duffy's Cart" that ran something in this fashion:

"O, many happy evenings I spent
when but a lad
On Paddy Duff's lumber cart quite
safe away from dad:
It stood down on the corner, near
the old lamplight,
You should see the congregation
there on every summer night.
There was Larry Dooley, he was a
friend of mine,
Fatty Green, Jimmie Creen, and lit-
tle Abie Klein.
All merry boyish comrades, recollec-
tions bring,
While seated there on Duffy's cart
on summer nights to sing.

Twinkling stars are laughing, love,
laughing at you and me—
While you, bright eyes, looking, love, twinkling stars they seemed to be."

Bore Good Reputation.

In recent years, the daily press has teemed with stories chronicling the activities of certain individuals who, incorrectly, were described as being natives of the "Valley." According to these newspaper accounts the "Valley" comprised half of the Maxwell street district. As a matter of fact the original "Valley" was old Catherine street, from Stewart avenue to Center avenue. Many years ago the name of the street was changed to Fifteenth.

The "Valley" of olden days bore a good reputation, for the people who dwelt therein were hardworking, God-fearing men and women. Several priests were born on the edge of the "Valley," notably among them being the Rev. Joseph A. McLaughlin, the Rev. James G. Delihant, the Egan brothers and the Whelan brothers.

Grew Up in District.

Space does not permit a detailed account of other Jesuit or secular priests who were born or reared in the district, but some of the names follow:

R. J. Brown, S. A. Blackmore, William Corboy, Andrew Carr, Joseph Curran, James J. Corbley, Walter Cornell, Michael Cushing, Philip C. Dunne, Joseph Donnellan, Joseph Donahue, William F. Dooley, T. A. Driscoll, James V. Devlin, John P. Esmaker, Thomas S. Fitzgerald, William Foley, Gilbert J. Garraghan, Arnold J. Garvy, Joseph Georgen, Michael H. Gorman, John I. Grace, Edward J. Gleason, James Hynes, W. S. Hagerty, Ignatius Hamill, J. M. Heeney, J. Hennessy, William T. Kane, Terence T. Kane, T. A. Kelly, John Kennedy, James Kiely, George Kiley, Nicholas Liston, George Leahy, William Millay, William M. Magee, James A. Meskell, Edmund S. Murphy, William A. Murphy, J. F. Mortell, Edward Maguire, Aloysius McCormick, Thomas J. Moore, John Morris, Edward F. Maher, Thomas Neate, Simon J. Nicholas, James Nash, John Nash, John O'Byran, Francis O'Bryan, James O'Connell, Edmund O'Connell, Joseph C. Quill, A. G. Quill, M. J. Ryan, Charles Smith, Thomas J. Smith, Charles P. Sullivan, E. P. Sullivan, Cornelius Sullivan, James J. Sullivan, William D. Tierney, T. Tracey, Thomas F. Wallace, and William J. Wallace.

Served as Altar Boys.

All of the foregoing served as altar boys at Holy Family church, and many of them returned to celebrate their first mass amidst boyhood scenes before being assigned to scholastic or missionary work.

Besides those listed, several young men who were born in the district are now studying for the priesthood in ecclesiastical institutions conducted by the Jesuit order.

Brother Thomas M. Mulkerins, to whom I am indebted for much of the data contained in these memoirs of old Maxwell street, recently celebrated the golden jubilee of his affiliation with the Society of Jesus. As sacristan of Holy Family church since 1883, he saw the parish grow to 25,000 communicants—the largest in the world—which by exodus of the Irish, Germans, and Bohemians has been reduced to a fraction of its former membership.

SUMMER STUDENTS

ONE might imagine that going to school during the hot months would call for long faces. Not so with these young folk attending vacation classes at Englewood High school. The lessons seem to have caused plenty of mirth, unless it be that the smiles are in anticipation of joys to be encountered in an afternoon that is still young.

Bank of France Now Has Gold Bars for Sale

PARIS.—(AP)—Bars of gold are on the market in Paris for the first time since the start of the war, 14 years ago.

All the gold any one could want is in the Bank of France, but the rule is one bar to a customer and the price of a small one is $4,000. That is all the stabilization of the franc has done for the average Parisian for the present at least.

Under the law paper money is convertible into gold, but temporary regulations limit such transactions to large amounts. Coins have not yet been minted, and the gold must be sold by the pound. The $4,000 bar measures 2 by 2 by 4 inches.

Bargains!

Bargain Board and Lodging.

A couple of years ago while I was soldiering in the Philippines, a friend of mine and myself decided to go up the Bataan peninsula hunting for wild pigs.

The first night out we hit a small barrio about dusk and inquired at the only tienda [store] there where we might get some supper and a place to sleep for the night. It happened that the dato [head man] of the village owned the store. He offered to have his wife fix us some food and also to put us up for the night.

Within an hour we sat down to a meal that included baked fish, fresh vegetables and fruits, with many trimmings. Afterwards he called his three daughters in and had them play their stringed instruments and sing for us. Later he took us upstairs [this was the only two storied building in the barrio] and gave us a room, unrolling two bed mats for us. The next morning he furnished us a breakfast of fruit, fresh eggs, American ham and coffee.

Before we left we asked the dato how much we owed him. You can imagine our surprise when he apologetically inquired if we thought three pesos [$1.50] was exorbitant.

Shoes Lasted 5 Years.

This is the best shoe bargain I ever heard of. Five years ago, I bought a pair of dark brown oxfords for $2.95. The first two winters I had not much occasion to wear them, but during the last three winters those shoes have done constant and heavy service. The original soles are still whole, the leather is still in perfect condition, not a crack, scarcely a scuff, even.

In addition to being good looking and wear resisting, they are also comfortable. I expect them to see me through next winter's cold weather. Some clerk surely put a high priced pair of shes on to the bargain table by mistake and I, fortunately, reaped the benefit.

J. M. M.

An Expert in Swapping.

I had a friend who was broke and wanted money to go to a football game, so he sold me a sheep lined coat for $1.50.

I wore the coat for about one month and a half and then a friend wanted it, so I sold it to him for a seven jewel white gold watch.

Later on I sold the watch for $22. This is the best bargain I have ever had.

AN EXCITING ROUND

MUCH comment is heard from the ringside as "Daisy" Mac Levin, 4401 Magnolia avenue, puts on the gloves with "Cyclone" Epstein, 1836 Byron street, at Camp North Woods. The camp is conducted by the Wilson avenue department of the Y. M. C. A. at the Lac du Flambeau Indian reservation. E. R. Sunley, athletic director, is acting as referee.

THE HAPPY ARRIVAL

THE old camp flivver is well-nigh smothered with eager boyhood as it pulls into Camp Duncan with a new batch of arrivals. AQUATIC CAGE BALL

THIS is one of the most popular sports among the boys at Hastings lake camps conducted by the Chicago Y. M. C. A. near Lake Villa, Ill. One of its advantages over baseball is that the ball can never be lost. These youngsters taking part in the exciting contest are among the 4,000 boys enjoying an outing at Y. M. C. Domestic Work Drives Him Wild, Butler Asserts

He's Weary of Wining and Dining the Rich.

and employing men who will assume responsibility. It is natural that his butler feel himself capable of managing the routine of the household without disturbing its head to act as mediator or judge when others of the help become obstreperous or lax in their duties.

Meyers and I had never met before, and it is quite possible that we never shall again, for, in company with many thousands more of Chicagoans, my name is not on the preferred list of callers at the town or country residence of the Sterlings. Neither have I as yet glimpsed either mansion, for our talk took place amid the hubbub of THE TRIBUNE local room, whither Meyers had found his way when he learned that I, who wanted to know about butlers, would like to talk with him, who knew about butlers.

The Moneyed Class.

He was a bit suspicious at first, picking his conversational way with such caution that I sensed he was fearful of lending himself to any Town Tattle tactics in the ensuing article. Once convinced that such journalistic depravity was not contemplated, he relaxed and talked about himself and his work.

"I will wager," he told me, "that, man for man, the average butler can lay more money on the table than the ordinary man in any other line of work. Plenty of them have put away fortunes."

This was an interesting angle, though I refused to accept the wager, having no particular desire to make a donation to Meyers. There wouldn't even be a sporting element about that bet.

"For instance," he went on, "I know of one butler, here in Chicago, who had a horse entered in the Kentucky Derby."

"Correct," I acknowledged, "I've been hearing a little bit about butlers, and I've heard that one before. I know the one you mean."

"And," pursued Meyers, "there is one maid I know of, who has worked a long time here in this city and who is worth $40,000. And there are plenty of others I could name if I would—both maids and butlers—who have big bank accounts. That happens because they receive good wages; the average pay for a really good butler is anywhere between $150 and $200 a month. Then, of course, they haven't many expenses; their board and rent is paid, they do not go about much to spend their salary, and so they manage to accumulate money.

Playing the Tips.

"That's why I say that it is a good line of work if one wants to save and get ahead. I haven't yet found anything I could work at that would pay me so well.

"There are other ways of making money, too, you know. In these big houses you often get a tip about the market, and I know of plenty that have played and won."

"You mean their employers give them the tips?"

"Give them!" scoffed Meyers. "They give them nothing like that—you may overhear conversations, say nothing, and play the thing yourself. It only happens once in a while.

"Why, Mr. Sterling, for all his money, never plays the market himself. And he would not think of telling even his own friends if he suspects it will go a certain way. He doesn't go in for gambling in any form."

Meyers had a slight accent, for all his excellent English, that led to the inquiry as to how long he has been in this country. It proved to be only a matter of several years. He has lived in Chicago less than five years.

* *

His Lowly Beginning.

"What did you do before you took this place?" I asked him. "And how did you get your training for the job?"

He smiled a slow, reminiscent smile.

"I was a salesman, but I couldn't sell," he confessed. "I spent a month at it and didn't make a cent. I'd been traveling in New York state, and I managed to get back to New York, completely broke. So—I took a job as dishwasher in one of the biggest of the hotels. And, just to show you what can be done in this country, in eighteen months I had become assistant to the head waiter. I didn't say so when I went to work, but I had done that sort of work in Europe, and I knew how.

"Then I thought I'd get into a home somewhere, and I did, working as butler for a family in the east for a little more than a year. After that I got a chance to come west, but I didn't like the place after I arrived, so I came to Chicago and tried a couple of others. Finally I got this one."

"And you like this position very much?"

His Period of Rest.

It was then that Meyers astonished me with the assertion he would prefer digging ditches. The sentiment, I feel confident, was individual and reflects only his own reaction to his work because of previous circumstances. He was not inclined to divulge much about his former life, but I gathered that his parents had enjoyed a comfortable living in Europe and that he had had advantages somewhat beyond other boys. He served with the allies during the war, and it was his experiences at that time, it seemed, that decided him to come to America.

"But the work can't be very hard," I hazarded, groping for the right kind of response to his unequivocal statement about his job. That proved to be wrong, too.

"Not hard? Why, I'm busy every minute," he retorted, more than half offended. "How could any one think a butler hasn't much to do. There's a thousand things to keep you busy. Some people think all the work a butler does is in the dining room. That's nothing—nothing. I consider serving a meal an absolute relaxation. That's about the only time I get a chance to rest."

Apparently it was another case of the other fellow's job looking easy.

Going Into Details.

"It's like this," Meyers went into detail for me. "You get the breakfast served and out of the way. You get into the butler's pantry and perhaps you take off your coat and have a big apron wrapped around you, to start cleaning the silver. Then the telephone rings. The telephone—it may be a convenience to other people, but it's just a nuisance to me!

"You answer the ring. Somebody wants to speak to somebody upstairs. All right! You take off the apron and put on your coat and go upstairs and tell the one that's wanted. You come back and get into the apron again. Then the telephone rings again, and it's all to be done over again. And it goes on that way one day after another.

"Then, of course, there's valeting to be done for any guests that may be staying in the house, and sometimes that is a big job. You can spend lots of time putting clothes in order and pressing them.

"You have the liquor to take care of, and to be sure the cigar and cigaret stock doesn't get low. If any is needed you make a note of it and see that it is bought.

"Another thing is the table linens and decorations. They must be changed every day. It would be simply unthinkable for the Sterling family to sit down to a dinner table with the same decorative scheme—flowers and linen—as was used the day before. And it keeps one going to achieve variety there.

No Time for Society.

"One good thing—of course, all these large estates are plentifully supplied with table service. There are closets packed with china, and tablecloths and napkins, and glassware, more than you would think one household could possibly use.

"Then, in addition to the things I mentioned, there is the usual routine of preparing relishes and salads and cocktails for the meals, and serving, and answering the bell, and carrying messages. No, you don't have any time for your own social life, I can tell you."

"Is the family much given to entertaining?"

"No, they're rather quiet. Once in a while a dinner party, but they prefer to have their friends to dinner a few at a time, which makes it easy for me. Unless it's a party of, say, fourteen persons or more, there is no extra help required.

Wining and Dining 'Em.

"Now, over in England the butler does no serving at all. He simply stands and directs the footmen. Only in rare cases does he place a dish of food, and then probably only before the master of the house. Under no condition would he touch a soiled dish. This is one reason why English butlers are so popular. They are well trained and know how to carry out elaborate service."

"You spoke of the liquor supply—I suppose you are, like most good butlers, a connoisseur of wines?"

"Well, I know a lot about them, and about mixing drinks. It's seldom you'll find a butler who doesn't drink, but the thing is to find one who doesn't get drunk. I don't."

"And I've heard that some of the north shore families are generous with bonuses at Christmas time."

"Yes, the Sterlings are, too. After one of the help has been there a certain time, they get bonuses of $100 every six months."

"Most of the positions on these estates are secured through employment agencies?"

"O, I don't know. There are about three of those agencies, all on the north side, that handle the bulk of that business. But a great many butlers get places by phoning around to their friends, who may know of some place. It isn't hard for a good butler to get a position."

There Isn't Any More.

Which checked precisely with what Meyers' colleagues, Judkins and Bush, previously had told me. It seemed suddenly to recall to Meyers that he had better be getting back on his own job. It terminated the interview and, there being no other tenant of a butler's pantry who appears willing to unburden his mind through the medium of this column,

This, ladies and gentlemen, concludes our program. Station B-U-T-L-E-R—signing off.

Do You Know Nicknames of the Famous?

Can you identify these nicknames by which famous people were known, or live in subsequent history?

All you've got to do is get 30 in this quiz, and thereby your name is instantly inscribed on the honor roll. Not that 30 is impossible, but actually not more than one in fifty can do better than 15. However, if you can call a dozen of the hundred sobriquets in this list, you will have accomplished some very creditable work. Remember then, 40 correct answers is wonderful; 50 is marvelous; 60 is extraordinary; 70 is astonishing; 80 is prodigious; 90 is miraculous; and 100 is positively supernatural.

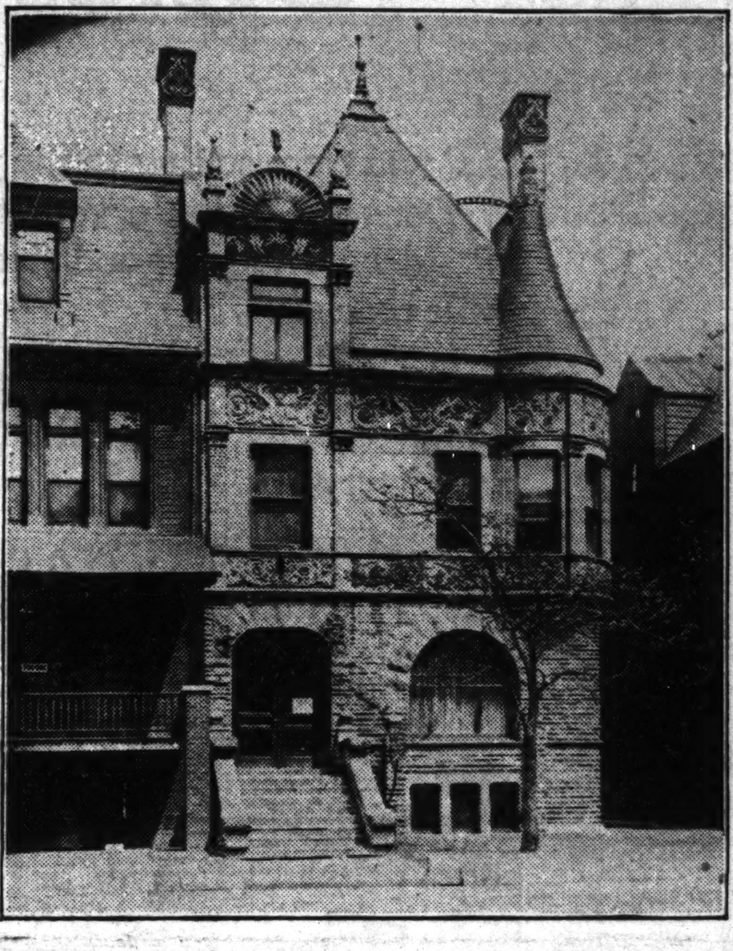
FAMOUS HOMES



THIS residence at 2919 Prairie avenue was filled with rare pictures and precious books when the family of Frank G. Logan made it their home. The prominent broker, who retired from the Board of Trade after twenty-five years' toying with bulls and bears, desired that others should share his enjoyment in art treasures and remains active in the encouragement of enterprises at the Art institute. The Logans now live at 1150 Lake Shore drive.

Smallest Restaurant Has Solitary Table

PARIS.—(AP)—The smallest restaurant in the world, long nameless, has just been christened "The Restaurant of Wet Feet."

This Lilliputian establishment, located in Montmartre, consists of one table and is patronized chiefly by midinettes. At one side of the table there is barely room for the proprietress and her stove. Some guests find no room and take their food into a nearby café.

The name "Wet Feet" resulted from the fact that the owner is constantly scrubbing the floor.

Bread of All Lands Seen at Exhibition

PARIS.—(AP)—Bread, that humble staff of life, is gaining prestige. Novels are named for it in America, but in France a salon is given over to it.

A bread salon is in sway in Horticulture hall, displaying more kinds of loaves than any but an epicure would recognize. French bread, English cakes, Spanish rolls, Dutch biscuits, and Belgian cookies give the exhibition an international flavor.

And attachés explain that style is as important in the designing of loaves as in the fashioning of garments.

Woman Banker Tells of Her Upward Climb

Loyalty and Knowledge of Job Rewarded.

ruinously than in the granting of loans.

"It is hard, sometimes," Miss Hansen admitted, "to have to refuse a loan to a person you feel needs it. But the bank comes first. You cannot jeopardize it to assuage your own feelings."

However, it is the personal element that has made her happy in her work.

"I have enjoyed it all the way," she said. "It is dealing not so much with money as with people."

* *

Gardening Her Hobby.

Her only regret is that she did not attend a university.

"If I had it to do over again, I would go to college," she said. "If you glean nothing else of later value to you from it, you learn how to think straight. We have a great many university graduates here, and on the whole they progress more rapidly than those who have not had their advantages."

But Miss Hansen does not believe that education alone will turn the trick.

"Women in banking," she said, "or men, for that matter, must have, primarily, good judgment and just plain common sense. They must be willing to work and work hard, along with other people.

"Because a bank's stated hours are short, people are inclined to think working in one is somewhat of a sinecure. But nearly everyone here comes early and works late."

She has found little time for things outside of business. It is not only her job, but her chief hobby. Just now she has taken up gardening. Her evenings are spent in the yard of the home she maintains with her mother and two sisters at 5846 North Kenton avenue. She raises no special variety of flower, but a little of everything.

"You know," she said, "I had the prettiest rosebush. It came into full bloom and then while it was blooming it suddenly died. I have never been able to figure out what was wrong."

Knows Her Neighborhood.

Miss Hanson has always lived on the northwest side. Since her duties are concerned with loans on real estate, a good deal of it located in that section her knowledge of the community stands her in good stead.

Three or four years ago she helped to organize a tiny group of women bank executives, tiny because there were only a few such in Chicago at the time.

"Now," she said, "we have thirty or forty members. I think that indicates that more and more women are going into banking and making a success of it."

She has none of the inaccessibility associated with the usual bank executive. She has not eschewed femininity to realize a man's success. The sympathetic virtues, however carefully checked by her undoubted good judgment, make her a person easy to talk with and happy to deal with.

Clerk Was Friendly.

Being a working girl, I am compelled to do my shopping after 5 o'clock. One day I walked into the shoe department of one of the large department stores. It was almost closing time. I noticed that several of the clerks attempted to dodge me, but one of them strode up to me and acted as though it were a pleasure to wait upon me.

Before I had selected the shoes I desired the bell rang, which meant it was quitting time. The clerk seemed oblivious of the bell and gave me the same courteous service I would have received had I entered the department an hour earlier. In fact, he took great pains trying to please me.

I finally selected a pair of shoes. It is needless to say that this clerk has won my patronage. And I try to get in the store earlier so as not to keep him after hours.

Change Forwarded.

I was shopping in a large department store and had the main part of my purchase charged on my mother's account, since at that time I did not have one of my own there. The last article which I bought, a sweater, for $9.75, I paid for with a $20 check of my own. I was in a hurry to get through with my shopping and went away, forgetting to wait for my change.

Imagine my surprise when, two days later, before I had checked up on the contents of my purse, I received a letter from the shopping service bureau of that store. This [illegible] explained what I had done, contained my change, $10.25, and expressed the hope that my forgetfulness had not caused me any inconvenience or worry. My address had been obtained from my check and the reparation for my carelessness was made possible by the honesty of the saleswoman and the aid of the shopping service bureau.

I scarcely need say how grateful I have always felt toward that store; it now has my utmost confidence and my patronage. M. W. [illegible]

Grateful Customer.

Two years ago I bought a suit at one of our leading stores in this city. After wearing it until this spring, I took the coat and vest to have them altered, and a chamois lining put in the vest pocket, informing the manager to put the bill on my charge account.

Several days later I received my goods, altered, neatly pressed, and no charge.

Needless to say, I always patronize this store and recommend it to my friends.

It is pleasant this sultry weather to motor through our front yard—Jackson, Grant and Lincoln parks—and on north to Evanston and observe the joy with which the little shavers from tenement town and other sections hemmed in by brick and stone walls, frolic on the greensward and the sands. A bit undernourished, many of them, with an unhealthy pallor, yet they kick up their heels and cavort like young colts. August is commonly deemed the month of dog days—vernacular for the doldrums. It may be in less fortunate cities, but certainly not in Chicago. On the shores of this inland sea, the world's greatest summer resort is mecca for the nation's buyers as well as pleasure seekers in this period of general quiescence. It hangs out its sign regardless, "Business as Usual." Consider a few of the attractions for August; The Interstate Merchants' council convention, comprising 4,000 retail merchants, Aug. 7, 8, 9; the Gifts, Artwares and Novelties association's annual show, Aug. 6-11; the Jewelry and Allied Art Trades' show; the Chicago Style show, Aug. 5-12; the Fur Fashion exhibit, July 28-Aug. 11; the Chicago Merchandise fair, July 31-Aug. 11. All of which mean thousands of buyers and millions of dollars.

"Cities Within the City"

Forty-Seventh and Ashland—A busy corner of the "Southwest Center" where thousands of shoppers throng the streets every day in the week.

IF you were selling to the people of Denver, Colorado, you would consider Denver a good sized, worth while market.

Or—if you opened up a store in Louisville, Kentucky, you would have a fine trade territory.

St. Paul, Minnesota, is a city which offers splendid opportunities for the progressive merchant.

And yet—here in your own city—is a single district, one of 48, which contains approximately the same number of people as Denver, or Louisville, or St. Paul.

Chicago's "Southwest Center"—South Ashland avenue from 47th street to 51st street—is a business district serving over 350,000 people. Merchants in this area sell to the progressive people of Packingtown—people whose standards of living are constantly rising. The once narrow streets of "Southwest Center" are widened; dark little shops have been replaced with modern store buildings. And the merchants, too, have learned modern business methods. They have learned the incalculable value of advertising.

In this city within the city of Chicago, the business men have long realized the worth of newspaper advertising. But many merchants were not able to afford this selling aid which has proved so successful for the larger retail stores.

And Then—The Metropolitan Section!

The Chicago Tribune, knowing the problem which confronted the neighborhood merchant, inaugurated the Metropolitan Section of the Sunday Tribune. By dividing the circulation of the Sunday Tribune into three great parts, one for each side of the city, the outlying merchant is now able to buy the circulation which he can use—the circulation in his own district. And this at approximately one-third of the regular rate for full Sunday Tribune circulation.

Competition is keen today. Other merchants in adjoining sections are making bids for the business which should be yours. Take a strangle hold on the trade in your district. The Metropolitan Section enables you to concentrate on the people in your trading area.

Are you interested in learning how merchants in each of the 48 districts of Chicago are putting the tremendous power of Sunday Tribune circulation to work for them? A Tribune man will be glad to explain. Phone Superior 0100.

Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

240 U. S. Radio Stations Giving Aid to Farmers

Introducing Up to Date Methods.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—During the fiscal year just closed more than one-third of the radio stations of the United States lent their facilities to the department of agriculture for the dissemination of timely information for farmers and housewives, according to Moose Salesbury, chief of the radio service of the department. Daily or more frequent weather forecasts were transmitted by 181 stations; 107 stations carried schedules of farm market news broadcasts, running in some instances to 12 periods daily; and 149 stations sent to their listeners one or more of the 10 educational features supplied by the Radio service. Excluding duplications, 240 of the 700 American stations broadcast one or more of the department of agriculture services.

"Spot news" of weather and markets and general educational broadcasts all were used by farmers who go the radio way. One listener wrote: "Radio has helped me put up better hay by giving weather forecasts. Also by the feed prices whereby one can buy feed accordingly. I had a litter of ailing pigs this winter and got the lesson in question and answer form and it happened to be a case like mine, resulting in a complete cure at a big gain as I got them on the market in good shape."

Effective Educational Means.

A significant feature of the radio relation to farming during the last year was that the agricultural statisticians began to take measure of the newcomer's place in the broad field of introducing better farming and homemaking practices. One extension survey in Kansas is typical of the findings of the figure hounds.

Federal and state extension workers talked with 532 farm families in two typical Kansas counties. They found that 188 of the families had radio receiving sets. Radio broadcasts received on these sets had caused directly the adoption of 156 different improved farming and homemaking practices—13 per cent of all improved practices adopted on the 532 farms in the 9 years since extension work began in the two counties. Another way of gauging radio's effectiveness in this instance is to compute the percentage of farmers having a chance to hear radio broadcasts who got something of practical application from them. This calculation shows that 34.8 per cent of the farmer listeners put radio information to work—or one in each three "exposed to radio education."

Considering the fact that radio has been at work in these communities not more than 5 years, and to any extent—as measured by number of farm owned receivers—for much less than that period, these figures indicate that radio is now and will increasingly be a most effective means of agricultural education.

Crystallizes Thought.

The rapid development of chain broadcasting is bringing further opportunities of unifying rural thought and action. One of the most striking demonstrations of what may be done along this line took place last month. Arranged by the Radio Service and extension service of the department of agriculture and the National Broadcasting company, a national radio night for 4-H clubs—an organization of 620,000 farm boys and girls—was broadcast from Washington on Saturday evening, June 23. Twenty-three stations affiliated with the National Broadcasting company sent this one hour program to some 300,000 club members and leaders as well as the usual audience of broadcast listeners. Each club group, meeting locally, heard music by the Navy band, and an address by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and the story of her club work told by a club girl. At the conclusion of the hour, the 300,000 rose along with the 150 national club champions in Washington, and repeated the club pledge, sang the club song, and stood at attention while the Navy band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

This new accomplishment of the radio art holds promise of similar spectacular events for the future. Meanwhile the information programs of the federal department and of the state extension services go on through the coöperation of broadcasting stations. The radio service schedule for 1928-29 includes, as in the past, program features for homemakers, for farmers, for farm boys and girls, and for city dwellers who do their farming in the back yard.

Broadcast of Dem Convention Set at $1.15 Per Second

Spending $1.15 a second to broadcast the Democratic national convention, the National Broadcasting company and associated stations are believed to have set a new high record in radio public service, according to M. H. Aylesworth, president of NBC.

The Democratic convention was on the air for a total of 25 hours and the total cost of the broadcast over the coast to coast network of 43 radio stations was $104,000, or $27,000 more than the cost of the Republican convention broadcast.

"While it is true that a few shorter programs have cost more per second than the Democratic convention report, these broadcasts have been commercially sponsored," Aylesworth said. "The convention broadcasts, on the other hand, were paid for by NBC and associated radio stations and were not revenue producing.

"We believe that the broadcasts of the Republican and Democratic conventions are outstanding examples of the service radio can render the nation as a whole."

The cost of $1.15 per second is arrived at by reducing the 25 hours to 90,000 seconds of time on the air at a total cost of $104,000.

The cost of broadcasting both conventions, shared by NBC and associated stations, was $181,000.

BIRD IMITATOR.

Bird imitations by Walter Bayley over the radio in England have been so accurate and amazing that more than one critic has accused him of concealing some instrument in his mouth.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN A. RYAN.

THE movie industry is all agog over the bewildering popularity of the talking pictures. And at the same time the news comes daily that moving pictures by radio are near in the offing. Gosh, what is it all coming to?

When the talking movies are broadcast over the radio and when football games can bee seen as well as heard in the radio horn, what will we announcers do then, poor things? A phonograph record can be inserted every half hour to announce what radio station it is—and then there will be no use for announcers at all.

How the public loves tricks and novelties! A few preliminary skits prior to a feature picture—Will Hays making a speech, Elsie Janis crooning a song, Martinelli gesticulating and singing Vesti la Guibba — and there is a great whoopie from the audience. That was the program of the first talking movie we saw. Later, we understand, a few scenes of some of the big films were made vocal, with well known movie actors speaking lines. Now, Mae Tinee says, the big boys of the industry are calling back new releases to add a few audible effects to them, by means of the records, such as the shouts of the baseball crowd and similar incidental sounds. It is predicted that very soon all films will be speakeasies—and even now "doubles" are speaking the lines of a rôle when the movie actor is lacking a good voice.

THIS IS STATION B.L.A.H. BROADCASTING FROM THE WHOZIS HOTEL

We remember seeing and hearing the talking pictures in Chicago about fifteen years ago, and we wonder what has occasioned their sudden vogue at present and what has kept them hidden all these years, except the slow work on the synchronization of tone and image on the same record-film, or film-record.

Audible movies are with us at last, but we suspect that it will be fifteen years more before movies will be broadcast, save in spectacular experiments. Despite the current stories and rumors, we feel that their widespread commercialization is a long way off.

It would seem that the lively arts are becoming strictly mechanical. First came the phonograph, in which the artist's voice and his instrumental music were delivered in reproduction and by which the artist drew farther away from the actual presence of his audience. Then came the mechanical piano, in which the artist's piano roll played for him by proxy. Later came the radio, by means of which the artist's auditors sit in their homes thousands of miles from his concert hall or platform and rarely, if ever, see him in the flesh.

The movies, once a mechanical contrivance serving only one of the five senses, now develop a further mechanical appeal to another of the senses. In turn the radio proposes to broadcast moving pictures of events simultaneously with their occurrence or shortly following. Then will come, as a labor saving device for the artist, the broadcasting of the audible movies, perhaps; listeners at home will see and hear the great violinist in the recital he offered a week previous, a thousand miles away. It's a fascinating and bewildering cycle. The next evening the audience can hear and see him again, in the same recital, while the artist grows fat and inept from lack of practise and activity.

Follow the course of thought farther, if you will. We will not need to go to Louisville to enjoy the Kentucky Derby. We have it now in our theaters in picture and in sound. Some day these same pictures and sounds will be transmitted into our homes simultaneously with the running of the Derby, just as the story and the noises are broadcast at present. We will not have to move from our firesides to see and hear the world series, or the Olympic games or the senate in action, if any.

The Niagara Falls can be enjoyed at home by radio, in flashing movies and roaring sound. Why travel abroad, when the Alps and the pyramids can be broadcast to us? The inventions in transportation and communication have banished distances and barriers, but when that day comes, probably the inventors will have gone too far; when we can see and hear any one and any place in the world without moving from our homes, there will no longer be need of traveling. The world will be only as large as Hop o' My Thumb, and all things will be transparent. When we can see and hear over oceans and through mountains, woe to the people who live in glass houses!

But mostly, it looks bad for the artists. Will there be mechanical orchestral accompaniments to the movies? Will the radio programs be canned material, broadcast over and over again? Will there be any attendance at baseball games, or theaters or concert halls?

The world will be brought plop! into the homes and we may become more sedentary than ever.

The musical artists will become hermits. They will be seen and heard, but never met. What is now called a lively art—music and dancing, for instance, which require a repetition every time they are enjoyed by their patrons, as contrasted to painting and sculpture—the lively arts will be no longer lively. A singer need sing his song only once or a violinist need play his theme on only one record, and his audience may listen to him and watch him the rest of his lifetime.

The audible movies are with us, and the audible movies over the radio are somewhere in the future. But, as one of the Black Crows used to say, why bring that up?

Lessons in Auction Bridge

BY R. M. ROGERS.

ARTICLE XVIII.

From Wisconsin we received a rare hand with this request: "Please tell me how this hand should be bid and what would be the probable score." When we gave the answer we asked how it had been handled and the interesting reply was, "The hand was played at a duplicate bridge club—going out north bid up to three diamonds and made 3 odd. On the return play the north hand bid one N. T., east bids hearts and the bidding continued until 5 hearts had been bid and doubled—and when played resulted in a loss of seven hundred points on tricks alone." How this was done was not explained. The hands were as follows; north being the dealer:

West		North / South		East
		S—A, K, 10, 7. H—10, 8, 4. D—A, J, 10, 4, 2. C—A.
S—8. H—K, Q, 7, 5. D—9, 8, 7, 3. C—J, 9, 4, 2.	W.	N. S.	E.	S—J, 6, 3. H—A, J, 9, 6, 3, 2. D—5. C—Q, 8, 7.
		S—Q, 9, 5, 4, 2. H—None. D—K, Q, 6. C—K, 10, 6, 5, 3.

The first play started with a bid of one diamond, which is the most practical bid of the north hand, and with the hope that south will bid hearts and permit a no trump bid on the second round, but west defensively is entitled to bid one heart and does so. South assisted the diamond bid and west probably passed, not having the necessary number of tricks to support the heart bid. North goes to 3 diamonds and east passes, having no assistance from partner.

This was sensible bidding, but poor play followed if north and south only took nine tricks as reported.

If east opens with the ace of hearts, how north and south can play the hand and make only three diamonds is a mystery.

The second time the hand was played, east would bid hearts over either a no trump or diamond bid by north, and west must have supported on the supposition that his singleton spade and four diamonds would enable him to trump but his hand does not contain the four tricks required to support partner on the first round, and he can support east but once on any subsequent round.

The bidding by north and south with diamonds as trumps was sound up to five without showing the spades—and there is a grand slam for north and south with either diamonds or spades as trump. The bidding to show the full strength of north and south should have been one of the following:

N.	E.	S.	W.
1 D.	1 H.	1 S.	P.
2 S.	P.	P.	P.
1 D.	1 H.	2 D.	P.
P.	2 H.	3 D.	P.
P.	P.
1 N.T.	2 H.	2 S.	P.
P.	P.

The fact that cards lie so that a slam can be made cannot be known by the bidders but north can count 10 tricks on his diamond bid by merely crediting his partner with the four tricks that were shown by his support on the first round. The play of the hand given today makes a grand slam easy to accomplish at either spades or diamonds.

If north started with a no trump bid although this is not as sound as the diamond bid, south would bid spades over a heart bid by east and he would also bid spades if east passed, as the rule is that being void of a suit, or with a singleton, a no trump bid should be taken out. If west or east entered the bidding after south's bid of spades, north would support the spades up to four on account of the tricks shown in the bidding.

The mental operations of the various players of the above hand should be practically about as follows:

North—Well, I have the four tricks, three of them quick, three suits protected and no worthless singleton, which entitles me to bid a no trump. If I bid it and partner don't take me out and opponents open hearts I could lose five or six tricks before I got started. Even if they open clubs I'll not be able to set my diamonds without letting them in again to pursue the club suit.

On the whole, I think I had better bid a diamond and see if partner has a bid. He knows that it takes a lot of tricks to go game in diamonds and he will bid spades or hearts or no trump if he has even as good as a defensive bid. If he bids hearts I will go no trump myself, if he bids spades I will support him; if he bids clubs I'll take him off with a no trump.

East—I haven't a bid, but if north bids I have more than the requirements for a defensive bid, namely a six card suit headed by the ace, with a possible trick in clubs. If north bids and I bid the heart I will not be strong enough to rebid it, but will have to depend on partner to continue bidding if he can.

South—If no one bids, I won't. [Then he hears his partner bid a no trump and east two hearts.] That makes it easy, for if partner bids no trump and adversary shows strength in hearts, partner's hand must fit any of the other suits I bid and I'll bid two spades. If partner don't like that bid I will bid clubs if he takes me off with two no trump.

Of course, when south mentions spades, north will carry the bidding up to four and double the adversaries on any bid they may make.

West—No bid here and not enough to even support on the first round any bid from my partner; unless he bids hearts or clubs in which event—owing to my singleton in spades—I'll assist him once if necessary.

There is no method of calculation by which east and west can consider that their hands are worth more than a bid of two in hearts and anything further would be done on the expectation of going down which is something that wouldn't be looked for in a duplicate game.

We are always ready to give the correct bidding and play of any unique hand sent in without any expense other than a stamped envelope if you wish a reply. Address Bridge Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Hannibal's Trek to Rome Goes on Air Over W-G-N

Iatlian Street Songs to Be Featured.

Absence of scenic limitation to radio drama has made possible the varied scope of action and scene presented in a dramatization of "Hannibal," to be broadcast tomorrow night over W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, in the family party series. The musical background will be provided by Joseph Green's orchestra and the Cibelli trio.

The Italian singers and instrumentalists comprising the trio are authorities on old Italian street songs. They will sing "Luna Nuova" [New Moon], "N'Gui N'Gui" [Yes, Yes], and other folk songs, lending atmospheric effect, to which the orchestra will contribute "Angela Mia" and Italian airs.

Priests Open Sketch.

Priests of the roofless temple of Baal open the sketch, chanting in the glaring heat of a tropical African sun. Before the altar the nine year old Hannibal, at the dictate of his father, Hamilcar, takes the oath of undying hatred to Rome. That was 238 B. C. In less than twenty years Hannibal's army had entered Italy.

Hannibal led his army through the snow packed passes of the Alps, on forced marches, one of the picturesquely dramtic events in history. Because of landslides he had to cut new roads through the rock, which he is said to have softened with fire and vinegar. The snow and ice sent men and horses and elephants over precipices.

26,000 Reach Italy.

An army variously estimated as high as 100,000 infantry and 20,000 cavalry numbered but 20,000 foot and 6,000 horse upon arrival in Italy.

Despite hardships, Hannibal's army of Africans, Spaniards, and Gauls never mutinied. His continued failure in the face of victories, however, convinced him of the disadvantage of an army of mercenaries when pitted against a defending citizen soldiery. And with the voluntary surrender to conditions the sketch closes.

McQuhae, Simmons to Share Honors in Kent Hour Tonight

Allen McQuhae, tenor, and Willian Simmons, baritone, will share honors in the Kent Radio hour tonight over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, vying with one another in selecting songs of popular appeal.

The program opens with a duet by the famous French composer, Jean Baptiste Faure, and closes with "Passage Birds' Farewell," by the noted German baritone and composer, Eugen Hildach. "The Crucifix" was selected from the forty-five published songs by Faure, who was noted as one of the most cultured Paris artists, the past century.

In addition the program includes "Rose of My Heart," "Love, I Have Won You," and "Tommy Lad," by Mr. Simmons, and "The Bard of Amagh," "Brown Bird Singing, and "The Tumbled Down Shack in Athlone," by Mr. McQuhae.

SUNDAY, JULY 22

"ANOTHAH E'SPO'TULATION"

AGAIN tonight Fess Williams throws a new dark light on the subject of jazz; again tonight Fess Williams has his crowd primed and ready for the hottest of radio programs; and again tonight Fess Williams will make the hit of hits with the performance of his band and his crew directly from W-G-N's Studio at the Regal Theatre at 11 o'clock this evening. Fess is all excited because his bill is going to have the boys who are known as hot from Hongkong to Leningrad—Miller and Lyles. Harry Gourfain, who really knows his notes, is going to adapt the show to the ether.

JEAN ST. ANNE . . . . Baritone

Jean St. Anne

THIS young French baritone has probably one of the most promising of baritone voices singing today. Aside from the natural gift of a sweet voice with graceful range, Mr. St. Anne is inherently a musician. A glance at the St. Anne family tree reveals capable musicians in each generation. Among them numbers that great pioneer in the modern movement in music, Debussy. Jean St. Anne has prepared for his program this evening a pleasant group of lighter songs for a pleasant Sunday evening. 7:30.

Step Into Our MUSIC ROOM

SELECT a spot where you won't be disturbed and listen to Our Music Room. The feature is an hour of classical music appropriate to social gatherings of the Sabbath. No phase of the higher class works in music is left untouched, and no phase of the program can be found lacking in entertainment value. Hear this dignified feature through W-G-N at 9 o'clock this evening.

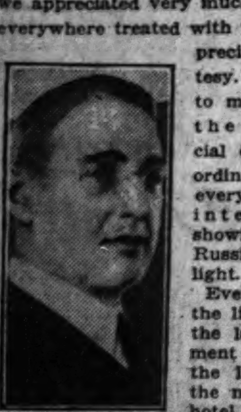
Dr. Beck Gives Impression of Soviet Russia

Finds Effort to Display Regime at Best.

In his letter last week Dr. Beck told of conditions as he found them in wartorn China and of his trip toward Moscow. Herewith he continues the account of his travels abroad.

By Dr. Carl Beck.

MOSCOW itself affords a very interesting study. We gained a special permit to stay a week, a very unusual grant, which we appreciated very much. We were everywhere treated with the most appreciated courtesy. It seemed to me that from the highest official down to the ordinary servant everybody was interested in showing soviet Russia in good light.



DR. CARL BECK.

Everything from the little store to the large department store, from the little inn to the most palatial hotel, is under government control and conducted by the government. There is hardly any private enterprise.

The tourist agency which is selling us our tickets and provides for us the hotel space is a government institution. A government official takes charge of us as a guide from the moment we arrive until the moment we leave. He goes with us to the theater and to dinner. He shows us the museums and he goes with us on an excursion in the country. He answers willingly all our questions and explains to us truthfully and frankly all matters of interest.

Everybody, it seems, is in the government's pay, and although the salary is very low, they must get along on it.

* *

Salesmen Indifferent.

In the stores they had goods to sell, but the salesman did not care very much whether we bought or not. He did not seem to be inspired by any desire to sell his goods. He was a government employé.

The hotel was also run by the government. The servants of the hotel were rather independent, but they did their work, and it seemed to me that they were very glad to take tips, although I was told that tipping had been abolished by the government.

Everything seemed to me very expensive, comparing the prices with our own. An apple was twenty cents, an orange thirty cents. A dinner, which would cost at one of our best hotels a couple of dollars, was about three dollars and more, and a theater ticket on the ground floor of the large opera house was $3.50.

Sees Marvelous Opera.

By the way, the opera was marvelous. The theater was grand, its staging gorgeous, there were most fascinating costumes and a wonderful ballet. One feature surprised me—the continuous tendency to implant soviet propaganda into every line of endeavor. We witnessed a lovely ballet performance at the opera which had as a theme of its libretto the freeing of the Chinese coolies from the fetters of their oppressors by joining the red flag.

Likewise, there was an immense market in dozens of book stalls and tents in which soviet and kindred books were sold at very low prices to the public. They were eagerly bought by crowds of young people. Nobody else is allowed to print but the government.

Fine Art Galleries.

Although the largest collections of art and particularly paintings in Russia are in Leningrad, Moscow has quite a number of the most comprehensive and rich art galleries and museums. They are conducted in an excellent manner—real show places for the tourists of whom however there seem to be very few in the city. But their own people, especially the children and peasants, attended in large numbers and they had guides and teachers who explained and answered questions.

I inquired from one of the directors whether these collections dated back to the imperial times, and I was told that a nucleus had really been formed then, but that most of the pieces had been brought together lately after being confiscated from the rich people's homes following the revolution.

This was exemplified to me particularly in one case which seemed to me so remarkable and so pathetic that I wish to relate it in detail.

* *

Courteously Received.

I was introduced to one of the highest officials of the government, and was received in a most courteous manner by him. Although he could not speak English and our conversation had to be carried on through an interpreter, he seemed a most intellectual and extremely well posted gentleman. His office was a model of organization.

This gentleman called one of his adjutants, a woman physician, whose department was dealing with the information about foreign affairs of science and the contact with foreign guests and their treatment. Both were very well posted regarding the matter which I discussed with them, namely the possibility of a visit of American physicians and surgeons for the purpose of studying the progress which the country had made in the last few years in those lines.

Both seemed very favorable to a project of that kind and expressed the desire to invite especially those who would be designated for such a purpose and who are the representative men of their profession. They offered to assure free entrance and visa and facilities.

A Pathetic Incident.

After discussing medicine in general she insisted that I must see particularly two places in Moscow; one of general interest, a porcelain gallery and ceramic collection, such as no other city can boast of, and another unique institution, something that would interest me as a doctor, a government institution of welfare, taking care of mother and child.

It was the porcelain gallery which evoked in me the sentiment of pity and sympathy. The woman doctor told me she would have the director of the gallery show me the porcelain exhibit and she made such an appointment. At the precise hour we drove up in front of a most magnificent building, evidently a former palace.

We walked up a beautiful marble staircase, and I was met by an old gentleman who was very shabbily dressed but very refined looking and with exquisite manners and who addressed me in an elegant French and told me he was the guide who was ordered to interpret to me the art exhibit.

He showed it with a great deal of expert knowledge and pointed out the most important porcelain pieces, among the thousands of precious specimens of the rarest kind, arranged in cases by periods of production and origin.

The Prince Himself.

It was a collection of such beauty and magnitude as I have never seen before, and which I think has no equal. I asked who had brought these pieces together. The man immediately became silent, looked about to see if anybody listened, and, with a good deal of emotion which showed me that he did not like to answer, finally said that it was a man by the name of Morosoff.

"Ah," I said, "I heard the name Morosoff mentioned several times. He was a prince and was one of the richest men in old Russia. No wonder that he had such a marvelous collection."

The gentleman looked away, then scrutinized my face and suddenly said he would like to show me one of Morosoff's finest private apartments, his library. It was a most remarkable room built like a gothic chapel with most artistic carvings and precious wood ornaments, fresco paintings of Goethe's Faust in different phases of the poem with figures of Mephistopheles, Gretchen and others. I had a suspicion now, and it was confirmed by the official guide, that our informant was Prince Morosoff himself who was now a pauper and was living in the cellar of his former palace and acting as a guide of his collection. What a sad commentary on the vicissitudes of life!

But we hurry away to another picture, to the institution of welfare for mother and child to which the soviet can point with a great deal of pride. It is located in a large complex of buildings erected by Catherine II., two hundred years ago, and which were used during the invasion of Napoleon I. as a French hospital.

It is a colossal square of structures built around a park, each building equipped for a department of study and investigation and for the care of normal and sick children, normal and sick mothers.

By appointment I was met by the chiefs of the departments, and each one explained to me his particular work of research and study. One was studying physiology, another pharmacology, another biology, another clinical symptoms or rare diseases of children from birth to the age of fourteen, still another one radiology, and so on through all the branches of medicine.

They all receive a very small remuneration from the government, and every one asked me whether it would not be possible to come to the United States, at least for a time to study the advancement and progress in our country.

Worthy of Imitation.

They had one feature which interested me particularly. It was the exhibit of models and pictures so practical and so well designed for popular enlightenment that it ought to be imitated in America. It showed the origin of children's diseases, their propagation and their prevention, and I wish that some of our pediatric confrères would come here and study this in detail and bring the ideas home for improvement and progress.

I was told that this institution, which must cost an enormous amount of money, is being kept up by raising the funds from the sale of antiques and art pieces and jewelry in the stores of Moscow—objects which have been confiscated from former rich people.

Meets With Surgeons.

I had the pleasure and honor to be invited to the Congress of Surgeons of Russia which was held at the time I was in Moscow. I met some of the older gentlemen whom I had seen and met years before the war at different congresses. The scientific meeting was interrupted when I came, and the chairman presented me to the attending surgeons as coming from America.

There was a tremendous applause and I was asked to take a seat near the president. I appreciated the fact that this enthusiasm and distinction was not for me personally but for the surgery of the country which I was representing, and I thanked the president in the name of American surgery.

From these doctors I learned authoritatively and truthfully some things which may interest our public at large. First of all that we had a wrong impression about the frivolity and easy contract of marriage in Russia. It is not easily contracted, but easily dissolved, much easier than in our country.

The couple desiring to be married must bring witnesses to the magistrate, proving that they are unattached, and if this statement is proven false the parties and their witnesses are severely punished. But it is the easiest thing, I was told, for a man to leave his wife, much easier than to get rid of a servant.

In case of divorce the man is obliged to take care of the children as long as they are minors, and since he is on the pay roll of the government it is easy for the court to take the adequate amount out of his salary for the maintenance of the children. The state takes care of the children born out of wedlock.

Sanitary conditions are very well taken care of. All the people are offered free medical treatment, if they wish to have it. The doctors are in government employ, but I was told that those who wish to be treated well nevertheless pay the doctors for their services.

At Tomb of Lenin.

The old Kremlin is now occupied by the government could not be mfw visited. In front of it is the celebrated and highly interesting tomb of Lenin. We were inspired when we saw the throng of thousands of people who lined up at eight o'clock in the evening four abreast, to pass through the mausoleum in order to get a glimpse of the man who was responsible for such stupendous changes in Russia.

Our government official guide stepped up to the soldier guarding the entrance, whispered something into his ear and this man, by a motion of his hand, stopped the procession and allowed our party to step in ahead of others. This was a courtesy which I had not expected.

The sight one beholds in that small glass enclosure below is a most impressive and solemn one. Here he lies, almost living, almost talking, that little man, in color so natural, with a strong electric illumination of his features, so that it seems he would rise any moment and address the crowd. I could hardly believe that this was the real dead Lenin, so natural did he look.

Although I should like to have stayed a little longer and studied the conditions of Moscow a little more in detail, we were obliged to leave for Warsaw, the metropolis of the new Polish republic. On the border line we were once more inspected thoroughly. We were relieved of every penny of Russian money and were given a receipt for it which we could cash when we returned to Russia. Exchange of Russian money into Polish or other currency was not permitted.

Warsaw is beautiful and full of interest. Its palaces, its churches, its public and private buildings are in great contrast to what we saw in Russia. Private business is flourishing and everything breathes an air of progress. Warsaw has good schools of learning, a university and great hospitals, and the surgeons who received me were all anxious to welcome our American men next year when the International congress meets there.

I left Warsaw for Vienna. Delightful Vienna! It looks like a paradise after our long trip. At last we live in harmony and with harmonies. Music everywhere. Beautiful spring time. After a few days on the Semering and in Vienna we take up a rest of a few weeks in Bad-Gastein in order to return refreshed to Chicago which, after all, is the best of the cities I have found in the whole circle of the globe.

Soldiers Joust in the Armor of Olden Days

STOCKHOLM. — (AP) — Jousting matches of the middle ages required brawn as well as brain to win, it has been proved at a reconstructed tournament staged in Stockholm, at which authentic armor and weapons were used by the combatants.

The swords, coats of mail and shields were copied from historic relics in the Stockholm museums and executed under the supervision of Dr. Ernst Klein.

Coats of mail reproduced from originals of the fourteenth century covered the entire bodies of the jousting "knights," and on their heads were placed helmets with visors. Broad swords, heavy shields and unwieldy lances completed the equipment. It took some two hours to enclose each fighter in his armor, which weighed about 110 pounds. The horses were clothed in gorgeous saddle cloths.

The participants were young officers of the Stockholm garrison.

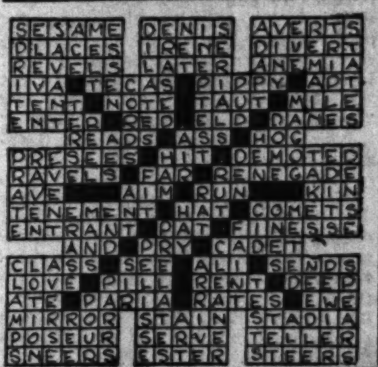
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE



Amateur Models Thin Ranks of Professionals

PARIS. — (AP) — Professional artist models are dying out as a class in this citadel of art.

Never before have there been so many artists in Paris, so many schools and so many galleries, but models, particularly women, are a vanishing race.

With a few rare exceptions, the professionals have been replaced by an anonymous crowd of out-of-work stenographers, mannequins from dressmaking establishments, chorus girls, and, above all, by disinterested girl friends devoted to the cause of art.

* *

Many American Girls.

Art is so much the fashion that painters and sculptors often find their choice of models limited only by the list of their acquaintances.

Many American girls, well educated, of good families, consider it an honor to pose in the studios of Montparnasse and Montmartre.

The old professional model, whose figure inspired so many different artists and so many different works, can no longer compete with those who devote themselves to the studios for love of art nor with those who seek there the easy and joyous existence which bohemia is reputed to offer.

Today the Italians are replaced by Russians, Levantines, Greeks, Negroes and the model market transferred from the Carrefour Brea, in Montmartre.

Most of Them Pretty.

Around the stove of the antechamber of the Grande Chaumiere every Monday during the winter season, crowds the haphazard, happy-go-lucky mass of models looking for work.

Pretty, most of them. Most of the girls are French. The fall of the franc, the high cost of living, are felt here, too. Before the war the French girl generally was reluctant to pose nude.

Now she compares studio life advantageously with the dreary office routine or the stuffy workshop. When she is tired of working, she goes out to pose for a few weeks.

INSTRUCTION.

BECOME A LINGUIST AND ENJOY IT.

Language mastery need never be difficult. For by enrolling under the famous Berlitz Conversational Method you can become a linguist with no more effort than it takes to read an interesting novel. You will actually ENJOY it . . . every minute of every lesson. Fascinating, delightful conversation instruction. You simply listen—and talk the language you wish to master. English is left behind—your ear becomes accustomed to the foreign language—your tongue is trained in foreign accent and articulation. Never more than six in a class—you literally receive INDIVIDUAL instruction—and under the supervision of expert NATIVE teachers. Every lesson is a conversation circle—in which each student participates actively EVERY lesson. Actually the Berlitz Method has taken the hard work out of language mastery—making the study thrilling, entertaining, and enjoyable. Cost is moderate . . . time is saved because progress is rapid—and mastery positive. A free demonstration lesson in French, Spanish, German, Italian or any other modern language will show you how distinctly unique this method is. We invite you to test it . . . sit in on a lesson—and enjoy yourself. Simply write, call, or phone Harrison 0392 for an appointment.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A MAN CAN MAKE REAL MONEY WITH US. THESE FACTS WILL INTEREST THE MAN WHO IS LOOKING FOR STEADY WORK.

We have found it easy to hire men in Chicago. Many do not. Perhaps that's because so many of the advertised golden opportunities have not given men a real chance to make a living. The best salesmen cannot make money selling unless the article has real merit, real quality and for which there is a real need.

Also the man doing the selling must be backed by a house that will make good every promise, one that helps salesmen to increase earnings. This manufacturer is rated in the millions. We have built up a strong standing with the public and with our own organization by standing back of both.

The firms that hire men in droves fail to prepare them properly, give them difficult articles to sell, rely on their selling a few friends before they quit, don't worry about losing men, just hire more to take their place, make us stand out as a wonderful exception.

Here are a few facts about this proposition that make it worth while for you to investigate:

This Branch was established five years ago. Then we had only a single office on the eleventh floor. Now we occupy the entire second floor of a big loop building.

Our business is increasing. In 1927 we doubled 1926. For 1928 we expect to double 1927. July will be the largest month this year and August will be larger than July. Men getting in on this momentum will profit by it. It's great to be linked in with success.

We sell a specialty on which there are nine exclusive patents and on which we give a five-year guarantee, evidenced by a bond. We have no competition. Our demonstration is spectacular and never fails to arouse interest. There's a universal demand for our product. Our factory refused an offer of one and one-half million dollars for the use of just one of these nine patents.

Within the past few days three men who left us to try selling other things have come back to us. They say that this is the greatest money-maker in Chicago. We took them back. We challenge the world to produce a better opportunity for men to make money.

We want ten men between the ages of 25 and 45. They must be neat, clean and willing to work. No man can work for us eight hours a day conscientiously and intelligently and not make money. A lazy man will not make good.

Mr. H., formerly a central station employe, made $299 last week.

Mr. DeP. made 9 sales last week that netted him $207. He had been a railroad mechanic.

Mr. H. made $299 last week. Had no previous selling experience—now owns apartment building bought with money earned with us.

Mr. T. is a builder. Building is slack. He is making Air-Way selling take its place.

Mr. G. is a cabinet maker by trade. He has saved $8,500 in the two years since he joined this organization.

Mr. T. was an express clerk; he has averaged $23 per day for the entire year and a half since joining us.

These men are not high pressure salesmen. They have been mechanics, clerks, laborers some of them. Many of our men have never had any previous sales experience. It is not necessary, for we teach you how to sell our product.

On the other hand, Mr. W. H. S. has sold all his life—has sold stocks and bonds, real estate, too, and promoted companies. He was Toledo, Ohio, manager for a large investment house. Left to go in business for himself. Didn't make good, too much competition. Started with us in February and made over $700 the very first month. That's an example of a successful salesman, being even more successful with us. Everybody has a chance. Mr. L., a lawyer, 45 years old, started April 9 and made over $600 for the month.

In the above we have stated plain facts without exaggeration. Every statement we have made is open for investigation. It may not sound as big as some offers to men, but it's all true. When you come in to get the particulars we can also show you records of earnings, records of promotion, records of sales, that will astonish you. No matter how ambitious you may be, you can realize that ambition here.

This "ad" was written for the plain, every day average man who wants to make a better living for his family, wants a permanent job, and is willing to work hard to get it. Call Monday between 9 and 12 or between 2 and 3. Ask for

A BIG MAN MENTALLY.

A prominent Illinois corporation whose operations are international in their scope has grown so rapidly for the last 2 years that it has become necessary for us to promote a large number of star salesmen to executive positions. We have interviewed hundreds of men to pick the highest class selling organization we believe has ever been assembled. We are not so much interested in salesmen as we are in men of an executive caliber. Our growth has been so phenomenal that our executive staff has not developed in keeping with our sales staff, and we have a number of openings for exceptional men to spend a short period of time learning our business and then step into a bigger position. We have approximately 400 men operating on our sales staff. Many of these men earn as high as $300 to $500 per week. Many of our territories are worth $2,500 to $10,000 per year on repeat business alone. This enables us to select our men very carefully before we give them gratis this amount of commission on previously worked up business. We are not interested unless you have previously earned $6,000 per year or better, unless you can make contact with big men and talk to them on a basis of equality, unless you have a record of honesty and integrity, unless you are between the ages of 30 and 45. Please do not waste our time or yours unless you have the above qualifications. You may phone the undersigned for an appointment, and should you be able to interest us over the phone, we will give you a personal interview. Superior 0836. Ask for Mr. Hill, or address Y K 337, Tribune.

PART TIME SALESMEN!!!

HERE'S ELECTRIC NEWS FOR R. E. MEN. THE BIGGEST SINCE THE ARMISTICE. Advance notice of pre-opening of the most beautiful $3,000,000 development in CHICAGO [at 6800 North] and due west of the Great DEVON-WESTERN DISTRICT.

YOUR SHIP COMES IN.

Here is the rainbow of hope for real estate men—the means of ending all your troubles and FINANCIAL WORRIES. Here is the kind of a deal you have hoped for—wished for—yes, even prayed for, during the last two years. If you want money—need money—will work for money—THEN READ ON.

BACK TO CHICAGO.

My development represents a brand new field of operation in the choicest boom spot in America—C-H-I-C-A-G-O—backed up with millions of dollars and overripe for quick and very easy selling.

YOU NEED A BOOM SPOT.

You need a boom spot now for subdivision selling and CHICAGO is that boom spot. I have money, and I am known as a man who spends big money to do big things. I have one of the largest and best equipped real estate offices in the Loop. I am going to take in some good men with me and make them rich, as I have made others who associated with me during the past ten years. FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED—with the best I have to offer.

YOUR SUCCESS.

I will take on several hundred ambitious ladies and gentlemen to join a new sales force I am organizing, to sell out during the next six months my new 175 acre $3,000,000—CHICAGO—development, right in the great 41st WARD. My new gigantic development incorporates approximately four miles of wide parkways fronting on 80 ft. and 100 ft. boulevards; one mile of business frontage on paved full section line.

PERMANENT BEAUTY.

Over 1,000 BEAUTIFUL TREES and 10,000 SHRUBS to be planted immediately, and every square foot of the entire 175 acre development to be landscaped and seeded with LAWN GRASS [no unsightly weeds]. Property to be maintained and cared for for FIVE YEARS. I don't forget my salesmen's customers.

Big Chicago Development.

Large, built-up CHICAGO developments encircle the borders of my property. Homes and apartments of highest character, stores, banks, theaters, schools, churches. Three lines of transportation serve the property. A 930 acre PUBLIC PARK [about the size of Lincoln Park] and PUBLIC GOLF COURSES surround my new development. For my salesmen's convenience I have built a $5,000 administration building, with private closing rooms, electric lights, and telephones. MOTION PICTURES of this distinguished development is just another aid for my salesmen to close deals.

$250,000 Opening Sales.

The first unit of this gigantic development opens July 23, but already OVER $250,000 IN RESERVATIONS have been made. Sounds like old times, eh? Well, a fortunate purchase for cash enables me to sell this property at LOW PRICES and terms that assure a quick sell-out. Imagine apartment lots at $995, in a highly restricted development that overlooks a 930 ACRE PUBLIC PARK AND 18 HOLE GOLF COURSE. No objectionable developments to kill your sales. EVERY SALE MULTIPLIES ITSELF. Listen! Practically all of my salesmen will be closing deals tonight and EVERY NIGHT.

10% Down—Comm. Paid.

Apartment lots, $995.00—$99 cash. Business lots of $1,995—$199 cash. Don't stand in the way of your own success. Only cowards say "I had no opportunity." Break loose from the tough, hard selling, FAR OUT, too high priced subdivisions, at half cash and 15c to 25c fare to Loop, as hard as nails to sell—and you know it.

HERE SALESMAN IS KING.

This message is from one of you, who has a record of FIGHTING IN THE INTEREST OF SALESMEN. For ten years I gave my organization only the best to sell. I never allowed my people to get caught on a SLOW ONE. I know and understand men and women and I know and understand what CO-OPERATION men and women need to succeed. That's why the men and women who work with me succeed big. The greatest co-operation, low prices [$995.00], easy terms, plenty of leads, automobiles. FREE LUNCH FOR YOURSELF AND CLIENTS are yours. In fact, I stand back of you with every form of co-operation.

I AM READY FOR YOU.

Come and see me sure Monday or Tuesday evening, July 23rd or 24th, at 8:00 p. m. sharp. Be on time. Come with the expectation of hearing THE BIGGEST NEWS SINCE THE ARMISTICE. The men and women who will join with me at once will make BIG MONEY IMMEDIATELY. They will represent the highest paid sales people in CHICAGO. Monday or Tuesday I will show you how to earn a year's salary within the next 90 days. Now, don't be afraid to come, fearing the "boss" might see you. Remember, cowards do not succeed. You will not take $1,000 FOR MY PLAN OF QUICK AND EASY SELLING.

8 P. M. Sharp, July 23 or 24.

If, though your husband earns enough to keep the family and lay by a little each month, you want to do what you can toward your future security and comfort.

If twenty to thirty dollars a week [amount earned depends on time spent on the job] would interest you, earned in your spare time, clean, pleasant, dignified work; no selling.

If you are willing to spend two hours and a half every day to earn spending money for yourself and future wealth and security for your family, call at my office between 10 and 12. I'll show you how.

CO-OPERATIVE APTS.
If you want a moderately priced co-operative apt. this is the last chance to get it. We have a few apts. left in the 3 story walk-up buildings, and when these are sold there will be no more east of Broadway and south of Grace-st. There are no other apts. for sale today except in the tall bldgs., and priced accordingly. Our locations are just as good, our prices are less than half. Take the same advantage the earlier buyers have. A LOW PRICED APT. IN A HIGH PRICED LOCALITY. Walk up to your apartment and SAVE ONE-HALF IN PRICE and upkeep. Just use common sense in buying a co-operative home.

CHICAGO'S FINEST CO-OPERATIVE BUILDING.
There will be available for early fall occupancy one of the choicest 6 room apartments in this building. The arrangement of rooms is unusual and should interest the discriminating purchaser for an apartment of this size. The present owner is taking a larger apartment in the building—which makes it possible to offer this charming apartment for sale. The equity price is very reasonable and the monthly assessments are considerably less than you would expect to pay for an apartment of this type.
There are also ready for immediate occupancy a number of 7 and 8 room apartments—some with two-story living rooms and the duplex arrangement.
Apartments can be purchased on the Rental-Purchase Plan—which is probably no higher than you would pay for rent for an equally desirable apartment in this location.
1320 NORTH STATE-ST. is in successful operation and houses many of Chicago's prominent families.
Apartments always open for inspection.

AN UNUSUAL NORTH SHORE HOME

FOR A DISCRIMINATING BUYER.

Acclaimed by experts as a model of its kind. Site 100 by 205 feet, in a beaut. setting of forest trees. One of the most desirable locations on the North Shore. Close to the lake. On the ridge, not in the valley. Transportation at hand; only 39 min. to Loop.

Designed in English Manor style; exterior of solid oak half timbers, smoky white stucco and tapestry brick; 10 spac. rms. and 3 baths. Italian style liv. rm., flooded with light; fireplace, high ceiling with heavy oak beams and other unusual features. Unique recep. hall with stone floor, a stone firepl. and rough plaster walls; dining rm. in later English style. Master bedrm. with leaded glass windows, firepl. and paneled walls. All interiors by a master decorator. Every convenience known to modern home building. Heated with modulated steam sys. and oil burner—the best known. Completely insulated against heat and cold.

Considering the high value of the site and the excep. character of this home, the price asked by the builder is very low. Liberal terms can be arranged. Address T G 430, Tribune.

AN OPPORTUNITY

ARE YOU ONE OF THE MANY WHO WOULD LIKE TO OWN A HOME IN THE SUBURBS, BUT WHO HAVE NOT BEEN ABLE TO SAVE ENOUGH TO MAKE THE USUAL DOWN PAYMENT?

If you are steadily employed and can furnish satisfactory references as to reliability, I have a most unusual proposition to offer you. I own 30 new homes, RANGING IN PRICE FROM $5,600 AND UP, in Elmhurst and adjacent suburbs, with excellent transportation to Chicago.

As I am going out of the real estate business, and wish to dispose of these homes quickly, I have not only materially reduced the prices, but will give unusual terms and small down payments to parties qualifying.

These homes are attractive and have all modern conveniences and will certainly not last long, so if you are interested write immediately for complete information.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

SECOND MORTGAGE LOANS

It is easy to figure the exact amount which you will be charged on a second mortgage loan made through the agency of the Chicago Morris Plan Bank. Our rate is 6% interest plus a commission of:

3½% for 1 year
6½% for 2 years
9 % for 3 years

Suppose you desire $2,000 for two years. The commission will be $130—no more and no less.

That is the beauty of the one-price system which is used throughout the Morris Plan. The goods are marked with a readable tag, there is no variation or exception, no dickering, bickering, or any other element of trading.

Come in—you will like us and the way we make second mortgages.

Reconditioned LINCOLNS Render New Car Service

In point of actual service to be obtained, there is little choice between a new Lincoln and a reconditioned model. The reconditioned buyer secures a value for his money that can be equaled nowhere in the vast motor car market—providing only that he makes his purchase from a regular, AUTHORIZED DEALER.

This last is especially important. While it is undoubtedly true that any reputable dealer will endeavor to have his cars in good condition before he offers them for resale, the specially trained Lincoln mechanics, who only AUTHORIZED DEALERS employ, are best able to make the adjustments necessary after Lincolns have seen several thousands of miles of service. Their work is solely with Lincolns. They know the mechanism of this splendid car to the finest details, and when they have finished with one, it is substantially as perfect as the day it left the factory, ready to give its new owner miles of luxurious motoring.

Standard guarantees accompany the reconditioned Lincolns sold by AUTHORIZED DEALERS, who are known to stand back of their agreements to the last word. The dealer nearest you is one of this group. See him today and let him tell you about the handsome reconditioned Lincolns on his floor, which may be purchased for from fifteen to thirty-five hundred dollars, with terms to suit responsible buyers.

HUDSON 1926 BROUGHAM. In exceptionally clean and sound condition mechanically and physically. Tires good; $575.

PAIGE 1927 6-45 SEDAN. Has the appearance that stamps it as new. Space does not permit detailing mechanical refinements, but we are very sure it will exceed your expectations. Almost new tires, disc wheels, fully equipped; $750.

PAIGE 8, 8-85 SEDAN. Painted in rich blue color, and so good throughout we believe it to be practically as good as new. Tires show little or no wear. Well built and a brilliant performer; $1,550.

STUDEBAKER BROUGHAM. 2 door, 5 pass.; trunk; excellent tires; all equipment; car shows extreme care; motor, paint, upholstery and tires very good; $650.

GRAHAM-PAIGE 619 SEDAN, 5 pass., side mountings, used by an official of this company at present abroad; 6 tires; everything perfect. Offered with new-car guarantee. See it as soon as you can.

JEWETT COACH, 6-55, 5 PASS. Recent type; general condition better than excellent; price lowest ever quoted; 4 wheel brakes; orig. fin.; good tires; $425.

FORD SEDAN. First class condition; Bosch ignition; 5 good balloon tires; fully equipped; best Ford buy in the city; $275.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. Refinished; tires very good; mechanically A-1. Should sell to first caller at our low price.

PACKARD 6 CLUB SEDAN. It will pay you to investigate. Original finish; everything in almost new condition; tires good; equipped.

PAIGE 8, 8-85 COUPE. Rumble seat. Looks and acts like new; in fact, appears to have never been used. Has every conceivable accessory that can be put on a closed car. At a fraction of its cost new; $1,375.

ESSEX 1928 SEDAN. Traded with little mileage on it, consequently in almost new condition; equipped complete; $650.

PAIGE 1927 ROADSTER. Rumble seat. Car first class throughout and equipped. Also a Cabriolet of same series in similar condition. Both priced right.
